Now, let us forget party lines and logrolling in this distressful time. Mr. Speaker, if we help the banks in one State to-day, would it not help the situation in all States? The other day we passed a bill to relieve the banking situation in Michigan. For 60 years you have been helping industry in New England through a protective tariff. Did you hesitate to do it? Let me suggest to this House that we should forget sectionalism in this distressful time, unprecedented in our history. Right now there is neither North nor South nor East nor West. Let us get behind this bill. Let us take care of cotton now, and in due time we will take care of wheat and the other commodities. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. SNELL].

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, I am not approaching this bill from either a partisan or sectional position.

I am opposed to the principle that is embodied in the bill

I listened very intently to the speech made by the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD]. I am entirely in accord with a great many of the general propositions he put forth; but if you followed his entire speech, you will notice he kept away from the main principle embodied in the bill itself, for that is embarrassing,

This bill is simply a stabilization bill, and every man on the floor of this House who thinks, who knows the provisions of the bill and has studied them, knows that that is what this bill is.

In the last few days I have had a great many meetings with high grade, intelligent men, business men, men who are in favor of this bill. They came from both the North and the South. I asked this question of every single body of men that came in to talk with me: "Are you gentlemen in favor of the Government trying to stabilize the prices of agricultural products?" The unanimous response was: "We are not in favor of that principle." Notwithstanding that, they asked us to stabilize the price of the one commodity that they are specially interested in.

In order to consider this bill properly we must recall a little of the history that went before it. The Members of the House well remember that about two weeks ago a measure was brought onto the floor of the House to give to the Red Cross 329,000 bales of cotton for the distinct purpose of getting the Government out of the cotton business. That was the position taken by the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture. I had a little controversy with him at that time, and I finally decided that if we could get the Government out of business and stop the stabilization for which you people more than anyone else have condemned the present administration and its Farm Board for attempting, I was willing to grant that that cotton should be given to the Red Cross. As a matter of fact, there was no other real reason at that time to give that cotton away, because the Red Cross had over 200,000 bales of cotton on hand that day, and they have at the present time in the vicinity of 200,000 bales of last year's cotton. I want to be fair; some of that has been allocated, but they still have it on hand.

Mr. KELLER. Unused?

Mr. SNELL. I can not yield at the present time.

What does this bill do? It sets up another governmental board to do exactly the same thing for which you have condemned the Farm Board all this time, and there is no reason in this world why we should again start into the stabilization game unless you believe in that principle. That is the principle which is involved in this bill. If you pass this bill, you will be putting the Government right back into business, and the country as a whole is against putting the Government back in the cotton business.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. SNELL. Not unless the gentleman will yield me some more time.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. SNELL. Will the gentleman from Indiana yield me two more minutes?

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield two additional minutes to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. SNELL. We passed the seed loan bill, and one of the reasons advanced for the necessity of its passage was that of forcing a decrease in the cotton acreage next year. Notwithstanding that, we find that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is lending money in unlimited sums to increase cotton production. These gentlemen who came to me said that the cotton production next year will be 10 per cent more than it was last year.

I claim that it is absolutely criminal for an agency of the Government to lend money to increase cotton production this year and then force us to appropriate money to buy up the surplus thus produced. The whole question involved here is whether we are going to continue this vicious circle of lending money to increase crops one day and then the next bring in a proposal to buy back surplus created the day before. Such action is absolutely indefensible.

This is the reason I am opposing this bill. I regret that cotton happens to be the subject under consideration; but I would oppose it no matter to what product it applied, because the country has unmistakably said it was opposed to stabilization on the part of the Federal Government, and every one of the proponents of this bill who came to my office has made the same statement to me.

I tell you, Mr. Speaker, this is a bankers' bill and a spinners' bill more than it is a bill in the interest of the producers of cotton, the great industry of the South. These men are interested more in themselves than they are in the general welfare of the United States.

I am in favor of doing something for agriculture, but this bill does not start it in the right way. I maintain we ought not embark the Government upon another stabilization game as is proposed here at this time.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox].

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I regret that my devoted friend from Indiana raised the sectional question in the consideration of this rule. Speaking for the cotton people, I may say to you who come from the wheat-growing sections, with large dairying interests and other agricultural crops, and so forth, that if this bill should pass, you will not lose the sympathetic concern and cooperation of the cotton people represented by Members of this House. The dairying people, the wheat people, and others may write just such legislation as they believe will take care of their needs. I propose to follow them in the main in the treatment of their problems.

It happens, Mr. Speaker, that cotton is the one commodity that is in such position as to make it possible to apply to it the principle which is set forth in the bill that you are invited to consider. Let me say to you that when the measure was under consideration in the Senate the wheat people were invited to make such suggestions and such changes in the bill as would make the principle apply to that crop, and they found it to be impossible.

The opposition to this bill and to the adoption of this rule has undertaken to capitalize the prejudice that exists against the Farm Board. They have made the argument that this is another stabilization operation. They have contended that it is directly against the findings and the recommendations made by the Shannon committee. Mr. Speaker, I speak in greatest sincerity; I have no disposition in the world to undertake to mislead, even in the interest of the adoption of this rule and the passage of the bill. This is not a stabilization operation. This is not something you are invited to do that is contrary to the recommendations of the Shannon committee.

Mr. SNELL. Will the gentleman yield for a question? Mr. COX. Yes. The effect of the adoption of this rule will be to take the Government out of the cotton business and the Farm Board out of all stabilization practices.

Mr. SNELL. I can not understand the gentleman's statement when he says this takes us out of the stabilization game. It puts us right back into the stabilization game, and we buy over 3,000,000 bales of cotton and put up over $27,000,000 immediately.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of the legislation is not to stabilize price. The cotton people are doomed if the price is stabilized at present levels. You wheat people talk to me about stabilizing the price of wheat at present prices what chance has the grower to ever come back? You talk to me about stabilizing the price of hogs on present price levels-does it not mean the absolute insolvency of the people who till the soil in an endeavor to live? As it is with the wheat people, the dairy and hog people, and all others of the great West and in the other great stretches of this country, so it is with cotton. To stabilize the price of cotton at 6 cents per pound when it costs the grower from 10 to 12 cents to make it even at the present labor costs. would be to destroy the industry. It is the hope of bettering their condition that makes people hold on and continue to strive in these times of stress.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman two additional minutes.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of the legislation is to stimulate price, and the bill can have no possible benefit to the cotton grower unless the price is elevated. You can understand this.

On August 1 next we will be facing a two-year supply of American cotton, a 13,000,000-bale carry-over, with a new crop which we will then commence to market.

I say to you that the hope of the legislation and the purpose of the legislation is to cut down production a step toward evening up production with consumptive demand; and unless something be done to lower production—listen to me and mark what I say-unless something be done to lower production, cotton, instead of hanging around 6 cents per pound, will certainly go to 4 cents; and remember the argument of my friend from Indiana, the falling of price on the holdings of the Government means further loss to the Government. The Government can not lose holding the price where it is or as a result of the taking over of the cotton as proposed in the bill; the Government can not possibly lose one penny more than it has already sustained in the stabilization operations.

Mind you, if the loss of the Government is to stand where it is and is not to be increased by many millions of dollars, cotton must not only be held at present price levels but the price must be elevated in order to take care of overhead.

This is the situation, Mr. Speaker. The effort is to cut down production, and I appeal to the people from the West, do not strike down this effort to aid cotton simply because the situation happens to be such that it is impossible for you to be treated in the same manner as we are endeavoring to treat cotton. The cotton people propose to stand with you and go along with you, continuing to cooperate with you as has been the case in the past, and I do appeal to you to lend a willing hand and assist in the adoption of this rule and in the passage of the bill. [Applause.]

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. ADKINS].

Mr. ADKINS. Mr. Speaker, I did not expect to be opposed to this rule; in fact, as I usually do, I vote for anything our cotton people want. I joined with them, with what little influence I had, to perfect this bill, but a good deal has been said here now about relieving other sections of the country and the condition with respect to other commodi-

At that time we anticipated at least that something would be done for some other commodities. I remember very well when they brought up the idea of taking the surplus wheat and feeding it to the poor people of the country. Sectional or not, we had to add on some cotton to give them a cotton dress. I think we have already contributed about 800,000 bales of cotton, and any man who knew anything about marketing knew it would not affect the price of either wheat or cotton, and this has proven true.

Now, in this instance we come along with this proposition and we do what? We intend to help the cotton farmer, but bear in mind you are going into the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to borrow the money to buy the cotton and relieve the fellows who have money loaned on the

It is a questionable proposition whether it will help the cotton farmer. You are giving him an option on the amount that would be produced on the land that he does not plant. It is questionable how much that will produce. If the price rises, the farmer gets the benefit on cotton that he did not put a nickel into; and if the price declines and an expense occurs against the cotton in storage, Uncle Sam pays the bill and the farmer is not liable.

I want to remind you cotton farmers that if you had included a provision for a corn board and surplus and given the farmers an option on every acre that he kept out of production on the number of bushels of corn that would be produced and insured him against loss, we could go back home and face the Western farmers and say we have done as much for you as we did for the cotton farmer.

But if we do this, we go back and say that we have made an attempt, and if it did not help the cotton farmer it will help the money lenders. Now, one more thing. Our farmers in the grain belt are having meetings now urging Congress to compel gasoline people to put 10 per cent corn alcohol into gasoline, and what do we find? We can get no hearings. Nobody is going to consider it. A lot of these fellows who have got land leases for oil say they do not know how they can help the corn farmer as they would get into trouble with the oil farmer.

You talk about sectionalism. I do not think that any man can accuse me of being sectional, but a fellow gets pretty tired of helping one section of the country, and then when it comes to making a proposition to help the other section in the great Middle West, to have it entirely ignored. If we took up the matter with corn and wheat and left cotton out entirely, not one of you would like it. If we had brought in a similar bill for corn, reduced the acreage, and given the corn farmer an option on the amount of corn this idle land would produce and pay him the increased price, if any, and the Federal Government pay the loss, if any, I do not think we would get many votes for such a bill from the cotton-growing States.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Pov].

Mr. POU. Mr. Speaker, what are the outstanding features of this proposition? Let us not forget them. First, we are largely dealing with cotton already owned by the Government or by the Red Cross. Secondly, it is an ingenious proposal which will probably cost the Government of the United States nothing. Third, it injures no other commodity under the shining sun. It will not depress the market price of any other basic commodity but may indirectly tend to advance such price. In the fourth place, without injuring anybody else and without costing the Government anything, it will be of tremendous benefit to all farmers engaged in cotton production.

Why oppose it, gentlemen? Why strike at such a proposal? Is it because some other commodity is not included? We stand ready to help you who are interested in other commodities whenever you come with a similar proposal which will be helpful, which will injure nobody and cost the Government nothing. I submit, Mr. Speaker, that I can not comprehend the basis of opposition to such a measure as this. All we can do is to appeal to your sense of fairness, yes, to your generosity, in behalf of these people who are ground down as they never have been before; we beg of you at least give us a chance to help them when it is admitted such help can be extended with little expense and absolutely without injury to other producers. [Applause.]

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I yield the remainder of my time to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. MICHENER].

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill, not because it deals solely with cotton. I am opposed to it, first, because it creates another board with unlimited powers. My good friend, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Pou], has said that this is an ingenious proposition which, in all probability, will cost no one anything, but at the same time will be of great benefit to the farmer, so far as cotton is concerned. It may be ingenious, but the principle has been discredited. This bill lifts bodily from the farm marketing act the very provision to which many of us object, the one provision which has been criticized throughout the length and breadth of the land, and that is the stabilization feature. You can not help agriculture by ingenious methods of this type that are going to cost no one anything. It just can not be done. This is another one of these panaceas. It will cost the Government, if it is of any particular value. Can we stabilize? Should we stabilize? Possibly under certain conditions we can stabilize, but, as has been said here to-day, the American people are absolutely and diametrically opposed to any attempt to stabilize which brings about the things which happened under the farm marketing act, and this bill can do nothing, proposes to do nothing but to do that very stabilization act.

Our motto should be to put the Government out of business and not to put the Government into business. It is ridiculous to talk about eliminating positions and the very next day to create more positions. The farm marketing act is unpopular. While it has some very good features, the American people as a whole have not reacted to it, and why should we amplify in this act the objectionable features of an unpopular piece of legislation?

Under this bill this new board of six members is to be composed of persons qualified and experienced in the sale and marketing of cotton. This same type of men have operated under the Farm Board act, and by reason of their operation the Government to-day holds millions of bales of cotton. This stabilization business is responsible for the cotton and the wheat which the Farm Board has, and we must take notice of the shortcomings in that act.

The farmer has had enough experience in gambling, but here we are not only encouraging but insisting upon him doing more gambling. He might win, but the chances are that the Federal Treasury would lose; and I am sure that the farmer coming from that section of the country where general agriculture is indulged in will be opposed to any legislation that attempts to deal with any group or class or bloc of agriculture unless it can be shown that such action will be beneficial to the whole.

I have not studied the details of this bill, of course, and no one has studied the details. It is true that the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture came before the Committee on Rules and asked for this rule. I had a feeling, when he talked to us, that he was asking for this rule with his fingers crossed. I think Chairman Jones has agriculture at heart. I think he thinks of the wheat farmer and of the cotton farmer. I just had a feeling that he was there doing the bidding of possibly a majority of his committee, and not a large majority at that, when he was asking us to pass this kind of legislation, which might have a tendency to bring about sectional feeling in the country so far as agriculture is concerned. I have stood with you cotton people, and you know it. I have stood with the South up and down here. I have tried to get away from politics; I have tried to get away from sectionalism, and that is the thing that we must do best informed on the Agricultural Committee will not wholeheartedly support? [Applause.]

This is no time at this late hour in the session to bring so controversial a matter before the House. The country will resent an effort to deal with one commodity only. The new Congress will, I hope, meet in special session within a few days after March 4. The President elect has promised agriculture a definite program of relief and we are all anxiously waiting to find out just what that program is, and I am sure that regardless of political affiliations we all want to lend our aid to anything that will help that program. An amplification of the principles and advocacy of the stabilization practiced under the Farm Board act will not materially help agriculture or cotton as one factor in the problem.

Let it be remembered that this bill is being sponsored by certain bankers, by certain cotton spinners, as well as cotton growers. The spinner or the producer of the raw material, who wants to buy cheap material, and the farmer who must sell to the spinner and who wants a higher price for his raw material, are strange bedfellows. The money lender, who possibly has a lien on some of this Farm Board cotton, is interested in the provisions which might bring assistance to him through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The above alliance will probably pass the bill, but let no wheat farmer or corn farmer or general farmer be deceived. If this bill is of any benefit it will discriminate against all agriculture excepting the cotton grower, and it will require subsidy from the Federal Treasury before it can be of any assistance to anybody. Let us vote against this proposition and thereby require general farm relief at an early stage in the new Congress.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, before yielding the remainder of the time at my disposal to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Jones], the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, I hope that Members on the floor will listen to him because I am sure that he can clear up, absolutely, some misconstructions that have been placed on the features of this bill by some of the speakers who are opposed to it.

I yield the remainder of my time to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Jones].

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I hope no one will feel that there is any desire upon the part of anyone to present a bill that is in any way sectional. It so happens that the district which I represent produces comparatively far more wheat than cotton, and is as much interested in cattle, perhaps, as in either of these commodities. Assuredly, I can not be charged with trying to favor one commodity.

It so happens that this is the only commodity which is already pooled, on which the Government has loans beyond its value, and which may be made to serve a useful purpose without risking any money. Regardless of the condition as to the other commodities, will your interest be promoted if you deny a benefit to the people who are producing one great commodity, even though it would not affect the other commodities? As a matter of fact, it would beneficially affect the other commodities if this bill serves the purpose that is intended. I think, perhaps, it will not serve as great a purpose as some think, but that it would serve a useful purpose can not be doubted. The gentleman from New York refers to this as a stabilization program.

The gentleman from New York thinks he is right, as he always does, but as a matter of fact he is wrong, as he frequently is. This is not a stabilization program. That has been finished. These commodities are commodities on which the Government already has loans through the cooperatives and through the collateral program in the Department of Agriculture.

I am not foolish enough to offer this as a cure all. But cotton is essentially a world commodity. It is the one major commodity that can not, anywhere, at anytime, receive any direct advantage of any kind from the tariff. You have noted what a difference in price is caused by a change of a few hundred thousand bales in estimates as to the here; so why bring a proposition of this kind, which those | amount of the production in this crop made by the Department of Agriculture.

> This bill provides for a reduction of production by contracting with the farmer that in so far as he reduces his cotton baleage, he will be given an interest in this poolnot given the cotton, but given an interest in any profits in the cotton.

> Frankly I do not know what the final results of the bill will be. But I do know that if in this method the production of cotton can be reduced by 2,000,000 or more bales, as claimed by its author, such reduction would have a vast beneficial effect on the price.

> If the Government undertook to dump this cotton on the market now it would break the market tremendously, and entail a big loss to the Government. On the other hand, if it holds it indefinitely, it would be a continuing weight on the market, with production coming up in the cotton regions; so that the double program would be there. On the other hand, if this bill operates as its proponents hope it will, it will reduce that production and get the Government away from the cotton. It must be sold, under the terms of this bill, within two years, whereas with the Government holding loans against it, it may be held indefinitely. If you vote down this bill the Government will have the cotton on its hands, whereas if you pass the bill this cotton must be fed into the market within the months I named.

Mr. SNELL. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. JONES. I yield.

Mr. SNELL. Did the gentleman not advocate before the House a few weeks ago that we should give the cotton that we owned to the Red Cross, in order to get the Government out of the stabilization cotton business?

Mr. JONES. Yes, sir; and I will stand on that statement, and if we had any more cotton in the Stabilization Corporation I would have included it, and I included every bale that it then had.

Gentlemen, I am pleading with you for an industry that is prostrate. I want you to look beyond the mechanics of this thing, to the man who is drawing the cotton sack down yonder under the blazing September sky. This will do no one any harm. It will cost the Government nothing and may do the cotton grower considerable good. [Applause.]

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the amendment to the rule.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD | to the resolution.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution as amended.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the resolution as amended.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were-yeas 193, nays 179, not voting 54, as follows:

> [Roll No. 1721 YEAS-193

Abernethy Aldrich Allgood Brunner Bulwinkle Burch Almon Busby Canfield Andrew, Mass. Arentz Cannon Arnold Carden Auf der Heide Bacharach Carley Cartwright Cary Castellow Celler Bankhead Barbour Barton Beam Beedy Black Chapman Chavez Clark, N. C. Cole, Md. Collier Bland Blanton Boland Collins Condon Briggs Connery Cooper, Tenn.

Cox Coyle Cross Crowe Crowther Crump Cullen Davis, Tenn. Delaney DeRouen Dickinson Dickstein Disney Dominick Doughton Douglass, Mass.

Doxey

Drewry

Corning

Eagle Eaton, N. J. Ellzey Eslick Estep Evans, Mont. Fernandez Fishburne Fitzpatrick Flannagan Fuller Fulmer Gambrill Gasque Gifford Gilbert Glover Goldsborough Granfield Greenwood

Gregory -Hancock, N. C. Hare Hartley Hastings Hill, Ala. Hill, Wash. Holmes Houston, Del. Huddleston Hull, Morton D. Jeffers Johnson, Okla. Johnson, Tex. Keller Kemp Kerr Kleberg Lambeth Lanham Lankford, Ga. Larrabee Larsen Lea Leavitt Lichtenwalner Lindsay

Lovette Lozier McCormack McDuffie McKeown McMillan McReynolds McSwain Major Maloney Mansfield Martin, Mass. May Mead Miller Mitchell Mobley Montet Moore, Ky. Nelson, Mo. O'Connor Oliver, Ala. Oliver, N. Y. Overton Parker, Ga. Parker, N. Y. Parks Parsons

Patman Patterson Perkins Pettengill Pou Prall Ragon Rainey Ramspeck Rankin Rayburn Reid, Ill. Reilly Rogers, Mass. Rogers, N. H. Romiue Rudd Sabath Sanders, Tex. Sandlin Schafer Seger Seiberling Smith, Va. Smith, W. Va. Somers, N. Y. Spence

Sumners, Tex. Sutphin Swank Tarver Taylor, Colo. Taylor, Tenn. Thomason Tierney Underwood Vinson, Ga. Vinson, Ky. Warren Weaver West Whittington Wigglesworth Williams, Mo. Wilson Wolverton Wood, Ga. Woodrum Wright

NAVS-179

Steagall

Kennedy, Md. Kennedy, N. Y. Adkins Allen Englebright Robinson Sanders, N. Y. Evans, Calif. Schuetz Amlie Ketcham Kinzer Kniffin Selvig Shallenberger Fiesinger Andrews, N. Y. Finley Ayres Bachmann Fish Knutson Shott Kopp Shreve Foss Bacon Baldrige Kurtz Kvale Frear Simmons Sinclair Snell Free LaGuardia French Beck Biddle Lambertson Lamneck Snow Sparks Gavagan Boehne Lankford, Va Stafford Bohn Boileau Gibson Gilchrist Stalker Lonergan Stewart Stokes Bolton Gillen Loofbourow Brand, Ohio Strong, Pa. Griffin Ludlow Britten McClintock, Ohio Stull Griswold Summers, Wash. McFadden Buckbee Guver Hadley Haines Burdick McGugin Swanson McLeod Sweeney Burtness Cable Campbell, Pa. Hall, Ill. Hall, N. Dak Magrady Manlove Swick Swing Carter, Calif. Carter, Wyo. Chiperfield Hancock, N. Y. Mapes Michener Taber Hardy Millard Thatcher Hart Moore, Ohio Morehead Christgau Christopherson Haugen Hawley Thurston Timberlake Murphy Nelson, Me. Nelson, Wis. Clague Hess Tinkham Hoch Treadway Hogg, Ind. Holaday Hollister Clarke, N. Y. Turpin Cochran, Mo. Cochran, Pa. Nolan Norton, Nebr. Wason Watson Hooper Hope Hopkins Cole, Iowa Colton Weeks Welch Norton, N. J. Partridge Connolly Peavey Person Pittenger White Cooper, Ohio Horr Howard Whitley Williamson Crail Crosser Culkin Jacobsen Jenkins Polk Withrow Wolcott Pratt, Ruth Johnson, Mo. Johnson, Wash. Darrow Davis, Pa. Purnell Ramseyer Wolfenden Woodruff Ransley Dowell Kading Wyant Reed, N. Y. Rich Dyer Eaton, Colo. Kahn Kelly, Ill.

NOT VOTING-54

Bloom Douglas, Ariz. Doutrich Bowman Brand, Ga. Drane Byrns Freeman Campbell, Iowa Fulbright Cavicchia Golder Hall, Miss. Harlan Hogg, W. Va. Hornor Hull, William E. Chindblom Cooke Curry Davenport De Priest

Johnson, Ill. Johnson, S. Dak. Kelly, Pa. Lehlbach Lewis McClintic, Okla. Maas Martin, Oreg. Milligan Montague Mouser Niedringhaus

Palmisano Pratt, Harcourt J. Schneider Sirovich Smith, Idaho Strong, Kans. Sullivan, N. Y. Sullivan, Pa. Underhill Williams, Tex. Wood, Ind.

So the resolution as amended was agreed to. The Clerk announced the following pairs: On this vote:

Mr. Drane (for) with Mr. Chindblom (against).
Mr. Buchanan (for) with Mr. Underhill (against).
Mr. Brand of Georgia (for) with Mr. Campbell of Iowa (against).
Mr. Hall of Mississippi (for) with Mr. Doutrich (against).
Mr. Byrns (for) with Mr. Niedringhaus (against).
Mr. McClintic of Oklahoma (for) with Mr. Golden (against).
Mr. Sullivan of New York (for) with Mr. Smith of Idaho (against).
Mr. Bloom (for) with Mr. Bowman (against).
Mr. Sirovich (for) with Mr. Hogg of West Virginia (against).

Until further notice:

Until further notice:

Mr. Milligan with Mr. Cavicchia.
Mr. Douglas of Arizona with Mr. Kelly of Pennsylvania.
Mr. Harian with Mr. James.
Mr. Shannon with Mr. Chase.
Mr. Palmisano with Mr. Lehlbach.
Mr. Montague with Mr. Johnson of South Dakota.
Mr. Lewis with Mr. Pratt.
Mr. Dieterich with Mr. Curry.
Mr. Hornor with Mr. Davenport.
Mr. Flood with Mr. Freeman.
Mrs. Owen with Mr. Strong of Kansas.
Mr. Fulbright with Mr. Wood of Indiana.
Mr. Williams of Texas with Mr. Mouser.
Mr. Martin of Oregon with Mr. Cooke.
Mr. Igoe with Mr. Sullivan of Pennsylvania.
Mr. Kunz with Mr. De Priest.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I was unavoidably detained from the Chamber and was not present when my name was called. If permitted to vote, I would vote "aye."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman does not qualify.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members who spoke on the resolution may have the balance of this session within which to extend their remarks on this subject.

Mr. STAFFORD. Reserving the right to object, why not extend that privilege to all Members of the House?

Mr. PURNELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to modify the request, to ask unanimous consent that all Members may have the balance of the session within which to revise and extend their remarks on this resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. PURNELL]?

There was no objection.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (S. 5122) to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill S. 5122, with Mr. Davis of Tennessee in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the first reading of the bill be dispensed with.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Jones]?

There was no objection.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. FULMER].

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Chairman, I am very much surprised at some of the speeches made against this bill, during the consideration of the rule, especially by Members on the Republican side of the House. I especially want to refer to the attitude of several members of the Committee on Agriculture. When we were considering the domestic allotment bill, practically every Member representing agricultural States from the West made this remark: "Anything you cotton boys want will be perfectly satisfactory to us." made the same statement to you from the West.

My friends, when we were considering this bill, the members of the Committee on Agriculture representing the great agricultural sections of the West took part in it and helped amend the bill that we have before you to-day. When this bill was voted out, I do not believe there was a single vote agaisnt a favorable report on the same by any member of the committee. It seems that something has happened since the reporting of that bill that has changed the minds of my friends from the West. In respect to the bill for the purpose of extending credit to that great section of the West where the farmers are unable to pay their obligations to the Government at this time on the reclamation projects, not only did I go along with you and vote for the bill but I stood on the floor of the House and tried to emphasize the great need of the passage of that legislation to take care of your people who are absolutely in the same condition as the cotton people of the South to-day.

The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. PURNELL] in his remarks a few minutes ago was wondering why the cotton mills have become so sympathetic toward this type of legislation which is proposed for the relief of farmers. May I state to the gentleman from Indiana and to the Members representing the New England States that the cotton mills of this country realize that unless we rehabilitate agriculture and do something to save the great agricultural South which is now facing bankruptcy, that the cotton mills of this country will soon go into the hands of receivers. No wonder that day in and day out the banks of this country are being closed. A few days ago the great banking interests of Michigan, Ohio, Maryland, and Arkansas called a moratorium with the hope that they may be able to reopen their doors under some arrangement whereby they may be able to save the deposits for their customers and continue in the banking business.

You can continue to pour into these corporations, into these banks, and into these railroads funds you have provided through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but until Congress passes constructive legislation proposing to rehabilitate agriculture and bring about fair prices for farm products on a basis with industrial products, it will be just like putting that much money into a rat hole.

We have heard quite a lot about creating a new board in discussing this bill. It is generally thought that perhaps the present Farm Board will be a thing of the past in the very near future. That is the main reason why we did not designate the present Farm Board in this bill. The board we propose to create under this bill will not be a salaried board, nor will it be any expense to the Government. If you place this proposition in the hands of the present Farm Board, now operating, it would cost the Government quite a lot of money. The present Farm Board tried to stabilize agricultural products, especially cotton, without any attempt to restrict production. We all realize that they made an absolute failure. In the passage of the farm marketing act I stated that it would be impossible to stabilize cotton on a fixed price unless you could control production.

Now what do we propose to do under this bill? We voted out the domestic allotment plan proposing to restrict production, and pass the adjustment charge, or increase in price, on to the consuming public. Under this bill we simply propose to take over the cotton now in the hands of certain governmental agencies which is already pooled and available for the operation of the plan set forth in this bill. In other words, we say to the farmers of the South: "If you will reduce your production 30 per cent or 40 per cent we will allocate to you out of this pool of cotton the number of bales you would have made had you planted or produced the same number of bales this year that you produced last year."

What will this mean to the farmer? It will mean he will not have to buy fertilizer for the acreage not planted in cotton, which is one of his largest items of expense; that he can plant on this acreage hay, corn, vegetables, and various other crops that he would be able to use in the way of feeding his family, his tenant farmers, and his livestock. If this bill works as we expect it to work, and if farmers will take advantage of same and carry out their agreements, we would bring about a reduction in production of 2,500,000 bales of cotton, which would mean a higher price, not only for the cotton allocated to farmers but also on cotton produced this year. This is the inducement that we hold out to cotton farmers under the bill. This will naturally restore the purchasing power of the great agricultural South, and inasmuch as we are consumers of your western products, flour, meat, and mules, it will mean much to you.

I see what is in the mind of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Clark] when I referred to the planting of other crops on the acreage that will be taken out of the production of cotton. May I say to my friend that the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Andresen] put into the bill an amendment perfectly satisfactory to the dairy interests, which he repreprice.

sents, whereby we could not plant the acreage that would not be planted in cotton with any crop that would interfere with the national basic crops.

After the passage of this bill, we propose to take this cotton over at the market price, whereas if the Federal Government, through these agencies, continues to hold this cotton and we have an increased production during 1933—and we will have—we are going to find the Federal Government eventually dumping on the market this cotton that could be used to reduce production, as contemplated by the bill, and it will be dumped on the market at a price much lower than the price of cotton to-day. In other words, this bill is a protection to the Government to the extent of, at least, the present market price of cotton. It is very necessary at this time to reduce the production of cotton. Do you know that if we did not plant a single acre of cotton his year we would have enough surplus cotton on hand to supply the demand for cotton for the next 12 months?

It is impossible for farmers to reduce their acreage on their own initative, but this bill provides an inducement for them to reduce, and only those agreeing to and who really carry out their contracts will participate under the plan.

This cotton will eventually be sold, if we shall have succeeded in reducing production, at a greater price than the market price to-day, and that difference in price will be given to the farmer as an inducement not to plant his full acreage in cotton or buy additional fertilizer to produce more.

Mr. Chairman, I am a large farmer down in South Carolina. If this bill should be put through and the board should say to me, "Mr. Fulmer, reduce your production by 100 or 200 bales and we will allocate this much cotton to you at the market price, and carry same, giving you the difference in any increased price brought about because of the operation of this bill," I certainly would accept, because I would know that in reducing production it would bring about an advance in price. In the meantime, I would not have to buy fertilizer to put on that acreage. I would then be permitted to grow other crops for the purpose of feeding livestock and producing food for my tenant farmers, whereas to-day the tenants have to grow cotton because that is practically the only money crop in that section, and in a great many instances, they wind up short of feed and food products.

Mr. COLE of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FULMER. I yield.

Mr. COLE of Iowa. It occurs to me that what the Government is doing, as explained by the gentleman from South Carolina, is buying options for the farmers on 3,000,000 bales of cotton. If the price goes up the planters will get the profit but if the price goes down the Government will foot the bill.

Does not this bill put the farmers into a gambling operation with the Government footing the losses and the planters getting the profits if there are any?

Mr. FULMER. Not at all, may I say to the gentleman. Suppose this bill fails of passage and the price of cotton goes down, who is going to take the loss on the cotton now in the hands of the Government? Naturally, it will come out of the Government. If the plan succeeds we will reduce production to the amount of cotton that is taken over by this board, which will insure the present market price to the Government and will not only be getting the Government out of the cotton business, but, as stated, will go a long way in putting cotton farmers, cotton mills, and other lines of business on the road to normal prosperity. The beauty of this whole plan is that we propose to help farmers do that which is necessary but which they are unable to do, and without cost to the Government. I tried to induce the Farm Board, during the first of the fall of 1931, to put into operation this identical plan, but they refused. Had this plan been put into operation then, we would now be receiving 8 or 10 cents per pound for cotton instead of the prevailing The gentleman from New York spoke against this bill, stating that he was fearful that it would be a drain on the Treasury of the United States. In the meantime I understand he is absolutely behind a proposition fostered by the owners of the Land O'Lakes dairy products of Wisconsin, whereby the Government will appropriate millions of dollars for the purpose of renting farm lands from the agricultural West and South, paying these farmers $5 per acre rent as an inducement to cut production of wheat, cotton, and corn.

It appears from this plan, as advocated by the minority leader, Mr. SNELL, that he is willing to vote millions out of the Treasury as a direct subsidy, hoping to accomplish what we propose to accomplish under our plan without cost to the Government.

Mr. CHRISTGAU. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FULMER. I yield.

Mr. CHRISTGAU. Before a cotton farmer reduces his acreage should he not have assurance that a sufficient number of farmers, to make the effort effective, will do likewise? Otherwise, how can he be assured of any increase in price?

Mr. FULMER. We are not fearful at all that farmers will not take advantage of this plan, which, as stated, would offer them a profit on that which they did not actually produce, thus saving the expense of fertilizer, and being permitted to plant other crops that will be needed on the farms. It is possible to reduce acreage and still have a large production on account of favorable seasons, and so forth. If this happens, and there is no financial advantage on the part of the farmer in taking his option, he will simply refuse it. You state if this should happen it will leave the Government holding the bag. May I state that the Government will not be in any worse condition if this happens than it will be if the bill fails to pass? May I say to the committee that the farmers of the South, the cotton mills, the banking interests, and every other line of business are absolutely behind this proposition?

For your information I will state that the legislature of my State passed a resolution indorsing this legislation.

I want to beg my friends of the West to join with us in the passage of this legislation. I feel sure if the plan is successful that not only will it mean the saving of the homes of the farmers of the South but it will mean that you of the West will begin to receive your share of the benefits on account of the purchasing on the part of my people of your flour, meat products, and mules, all of which will tend to restore the purchasing power of your people.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Is debate on this bill limited to 30 minutes a side?

The CHAIRMAN. Yes; that is the limitation set under the rule.

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. CLARKE].

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Mr. Chairman, as far as I am concerned, coming from one of the outstanding dairy centers of the United States, I claim that the producers of all agricultural commodities are entitled to equality in treatment from their Government, no more no less. The crux of this bill is inequality, because it fails to recognize the producers of other agricultural commodities that are in just as great distress as cotton. I know what distress our dairy farmers are going through. There is no politics in this bill as far as I am concerned, but I claim there is a matter of good faith in our Agriculture Committee. The chairman of this committee has not kept faith with his own committee. because right in this Chamber he promised me that he would have a meeting to which he would bring the specialists and the experts from the Department of Agriculture to give us the details regarding what the expenses would be, where the obligations were, and full information.

Mr. JONES. The gentleman knows we had that meeting and I presented the reports containing the information which the gentleman requested. It was the day before that the gentleman interrogated me.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. It was the day after they appeared before our committee.

Mr. JONES. The gentleman is mistaken, that is all.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. I think I know as well as the gentleman what happened, and I know about the gentleman's promises. The gentleman remembers talking with me in the back of the room here.

Mr. JONES. I remember it, but that was the day before the meeting. The gentleman asked me to get a report from the Department of Agriculture, and I not only got that but I got a report from the Farm Board as well and presented them to the committee, and they are right here now.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. I claim the gentleman did not present these to the committee, and other members of the committee tell me that such detailed information has been lacking even down to this minute in the presentation of this bill to the committee. There has been no detailed information given.

Mr. JONES. As a matter of fact, the gentleman was not at that meeting. The gentleman was out of town when that happened.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. There has been no detailed information given with regard to where this cotton is stored, the amount of cotton stored, and the bankers interested in it.

Mr. BULWINKLE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLARKE of New York. I can not yield now.

So I say that in view of this situation we are entitled to the facts. When we have the facts, then we can decide, rightly or wrongly, on this bill.

Now, what else is wrong with it? I will tell you what is wrong with it. This discrimination that they talk about is the great fundamental error. When we had the allotment plan before this House, what was it that I objected to then? The same discrimination that I object to now. You then limited the allotment plan to five agricultural commodities only, and you were discriminating against the producers of other agricultural commodities.

I claim that agriculture, by and large, should have the recognition it is entitled to and that you should not come in here in the last four days of a session of Congress and try to thrust down our throats something that is discriminatory, and we are lacking in information about.

This is so fundamentally wrong that it disturbs me in a number of ways, and how any Member of this House, coming from a community that does not produce cotton, can face his own farmers as badly in want as your cotton farmers are, and say to them, "Yes; I voted for cotton, relying on a political promise that we would put this cotton bill through, and, by and by, when the Kingdom of Heaven dawns, we will get the rest of you fellows in on it," I can not understand. Your constituents are going to rise up in their might, and they ought to, and smite you because you have not played fair by protecting those whom you were sent here to represent.

Mr. ALLGOOD. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CLARKE of New York. I am sorry, but I have not time to yield now.

There is another thing about this bill I wish to discuss. They talk about relieving the market. Probably this will relieve the market, but it will relieve some bankers more, or possibly it will not—nobody knows—but if you will just transfer, by some prestidigitatorial political promises of one kind or another, or by some major performances, if you please, this cotton from one place to another, if you will give the bankers a chance to run up with their warehouse receipts and get the money from "Uncle Sam" that is coming to them, under the promise or guise of protecting the producer of the commodity, you will sometime, in the markets of the world, have to meet again this cotton somewhere, and if this is a threat to the market now, it will threaten the market again. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself one minute.

Mr. Chairman, I regret exceedingly that the gentleman takes the position he does. The gentleman did speak to me—and I do not recall whether it was in the committee or on the floor—and asked me about getting this information. I got it and presented it to the committee the morning we met for final consideration of the bill. The gentleman was not there that morning, but I had this information there and read from it to the committee on the day we reported the bill out.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. JONES. Yes.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Chairman Haugen was there that day, and he says the information was not presented.

Mr. JONES. He must have come in late.

Mr. HAUGEN. I beg the gentleman's pardon; I asked for it, and the gentleman said it was not there but that he would get it.

Mr. JONES. The information was there and was read to the committee that morning. If the gentleman made the request to have it read again later, I must have misunderstood him. It is dated February 21, and I presented it that morning. I am sorry there has been any misunderstanding about it. I have copies of these reports, and anybody may see them who wishes to do so.

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Maine [Mr. Snow].

Mr. SNOW. Mr. Chairman, if this Smith bill is enacted into law I predict that within a short time Members of the next Congress will begin to receive demands from farmers producing other farm commodities, asking them to favor legislation setting up new commissions to buy their farm products and gamble with them just as it is proposed to gamble with cotton here to-day. And what answer can be made?

There has been some talk here to-day concerning wheat and cotton and it has been suggested that Members from the wheat-producing States would have gone along with this bill if wheat had been included. Let me say to you that I have been here four years and I am sick and tired of hearing simply talk of cotton and wheat when farm relief is being discussed. There are other agricultural commodities in addition to cotton and wheat. [Applause.] If this bill, instead of dealing with cotton alone, dealt with wheat; or, instead of that, if it simply dealt with corn; or, I will even make bold to say, if it simply dealt with potatoes, I would not go along with it, because it would be unfair to the general farmers of the country.

We all realize the condition of the cotton farmer, but he is not distressed one bit more than 12 or 13 other classes of farmers in this country, and the form of farm relief that should be given in these times of general farm distress is of general farm relief. We should not pick out one set of farmers, comprising about 10 per cent of the farmers of the country, and favor them and allow the remaining 90 per cent of the farmers to still hold the bag. [Applause.]

This bill brought in here by virtue of a rule is opposed by a majority of the Committee on Agriculture. What will the psychological effect be on the remaining 90 per cent of farmers of the country in their destitute condition to-day if this bill passes and they learn that the cotton farmer has been favored and nothing done for them? Why is not the corn, wheat, cattle potato, poultry, truck, dairy, and diversified farmer entitled to equal consideration at this time? If this bill is passed, in all probability no attempt will be made for further farm relief for some time. The only persons appearing before the House Committee on Agriculture in behalf of this bill were two gentlemen from the other end of the Capitol. I asked one of them why he proposed to set up a new commission. His answer was that the commission would serve without pay.

I then asked him if it would be possible to get six gentlemen to serve without pay, unless they were rich men who had nothing else to do and asked why the Farm Board had been left out. He replied that the Farm Board did not stand very well with the farmers in the cotton States. I wonder why. Stabilization is the answer and here it is proposed to set up another stabilization board.

Many of us opposed to this bill will gladly support any sensible bill which will afford relief to all of the farmers at the same time, but we will not play favorites. There is nothing sacred about the cotton farmer. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. HOPE].

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Chairman, and members of the committee, all the discussion that has taken place on this bill so far has been upon the assumption that this bill is going to make the cotton farmer rich, if we enact it. I do not read in this bill anything of the kind. As a matter of fact, this is not a new plan. If some of you remember what was known as the Walla Walla wheat plan something like a year and a half ago, you will see that exactly the same plan is contemplated here. But the Walla Walla plan had more justification because of the fact that the Stabilization Corporation itself had the wheat on hand. It did not have to go and get it from the cooperatives, or the Red Cross, or from the Department of Agriculture. In order to put that plan in operation we did not have to start a new board. Walla Walla plan was presented to the Farm Board and they turned it down because they thought it would not work, after their economists had given it the most careful study. I studied the Walla Walla plan at that time and I was not convinced it would work, and I frankly told the proponents of the plan that I thought the effect of the Walla Walla plan, if adopted, might be to actually increase wheat acreage. What is likely to happen in this case if you adopt this particular plan? I hold in my hand here a statement some one sent around to us this morning, I presume one of the proponents of the measure, though not signed by anyone, and in this statement it is asserted that unless we pass this bill the acreage of cotton will be increased by from 5 to 10 per cent, and attention is called to all of the capital that is available for cotton production this year. If, in view of the present low price of cotton, the acreage is going to be increased from 5 to 10 per cent, I submit that if you say to the farmers that there is going to be a reduction on the part of some farmers, other farmers will not go into the plan and will increase production.

You are not going to be able to make contracts with all of the cotton farmers; there is not enough cotton to go around. The result will be that you will have some who will cut down production and others who will increase it, and nobody will know until the end of the year what the result will be, whether an increase or a decrease. Besides, production is dependent on weather as well as acreage. In 1930 the production of cotton per acre was 147.7 pounds, and the very next year, 1931, it was 200 pounds. So you could very easily, on account of weather conditions, have an actual increase in production, even assuming you have some acreage reduction as suggestion in this bill.

Mr. LARSEN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield? Mr. HOPE. No; I do not have the time. What you are doing here is setting up another farm board, an organization to stabilize the price of cotton; an organization which has the power to take over cotton now held by the cotton cooperatives, and make a complete settlement with these cooperatives of the indebtedness which they now owe the Federal Government. The loss on these loans to-day is about $58,000,000. If you pass this bill, you are giving this board authority to go in and make settlement with these cotton cooperatives without any further investigation on the part of this Congress as to how that indebtedness was incurred, whether such a settlement ought to be made, or whether the cotton cooperatives have other property which could be taken over in payment of this indebtedness to the Government of the United States.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Kansas has expired.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. SANDLIN].

Mr. SANDLIN. Mr. Chairman, I would not ask the members of this committee or the Members of the House to vote for any measure which, in their judgment, is not to the interest of their own people, but if you want to determine the issue here purely on a selfish basis, then there are two substantial reasons why you should support the measure. If, as all assume, it will help the price of cotton, what will the people do with the money that they get for this increased price of cotton? They can not eat it. They will have to buy the wheat from the wheat sections or the manufactured articles from the industrial sections. The argument is made here as it is made in the presentation of a tariff measure, that if you make certain sections prosperous by an increased tariff, that other sections, not directly interested, will receive the benefit by the increase in the purchasing power of the people in the prosperous sections.

If this measure is not passed I think any well-informed man on the floor of the House knows that the cotton which the Government has advanced money on will be sold at a material loss to the taxpayers of this country.

Therefore, on those two propositions alone, I appeal to the Members of this House, it matters not from what section they come; on the basis that it will help the buying power of that section of the country and all other sections of the country, and on the basis that the Federal Government and the taxpayers of this Nation will be benefited because of the material reduction in the acreage of cotton in the South, the price of cotton will be advanced. The money loaned on the cotton can be collected, and there will not be a further decline in the price of cotton. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Sandlin] has expired.

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HART].

Mr. HART. Mr. Chairman, I am glad to learn that those on the Republican side of the House have learned something from experience. We on the Democratic side went out in the last campaign in the Middle West and sunk them because they were speculating in farm products, but yet we bring before this House a more vicious measure for speculation than was ever contained in the farm marketing act.

Let us see what our candidate for President, the new President, who won upon that issue in the West, said about it. I am reading from the Democratic Campaign Textbook and quoting from Mr. Roosevelt's speech immediately after he landed from that airplane in Chicago and reached the platform:

We should repeal immediately those provisions of law that compel the Federal Government to go into the market to purchase, to sell, to speculate in farm products.

Now, we bring a bill upon this floor which provides for direct speculation in cotton. We not only provide for putting the Government into speculating in cotton, but we bribe and invite each individual cotton farmer to join with us. We ask him to come in and gamble with us in the cotton market. We say to him, "If you will cut down your acreage, while your son raises his, or while he obtains some one else who will go out and raise more cotton, we will give you a certain percentage of this cotton upon which you may speculate, and if you lose we will pay the loss."

Now, that is what this bill does. This bill is also sponsored by the American Cotton Cooperatives. They claim that they were stabilizing when they lost $60,000,000 of the Government's money. The agricultural marketing act provided that we should stabilize cotton or any other commodity. They did not follow the rules. They went into the market because they believed they could put the market up, and they lost $60,000,000 of the taxpayers' money. Yet we come in here and agree to take this cotton off their hands on a deal. We do not fix the market price. We say they may come in and deal with us. When the Government gets through with that dealing proposition, you will find this American Cotton Cooperative has segregated some millions of dollars, which they will take back into the market and speculate with and lose again.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. HART. I yield.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Can the gentleman point out where the adoption of this resolution would increase the loss in cotton already suffered by the Government?

Mr. HART. Nobody can point out whether we will increase or decrease the loss, because you are going into a speculative deal. You can not go into any commodity market unless you are speculating. There is no certainty about these markets. That has been the wrong assumption. That was the assumption of the Federal Farm Board—that they could stabilize; that they could orderly market and carry on the business differently from the ordinary individual. Now they say we will lose some money if we do not carry out this plan.

I say to you that within 30 days I can produce independent dealers in this country who will take this cotton off the market: take it off the hands of the cooperatives and pay the market price for it; men who know what they are doing with it; not a lot of politicians and propagandists who have been handling this deal, but substantial cotton merchants who have been marketing cotton throughout the world for generations; not those who have made their money out of the Federal Treasury, but men with ability to judge the markets; men who know the quality of cotton; men who have built up their trade throughout the world. They will take that cotton off your hands at the market price, and the market will immediately rebound, because the world will have confidence in the men who buy it. To-day you are talking about reestablishing confidence in this country. You will never reestablish confidence by putting Government millions into speculation. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield four minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCormack].

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Chairman, I represent a district in Boston that does not have a farm in it; a district that you could cover from one end to the other by automobile in 20 minutes. I came here about five years ago, determined that the agricultural problem was in such a condition that it required some action, and the establishment of a proper and definite national policy to which all sections of the country could subscribe, in order to bring some relief to the farmer and, through the farmer, relief to the people generally; and as a further result of assisting the farmer, guarantee one of the necessary elements of our national defense in case of war, namely raw materials and foodstuffs for the people of America. I came here five years ago and shortly thereafter a bill to establish the Federal Farm Board came before the House. If there had not been a word of debate, I would have voted for the bill, but after listening to Representatives from the agricultural districts debate that bill for a number of days, I reached the conclusion that they had convinced me beyond any doubt that a vote against that bill was a vote for the best interests of the farmer.

I have been down here ever since, hoping there would be presented some proposition by men representing agricultural districts upon which I could vote affirmatively in aid not only of the farmer but of the establishment of a national policy which would help determine this great question.

We are not confronted with a theory. We are confronted with a condition. A few days ago the allotment bill came into this branch of Congress. I voted against that bill upon the theory that you can not create a legislative substitute for the natural law of supply and demand. I voted against that bill because I did not think it would be for the best interests of the farmer, and of the people generally; that it simply transferred purchasing power to assist the farmer at the expense of a group the members of which were poorer than the average farmer throughout the United States, to wit, the working men of the industrial areas.

This is the first bill I have seen relating to the farmers of America that I think is a step in the right direction; and I am glad to be able on this occasion not only to vote for this bill but to urge the Members on both sides of the aisle to vote for it. The passage of this bill will be a step in the right direction and will contribute toward the solution of the farm question.

I agree that the provisions of this bill should extend to wheat. I would like to see it extended to wheat, but simply because it is not extended to wheat is no reason why those who come from wheat areas should vote against this particular piece of legislation.

If this works well then we can extend it to wheat in the next session. I do not think there is any justification for Members coming from wheat-growing areas to vote against this bill because it is confined to cotton.

As I view this bill, it is a stimulant to the reassertion of the natural law of supply and demand. It is not a legislative substitute, but it provides an inspiration and is an assistance to a normal return of supply and demand. The times are such that we are justified in experimenting in legislation of this character. At the present time we are confronted with a serious condition which constitutes an emergency. Some 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 people are dependent upon agriculture. This bill, in my opinion, is a step in the right direction and will contribute greatly toward the solution of the great problem which confronts us with reference to cotton, with reference to wheat, when extended, and with reference to agriculture generally.

Coming from a district without a single farm, I urge the passage of this piece of legislation. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota [Mr. BURTNESS].

Mr. BURTNESS. Mr. Chairman, during the almost 12 years of my service in this House I have consistently voted for every piece of legislation that has come up intended to be of assistance to agriculture, regardless of the section it would benefit, and it is with considerable regret that I do not find myself in a position to vote for this bill.

In the first place, I have not as yet reached the point where I believe it is advisable for the Federal Government itself to set up a bucket shop to make it easy for producers or farmers to speculate-in fact, to gamble on the market. In the final analysis, that is exactly what this bill contemplates. The only difference between the bucket shop to be set up by the Government under the terms of this bill and the bucket shops we find scattered throughout the country is that in the average bucket shop the speculator takes the chance of profiting or losing in the venture. In this case the cotton farmer is not to take any chance of losing, but only on the profit. The Government is to hold the bag with reference to all losses. Is a bucket shop operated by the Government more respectable than one operated by private parties? Shall the Government invite farmers to buy future options? I say I am not yet ready to subscribe to the Federal Government entering into that kind of business.

I recognize the possibilities of such a system, both good and evil. But if the time comes when the Federal Government is to establish a futures-options market for agricultural products, then, as one representing a section of the country where cotton is not grown, it occurs to me that those of us in other sections ought to have the same privilege, ought to have the right to speculate on the market as the cotton farmer is granted under this bill. Why make flesh of one and fowl of the other?

I feel that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. PURNELL] brought out very definitely to-day one of the real dangers of enacting this legislation, and that is that to a very definite extent it drives a wedge between the different farming interests of this country with reference to future farm legislation. Oh, I have heard sweet words here emanating from the right side of the aisle indicating that they will. some time in the future, vote for legislation benefiting the agriculture of the rest of the country if this bill is passed. They say they will not be sectional in their viewpoint. When I heard those words I could not help thinking back to the days of 1924 when our agriculture was stagnate but cotton prices were above parity, and had been so for two or three years. At that time cattle, wheat, hogs, and other commodities were way down below parity in buying power as compared with pre-war times. On June 3. 1924, we voted upon as constructive a bill as has ever been offered on the floor of the House-the first original McNary-Haugen bill. The map tacked up on this blackboard [indicating] shows the result of that vote. The Members representing the congressional districts colored in red voted for the bill. Those representing the districts colored in blue, including all the cotton States, voted against it. Those which are not colored were absent. We were defeated by a vote of 223 to 155. Where was the distinguished gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD] at that time? [Applause.]

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURTNESS. I have no time to yield. I have only five minutes.

From what they say to-day it may be that the Members from the Cotton Belt are changing their attitude. I hope they will do so in the future. But, Mr. Chairman, we can judge of the future only by the experience of the past. It is not human nature, after they have obtained what they want—written it upon the statute books—it is not human nature for them then to come back and work with those who have been left out, with those who are not getting what the Cotton Belt is getting from this measure. If this bill is enacted into law, the rest of the country can only whistle in the future. We will not have their help, in my opinion.

I am leaving this House, but I do hope that the next session of Congress will enact farm legislation just as general as it is possible to get it, just as good legislation for every section of the country as you can possibly write, and I hope that the wheat farmer, the livestock farmer, the cotton farmer, and all the other farmers will march here shoulder to shoulder, as they must, fighting for practical needed legislation that will help all American agriculture.

That may be the domestic-allotment plan or something else. Why defeat that bill in this session and take care of only one section of the country? Do not break up the agricultural strength in this House to-day for years to come by passing a bill such as this which, in the first place, is doubtful as to fundamental principles, which raises a very serious question as to whether you are not putting the Government into a kind of business that should not be encouraged but should be frowned upon. The West and the South have worked together well during the past five years. Harmony has prevailed. Stay together. If a general bill such as the allotment plan can not be passed this session, wait until you can get all agriculture working for the kind of a bill that will increase the purchasing power not of one section, even though it be an important one, but of all farm sections of the country. It would be much better to rent some of the marginal lands in all sections and thus help farmers generally without discrimination. When you shall have increased the buying power of agriculture generally, you will have benefited every man, woman, and child in the country. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. BURTNESS. Under leave to extend I attach a table showing plainly that through the last 11 years the wheat sections have suffered worse than has the Cotton Belt. In 1922, 1923, and 1924 the buying power of wheat was much less than in the pre-war period, while that of cotton was higher. You men from the South refused to help us; you were not then interested. True, in 1927 you joined forces with us, for you were then in distress. But even so, your situation has been better than ours in 8 out of 11 years. If your condition should improve through the passage of this bill, I fear you will no longer be interested in our problems. Let us stand together. We want no unfair advantage over you; we desire your cooperation. Let us stand together and pass a general bill that will be helpful to all of us.

The following table is self-explanatory. The base used are prices prevailing from 1909 to 1914, inclusive, which, of course, is 100. The relative situation of wheat and cotton in each year is plainly shown by the index number for wheat and cotton, which in turn must be compared with the index number representing the cost of commodities which farmers buy. I obtained the figures after the debate started upon this bill from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the Department of Agriculture.

Year	Wheat	Cotton	Commod- ities farmers buy
922	117	156	152
923	111	218	153
924	125	177	154
925	171	140	159
926	153	122	156
927	136	128	154
928	128	150	156
929	116	143	155
930	92	100	146
931	55	61	126
932	44	47	110
an. 1, 1933	37	45	105

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Gifford].

Mr. GIFFORD. Mr. Chairman, I trust that another map will be exhibited showing the result of this vote immediately after it is taken.

I am speaking for the mills of New England. In the district which I represent is a very large cotton-textile manufacturing city. The executives of the mills there appear to be unanimously in favor of this bill. They are willing to pay a proper price to the cotton-growing States of the South. Must this bill fail because it is not a blanket bill taking in wheat, hogs, peanuts, rice, tobacco, and other commodities? [Applause.]

I believe that these cotton-textile manufacturers are practical men. They must have carefully studied this plan and ought to know its probable effect. Should I be justified in taking the attitude of knowing more about it than these manufacturers—an attitude taken by the chairman of the Tariff Commission recently when he claimed that we did not need to raise the tariff rates because of depreciated foreign currencies, at which time he was roundly scored by many members of my party, who maintained that the manufacturers were much better informed than he, concerning their own business conditions. You trusted the men who were actually in business to a greater degree than you did the chairman of the Tariff Commission.

I am willing to vote for this measure because all agree that we can not lose any more money than is already involved.

Call up the Farm Board and ask them about this cotton and they say, "We put up the money, but the cooperatives control. They may pay such salaries as they desire and they control the methods of disposal of the product."

We will at least do away with the fiction of Government ownership and we will have an agricultural board which will at least control the cotton that the Government does, in fact, own. I am asking you from New England to believe that the men who are actually doing the manufacturing wish to have prices stabilized to a certain degree, at least, and I ask you to believe that they know rather more about the subject than we do, who theorize about it. It is insufficient to say that this sort of legislation does not do us any good in the long run.

Mr. KERR. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GIFFORD. Yes.

Mr. KERR. Let me suggest to the gentleman that not only the cotton manufacturers in the North but the cotton manufacturers in the South know that when this bill is passed there is a possibility of having a much-enlarged market for their product and that is why they want the bill enacted into law.

Mr. GIFFORD. Give us this measure rather than that allotment bill. [Applause.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield one-half minute to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Lankford].

Mr. LANKFORD of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I am very much in favor of this bill, but can not in one-half minute give in detail my reasons. I am anxious that those now living and future generations may know what I think about this legislation, and I therefore ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Record.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. LANKFORD of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, it is my desire, when I get more time, to discuss this bill more fully before the final action by the House to-day, and I shall therefore not discuss at this time one or two of the most vital issues but leave them for later discussion.

I favor the pending bill because it more nearly measures up to my standard of real farm relief marketing legislation than any other measure that has ever passed the Senate and come here on its way to final enactment. For many years I have said again and again that in order for farm-marketing legislation to be worthy of the name it must provide for both price elevation and price stabilization. Price stabilization at this time would be anything else than real farm-relief legislation. We must work out some plan to elevate prices, and when they are elevated we can then afford to put into force a proper stabilization arrangement. Now, proper price elevation and proper price stabilization—and, in fact, proper price control—to my mind can only be worked out by a proper control of both production and marketing.

I am in favor of this bill because it has in it a bona fide effort to control production by at least an implied contract system. In this way an effort is made to elevate the prices of cotton. There is, though, no real effort to stabilize the price after it is elevated or increased.

For many years I have been urging in every way possible, both in Congress and out of Congress, that there was but one real farm-relief marketing program, and that was to elevate, stabilize, and control the prices of farm products by a voluntary contract system, controlling both production and marketing of the basic agricultural products. Let both the governmental agency set up to aid the farmer on one hand and the farmer himself on the other hand be under a contract between the two, obligating the farmer to let this agency control the farmer's production and marketing and obligating the agency to insure and in effect guarantee the farmer a fair price for his products. By this arrangement, and by this only, can the farmers of the country name the prices of their products which they sell as fully and completely as others name the prices of what they sell to the farmers. This would be farm economic equality in so far as the farmers and those who sell to them are concerned. Add to this the proper monetization of farm products and farm lands and you would have financial equality between the farmers and the big bankers of the country. But, Mr. Chairman, I have most fully discussed these matters in detail heretofore and shall not do so again at this time. Yes, I am very much in favor of this bill, because I feel that it will be helpful to our farmers, giving them at least some temporary relief, and because it is a step in the direction of the goal of real farm relief.

Let us pass this bill at this time and then let us, at the earliest possible moment, pass some real farm-relief legislation for the farmers and for all the people. Oh, that Congress and the whole country would realize that the Nation can not get out of the valley of despond and leave the farmers in the very depths of financial despair and anguish. Agriculture is the basic industry of our Nation. We must rebuild the foundation before we can rebuild the superstructure. This is the reason why it is so difficult to pass legislation in behalf of the farmers. When we feel that we have helped them, we find that the matter takes a turn and the farmer has not at all received the benefit that his friends had hoped would go to him. The farmer helps everybody else and everybody else is more or less false to the farmer and do not at all give him a square deal. I certainly hope that the incoming administration will do more for the farmer than has ever been done for him and give him a "new deal."

From the time Adam and Eve were driven out of the Garden of Eden the farmers have done more and received less than any other group that ever lived. The farmer has always been overburdened with burdens that should have been carried by the shoulders of other people, and he has always shown a patience never exhibited by any other man or set of men.

The farmer feeds, clothes, and shelters everybody and pays nearly all the expenses of all the people. The cost of both luxuries and of necessaries of life of the public is, in nearly all instances, charged to and paid by the farmer. He pays practically all the expenses of operation of all the railroads. With very little help he pays all freight, passenger fare, and Pullman charges. This is the reason why the farm problem can not be effectively and permanently solved by cheaper freight rates on farm commodities.

If freight is reduced on wheat, it is increased on some other item or items at the expense of the farmer. It may be increased on manufactured articles; if so, their selling price is increased, and the farmer pays it. If the manufactured articles are bought by some one else, the cost, including the freight, is paid by money already made out of the farmer, or by some laboring man whose salary is charged into the cost of some other article the farmer will eventually buy.

Passenger and Pullman fares almost without exception are paid out of money either made out of the farmer and common people or charged to them in selling price of something they must buy. The Pullman fare, hotel bill, theater tickets, and every known expenditure of millions of traveling men, middlemen, and, in fact, of almost everyone are paid either directly or indirectly by the farmer.

Reduce freight rates, and passenger fares go up, and the farmer pays it. Reduce freight on an article, and it goes up on another article or on Pullman surcharges, and the farmer pays it. The railroads pay freight and tariff on steel and other material used in the maintenance and operation of their lines, and the farmer pays an income on the investment and a profit to the owners.

Billions of dollars are spent in the construction of factories, magnificent buildings, stores, and offices, all of which is charged up in rent. The rent is charged up in expenses and the expenses charged to the wholesaler, then to the retailer, and eventually paid by the farmer.

Lawyer's fees of corporate interests are passed on to and paid by the farmer. The big financial interests spend millions of dollars—money either made out of the farmer or charged up to him—in campaign funds, for newspapers and other propaganda to control legislation. Thus the farmer is forced to make exorbitant expenditures to be used in the working of the ruin of himself and family. The farmer is paying for his shackles, for his blindness, and for his own ruin and annihilation.

The farmer pays for the steel that goes into the railroad bridge, for the steel that goes into skyscrapers in the large cities, and for the steel that goes into the Packard automobile of the millionaire. The farmer pays for the "steal" that goes into the rich man's pocket. He pays for the "steal" that goes into big campaign contributions, and the farmer pays an awful price for the "steal" that is used to pay for propaganda to deceive the farmer and to destroy him. If the farmer is given an advantage in one instance in a tariff schedule, he loses by some other changes and pays the bill. The big interests are protected always at the expense of the farmer. If the farmer gets a better tariff on cow hides, the manufacturer gets more tariff on shoes, and what the farmer gains is taken from him tenfold in the additional cost of shoes. Thus it is as clear to me as the noonday sun that the farmer's problems can never be permanently solved by freight-rate adjustments, tariff tinkering, or debenture legislation.

Some good may come from these things, and I favor doing all possible along these lines, but at last the farmer will never be on a parity with other industries until he can name the price of what he has for sale as fully and completely as this privilege is enjoyed by others, and until he is granted the same financial privileges now accorded the big banks. Many who should be friends of the farmer are deceiving him, robbing him, and making him promises which they never expect to keep.

Surely no one has ever been so true to his nation as the farmer, and yet this Government has all the while been most false to him.

Mr. Chairman, the farmer carries on his broad, honest, industrious shoulders the burdens of the whole world, while all the people of all the earth are not only riding and increasing his burdens in every way possible but are tearing the ground from under his sturdy tread; building pitfalls on every side, and shoving and kicking him about with a greedy, malicious force which he can not master and overcome; binding his hands and feet with fetters which he can not loose; stopping his ears and blinding his eyes with a poison he can not conquer; plundering his property and destroying his morale at every turn by schemes and devices beyond his control, and leading and driving him to a doom and an annihilation which he can not avoid or prevent.

This is an awful picture. I wish it were not true. The farmer has always been robbed by those who do not labor. He has never had a square deal with other industries. I sometimes fear he never will get it. Even in Holy Writ it is recorded:

Woe unto him that buildeth a town with blood and stablisheth a city by iniquity.

This sounds like an indictment of the present hour, made by the farmers of the Nation against those sponsoring some of the present inquitous so-called farm relief proposals. It is not, though, a new cry; it is an indictment that has come down the ages—an indictment against the mightiest and most notorious robbers of all time.

I believe the farmers can, and eventually will, be put on an equality with other industries. I do not want to think otherwise. I sometimes feel, though, that there is very little reason for the hope that is within me.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield one minute to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Kerr].

Mr. KERR. Mr. Chairman, last August, when the price of cotton advanced to 9 cents, every commodity in this Nation went up with it and followed it as an index. Wheat went up, corn went up, steel went up, copper went up, and all kinds of agricultural products in this country, and the products of all other industry followed cotton.

The purpose of this bill is simply to reduce the acreage in the cotton-producing States of this Nation—overproduction is largely responsible for the prevailing low price of lint cotton—and in this way get a better and a higher price for the cotton which we will make in the coming year, and if you will observe the record as to how other prices follow cotton, you will see that the price of all commodities in this country will follow cotton as it rises. As a consideration for the farmer reducing his acreage we give him the advantage of the rise in the market and let him take a profit upon that cotton allotted him. It is fair and it increases his purchasing power and signally helps every other business on this continent. We will not get back to economic stability in this country until this is done.

I have consistently voted for every farm-relief piece of legislation proposed in this Congress since I have been here, because I represent the outstanding agricultural district of the South, and I want to say to my friends from the West and the North and the East that I intend, as long as I stay here, to vote for all legislation which will tend to improve the economic condition of the great agricultural sections of this country, whether they are in the North or the South, the West or the East. I deeply regret that sectional feeling should have entered into this debate. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. STAFFORD].

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Chairman, this is the most gigantic gambling proposition that has ever been proposed to the

Instead of the American Cooperative Cotton Association doing the gambling that cost the Government $53,000,000 out of the Treasury of the United States in their attempt to boost and hold the price of cotton for the 1929-30 crop and the 1930-31 crop, you are transferring that exploded proposition to a new board.

If I had not served on the special committee to investigate Government competition with private business and listened attentively to Mr. Creekmore, that $75,000 beauty who is vice president of the American Cooperative Cotton Association, I would not be presumptuous enough to take time at this moment to discuss this bill; but this bill is for the relief of the American Cooperative Cotton Association that in 1929-30 purchased 1,300,000 bales of cotton and of the 1930-31 crop purchased 1,770,000 bales which it now has in its possession, and paid to the farmers 90 per cent of the market price when the price was 15 cents. To-day they are holding the bag.

With loans from the Farm Loan Board of tens of millions of dollars and with loans from the banks of $10,000,000. this bill is for the direct relief of the Hanover Bank, for the relief of the Chase National Bank, for the relief of the other New York banks from which this cooperative association has obtained loans. You want the Treasury to come to the relief of the banks. You want the Treasury to come to the relief of the American Cooperative Association that to-day has over 3,000,000 bales of cotton hypothecated to secure these extravagant loans, and have the National Government hold the bag. Where is your consistency, except this consistency in wholesale plundering of the

In 1929 and 1930 there was a surplus of 9,000,000 bales; in 1930 and 1931 there was a surplus of 10,000,000 bales; in 1931 and 1932 there was a surplus of 13,000,000 bales; and now you propose by this chimerical piece of economic legerdemain to attempt a curtailment of acreage of 30 per cent, in an endeavor to stimulate the price.

Have you not received enough poison by reason of this artificial attempt against all laws of trade, and against the laws of supply and demand, in trying to artificially stimulate the price by the colossal failure of the Farm Board?

Why, even Mr. Creekmore had to admit that the law of supply and demand determines the price in the last analysis. Never before have I known such a gigantic proposal of sticking the hand into the Treasury for the benefit of private bankers, who have loaned millions to the American Cotton Cooperative Association, which is absolutely bankrupt. The Farm Board has loaned tens of millions to this association with a shoe-string capital of $79,500, all in the fanatical endeavor to control prices in a falling market.

Mr. PETTINGILL. Did the gentleman say Mr. Creekmore or Mr. Quagmire?

Mr. STAFFORD. He got the Government into a quagmire and now he wants to get from under cover, as this bill proposes. Have you not had enough illustration of the futility of the Government attempting to bolster prices by withdrawing cotton from the market, when you can see from the figures I have given here and from the testimony which I have referred to and which I have here, that such a plan is unworkable?

In these times, of all times, we should be circumspect. When I reentered Congress four years ago I voted against the agricultural marketing act because I had no faith in it and because it was counter to every sound economic principle. As I am leaving Congress, I am going to vote against this gigantic socialistic venture, which not only equals that in its stupidity but goes further into the Treasury and which will entail another loss of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money. Come out in the open and admit that this

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the is stabilization. It is going to fail, just as your efforts failed and were bound to fail under the agricultural marketing act. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. JONES. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. GLOVER].

Mr. HAUGEN. Mr. Chairman, S. 5122 creates in the Department of Agriculture a board consisting of six members, appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, qualified and experienced in either the purchasing, handling, or production of cotton. Members of the board shall receive no compensation for their services, but shall be paid their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties, and shall hold office at the pleasure of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Section 2: Directs the Secretary of Agriculture, the Farm Board, and all other departments and agencies of the Government to (a) sell to said cotton board at such price as may be agreed upon by the Secretary of Agriculture and the board all cotton now owned by them; (b) to make such settlements as are necessary in order to acquire full legal title to all cotton on which money has been loaned or advanced, upon such terms as they may deem fair and just, and to sell this cotton also to the board in the same manner as is provided in the preceding paragraph.

Section 3: The board is authorized to acquire by purchase at the market price the cotton previously given by the Government to the Red Cross Society, and now being sold by that society.

Section 4: The board shall have authority to borrow money on all cotton in its possession or control and deposit as collateral for such loans the warehouse receipts covering such cotton.

Section 5: The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized and directed to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with such warehouse receipts as collateral security.

Section 6: The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to enter into contracts with producers of cotton to sell to every such producer an amount of cotton in the hands of the board equivalent in amount to the amount of reduction in production of cotton by such producer below the amount produced by him in the preceding crop year, in all cases where such producer agrees in writing to reduce the amount of cotton produced by him in the previous year by not less than 30 per cent, without increase in fertilization

To every such producer so agreeing to reduce his production the Secretary of Agriculture shall deliver an option contract agreeing to sell to said producer an amount of cotton equivalent to the amount of his estimated reduction of the cotton in the possession and control of the board.

The producer is to have the option to buy said cotton at its market value on the day of the execution of his agreement to reduce his production and is to have the right at any time up to the 15th day of December, 1933, to exercise his option upon the proof that he has complied with his contract and with all rules and regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture, by taking said cotton upon payment by him of his option price and all actual carrying charges on said cotton, or the board may sell such cotton for the account of such producer, paying him the excess of the market price at the date of sale over the market price at the date of his contract after deducting all actual and necessary carrying charges: Provided, that in no event shall the producer be held responsible or liable for financial loss incurred in the holding of such cotton or on account of the carrying charges therein.

Section 9: The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to make the necessary rules and regulations.

Section 6: The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized and directed to advance money to make loans to the board in such amounts as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mind you, loans in unlimited amounts.

Section 7: Authorizes and directs the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into contracts with producers of cotton and to sell to such producers an amount of cotton in the hands of the board, equivalent to the amount of reduction in production of such producer, below the amount produced by him in the preceding crop year, conditioned upon a reduction of not less than 30 per cent without increase in fertilization per acre.

The producer is to have the option to buy said cotton at its market value and to have the right at any time up to the 15th of December, 1933, to exercise his option by taking said cotton upon payment by him of his option price and of actual carrying charges, or the board may sell such cotton for the account of such producer, paying him the excess of the market price over the market price at the date of his contract, after deducting all actual and necessary charges. It also specifically provides that in no event shall the producers be held responsible or liable for financial loss incurred in the holding of such contract or on account of the carrying charges thereof. Indeed, a most liberal contract. Mr. Cotton Grower pays no interest and takes all the profit, if any. If a loss, Uncle Sam pays the bill, whatever it may be.

It is to be noted that the Secretary of Agriculture and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are not only authorized but directed to do their part. On the other hand, it is quite different with the producer. If the producer voluntarily accepts the bait tendered, he may partake in the anticipated profits without cost; and in case of cost, Uncle Sam pays the bill. The reduction in production is to be accomplished through voluntary agreements. The efforts made to effect voluntary cooperation, control, and curtailment of production in the past have demonstrated with absolute finality that voluntary agreements of either can not be effected. The Farm Board and agricultural groups and many excellent men and women throughout the country have given their time and money in an honest effort toward effecting voluntary cooperation and curtailment of production. No one except the California grape growers, who claim to have succeeded to the extent of 85 per cent in effecting full control, ever succeeded to the extent of 50 per cent. Again the demonstrated unworkable and ever-failing plan is to be experimented with. It is needless to say that a few will, as in the past, come in under the blanket; but the producers who are not so easily tempted and who see the advantage of staying out will express their appreciation and graciously decline the kind offer, and, as usual, a few will enter with expectations of increasing the price of cotton; others, judging from past costly experiences, will buy fertilizer and increase acreage to the fullest degree, and in that case, as in the experiment of the Farm Board to effect voluntary cooperation and control, again we shall be rich in experience and Uncle Sam will, as usual, be short in purse.

For years the Committee on Agriculture and Congress have earnestly endeavored to effect real farm-relief legislation with an eye toward promoting the best interests not only of one section of this country but for the general welfare of not only agriculture but every worthy and legitimate enterprise of our entire land. Numerous measures have passed the two Houses. The major parties at recent conventions renewed their oft-made pledges to place agriculture on a parity with labor and other industries, which pledges were generally accepted as meaning to include all producers, irrespective of party affiliation or of geographical lines. Now, much to the surprise of many, we are invited to the crowning of "King Cotton," and the more important corn, wheat, dairy, and poultry products-yes, even the peanut industry-are to be forsaken. Yes; this measure is of a sectional nature. Why not open your hearts and grant the same relief to the millions of others in dire distress?

Section 3: The board is also authorized to acquire and purchase at the market price the cotton previously given by the Government to the American National Red Cross for relief purposes and now being sold by that society.

Just what the cost to the Government will be the committee had no information, except as was set out in the conference report on H. R. 13607, to authorize the distribution of Government-owned cotton to the American National Red Cross and other organizations for the relief of distress. As stated in the conference report, the cotton was turned over to the Red Cross at the cost price, not, as proposed in this bill, at the market price, the market price being $32.50 per bale, as I recall it, or $7.50 a bale in excess of the cost price, and, as stated in the conference report. (See RECORD of February 3, 1933, p. 3306.)

To carry out the provisions of this act the unexpended balance of appropriations made for carrying out the provisions of the joint resolution authorizing the distribution of Government-owned wheat and cotton to the American National Red Cross * * * is authorized to be made immediately available, and in addition the sum of $4,100,000 is authorized to be appropriated and made immediately available to the Federal Farm Board to be used solely for-advancing amounts to pay loans held by commercial or intermediate credit banks against cotton which will be released for donations and to retire all storage and carrying charges against cotton, including compression charges, and so forth.

Mr. CHINDBLOM inquired (p. 3308):

With reference to the appropriation directly authorized of $4,100,000, it is a fact, is it not, that the other $4,500,000 to be taken out of the revolving fund is also in the nature of an appropriation by the Federal Government?

Chairman Jones stated in reply:

Of course, and this and previous appropriations they have made out of the revolving fund all come out of the Treasury of the United States.

Mr. CHINDBLOM. And, as a matter of fact, the total cost to the Government is the entire amount which the Farm Board paid for this cotton when it was purchased?

Mr. Jones. No; the Government only has $4,100,000 new appropriation, and the Farm Board advises that the value of the cotton was $32.50 per bale, so that there is a considerable equity in it that the Farm Board would be able to use by selling the cotton and paying off the liens itself.

Mr. GLOVER. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, I hope I may have your attention for a few minutes in the discussion of this matter. The gentleman who opened the argument in this debate to-day, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Purnell], injected some poison into the bill that ought not to have been brought into it. He and others have designated it as a stabilization bill. The distinguished chairman of the Agricultural Committee says, and I agree with him, that this is not a stabilization bill at all. I say to you and others who represent an agricultural community that the thing that caused the failure of your stabilization bill was that you did not have the safety provision that this bill has for the reduction of acreage.

This bill proposes that no one can be benefited by it who does not reduce his acreage.

We have now about 10,000,000 bales of cotton that must be cared for in some way that is now a surplus. Thirty per cent of acreage decrease for three years will take that amount of cotton off the market and will give us a free and open market for this great crop.

The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Stafford], who just took his seat, says that we are trying to get our hands into the United States Treasury. There is nothing in an argument of that kind that can justly be made in this case against this bill. This bill does not cost the Government one penny. The Government now owns this cotton. It is only changing it from one hand to another where it can be used.

If the option of the farmer is not used under this bill to cut acreage, if there is an increase in the price of cotton, the National Government makes a profit. If the farmer exercises it, he makes it.

I was very much surprised at the argument that some of my friends of the Agricultural Committee have made. I am surprised by reason of the previous declarations that they have made. I have heard the expression frequently made, "Go along with us, with our wheat crop, and we will give you for cotton what you want."

Do any of you remember any expressions like that? Oh, | we ask you to-day to support us in this proposition. I believe every one of the Agricultural Committee will say that the South has always gone along with you in every attempt to help your section. There are many of us on the floor to-day who have fought for you people in the West. Why not be consistent?

[Here the gavel fell.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Arkansas has expired. All time has expired. The Clerk will read the bill for amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

That there is hereby created in the Department of Agriculture a cotton board (hereinafter referred to as the board). Such board shall consist of six members, to be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, all of whom shall be qualified and experienced in either the purchasing, handling, or production of cotton. The members of the board shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be paid their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. They shall hold office during the pleasure of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. McGugin: Page 5, line 17, after the word "cotton," insert the words "and wheat," and after the word "cotton" in line 21, insert the words "or wheat."

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the point of order.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Chairman, is it the purpose of the gentleman from Wisconsin ultimately to make the point of order?

Mr. STAFFORD. It is my purpose to do so if the gentleman from Texas does not make it.

Mr. BANKHEAD. The gentleman is reserving the point of order. If it is his purpose to make it, I think it should be made.

Mr. STAFFORD. I understand that I have the support of the gentleman from Texas in the point of order.

Mr. JONES. That is correct.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I demand the regular order. The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Wisconsin will state his point of order.

Mr. STAFFORD. The point of order is that it is not

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Kansas care to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. McGUGIN. No.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is sustained.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kansas is recognized for five minutes.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, it is indeed interesting to see the Committee on Agriculture bring in a bill to take care of cotton which is so worded and phrased that it is not germane to include wheat. It is also interesting to note, and I want it to be in the RECORD, that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Jones], chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, said that he would make the point of order if the gentleman from Wisconsin did not. It is also interesting to know that the man who took the leadership to obtain this rule, the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. BANKHEAD], insisted on the same point of order. We have it now in the RECORD, proved conclusively, that there is a coalition of southern Democrats from the Cotton Belt, together with Tammany Democrats, together with Massachusetts and New Jersey Republicans, to put through this cotton bill and sell wheat down the river. That is the obvious and patent truth, and it is now in the RECORD for all to read. Those on my right, on the Democratic side, have nothing else to offer than to help put through a coalition which they have made with the Republicans from Massachusetts and New Jersey.

The roll call on the rule shows that. The rule carried by 14 votes, and there were 12 Republicans from Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Rhode Island, and Delaware to the committee, notwithstanding some remarks that were who voted for that rule and made possible its passage. Without those 12 Republicans from the tariff-protected States, that have been helped in their protection by Republican votes from the Mississippi Valley for the last 40 years, the rule would have been defeated. That is the picture that we find here to-day. We find Massachusetts and New Jersey Republicans turning their backs on the Republicans of the Middle West who voted for 50 years for a tariff for them. Let me say to the Republicans from Massachusetts and New Jersey who have taken this course, you have formed your coalition with the Southern Democrats, and I hope to be able to be on this floor in some good time when I can join in a coalition with the Democrats and vote to put everything made in Massachusetts and New Jersey on the free list.

Mr. GOSS. I do not understand the gentleman to include Connecticut.

Mr. McGUGIN. I have the highest regard and compliment for the gentlemen from Connecticut. I refer particularly to the gentleman from Connecticut, Mr. Goss. He would not join in this conspiracy between the selfish Massachusetts and New Jersey Republicans and the Southern cotton Democracy and Tammany Democracy. [Applause.]

There is something else of interest in this vote. I find the gentleman from Rhode Island [Mr. Aldrich] voting side by side with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN] and the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Rankin]. So we find at last the banking interests and the inflationists voting together on one bill.

A few weeks ago I voted against increasing tariffs, and for that I was irregular. I was branded as not being a regular Republican. I wonder if it will be conceded that I am a regular Republican to-day, as the Massachusetts and New Jersey delegations are so considered. I wonder if that will be considered when it comes time to make up the committee assignments on the Republican side in the next Congress. The time has come for us to have a show-down and find out whether or not Massachusetts and New Jersey Republicans are national Republicans or sectional Republicans. [Applause.]

I can not seriously criticize these Southern cotton people for robbing the Treasury and grabbing when they have a chance. It seems to be the order of the day for every section and faction to raid the Treasury if possible, but it is inexcusable for these 12 Republican votes from tariff-protected States to line up here shoulder to shoulder with Southern Democracy that has voted against their tariff since the days of the Civil War.

On the vote on the rule, 1 of 2 Rhode Island Republicans voted for the rule, 6 of 10 Massachusetts Republicans, 5 of 8 New Jersey Republicans, and the 1 Delaware Republican did likewise.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Kansas has expired.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, after the sulphurous views of the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. McGugin] have cleared, let us investigate what the facts are. If the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. STAFFORD] had not made the point of order, I should have done so. Why? There is not any possibility of making this bill apply to wheat, and anyone who undertakes to do so is not for the bill, is not for the principle of the bill, but is throwing obstructions in its way. I am glad that some of the Members from Massachusetts have at last seen the light, and know that they can not permanently prosper unless the producers of their raw material prosper. When this measure was under consideration in the Senate they undertook to get a similar measure to apply to wheat. As a matter of fact there was no accumulation of wheat. At the time that wheat and cotton were taken over into the Stabilization Corporation, all of the wheat was taken over, so that the wheat got the full benefit of it, but only a part of the cotton was taken over, and this is some of the cotton that was not included in the stabilization.

The Government already has outstanding liens on this cotton. I have the amounts of them. They were submitted made, and the committee had the full benefit of the facts in connection with this. The Government has this money on the cotton. We are not buying any cotton. We are simply transferring it to another department where it will be carried as it is now, and a contract will be made to let men have an interest in the profits on any number of bales they may reduce their production.

Mr. SNELL. Will the gentleman yield for a question? Mr. JONES. I yield.

Mr. SNELL. I can not understand why we are merely transferring from one department to another, when, as a matter of fact, the storage-warehouse receipts for 1,500,000 bales of this cotton are held by the banks, and before we get possession of that cotton we must pay over $27,500,000 in bank loans. That is not simply a transfer. We have got to take that money out of the Federal Treasury.

Mr. JONES. We will have to do that in any event; that is, the cotton will be held for it whether we pass this bill or not.

Mr. SNELL. Very well. Let us get the full facts before the House.

Mr. JONES. That does not apply to the collateralized cotton. But, in any event, that constitutes a lien which can be carried and which will be carried, and which will leave the Government in exactly the same position, except with greater chance for a loss if the bill is not passed than if it is passed.

Mr. SNELL. Yes; but the gentleman said in his statement it was a mere transfer from one department of the Government to the other. I say it is not; there is much more than a transfer in this action.

Mr. JONES. It is a transfer of the legal title, because the Government already has more in it than the market value of it.

Mr. SNELL. It is simply a banking proposition, as I stated on the floor, to help out the banks.

Mr. JONES. No, no; it is a transfer at the present market price, or the market price at the time it is taken over. and then a contract is to be made with a grower for a reduction of his production, which it is hoped will do away with some of the great carry-over, and thus enable the Government to get more out of it, as well as the cotton

Mr. SNELL. That is the only part of the bill that is any good. We are for that; but the gentleman himself presented a bill a few days ago that we thought took us out of the cotton business.

Mr. JONES. I tried to explain that to the gentleman. The gentleman is a brilliant man and has a wonderful mind, but that situation was explained to him at different times and the gentleman still says he does not understand. I do not know of any way on earth that I can give him understanding after having given him the information.

Mr. SNELL. Well, I do not want to say anything personal, but I do not think the whole story of the cotton game was told to the House.

Mr. JONES. I beg the gentleman's pardon. I undertook to explain it just as clearly as I could. All of the cotton owned by the Stabilization Corporation was turned over to the Red Cross.

Mr. SNELL. We did not own it, because we owed over $8,000,000 on it.

Mr. JONES. Oh, that was clearly stated in the facts presented last summer.

Mr. SNELL. But I am talking about two weeks ago.

Mr. JONES. It was clearly presented on the bill itself, if the gentleman will read that.

Mr. SNELL. I am sorry to have to disagree with the gentleman.

Mr. JONES. And it is stated in the conference report and I stated it on the floor.

Mr. SNELL. When we had the gentleman's bill before the House to give this cotton to the Red Cross, did the gentleman tell the House that we had to pay $4,100,000 out of the Treasury?

Mr. JONES. I told that in response to the gentleman's own question.

Mr. SNELL. That was afterwards; not at the time.

Mr. JONES. I told it, I think, on the gentleman's question.

Mr. STAFFORD. I beg the gentleman's pardon.

Mr. JONES. It was stated in the committee report and is shown in all the hearings. I thought it was thoroughly understood, the bill itself authorized an appropriation to pay off existing commercial liens.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. McSWAIN. Mr. Chairman. I move to strike out the last two words.

Mr. Chairman, there has been a suggestion that some sinister influence has induced some Members from the textile sections of New England to support this measure. Coming as I do from a district which, according to the statistics for the year 1932, produced the largest number of spindlehours of any single congressional district in the whole United States, I think I can interpret to any fair-minded Member of the House the reasons that have impelled those representatives of the textile interests of New England to support this measure in which the cotton farmers of the South and the cotton manufacturers of the East and of the South are alike and in the same way and to the same degree interested. It is this: It is a mistake to assume that the cotton manufacturer wants low-price cotton. What the cotton manufacturer wants is a market for his product, irrespective of the price of the raw material.

Under conditions that have been prevailing for the last few years, with the price of raw material constantly tumbling, the demand for the finished product has constantly and increasingly fallen off so that the buyers of cotton goods throughout the country and throughout the world have not entered the market for the finished product, thinking that cotton would be cheaper next week and next month and next year, and they would thereby be able to buy cloth and yarn cheaper. Consequently there has been no market for the product. The cotton manufacturer wants to see the cotton producer obtain a fair price for his product which will at least represent the cost of production.

I have no interest in any textile-manufacturing concern from a personal point of view. I do not own, and never have owned, a single share of stock in a cotton-manufacturing concern, but I am in close and intimate touch with all interests, both labor and the managers, in the textile industry of my section of the country, and I know they have no desire to press down the price of cotton so that the manufacturer may obtain it at a cheaper price.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McSWAIN. I yield.

Mr. HOPE. Will the gentleman tell us why the cotton spinners who are against the allotment plan are in favor of Mr. McSWAIN. Yes. I told the gentleman then and I will tell him again. I was against the allotment plan. Why? Because, under the conditions then prevailing and now prevailing, it would be impossible for the manufacturer of cotton to finance the excise tax upon the product of the mills with the consequence that the mills would have been closed for lack of finances, and hundreds of thousands of laborers living on the meager wage obtained from those mills would have been turned out of employment, thus increasing the bread lines of the country.

Mr. HOPE. Will not that be the effect if the price of cotton goes up as a result of the operations of this bill?

Mr. McSWAIN. No; it will not be. They will have no cash excise taxes to pay. As soon as the buyers of finished goods throughout the country know the price is going up they will enter the market as quick bidders for the products of these mills, and they will be able to make contracts by which they can buy cotton to meet the demand.

Mrs. ROGERS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman

Mr. McSWAIN. I yield.

Mrs. ROGERS. Is it not true that wheat probably would have been included in this bill had the Federal Government owned any wheat?

Mr. McSWAIN. I think so. Mrs. ROGERS. Is it not also true that the gentleman from Kansas forgot that Massachusetts voted for the Federal Farm Board and other farm-relief measures in an effort to help the wheat growers? The gentleman from Kansas apparently forgot that the only hope of prosperity for the farmers rests in the reestablishment of industrial employment. It is in our industrial population they must find their customers for wheat. It is among the farmers we must find customers for our cotton goods. The time has come to stop sectional bickering. What really helps one group of Americans will help all.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. PATMAN].

HELP ALL FARMERS

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I am not thoroughly convinced that I shall vote for this legislation. I have listened to the arguments on both sides, and I expect to continue to listen to the arguments. I am afraid the adoption of such a proposal as this will be in the way of a real relief measure for farmers. It is true we want to help the farmers. Not only do we want to help the cotton farmer, but the wheat farmer, and all other farmers. Purchasing power must be restored. If everybody could buy everything they need there would be no overproduction.

BANKS CLOSING

This morning I was told that all the banks in another State closed their doors. This is the fourth or fifth State in which all the banks have closed their doors. Business is being paralyzed and something must be done about the banking situation.

There is a fundamental cause for the difficulty, and whether we pass this legislation or any other legislation, it is not going to reach the heart of that problem. Rather than considering legislation like the bill now before us, I would favor considering legislation that would reach the heart of the problem.

DEPOSITS IN BANKS

We have in the banks of the Nation to-day $45,000,000,000 of deposits. Were all the banks of the Nation closed to-day and Government agents should go into the vaults of these banks to get all the money in them, they would find less than $700,000,000 with which to pay the $45,000,000,000 of Therefore, there is an insufficient amount of money to properly support their deposits.

I believe the Congress, right now, should seriously consider taking over all the banks in this Nation. Let the Government take over these banks, not as a Government policy but as a necessity, in order to protect the rights of the people of this Nation. It is not right for the people to lose money as they have been losing it, the savings of a lifetime, through failure of banks caused by a few greedy but powerful bankers.

FIVE BILLIONS LOST SINCE 1920

The banks that have been closed since 1920 have been closed not necessarily by reason of any fault of the directors but by reason of a governmental policy of contraction of the currency and credit. Thus far the people have lost more than $5,000,000,000 since 1920, but this sum is insignificant compared to the large sum of money the people of this Nation are going to lose the next few weeks or the next few months unless radical steps are taken to remedy the situation.

CONFIDENCE MAY BE RESTORED

Were the Government to take over the banking institutions of this Nation and supply them with plenty of money, confidence would be restored immediately. People would have a place where they could put their money and feel when they go to bed at night that it would still be there the next morning.

PEOPLE WILLING TO RISK GOVERNMENT

As evidence of the fact the people are willing to risk the Government I invite your attention to the fact that the Government can obtain all the money it desires now at one-fifth of 1 per cent interest for any kind of a governmental obligation. It makes no difference what kind it is. As further evidence of the fact the people are willing to risk their Government, during the last 18 months they have drawn out more than $700,000,000 from the banks of this Nation and deposited that money in the postal savings accounts of the various post offices. And if to-day the Government of the United States were to call upon all the banks of the Nation to pay these postal savings deposits the banks would not have enough money in their vaults to pay them and would still owe $45,000,000,000 in deposits to their depositors. Therefore, there is a necessity for putting money out to the country in some way or in some manner with or without Government banking in order that we may save all the banking institutions, restore confidence, and promote the general welfare. The money and credits that we have that is issued is backed up by about 2 cents on the dollar and the banks are drawing from 5 to 30 per cent interest, annual interest, for its use.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate on this section and all amendments thereto do now close.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The pro forma amendment was withdrawn.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 2. The Secretary of Agriculture, the Federal Farm Board, and all other departments and agencies of the Government are hereby directed—

(a) To sell to the said Cotton Board at such price as may be agreed upon by the Secretary of Agriculture and the board all cotton now owned by them.

(b) To take such action and to make such settlements as are necessary in order to acquire full legal title to all cotton on which money has been loaned or advanced, upon such terms as they may deem fair and just, and to sell this cotton also to the board in the same manner as is provided in the preceding paragraph

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hope: Page 6, after line 12, add a new subsection, as follows:

"(c) That in making such settlement the Farm Board shall not give credit to any organization which may be indebted to it, for an amount in excess of the net market value, above all liens of the cotton so transferred."

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is offered in view of the fact that the two cotton cooperatives which now own this cotton are indebted to the Federal Farm Board to the amount of $68,659,842. There is a loan on this cotton ahead of the Government loan of approximately $24 a bale. It is worth about $30 a bale. So when all of this cotton is turned over to the new board, through the agency of the Federal Farm Board, there will be a net indebtedness on the part of these cotton cooperatives to the Federal Farm Board of approximately $58,000,000.

It is proposed in this bill to give the Farm Board authority to make such settlements as are necessary in order to acquire full legal title to this cotton, and it is the understanding and agreement, as I get it, that in order to secure this cotton the Federal Farm Board will wipe out all of the indebtedness owing to them by these two cotton cooperatives.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield in that particular?

Mr. HOPE. Briefly.

Mr. STAFFORD. I understand the American Cotton Cooperative Association is capitalized at $30,000,000, of which amount $795,000 is subscribed and $79,500 paid in, and has gotten loans of $50,000,000 from the Farm Board, and we are now trying to relieve them of this indebtedness.

Mr. HOPE. That is true. These cooperatives have other assets. I do not know how much the other assets amount to, but when this bill was before the Senate it adopted an amendment compelling these cooperatives to turn all of their other assets over to the Farm Board in making this settlement. I do not want to go that far. That would probably ruin these cooperatives, but I do not believe this House should pass a measure giving the Farm Board absolute authority to make these settlements, and wipe off $58,000,000 worth of indebtedness, without some further investigation being made as to the ability of these cooperatives to make further payments.

This plan to cancel all the indebtedness owing by these cooperatives to the Farm Board has been tried before. When we had the allotment bill before the Committee on Agriculture there was a section in the bill, as originally written, which proposed to give the Farm Board the same authority. I do not believe the matter should be settled in this way. Possibly, we will have to wipe off all of this indebtedness, but before this is done Congress should have some facts before it, showing how this indebtedness was incurred, the assets of these concerns, and their ability to make some better settlement.

Mr. LANKFORD of Virginia. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. HOPE. Yes.

Mr. LANKFORD of Virginia. To whom is this money. amounting to $58,000,000 that the gentleman speaks of, due?

Mr. HOPE. It is due the Federal Farm Board. The $24 per bale that is against this cotton as a first lien is due to various commercial banks. That is the interest the banks have in this legislation. That is the reason Members of this House have been getting wires from banks all over the country, in New York and all the way down the coast, importuning them to support this legislation. It means the banks are going to get out from under and the Government of the United States, through a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is going to carry the load. [Applause.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I hope the gentleman will not handicap the operation of this bill. I know the Government, unfortunately, is in this business and has liens against the cotton, and the only purpose of a hamstringing amendment would be to kill any good effect which the bill may have an opportunity to furnish. I fear the adoption of the gentleman's amendment would destroy any chance of making a fair arrangement whereby some good purpose may be accomplished and yet the Government be protected in so far

Regardless of whether this bill goes into effect, there is some $67,000,000 that the Government has in liens against this cooperative cotton. There are also approximately 710,000 bales of collateralized cotton in the Department of Agriculture. Somehow, somewhere, this must all be disposed of. My hope is that we may trust them to make fair agreements. This involves a number of details. I hope gentlemen will not vote to put this kind of an amendment on the bill. It will not furnish any additional protection to the Government, and it may hamstring the bill.

If you have to vote against the bill, vote against it, but do not sink a stiletto sheathed in a silk handkerchief in its side.

Mr. HOPE. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONES. Yes. Mr. HOPE. I may say to the gentleman that if I had any idea of hurting these cooperatives I would have offered the same amendment that was offered in the Senate.

Mr. JONES. Amendments like this would destroy the bill, or at least would destroy any chance for the necessary agreements to be made.

I ask for a vote, Mr. Chairman.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. HOPE) there were—ayes 64, noes 113.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 3. The board is also hereby authorized to acquire by purchase at the market price the cotton made available by the Government to the American National Red Cross for relief purposes and now being disposed of by that organization.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, in accordance with the tentative agreement, I move to strike out the section.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. Jones: Page 6, lines 13 to 16, inclusive, strike out section 3.

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 4. The board shall have authority to borrow money upon all cotton in its possession or control and deposit as collateral for such loans the warehouse receipts for such cotton.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out Section 4.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment by Mr. McGugin: Page 6, lines 17 to 20, strike out section 4.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, here we are going on with the same old program, borrowing money on cotton, that has already been given away, sold, reacquired, and how much longer we are going to carry on that program I would like to know. I am wondering when the Government of the United States is going to be fortunate enough to sell some of this cotton and get the money.

We have been loaning money to cooperatives, the stabilization corporation and what not and buying and rebuying cotton. Now, we are about to say to the cotton farmer if the price goes down the Government will take the loss, if it goes up the cotton farmer gets the profit.

For the last several years I have been hearing complaints from cotton growers criticizing the cotton exchange, and wheat growers criticizing the board of trade. They want to get wheat and cotton out of gambling.

Here is the worst kind of gambling-the Government is saying to the cotton farmer, "Buy the cotton, and if it goes up you get the money, and if it goes down the Government takes the loss." A father might as well say to the son, "I want to make you an expert gambler, go on the board and buy 100 shares of stock in an Insull corporation, and if it goes up you get the money and if it goes down I will stand the loss."

I am wondering when the Government will be in the position of an old slave after the Civil War in reconstruction days. The slave became a member of the North Carolina Legislature. In those days of corruption he was sitting in his bedroom, some one went along the hallway and heard him laughing. The stranger asked the ex-slave what he was laughing about and he said, "I am jes thinkin', I done been sold 14 times, and this is the first time ebber I did get de money." [Laughter.]

I am wondering when the Government is going to sell some cotton and get the money. We are not going to do it by this bill-borrowing money-and if the price goes down the Government will take the loss, and if it goes up the Government gives the profit to the cotton planter. It would be bad enough if we were going to hold the cotton, but when you tell the board to go ahead and borrow, we are going to suffer a loss.

Where is the ingenious plan where there can be no loss? I do not know how you can borrow money and then tell the cotton planter that if the price goes up he can take the profit, and if it goes down the Government will take the loss. I do not see how you can say there will be no loss.

Here is this whole plan in a nutshell. The Government says to the cotton man, here is a coin, and we will flip it up, and if it comes down heads the cotton man wins, and if it comes down tails maybe the Government breaks even and maybe it loses, depending upon whether or not the price goes down. And now you are authorizing them to borrow money. This section is iniquitous.

Mr. HASTINGS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. McGUGIN. Yes.

Mr. HASTINGS. Suppose the Government of the United States, as provided in this bill, buys up sufficient cotton to have a monopoly upon it, does the gentleman believe there is any chance in the world if the Government sells, that it will sell at a loss?

Mr. McGUGIN. The Farm Board tried that and it lost. Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, the simple fact is that the Government has loaned money on this cotton and it could force a sale upon it and break the market utterly, and cause the Government tremendous loss as well as lose all opportunity for benefit. If this plan is enacted and it works, it will come as near insuring the cotton market as any step possible to take, and this section simply authorizes an additional detail that is an essential to carrying out the plan.

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONES. Yes.

Mr. McGUGIN. The gentleman will surely agree, if the Government borrows money on this cotton and it goes down in value, the Government will lose.

Mr. JONES. The Government will lose that way, and certainly if the Government kept it over the market and undertook to sell two or three million bales on the market now, it would lose.

Mr. McGUGIN. If it goes out and borrows money and loses, the taxpayers have to make it up.

Mr. STAFFORD. The report says that it purposes to control nearly 3,000,000 bales of cotton. I assume from that that those 3,000,000 bales are now in the custody of the American Cooperative Association.

Mr. JONES. No; 1,560,000.

Mr. STAFFORD. The testimony of Mr. Creekmore last December was 3,300,000 bales. The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. Hastings] suggests that this board is going into the market to buy up all available cotton.

Mr. JONES. We struck that provision out.

Mr. STAFFORD. It was testified that the annual crop is around 15,000,000 bales, and that of the 1929 crop there was a surplus of 9,000,000 bales and of the 1930 crop a surplus of 10,000,000 bales and of the 1931 crop a surplus of 13,000,000 bales. How, by reducing the crop 30 per cent, are you going to prevent surpluses in these times of depression? Is it not a chimerical gamble, with the Government as the gambler?

Mr. JONES. Oh, that was accumulating surplus. The present American carryover in this country is less than 10,000,000 bales. The bill under any circumstances can not do any harm and can not cost the Government any more than it will cost it anyway. We simply want a chance to use this to the advantage of the whole situation rather than the disadvantage.

Mr. STAFFORD. Would not the loss of 3,300,000 bales now controlled by the American Cooperative Association, fall upon that cooperative rather than upon the Government? Are you not transferring the loss to the Government from the banks and the American Cooperative Association?

Mr. JONES. It controls only 1,560,000 bales.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that debate upon this section and all amendments be now closed.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas.

The amendment was rejected. The Clerk read as follows:

Sec. 5. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with such warehouse receipts as collateral security.

Mr. LANKFORD of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike out the last word. I regret very much that many Members of the House are approaching the consideration of this bill from a sectional standpoint. To my mind the farm problem is nation-wide. I have always said that I would vote for any measure for the wheat-growing sections which those people out there agreed upon, regardless of whether cotton was included in the bill or not. When the McNary-Haugen bill, carrying the equalization-fee plan, was passed by the House the first time, it included wheat but did not include cotton, and I voted for the bill. Then there came up for consideration several bills to vote money to purchase feed and seed for drought sections of the West. That was before there was any general bill for this purpose, and before there was any bill for this purpose for those of us living in the South. I voted for all these measures. Then from time to time there have come up for consideration here bills for the relief of the western part of the country in the way of legislation for irrigation projects. I have always supported those measures which I believed worth while for the people living in the West. Only yesterday there came up for consideration a bill for the relief of the irrigation districts of the West. I came on the floor and supported that bill and am truly glad it passed. The relief of the farmers of the West does not help my people directly, but I do not want this matter handled from a narrow viewpoint. This is no time for sectional bitterness among the friends of the farmers.

It will be a sad day for the farmers of the country when the farmers of the West make war on the farmers of the South, and the farmers of the South make war on the farmers of the West. I feel that those who love the farmers of the West and those who live in the West should vote for this bill for the relief of the farmers of the South. I believe they will be in a much better position to get the support of those from the South when they seek aid in the future. If I were coming back to the next session I would vote for a bill for your relief, regardless of the fact that you voted against this bill. I do not want any ill will between the farmers of those two sections. If the farmers of the West and the farmers of the South ever pass any real relief bill for the farmers of the Nation, it will be done by the farmers of both sections voting together.

The bill to give wheat to the Red Cross came up before the cotton bill did. Those of us from the South voted to give the wheat to the Red Cross before the cotton bill came up for consideration. Then, a little later the bill came up to give cotton to the Red Cross and many of those from the West voted with us on that. What I am pleading for is that you people from the West vote with us on this, and let us in the future continue to vote with you on matters which concern you, just as we hope to do. This is neither the time nor the place for a sectional fight nor for narrow partisanship. Let us all vote for every measure in behalf of the farmers and the average individual citizen regardless of which particular section may be most benefited.

Now, let me say that while I am in favor of this bill, I wish it went much further in many respects. This measure is a step in the right direction and my opposition to it—if it may be classed as opposition—is that it does not go far enough. At this time I wish to only specifically mention the section just read containing one proposal with which I take issue. I hope I may not be misunderstood. I am in favor of this section staying in the bill unless we could get a better one adopted, which I know we can not do at this time. There remains a hard fight before the plan to raise money I would like to see written into this bill is ever written into either this bill or any other, unless the present depression arouses the people more than ever before. This is the very reason why I am availing myself of every possible opportunity to get my idea in this respect before the country.

Now let me read again section 5 of this bill which I now wish to discuss briefly. It is as follows:

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with such warehouse receipts as collateral security.

Under the law at present the Federal reserve banks can use the warehouse receipts mentioned in this section as the base for the issuance of interest-free money, but neither the farmers, who produced this cotton nor who are now to repurchase it, nor the United States Government, acting for the farmers in this matter, have this right. I contend that farm products should be monetized or used as the base for the issuance of currency just as fully for the farmers as it is now used by the banks of the Nation. Right here is the greatest trouble at this time with the farmer, with our economic system, and with our Nation. Here is the greatest inequality that ever existed between the farmers and the big bankers of the country. Here is the cause of the depression. Let us remedy this inequality and we will have taken a long step in the solution of the present great economic problem.

Why should not the board, set up under this bill to handle this cotton, have the same right to issue or have issued interest-free currency with this cotton as the base as is now exercised by the big banks? Why should the farmers have to borrow money on their warehouse receipts and the banks have the privilege of issuing interest-free money on the same kind of receipts? Why is this great disparity authorized and sanctioned by Congress?

Under the present system the farmers are taxed out of existence, to raise money for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and then the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans this money at interest back to the farmers or to a governmental agency acting for the farmers in order that this proposal may be carried into effect. In other words the farmer's money is forcibly taken away from him and then reloaned to him at interest on the farmer's own warehouse receipts—receipts on which the big bankers can issue interest-free currency. This is just another case where the farmers get help, but it is so costly and so intermingled with the payment of salaries, the creation of boards, and other red tape until much of the real merit of the proposal is utterly destroyed. Why not let the farmers, through a proper governmental agency, issue the currency in the first instance and thus save all this red tape, expense, and interest. The farmer should be allowed to issue his own currency as fully as the banker does.

This is the way the loans on all farm lands should have been handled. This is the way money should have been raised for the farmers under all activities which have been set up in the name of the farmer but which in effect are only harrassing the farmers, at great cost to the taxpayers and endangering the very existence of our Nation.

Mr. Chairman, under a proper farm relief system whereby the farmers would contract for their acreage of cotton, to-bacco, wheat, corn, and other products to be controlled and further contract for the sale of these products to be controlled, with the Government elevating and stabilizing the price of farm products at a fair price, and coupled with the proper monetization of farm products and farm lands, there would be brought into existence an arrangement putting the farmers of this country more nearly on a parity with the bankers, manufacturers, and other industrialists than ever before. But, Mr. Chairman, this leads me to the discussion of several matters which I have most fully discussed heretofore and which I shall not further discuss at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Lankford] has expired.

The pro forma amendment was withdrawn.

Mr. GARBER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which is at the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Garber: Page 6, line 26, after the word "security," at the end of line 26, add the following: provided all loans shall be fully and adequately secured."

Mr. GARBER. For information I inquire of the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, using the cotton as consideration for the withdrawal of acreage, what will be the curtailment of production?

Mr. JONES. It is not on the basis of acreage. It is on the basis of reduced production over last year's production, and they will have an interest in this pool to the extent they actually reduce the number of actual bales produced under what they produced last year.

Mr. GARBER. What is the estimated curtailment?

Mr. JONES. The curtailment, it is estimated, would be the exact number of bales covered by this bill; about 2,500,-000 bales.

Mr. GARBER. What proportion of the total production?

Mr. JONES. That depends on the production. The average is about twelve or thirteen million bales; so it will be a little better than 20 per cent.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JONES. I yield.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. That is not the world production?

Mr. JONES. No; I am talking about domestic produc-

Mr. GARBER. As the world's market determines the price, what proportion would the estimated curtailment be of the world's production?

Mr. JONES. The world production ranges around twenty-five to twenty-seven million bales. If this measure accomplishes what is hoped, it would mean about 10 per cent reduction of the total production in the world.

Mr. GARBER. With a 2-year surplus on hand and a third in the making, it is difficult to see anything but additional loss of the tax moneys in relieving the banks of their improvident loans on cotton. There is not any question but what the bill will relieve the banks, but it will be at the expense of the Government. It will simply be another example of "the banks must have theirs first." Oh, yes; it will relieve the Chase National Bank, of New York, and all the other banks with frozen cotton loans. It will be a good relief bill for them.

During my service in the House I have supported every measure for the promotion of the interests of agriculture that has been presented, many times doing so against my better judgment but with the hope that some beneficial results might ensue. I have always taken the position that the initial measure to be enacted in this depression was to increase the prices of farm products and restore the purchasing power to about one-third of our population living on the farms and suburban districts. With that purchasing power taxes would be paid, interest would be paid, part payments would be made upon obligations, all of which would tend to strengthen and rebuild our financial structure. With their purchasing power restored, the people would again become the consumers of the products of industry; capital would again invest and start up the idle factories and reemploy labor.

This has been my program for restoration in contrast to the program of the Government continuing the loan of the money of the taxpayers to the railroads, banks, mortgage and insurance companies, and other financial agencies, including the lending of money to clean out the slum districts of the large cities and rebuild them, and all other impractical proposals of a kindred nature; especially since it now appears that the tremendous weight of this depression is entirely too heavy for the Government to carry upon its credit and upon the ever-diminishing revenues and the ever-increasing deficits.

Up to February 20, 1933, the Federal Government had advanced $1,788,666,009.12 in cash through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and had received in the way of repayments on loans made a total of $347,237,110.60. And let it be remembered that the loans have been made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as the agent of the Government under a guaranty of the Government which reads:

In the event that the corporation shall be unable to pay upon demand when due the principal and interest on notes, debentures, bonds, or other such obligations issued by it, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay the amount thereof, which is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and thereupon, to the extent of the amount so paid, the Secretary of the Treasury shall succeed to all the rights of the holders of such notes, debentures, bonds, or other obligations.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been authorized to issue its notes, debentures, bonds, or other obligations to the extent of $3,800,000,000, back of every one of which stands the Government, pledged to pay in full.

During this session, with the depression sagging each day, every measure of relief has been predicated upon loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the extent of billions and billions of dollars, just as though there was not any limit to its funds and just as though there was not any limit to the credit of the Government. It has been made the goat to bear the burden of every proposal for reconstruction.

With the evidence now at hand, showing that the loans already made are becoming more questionable each day and that moratoriums have become necessary to relieve the banks from undue withdrawals, it would seem that the safest course to pursue would be to take immediate action in curtailing the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loans for relief to the destitute and needy in the several States and discontinue the making of loans where it clearly appears that such financial accommodations can not and will not check the relentless liquidation that is now going on, and which will continue to the bottom.

My joint resolution now pending before the House Banking and Currency Committee would prohibit the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from making any further loans to the railroads, because we have already advanced them approximately $350,000,000, the larger portion of which simply went to relieve the banks and insurance companies holding their obligations, and within 60 or 90 days they will be demanding additional loans to meet their coming-due obligations in the amount of not less than $300,000,000. It thus appears that we will be unable to carry the enormous weight of their financial needs and that sooner or later—it is only a question of time—they will go into the hands of receivers or through bankruptcy proceedings, with all the moneys the Government has advanced, not as a preferred but as a common creditor. Now is the time to stop.

My resolution also prohibits further loans to banks for the same reasons as apply to railroads and to the other agencies enumerated in the act, limiting the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation strictly to the relieving of the distressed in the several States, to feed and clothe the hungry people who are out of employment, to give them work on work projects that will pay for themselves, referred to in the act as "self-liquidating projects."

It is strange that such important legislation as the pending bill could not have been given thorough consideration by the House Agricultural Committee and a bill reported during the session, giving ample time for its consideration. It is now presented with a report that gives but little, if any, definite information essential to its intelligent consideration.

Section 1 creates a board of six members to be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture. Whew! Another board. Section 2 directs the Secretary of Agriculture, the Fed-

Section 2 directs the Secretary of Agriculture, the Federal Farm Board, and other agencies of the Government to sell to the newly created board all the cotton in their possession at such price as they may agree upon.

Section 3 authorizes the board to borrow money upon the cotton from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and deposit the warehouse receipts as collateral.

Section 5 directs the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend the money to the board—

In such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with such warehouse receipts as collateral security.

My amendment would limit the loans so made to the requirement of full and adequate security as is required in all the other loans made by the corporation.

Section 6 authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into an optional contract with the producers of cotton for the sale of such an amount of cotton purchased by the board as the producer will curtail in his production for the year 1933. It provides that the producers of cotton may enter into an optional contract with the board to purchase the quantity of cotton which would have been produced if they had not refrained from limiting their planting. In other words, a cotton grower whose annual production has been a hundred bales, by entering into a contract to limit his production to 50 bales, may obtain an optional contract of purchase of 50 bales of cotton from the board and have the right at any time up to January 1, 1934, to exercise such option. By taking said cotton upon payment by him of his option price and carrying charges, the board may sell such cotton for the producer, paying him the excess of the market price at the date of sale over the market price at the date of his contract, after deducting all carrying charges—

Provided, That in no event shall the producer be held responsible or liable for financial loss incurred in the holding of such cotton or on account of the carrying charges therein. In his contract of curtailment of production the producer must agree not to use the land withheld from the production of cotton for production of any other nationally produced agricultural commodity or product.

Thus we see, as in too many other cases, the Government handling the tax moneys of the people is required to take all the hazard and risk and hold the sack. It is estimated that the amount of cotton to be taken over will amount to about 3,000,000 bales. Of course the tax moneys of the people will be loaned to pay for all the liens and charges upon this cotton. It has developed that the banks have a total of approximately $28,000,000 advanced loans to the producers on the cotton. The tax moneys of the people. through the Finance Corporation, are to be loaned to pay these banks. So we see, in the first instance, it is a bankrelief measure, a measure to relieve the banks of their loans to the cotton producers. The cotton is then to be used as a consideration to the cotton producer to curtail his production which he can readily afford to do by taking an option contract wherein he is to receive all the profits, if any, and is guaranteed against paying any of the loss. In other words, the Government having already advanced more money on the cotton than the market price would now afford is now being denied, under the terms of this bill, any chance whatsoever of recouping any of the tax moneys by improved price conditions. All such gains, if any, are to go to the producers who in addition to such considerations are relieved of the expense of their crop production.

We do not believe that the financial condition of the Government will permit of any additional loans or any additional expenditures of the tax moneys in favor of any one class of producers as against the others. An amendment to include wheat in the bill was voted down by the Democratic House majority. If we are justified, under the present precarious financial conditions, to loan the tax moneys for the benefit of the cotton producers, we have the same justification to loan such moneys for the wheat producers, corn producers, hog producers, cattle raisers, and the producers of dairy products. But the House majority selfishly exercising its power in the closing days of the session is opposed to any amendments extending equal financial assistance to the other industries of agriculture. We are opposed to any such narrow, selfish, sectional policy or the exercise of any such power.

We say now the only way to balance the Budget is to stop spending the people's money, to discontinue all unnecessary appropriation, or any additional loans by the Finance Corporation with the exceptions as above stated, and let liquidation take its natural course. The farmers have taken theirs, their accumulations have been swept away, the market values of their properties have been destroyed, the prices of their products have been reduced to approximately 50 per cent of their cost of production. Let all the other industries take the same liquidation and then start anew upon an equality and keep the Government out of business; of attempting to peg the price of bonds or securities or farm products. [Applause.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

The present law requires adequate security. It does not say "full and adequate." This does not change the law. The gentleman does not understand how these matters are handled. These are warehouse receipts, and the warehouse receipts carry the actual cotton. To say that they shall have further security aside from that absolutely kills any chance of handling it under any circumstances.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. JONES. I yield.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Is it not true that the board will only have the cotton in the warehouses, and that is all the collateral it has?

Mr. JONES. That is all in the world they could put up. and having put that up, the gentleman would hamstring the bill so that it could not operate. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation certainly is going to handle this in a business-like way.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this section and all amendments thereto do now close.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma?

The amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 6. The Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized and directed to enter into contracts with the producers of cotton to sell to any such producer an amount of cotton, in the hands of the board, equivalent in amount to the amount of reduction in production of cotton by such producer below the amount produced by him in of cotton by such producer below the amount produced by him in the preceding crop year, in all cases where such producer agrees in writing to reduce the amount of cotton produced by him in 1933, below his production in the previous year, by not less than 30 per cent, without increase in commercial fertilization per acre.

To any such producer so agreeing to reduce production the Secretary of Agriculture shall deliver a nonnegotiable option contract agreeing to sell to said producer an amount of cotton equivalent.

agreeing to sell to said producer an amount of cotton equivalent to the amount of his estimated reduction of the cotton in the session and control of the board.

The producer is to have the option to buy said cotton at the average price paid by the board for the cotton procured under sections 2 and 3, and is to have the right at any time up to January 1, 1934, to exercise his option, upon proof that he has complied with his contract and with all the rules and regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture with respect thereto, by taking said cotton upon payment by him of his option price and all actual carrying charges on such cotton; or the board may sell such cotton for the account of such producer paying him the excess of the for the account of such producer, paying him the excess of the market price at the date of sale over the market price at the date of his contract after deducting all actual and necessary carrying charges: Provided, That in no event shall the producer be held responsible or liable for financial loss incurred in the holding of such cotton or on account of the carrying charges therein: Provided further, That such agreement to curtail cotton production shall contain a further provision that such cotton producer shall not use the land taken out of cotton production for the production for sale of any other nationally produced agricultural commodity or product.

Mr. HOLLISTER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hollister: Page 7, strike out line 18 and the following words on line 19: "procured under sections 2 and 3," and insert in lieu thereof the following: "at the market price at the date of his contract."

Mr. HOLLISTER. Mr. Chairman, I assume that irrespective of how we feel as to the general principle involved in this bill, whether we are for or against the bill as a general measure, we all want it in the best possible shape and in the fairest form it can be gotten into.

The bill at present provides that the producer who takes advantage of his option contract shall acquire his cotton at the average price that it was acquired by the cotton board, and, of course, if he acquires it at that price, he is then able to sell it at the then market price.

The principle behind this bill is a desire to reduce production and, in order to induce the grower to reduce production, to offer him something in the way of a stimulus so that if he and those with him who are cooperating are successful in that reduction he will get a better price.

It has been stated that this will not cost the Government anything, that the Government is due anyway for a large loss. Granted that this may be true, we ought, however, to save something for the Government where we possibly can if we are not interfering with the basic idea back of the bill.

My amendment merely provides that the producer, when he exercises his option, shall pay for it at the fair market price at the time of his contract.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOLLISTER. Certainly.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Would not that defeat the very purpose of this bill? If he buys at the market price, there would be no incentive for him making any reduction at all.

Mr. HOLLISTER. The market price at the time he makes his original contract?

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Yes.

Mr. HOLLISTER. The theory of the bill is that this action will reduce production, will keep this cotton off the market, and, therefore, the price will rise. The only question is at what price is one Government body going to acquire this cotton from another Government body?

Mr. WHITTINGTON. That is provided for in the bill.

Mr. HOLLISTER. If the cotton board acquires this cotton from another Government body at the prevailing market price, the matter is definitely settled; but there is no doubt in my mind but that it is necessary to incorporate in the bill some protection against arbitrary action between two branches of the Government. It should not be possible for them to take the cotton and arbitrarily fix a price, for instance, of 3 cents a pound when the market price at the time was 5 cents.

It seems to me this is merely a protection against arbitrary action by two Government boards so that they will not state a given price at which the cotton will be acquired by one of them, which price may be far below the market.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Is it reasonable to suppose the grower would agree to pay more than the market price for the cotton?

Mr. HOLLISTER. I do not think the gentleman understood me. I want to protect against two Government bodies agreeing on a sale price as between themselves, which price would be considerably less than the market. The grower, on exercise of his option, would then get the benefit of the difference between this arbitrary cost of the cotton and the market price when he ultimately exercises his option. Have I made it clear?

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOLLISTER. Certainly.
Mr. CLARKE of New York. This amendment is simply in the interest of protecting the Government, as I understand it.

Mr. HOLLISTER. That is all that is provided by my amendment, and it seems to me we should try to perfect this bill before it is put in operation.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the difficulty with amendments of this character is that if it became apparent after the bill is enacted that the farmers were going to sign up and before they could actually sign, some of these speculators who watch the trade all the time would bid the market up before they could actually sign and thus defeat the purpose of the bill. As it is, the farmer who is charged up with cotton that is set apart to him is charged what they agree on as the price to the Government plus carrying charges. I think this is fair. Then the speculator could not rush in and drive the market up and thus prevent the farmer getting a contract at what would be a fair price. It might take 30 days or longer to get them all in.

If we are going to pass the bill, let us give the principle a chance to work. I think the Government will be protected, and the only effect of the gentleman's amendment would be to give some speculators an opportunity to destroy any chance the principle of the bill has of operating.

Mr. HOLLISTER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. JONES. Certainly.

Mr. HOLLISTER. Would it not be fair to have the bill state that price would be taken into consideration?

Mr. JONES. We discussed that in the committee.

danger of two Government agencies getting together and agreeing on a price regardless of the market.

Mr. JONES. There is no appreciable danger of that.

Mr. HOLLISTER. If there is not, then let us protect against it.

Mr. JONES. The matter was carefully considered by the committee, and this seemed to be the fairest way to handle the matter. I hope the gentleman will not insist on his amendment.

Mr. HOLLISTER. I insist on it because it seems to me to be necessary.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this section and all amendments thereto do now close.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment. I object.

Mr. ALLGOOD. Mr. Chairman, I object. I have an amendment I wish to offer.

Mr. JONES. Then, Mr. Chairman, I modify my request and ask unanimous consent that all debate on this amendment do now close.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Hollister) there were—ayes 78, noes 101.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that all debate on this section and all amendments thereto close in 12 minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. BOILEAU. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Bolleau: Page 8, line 10, after the word "production," strike out the words "for sale."

Mr. BOILEAU. Mr. Chairman, I believe this is a very important amendment. To my mind this bill, as it is now prepared, is discriminatory. It discriminates against all agricultural commodities with the exception of cotton. It seems to me if we are to pass such a bill providing that some lands which are now utilized for the purpose of raising cotton shall be taken out of production, such lands under no circumstances should be used for the purpose of raising any other commodity or product of agriculture, whether it is being produced for sale or not. To my mind it makes no difference whether any other such commodity that might be planted or produced upon this land is sold or not, all such commodities produced on such land are directly in competition with other agricultural commodities. If the farmer who is now engaged in producing cotton produces cotton exclusively, he must buy his milk and must buy his cheese and must buy his potatoes and his wheat and other things; but if we are going to permit him to take this land that he now uses for the purpose of producing cotton and produce these other commodities, even though they are not produced for sale, we are permitting that amount of such commodities to come into direct competition with farmers who are producing such other agricultural commodities. I believe this provision should be amended so that such lands can not be used to compete with farmers who are not benefited by this bill.

Mr. HOCH. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOILEAU. Yes.

Mr. HOCH. Under the language as it appears now, such a farmer could use the land to raise corn provided he fed the corn to his hogs.

Mr. BOILEAU. Yes; he could use it in any way provided he did not produce it for sale. It would be in direct competition with other farm commodities, and I believe that if the cotton men want this benefit for themselves, they at

Mr. HOLLISTER. What I want to protect against is the | least ought not to saddle anything more on the producers of other commodities.

Mr. GILCHRIST. I had in mind the same question that was asked by the gentleman from Kansas and I desired to point out that the cotton farmers will now raise corn and feed it to their hogs and later on get the benefit of the corn grown in this way without a single compensating factor to the corn farmer.

Mr. BOILEAU. That is absolutely right, and the same thing applies to the dairy farmers and every other class of farmers.

Mr. JONES. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOILEAU. Yes.

Mr. JONES. This is simply intended to apply to the man who may grow a few stalks of corn in his garden or grow a few potatoes for his own use. This was just intended to apply to articles that are not grown for the market.

Mr. BOILEAU. That same farmer is producing a small amount of corn to-day, he has some land he is using for that particular purpose, and we should let him keep on using that same land and not let him put this 30 per cent into the production of other commodities. He now uses part of his land for that purpose and without these words "for sale" he can continue to do so.

Mr. JONES. Maybe this is the only land he has for that purpose.

Mr. BOILEAU. If he is not using the land for that purpose now let him buy these other farm products and help out some other farmer.

Mr. KERR. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOILEAU. Yes.

Mr. KERR. May I ask if it is the gentleman's purpose to support this bill in the event the amendment he has offered is adopted?

Mr. BOILEAU. I am not certain whether I will or not. I am frank to say that I believe this bill is wrong in principle. The gentleman from Alabama gave the only good reason for the passage of this bill, and that was that this might be our last chance to help out cotton. I want to say to you that I believe we ought to stay here and come back next Monday in special session, and help out all agriculture. I am willing to help out cotton, but I want other phases of agriculture helped out with it.

Mr. GREEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOILEAU. Yes.

Mr. GREEN. The products to which the gentleman refers are not raised in any surplus quantity where cotton is

Mr. BOILEAU. Let the cotton farmers who want this protection buy some of the things that other farmers raise. There is no reason why they should go into the production of these other crops. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask recognition for just one minute to state that it is the customary language to say "raised for the market." I do not know that this is a particularly important amendment, but I do not like to vary from the usual form. It is intended they shall not use this land for any competitive crop that is marketed, directly or indirectly.

Mr. GILCHRIST. Why did not the gentleman write the bill in that way?

Mr. JONES. We might put in the words "directly or indirectly," in order to cover the question. I do not want the land used even indirectly in competition with any of these other crops, but I dislike to strike out the words "for sale," because this might interfere with some little thing that a farmer grew even in his garden in these desperate times in order to help him make a living. If the gentleman will change his amendment so that it will say "for sale directly or indirectly," I will be pleased to agree to the amendment. This would cover the feeding proposition.

Mr. BOILEAU. No; I insist upon my amendment.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I ask that the amendment

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment! offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Boileau) there were 93 ayes and 117 noes.

Mr. BOILEAU. Mr. Chairman, I demand tellers.

Tellers were ordered; and the Chair appointed as tellers Mr. Jones and Mr. Bolleau.

The committee again divided, and the tellers reported that there were 124 ayes and 135 noes.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, in order to correct the text in accordance with the suggestion made by the gentleman from Wisconsin, I will offer the following amendment to page 8, line 10.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 8, line 10, after the words "for sale" insert the words "directly or indirectly."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. ALLGOOD. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment to S. 5122:

"To every landlord so agreeing to reduce or cause to have reduced the production of cotton under the optional provision of this act upon all lands to which said landlord holds title shall be assigned, said assignment to be made by the Secretary of Agriculture directly to said landlord, that number of appropriately culture directly to said landlord, that number of appropriately designed and numbered metal tags, said tags to be known and accepted as ginning permit tags, one of which shall be fastened securely on the outside of each bale (hereinafter known as the common bale of ginned cotton not exceeding 525 pounds in gross weight) of cotton so produced under the terms of the said landlord's written contract heretofore provided for in this act.

"To every landlord not so agreeing to reduce or cause to have reduced the production of cotton under the optional provision of this act upon all lands to which said landlord holds title shall be assigned, said assignment to be made upon the properly prescribed joint application of said landlord and a duly licensed ginner, and said assignment shall be made by the part-time Federal employee of said district or county commonly known as cotton-gin enumerator or cotton-census enumerator, or some duly authorized agent of the Secretary of Agriculture in the event of the absence of such enumerator, that number of said tags not to exceed by 70 per cent of the number of bales of cotton produced on all said lands cent of the number of bales of cotton produced on all said lands in the previous year.

"The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized and directed to design and have provided a sufficient number of said ginning permit tags to carry out the provisions of this act.

"The Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules and regulations

"The Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized and directed to assign the said ginning permit tags under the provisions of this act.

"Any ginner or ginners who separately or jointly with any landlord or landlords make false and/or misleading statements in the application for or assignment of said ginning permit tags shall be charged with a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $1,000 and imprisoned for a period of not more than they were than two years.

"Any person, firm, or corporation that may hereafter gin a bale of cotton without placing upon said bale or cotton one of the said ginning permit tags as required under the provisions of this act shall be charged with a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $500.

"Any purchaser who may hereafter purchase, trade for, or accept title to a bale of cotton ginned under the provisions of this act without first ascertaining if said bale of cotton has upon it one of the said ginning permit tags as provided for in this act shall be charged with a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $500 and upon discovery said bale of cotton shall be confiscated.

"The possession of a bale of cotton ginned hereafter and in vio-lation hereof shall constitute prima facie evidence as to the guilt of the ginner who ginned said bale and the owner of said bale in violation of this act and upon discovery said bale shall be con-

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the amendment is not germane. If we undertake to limit the amount of ginning, that is an entirely different question to a voluntary production program.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is ready to rule. amendment proposed by the gentleman from Alabama deals with the subject of ginning cotton. There is nothing in the bill dealing with ginning cotton. The Chair sustains the point of order.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 8. The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized and directed to make all necessary rules and regulations and to employ such officers and employees as are necessary to execute the provisions of this act

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hope: Page 8, line 22, after the word "act," strike out the period, insert a colon, and add the following: "Provided, That no salary or compensation shall be paid to any person in excess of that paid Federal employees for like or similar services."

Mr. JONES. Mr. Chairman, we will accept the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now is on the committee substitute to the Senate bill as amended.

The substitute as amended was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule the committee will rise. Accordingly the committee rose; and Mr. Woodrum having assumed the chair as Speaker pro tempore, Mr. Davis of Tennessee, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill S. 5122, and that pursuant to House Resolution 397 he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule the previous question is ordered on the bill and amendment to final passage. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the third reading of the Senate bill.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 188, nays 183, not voting 55, as follows:

> [Roll No. 1731 YEAS-188

Davis, Tenn. Delaney DeRouen Abernethy Aldrich Allgood Almon Dickinson Dickstein Arnold Auf der Heide Bacharach Dies Disney Dominick Bankhead Barbour Barton Beam Black Doxey Drewry Driver Bland Blanton Bloom Boland Ellzey Eslick Boylan Briggs Browning Fernandez Brunner Fishburne Fitzpatrick Flannagan Buchanan Burch Flood Fuller Burdick Busby Busby Byrns Canfield Cannon Carden Carley Fulmer Gambrill Gasque Gavagan Gifford Cartwright Glover Cary Castellow Celler Chapman Chavez Clark, N. C. Cole, Md. Hare Hartley Hastings Collier Hill, Ala. Hill, Wash. Condon Connery Cooper, Tenn. Cox Cross Holmes Howard Huddleston Crowther Crump Cullen Hull, Morton D. Jeffers Johnson, Okla.

Johnson, Tex. Jones Keller Kemp Kennedy N. Y. Kerr Kleberg Kniffin Doughton Douglass, Mass. Lanham Lankford, Ga. Larrabee Larsen Eagle Eaton, N. J. Lea Lehlbach Lichtenwalner Lindsay Estep Evans, Mont. Lovette Lozier McClintic, Okla. McCormack McDuffie McKeown McMillan McReynolds McSwain Major Maloney Mansfield Martin, Mass. May Mead Miller Milligan Goldsborough Green Gregory Hancock, N. C. Mobley Montet Moore, Ky. Murphy Norton, N. J. O'Connor Oliver, Ala. Overton Parker, Ga. Parks, N. Y. Houston, Del.

Parsons

Patman Patterson Perkins Prall Ragon Rainey Ramspeck Rankin Rayburn Reid. Ill. Reilly Rogers, Mass. Rogers, N. H. Rudd Sanders, Tex. Sandlin Seger Seiberling Smith, Va. Smith, W. Va. Somers, N. Y. Spence Steagall Stevenson Stewart Sumners, Tex. Sutphin Swank Tarver
Taylor, Colo.
Taylor, Tenn.
Thomason
Tierney Underwood Vinson, Ga. Vinson, Kv. Warren Wason Weaver Whittington Wilson Wingo Wood, Ga. Woodrum

Wright Yon

NAYS-183 Adkins Dyer Eaton, Colo. Kading Romjue Sanders, N. Y. Schafer Allen Kahn Englebright Kelly, Ill. Schneider Kelly, Pa. Kennedy, Md. Ketcham Andresen Erk Andrew, Mass Evans, Calif. Schuetz Andrews, N. Y. Selvig Fiesinger Kinzer Shallenberger Arentz Finley Knutson Fish Bachmann Foss Kurtz Shreve LaGuardia Lambertson Simmons Sinclair Bacon Baldrige Frear Free Beck Beedy French Garber Lamneck Snell Lankford, Va. Snow Sparks Stafford Stalker Biddle Gibson Leavitt Gilchrist Lonergan Loofbourow Bohn Gillen Boileau Luce Stokes Bolton Brand, Ohio Granfield Ludlow Strong, Pa. Greenwood Griffin McClintock Ohio Stull McFadden Swanson Sweeney Griswold McGugin Brumm Guyer Hadley Burtness Magrady Swick Swing Cable Cable Campbell, Pa. Carter, Calif. Carter, Wyo. Chiperfield Christgau Haines Hall, N. Dak. Millard Taber Temple Moore, Ohio Hancock, N. Y. Morehead Nelson, Me. Nelson, Mo. Thatcher Thurston Timberlake Harlan Christopherson Nelson, Wis. Tinkham Clague Haugen Nolan Treadway Clancy Clarke, N. Y Norton, Nebr. Hawley Turpin Oliver, N. Y. Partridge Watson Weeks Welch Cochran, Mo. Cochran, Pa. Hoch Hoch Hogg, Ind. Hogg, W. Va. Holaday Hollister Cole. Iowa Person West Cole, lowa Colton Connolly Cooper, Ohio Coyle Pettengill Pittenger White Whitley Wigglesworth Williams, Mo. Hooper Polk Hope Hopkins Pratt, Harcourt J. Pratt, Ruth Crail Williamson Purnell Ramseyer Withrow Crosser Horr Hull, William E. Crowe Culkin Jenkins Johnson, Mo. Ransley Reed, N. Y. Wolfenden Wood, Ind. Darrow Davis, Pa. Dowell Johnson, S. Dak. Rich Johnson, Wash. Robin Woodruff Robinson NOT VOTING-55

Kopp Kvale Lambeth Douglas, Ariz. Bowman Brand, Ga. Doutrich Drane Buckee Campbell, Iowa

Gilbert Golder Hall, Ill. Chase Chindblom Collins Hall, Miss. Corning Hornor Curry Davenport Igoe Jacobsen De Priest Dieterich James

Cavicchia

Freeman Fulbright Lewis McLeod Maas Manlove Martin, Oreg. Michener Montague Mouser Niedringhaus Owen Palmisano Johnson, Ill.

Pou Sabath Shannon Sirovich Smith, Idaho Strong, Kans.
Sullivan, N. Y.
Sullivan, Pa.
Summers, Wash.
Underhill Williams, Tex. Wyant Yates

So the bill was passed.

The Clerk announced the following pairs: On this vote:

Mr. Pou (for) with Mr. Wyant (against).
Mr. Sirovich (for) with Mr. Buckbee (against).
Mr. Brand of Georgia (for) with Mr. Campbell of Iowa (against).
Mr. Hall of Mississippi (for) with Mr. Doutrich (against).
Mr. Sullivan of New York (for) with Mr. Kvale (against).
Mrs. Owen (for) with Mr. Kopp (against).
Mr. Drane (for) with Mr. Smith of Idaho (against).
Mr. Collins (for) with Mr. Smith of Idaho (against).
Mr. Montague (for) with Mr. Niedringhaus (against).
Mr. Williams of Texas (for) with Mr. Hall of Illinois (against).
Mr. Igoe (for) with Mr. Underhill (against).
Mr. Gilbert (for) with Mr. McLeod (against).

Additional general pairs:

Mr. Corning with Mr. Cavicchia.
Mr. Martin of Oregon with Mr. Michener.
Mr. Lewis with Mr. Golder.
Mr. Lambeth with Mr. Manlove.
Mr. Palmisano with Mr. Bowman.
Mr. Douglas of Arizona with Mr. Freeman.
Mr. Shannon with Mr. Chase.
Mr. Jacobsen with Mr. Mouser.
Mr. Dieterich with Mr. Strong of Kansas.
Mr. Fulbright with Mr. Sullivan of Pennsylvania.
Mr. Hornor with Mr. Davenport.
Mr. Sabath with Mr. James.
Mr. Cooke with Mr. Curry

Mr. Cooke with Mr. Curry.
Mr. Johnson of Illinois with Mr. De Priest.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, I was in the cloakroom, standing just outside. My attention was called to the fact that my name was called, and I came in, but the Clerk passed on to the next name.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not qualify.

Mr. MICHENER. If permitted to vote, I would vote "no." Mr. MANLOVE. Mr. Speaker, I was standing just outside in the cloakroom. If permitted to vote, I would vote " no."

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not qualify.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

On motion by Mr. Jones, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS—THE AMERICAN RAILROADS

Mr. COOPER of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, it is my desire to say a few words to the House respecting the condition of one of the Nation's greatest and most necessary industries—that of railroad transportation. The future of this country and the welfare of its people demand sound solutions for the difficulties which the railroads face. The situation calls for the fullest cooperation between the Federal and State Governments and their regulative authorities, backed by an informed and constructive public opinion.

In discussing railroad matters the subject is often approached from the viewpoint of some particular group of citizens out of the many whose interests or problems are involved—the employees, for instance; or the security owners; the railroad managements; the shippers and receivers of freight; the mines, factories, and other industries whose markets depend upon rail transportation and upon the maintenance of rates which will move the traffic; the employees and owners of these mines, mills, and other industries; the consumers of their output; the enterprises which produce railroad supplies and equipment, and their employees and owners, and so on. The list is far from complete, but it is long enough to show that a full catalogue of those who will be helped or injured by whatever helps or injures the railroads would include the entire population of the country and even involve the security of its industrial and social order.

It is evident also that these various classifications of interests, which are affected by the railroad situation, are in many cases overlapping; that is, the same individual may be, and often is, concerned in more than one way. As a single example, thousands of holders of railroad stocks and bonds are also railroad employees; or, in only too many cases, they are former employees, living in the hope that better days in rail transportation will bring them back to the pay rolls.

Railroad employees to-day number about 1,000,000. That is roughly half as many as there were only a few years ago, yet they are still an army, despite the thinning of their ranks. Including families and other dependents, from five to six million citizens of the United States are being directly supported by railroad pay rolls, even in these times of unparalleled shrinkage in traffic. In normal periods several million more persons-workers and their dependents-were supported by the pay rolls of the industries which produce fuel, other supplies, and equipment for the railroads.

The present predicament and the future outlook of all these people—the railroad workers and ex-workers and their dependents, and the workers and ex-workers in the railroadsupply industries-constitute a national welfare problem to which only the situation and difficulties of the farm population are comparable.

I have the greatest sympathy for the farmer with his mortgage and tax problems and the collapse in the prices of everything that he can produce for sale. Yet I doubt whether the situation of the average distressed farmer is any more disheartening than that of thousands of former railroad employees who are to-day without jobs or means of support of any kind.

The railroad man without a job has nothing but his savings, if any. He is nearly always a town or city dweller, and if you cut off his wages, you cut off his entire resources of existence.

What has become of the million or so of railroad workers, who, through no fault of their own or of the railroad managements, have lost their places in recent years? Some have found employment of a sort in other work, but practically always at reduced living standards and in only too many cases for pay at or close to the line of bare subsistence. Many thousands have been and are entirely idle—charges upon relations, friends, or the public.

Of the approximately 1,000,000 still at work, it can only be said that literally thousands live in the daily dread that their turn will come next. How precarious the situation has become for great numbers may be judged from the fact that on some of the largest railroad systems, where seniority agreement are in effect with the employees, it is necessary in many important departments, to have more than 30 years' service in order to remain on the pay rolls. Numerous instances have been recorded where, under the strictest interpretation of seniority rights affecting a given group of employees, men with even 40 or more years of service have been laid off because they stood at the bottom of the roster of those who were left.

I mention these matters, not because I expect Congress to legislate railroad men back into their jobs, or because I think railroad men have any claim to preferred consideration over workers who have devoted their lives to other essential industries, but because I think it is essential that Congress and the public, in rightful concern over the plight of the farmer, should not lose sight of the situation and problems of railroad and railroad-supply workers, and their dependents. Their problem should be as much a matter of national concern as that of the farmers.

Let us turn now from the employees of the railroads to the owners of these great properties, which have been dedicated and are essential to the public service. Let us consider their stock and bond holders and who they may be. In theory, a bondholder of a railroad is a kind of secured creditor, one who has advanced capital upon the security of some form of mortgage or pledge. In practice, especially under existing circumstances, the bondholder is really only a preferred class of owner and we may consider his situation and that of the stockholder as one problem.

According to the accepted estimates, there are in round figures 1,000,000 holders of railroad bonds and 800,000 holders of railroad stocks. Those who seek to make political capital out of assailing any and every form of accumulated property, particularly when in corporate form, make a common practice of referring to railroad bond and stock holders as if they were in large or major part rich and powerful individuals, well able to look out for themselves. I am sure that even men who for their own ends try to present such a picture know that it is not an accurate one.

The individual holder of railroad securities certainly has rights which should be properly respected and protected. To do so is one of the functions of government, as much as in the case of any other form of rightfully owned property. But in the extent of the interests involved, the holdings of individuals are far overshadowed by the interest of the public as a whole in the ownership of these securities by great institutions formed to protect and promote the public welfare. For instance, life-insurance companies and mutual-savings banks hold more than $5,000,000,000 in railroad securities, or about a quarter of all the outstanding stocks and bonds of all the railroad companies in the United States put together. These securities form an important part of the investments which are the security behind more than 50,000,000 insurance policies and 13,000,000 savingsbank deposits.

On the very conservative estimate that at least half of these 50,000,000 insurance policies carry benefits to persons other than the policyholders themselves, we have, through this one source, not less than 75,000,000 of our people whose protection and welfare are directly dependent upon the financial soundness of railroad securities. And who can say how many persons there are whose future welfare is directly or indirectly dependent upon those 13,000,000 savings-bank accounts, which in their turn are in considerable part dependent, for their future worth, upon railroad investments?

Besides the insurance companies and savings funds nearly every bank, trust company, hospital, college, school of technical training, religious, charitable, and welfare institution has at least some of its funds—usually a substantial part—invested in the railroads.

The real truth of the matter is that all of our citizens, whether they appreciate the fact or not, are directly or indirectly interested in railroad stocks and bonds. In actuality they are railroad-security owners, if not in their own names, then by proxy.

What we have in this country is not, I am thankful to say, public ownership of the railroads, in the sense of ownership by the Government. We have what is far better and sounder, ownership by the public, either as individual investors or through their institutions.

I have already mentioned the purchases of the railroads. Let me return to that important subject for a few further observations. Vast, indeed, is the scope of railroad purchasing power when traffic is moving freely. Under conditions of stability they are the mainstay of our great basic industries, taking a quarter of all the bituminous coal, a fifth of the oil, a fifth of the forest products, a sixth of the iron and steel. Economists place the normal buying power of the railroads at 16 or 17 per cent of the country's total. Can our business men or our farmers, the latter of whom are dependent for their markets chiefly upon industrial centers, permit that vital and basic buying power in the Nation to be needlessly crippled?

I am citing these facts, which cover only a part of the situation, not in order to base upon them a plea for Congress to subsidize the railroads, even as an emergency measure. I have no fear that rail transportation is becoming obsolete. It is no more becoming obsolete than the steel industry is. And when general business revives, traffic will come back to the rails just as surely as orders will come back to the mills.

I am not making a sentimental plea for the railroads. Nor am I suggesting that they should be treated better in the future for any reasons of pity or sympathy.

Why regulate the railroads in every detail but permit their competitors to operate practically unregulated, in complete disregard of the fact that they are engaged in business just as much "affected with a public interest" as is the business of the railroads?

Why permit great trucks to take the "cream" of the freight business—the high-paying, low-cost traffic—leaving to the railroads the "skim milk," which, as common carriers, they must haul when and where the shipper directs, whether it pays or not?

Why give the trucks on the highways and the barges on the artificially constructed inland waterways free, or partly free, rights of way, maintained and improved at public expense, while the railroads must own, maintain, and improve their own rights of way and pay taxes as well?

As far as the Federal Government is concerned, I advocate that Congress, with the least possible delay, exercise its constitutional power to regulate all interstate commercial transportation. Congress has possessed this authority ever since the Constitution was adopted in 1787, but has never exercised it at all in the case of the highways and in the case of water transport only in nominal degree. Railroads did not come into existence until more than 40 years after the Constitution was adopted, yet Congress has regulated their rates and practices in almost every possible respect.

I realize that in the case of highway transportation the principal responsibility for detail matters of regulation must fall upon the several States. It is highly encouraging to note that the legislatures of a number, responsive to the manifest will of their citizens, are now unmistakably awakening to these responsibilities. But Federal regulation of all traffic which crosses State borders will be just as necessary as it was in the case of the railroads if we are to produce a workable and effective system for the proper control of highway transportation throughout the country.

If it is in the interest of the public to have railroad rates stable and publicly known, and to forbid discriminations in railroad service—which no intelligent man now disputes what possible argument can be advanced that the same situation does not apply with respect to transportation service rendered by trucks and busses? The thing that is regulated is the service of transportation—the moving of things and persons from one place to another. In so far as the need for regulation is concerned, what difference can lie in the vehicle by which the service is performed?

Highway transport regulation requires not only control of rates and practices, but also policing in the interest of public safety. The appalling loss of life on the highways 34,400 recorded fatalities in 1931; over 150,000 people killed in five years-makes it evident that safety is one of the important questions. Growing realization of this situation, I believe, accounts among other things for the movement, which I believe is destined to sweep the Nation, for barring the highways to the use of great trucks of freight-car size and limiting the length of truck and trailer trains. Happily, the legal power of the States to protect their citizens is beyond question. In upholding a newly enacted statute in the State of Texas, the Supreme Court of the United States recently said:

It is well-established law that the highways of the State are public property; that their primary and preferred use is for private purposes, and that their use for purposes of gain is special and extraordinary, which, generally at least, the legislature may prohibit or condition as it sees fit.

In conclusion, let me say I advocate placing the transportation agencies by bus or truck under the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the railroads. That is where they properly belong.

The commission is our great governmental authority on transportation. To sacrifice the value of its accumulated experiences of 45 years, by placing some of our transportation agencies under other governmental bodies, would be a costly error. Let us not commit it. Let us safeguard and utilize that invaluable experience. Let us consolidate the responsibilities and insist upon commensurate results.

PAPER MANUFACTURED FROM CORNSTALKS—EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. GILLEN. Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the House, your attention is called to Concurrent Resolution No. 52, just introduced by me, to require the Joint Committee on Printing to investigate and report on the feasibility of using paper made from cornstalks for printing the Congressional RECORD and other Federal publications and uses.

Since our supply of wood pulp is rapidly diminishing and our forests are becoming depleted, a new supply of pulp should be developed and its use encouraged. If the Government will take the lead, there is no question but that the use of cornstalks in the manufacture of print paper can be made practical and economical and a new market created for corn products.

My attention was first attracted to the possibilities of the use of corn products in the making of print paper some two or three years ago when the editor of the Herald, of Greencastle, Ind., put out one issue of this newspaper on print paper made from cornstalks, then manufactured, as I remember it, at Danville, Ill. I afterwards made mention of this in some of my public addresses and directed attention to the possibilities involved and expressed the hope that our Government would lend a helping hand if necessary. It is with this thought in mind that I have introduced this resolution.

The Department of Agriculture, under date of June, 1929, issued a bulletin entitled "Farm Wastes for Paper and Board Making," which reviews the history and experiments made in this industry and gives much valuable information and data concerning it.

It is earnestly hoped that the Joint Committee on Printing will be given authority to make the proposed investigation, to the end that a new market may be found for corn products and which will supplement the kinds of pulp now being used.

HAVE FAITH IN AMERICA

Mr. FISH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks made on Washington's birthday.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. FISH. Mr. Speaker, under the leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address delivered by myself at the annual Washington's Birthday celebration of the Sons of the Revolution, held at Carnegie Hall, New York, on Wednesday morning, February 22, 1933:

Hall, New York, on Wednesday morning, February 22, 1933:

It is an honor and a distinct privilege to be invited here this morning to speak to the Sons of the Revolution at this large patriotic gathering in celebration of Washington's birthday. Last year the people of the United States commemorated the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington throughout the Nation. We can well afford in the midst of our present-day difficulties to take to heart and for our guidance those characteristics and principles of George Washington that made him the greatest figure in American history.

When the Declaration of Independence was written by that great Democrat, Thomas Jefferson, it was a mere scrap of paper until George Washington, through his leadership, courage, determination, and faith translated it into a political actuality: Our republican form of government—the Government of the United States—to-day the oldest continuous government in the world.

My main message to the Sons of the Revolution and, through them, to the American people over the radio, in the midst of our acute economic depression and the afflictions that go with it, is to uphold the same principles as shown by Washington under more trying conditions, and above all to maintain our faith in the traditions and ideals that have been handed down to us, and in our free institutions and republican form of government.

trying conditions, and above all to maintain our faith in the traditions and ideals that have been handed down to us, and in our free institutions and republican form of government.

There was never a time when there was more need for faith in ourselves, faith in our institutions, both economic and political, and faith in America than at the present time. Men and women of radical persuasion—communists, socialists, pink intellectuals, and radical college professors—have been going around this country in the last few years talking to groups of young people and particularly to women, telling them that everything was wrong and rotten and corrupt in our democratic institutions, and that our economic system was brutal and oppressive to the wage earner, and that everything that had been handed down to us by Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Roosevelt was wrong and should be scrapped for some temporary form of foreign dictatorship—socialism, communism, or fascism.

The answer to all the charges made by those who would undermine the faith of the American people in their own institutions and Government is that for the last 50 years our wage earners have been the best paid, the best housed, the best fed, the best clothed, and the most contented in the world, and that at any time within the last 50 years if we had let down our immigration barriers, millions upon millions of foreigners would have flocked to the United States; and if Soviet Russia, where these American visioneries without any experience in business or government.

barriers, millions upon millions of foreigners would have housed to the United States; and if Soviet Russia, where these American visionaries, without any experience in business or government, find everything beautiful and peaceful, should let down her bar-riers to-morrow, one-half of her terrified population would try to get out within 30 days.

Fifty years ago American labor worked 12 and 14 hours a day on a pitiful wage scale and standard of living. Step by step the various State legislatures and the Congress of the United States, at the demands of the American people, have gradually brought about shorter hours for labor, provided better wages and more sanitary working conditions, and have enacted child labor laws, sanitary working conditions, and have enacted child labor laws, workmen's compensation laws, and now old age pension laws. We still have in America the same capacity, the same intelligence, and the same patriotism to solve all our economic problems as we have done in the past, for the best interests of all the American people, without recourse to socialism, communism, or fascism, and we propose to continue to solve our problems as we have in the past along purely American lines. We do not propose to surrender our civil, economic, and political liberties, including freedom of speech and of the press, for any foreign form of freedom of speech and of the press, for any foreign form of dictatorship.

When we emerge from this depression—as emerge we will, through the courage, hard work, and faith of the American people—I hope and urge that prosperity will be passed around to a greater degree than it has been in the recent past; that labor shall be given larger benefits and a greater share of the fruits of their labor. The rank and file of the American people, including the unemployed, have been loyal and faithful to our institutions in the midst of this depression, because they know from past experience that under them they have been better off than any other people in the world.

experience that under them they have been better off than any other people in the world.

I urge more specifically that when we get back to normal times the American wage earners be provided with security insurance in their industrial life by requiring corporations in the various States employing labor to provide adequate health, life, and retirement insurance for all their employees. One of the greatest tragedles of our economic collapse is that men who have worked 25, 30, and 35 years for the same corporation, to build up the wealth and greatness of our Nation, have been let out on a day's notice, without any pay or retirement to maintain their family or home. or home.

In these days of mass production and industrialization we must take steps to see that such a situation as exists now shall not happen again. If security insurance had been in effect for the last 30 years, the economic situation in the country would not be one-half so appalling. I do not deny that there are still evils and abuses in our economic system, but they can be corrected and remedied just as they have been in the past for the best interests of all the American people.

We must not permit ourselves to be led astray by false remedies that seek to destroy both our political and economic system, but rather to use our influence and abilities to stabilize and improve our economic system, which is erroneously called "capitalism" by its opponents as a word of reproach and opprobrium.

talism" by its opponents as a word of reproach and opprobrium. In the United States labor as well as capital, are both "capitalists." A man who owns his house, car, and garage is just as much a capitalist as the man who owns a bank. The difference between our economic system and communism or socialism is the difference between individual liberty and compulsion.

Let us make every effort to wipe out any abuses and evils that exist in both our political and economic systems by further liberalization of our laws and make changes where necessary for the public good. Let us make the fight within our own American institutions rather than follow the revolutionary and false doctrines advocated by Karl Marx in Germany in 1848, at a time when labor had no civil, economic, or political rights. There is no room in America for those who advocate class hatred and destruction of private property. I agree with Theodore Roosevelt, when tion of private property. I agree with Theodore Roosevelt, when

The more we condemn unadulterated Marxian socialism, the stouter should be our insistence on thoroughgoing social reforms."

Civilization is confronted with the solution of economic prob-

Civilization is confronted with the solution of economic problems far more serious than at any time since we obtained our independence as a Nation. I whole-heartedly commend the declaration of the Pope in behalf of social and industrial justice and in favor of a more equitable distribution of wealth. It is our manifest duty to see that industrial justice and human rights prevail in these United States. If our country is worth dying for in time of war, it must be worth living for in time of peace.

Although I am bitterly opposed to a dictatorship based on force and arms, I would favor in this serious economic crisis, giving extensive powers to President-elect Roosevelt to reorganize the departments of the Government in an effort to reduce expenditures; and also temporary power to cut Federal appropriations in the interest of economy and the welfare of the American people and the financial stability of the Treasury of the United States.

During the World War partisanship was put aside. I believe that the present emergency is far more serious than at any time in the World War, and that Republicans and Democrats should that the present emergency is far more serious than at any time in the World War, and that Republicans and Democrats should combine in combating the depression and its manifold evils and help solve the economic problems for the benefit of the American people. We might well adopt a moratorium on partisan politics, or a kind of political armistice from now until the end of the year. What is lacking in the country to-day is confidence, and every effort must be made, above and beyond partisanship, to uphold the integrity and stability of our economic and political institutions. institutions institutions.

What is needed is a ringing statement from President-elect Roosevelt that there will be no experimentation with unsound money, and that the budget will be balanced through cutting Federal expenditures and new taxes will be enacted, if necessary, I hope and pray that the Democratic Party, under his leadership, will seek the solution of our distressing economic problems on sound American principles, free from foreign importations or contalistic experiments.

socialistic experiments.

As war clouds gather in the Far East, the American people con-As war clouds gather in the Far East, the American people continue to be in favor of minding their own business and are bitterly opposed to any policy that involves policing the world. They would be very much opposed to sanctions or laying embargoes against Japan or taking any steps that would lead to war. The fact that they do not approve of Japan's seizure of Manchuria does not warrant our drifting into war with Japan under a policy of bluff and bluster. It is quite evident that the League of Nations is anxious to have the United States hold the bag and tell Japan that she must get out of Manchuria. It would be the height of stupidity for America to permit itself to be used by the League of Nations to pull its chestnuts out of the fire and to attempt to force Japan out of Manchuria, where they have treaty rights stronger than those claimed by us under the have treaty rights stronger than those claimed by us under the Monroe Doctrine in Central America and Haitl.

How can the United States, which seized Panama, lay down the law to Japan, or how can England and France, both of which have carved out large slices of territory for themselves in Africa and Asia since the World War? We have plenty of troubles at home without seeking more in far away Manchuria. If Soviet Russia wants to mix in the Manchurian mess, where she has spe-

Russia wants to mix in the Manchurian mess, where she has special interests, that is her business and not ours.

Let's keep our hands off Manchuria, and stick to our traditional open-door doctrine for China. And above all, let us quit sticking our tongue out and making noses at Japan. It is a silly and childish performance and gets nowhere, but does lead to enmity that may eventuate in war, which neither the United States nor Japan wants.

It must be self-evident that a Nation that can not protect its own citizens in Nicaragua against a handful of bandits, must not try to police Manchuria or bluff Japan. No one in America wants war with Japan. It would be criminal folly and nothing to be gained, even if we won. For Heaven's sake, let us stick to our own knitting.

Since the day we withdrew our Marines in Nicaragua to the seaport towns, a few years ago, when six American civilians were butchered in cold blood, our influence in world affairs has dwindled away until it has reached a vanishing point. What a difference from the policy of Theodore Roosevelt of "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead"; or of Woodrow Wilson in two interventions in Mexico. I am one of those who favored withdrawing the Marines from Nicaragua, particularly if they were not to be used to punish those guilty of murdering defenseless American citizens. The craven policy of sounding retreat was a turning point in our world influence. It would be preposterous, having failed to protect American lives or to punish the guilty, now to issue ultimatums over Manchuria.

issue ultimatums over Manchuria.

I am in favor of building our Navy up to the full 5-5-3 ratio, and maintaining it there, as equal in efficiency to any navy in the world. It is our first line of defense and our best protection, both world. It is our first line of delense and our best protection, both against war with any nation or in case of war being thrust upon us. I am mindful of the words of Bourke Cockran, that a second-best navy is like a second-best hand at poker. It is not worth a damn. This does not mean that I do not favor reaching an agreement with Great Britain to cut the size of both navies practically in half, but at the same time maintaining the 5-5-3 ratio, and the in half, but at the same time maintaining the 5-5-3 ratio, and the same proportional national defense. I hope the approaching wardebt adjustment with Great Britain will result in a mutual saving of over $100,000,000 a year in our naval budget, and give us the same relative naval defense. If we do not insult Japan in the meanwhile, she would be glad to reduce proportionately, in view of her crushing burdens of taxation, and so would France and Italy

If Great Britain would enter into a mutual agreement whereby we can cut $100,000,000 from our naval budget annually, I would we can cut $100,000,000 from our naval budget annually, I would favor reducing her war debt payments to us by $100,000,000. The net result would be that we would have the same proportional naval defense and would not be canceling the war debts at the expense of our taxpayers. There is no question but that we should make a substantial concession to Great Britain, which has already paid us almost a billion and a half dollars, or 75 per cent of all the war-debts payments made to us. She stands in a different caterory, the control of the characters and its caterory. gory than any of the other debtor nations, and is entitled to fair. just, and honorable treatment at our hands. We asked her to pay 80 per cent of her war debt, whereas the other debtor nations were required to pay from 25 per cent for Italy to 50 per cent for France. The French debt settlement only amounts to the total sums of money that we loaned France after the Armistice, which were not for purposes of winning the war, but for rehabilitation.

I favor adequate national defense—a small, efficient regular Army, a large federalized National Guard, and believe that for a free and representative government the safest, soundest, cheapest, and most democratic form of national defense is to continue the Reserve Officers Training Corps, organized reserves, and tinue the Reserve Officers Training Corps, organized reserves, and the citizens' military training camps.

I am opposed to the Borah embargo on arms resolution, empowering the President to enter into an agreement with one or more countries to lay embargoes on munitions of war against another nation. I am positive it would have involved the United States in serious difficulties, if not war, if any attempt was made to apply such an embargo against Japan or any nation with a powerful navy. With this in view, I offered an amendment to the resolution when it was considered by the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, which was carried by a big vote, to limit the embargo proposal to American countries. Under the Monroe doctrine we have a moral duty to use our influence to limit conflicts in Central and South America.

countries. Under the Monroe doctrine we have a moral duty to use our influence to limit conflicts in Central and South America. I am convinced if we tried laying embargoes on arms in Europe or Asia that we would end up holding the bag and be called upon to do the fighting. I am enthusiastically in favor of a multilateral agreement among all nations similar to the Briand-Kellogg pact to renounce war, almed to outlaw the sale and shipment of any munitions of war, both in peace and in war.

If Congress should pass the Borah embargo on arms resolution unamended before adjournment on March 4, it would be immediately interpreted as being aimed against Japan and add further fuel to the mounting flames of discord and hostility. Such a resolution is not a step toward peace, but toward war. It will not prevent war in China, but may drag us into it. It amounts to nothing more than a weak attempt to have the United States determine the aggressor nation, which has never yet succeeded. Historians are still disputing what nation caused the World War.

determine the aggressor nation, which has never yet succeeded. Historians are still disputing what nation caused the World War. Just a week ago a cowardly and dastardly attack was made upon President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. The American people were greatly shocked, but at the same time rejoiced and were relieved that the protecting hand of Providence stood between the life of the President elect and the bullet of the would-be assassin. I hope that this near tragedy will call the attention of the American people to the condition of utter importance and assassin. I nope that this hear tragedy will call the attention of the American people to the condition of utter impotence and powerlessness of the various departments of the Government to investigate or even keep in contact with revolutionary activities of those who would destroy our republican form of Government of those who would destroy our republican form of Government by force and violence.

I appeal to this audience and to the radio audience to write or telegraph their Representatives and Senators to vote for the Eslick bill, H. R. 8378, which provides for an investigation of both aliens and native born who advocate the assassination of public officials and the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, and the Dies bill, H. R. 12044, which has passed the House of Representatives and is pending in the Senate, that provides for deportation of alien communists who urge the overthrow of our republican form of government by force and violence. These alien communists do not fear our police, our courts, or our jails. The only thing that they fear is to be deported back home, which the Dies bill provides. Dies bill provides.

The people of New York State love and revere the memory of George Washington and seek to refresh their memories and to commemorate his glorious deeds while serving for almost three years during the Revolutionary War at Newburgh and along the banks of the Hudson River.

banks of the Hudson River.

I believe the people of our State will be interested to know that I recently requested the Postmaster General to issue a commemorative postage stamp, with an engraving of Washington's head-quarters at Newburgh, in celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the formal proclamation of peace with the British, which was made on the 19th of April, 1783. He assured me of his cooperation, and asked me to submit views of the old headquarters, which still exists, which I have done. It was also from these headquarters that the patriot army was disbanded after the proclamation of peace. I have every reason to believe that President-elect Franklin Roosevelt, who comes from the congressional district in which Newburgh is situated, will be glad to cooperate in expediting the issuance of this commemorative stamp on or before April 19.

When the Declaration of Independence was written by Thomas

When the Declaration of Independence was written by Thomas Jefferson there were few, if any, republics in the world. Even when Lincoln made his immortal Gettysburg speech there were when Lincoln made his immortal Gettysburg speech there were still few republics in the world. Since then monarchies have been toppling over right and left and republics have come into being, based on our principles of government. Our free institutions and republican form of government are still the hope and aspiration of the struggling masses of mankind, whether they be in Italy, Soviet Russia, India, China, or Japan.

Let us rededicate ourselves on this celebration of the two hundred and first birthday of George Washington, to the proposition that a government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth. Let us reaffirm our belief in our republican form of government, because it is the soundest, fairest, wisest, most honorable, and best form of government ever devised by the mind of man. Let us cherish it and defend it against all our enemies, both from within and without, and serve notice on socialists, communists, or fascists that we still have faith in America and in our republican form of government, which is the best on earth.

ABSENCE OF MEMBER

Mr. MORTON D. HULL. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CHINDBLOM] is ill to-day and is absent for that reason.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate had agreed to the report of the Committee of Conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199), entitled "An act making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.'

The message also announced that the Senate had agreed to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14 to the bill (H. R. 13872), entitled "An act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes."

ORDER OF BUSINESS

The SPEAKER. The Chair would like to make a statement. There are a number of bills on the Consent Calendar that have not been called for some time. The Chair thinks it might accommodate a number of Members and possibly facilitate the passage of some bills if we might use 20 or 30 minutes in calling the Consent Calendar, with the understanding that when a bill is called there is to be no reservation of objection and no conversation concerning it. If a Member intends to object, he will object, so that we can complete this calendar. Otherwise it would require probably

If there is any time remaining after the call of the Consent Calendar, the Chair will recognize gentlemen in charge of House bills with Senate amendments, to ask unanimous consent to either concur in the Senate amendments or to ask for a conference.

Is there objection?

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I understand it is the desire of the Speaker to call bills on the Consent Calendar, unobjected to?

The SPEAKER. Unobjected to. Is there objection? There was no objection.

CONSERVATION OF WILD LIFE, FISH, AND GAME

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call the first bill on the Consent Calendar.

The Clerk called the first bill, S. 263, to promote the conservation of wild life, fish, and game, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

NATURALIZATION LAWS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 10274, to amend the act approved March 2, 1929, entitled "An act to supplement the naturalization laws, and for other purposes" (45 Stat. 1512).

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

ADVANCES UNDER RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION ACT TO PRODUCERS OF LIVESTOCK

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 10673, to provide that advances under the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act may be made to producers of livestock and to dairy farmers.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, that bill has already been passed. I object.

CLAIM OF OSAGE NATION AGAINST UNITED STATES

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 2352, amending the act entitled "An act authorizing the Court of Claims to hear, determine, and render judgment in the civilization fund claim of the Osage Nation of Indians against the United States," approved February 6, 1921 (41 Stat. 1097).

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

HOMESTEAD RIGHTS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4029, to restore homestead rights in certain cases.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

RELIEF OF DISTRESS DUE TO UNEMPLOYMENT, ETC.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 12097, for the relief of distress due to unemployment, to create a committee for Federal, State, and local cooperation in placing qualified unemployed persons on unoccupied farms for the purpose of growing subsistence food crops during the continuance of the unemployment emergency.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

SUBCONTRACTORS ON PUBLIC-BUILDING PROJECTS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 9921, to require contractors on public-building projects to name their subcontractors, material men, and supply men, and for other

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

SIX MONTHS' DEATH GRATUITY

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 6734, to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize payment of six months' death gratuity of dependent relatives of officers, enlisted men, or nurses whose death results from wounds or disease not resulting from their own misconduct," approved May 22, 1928.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE IN THE NAVY

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 5352, to provide for the better administration of justice in the Navy.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

COMPENSATION OF EMPLOYEES FOR INJURIES

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 92, to amend an act entitled "An act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes," approved September 7, 1916, and acts in amendment thereof.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

GRAZING AND RANGE DEVELOPMENT

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 13559, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to enter into a cooperative agreement or agreements with the State of Idaho and private owners of lands within the State of Idaho for grazing and range development, and for other purposes.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

TRANSFER OF POWDER

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 12047, to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I have some amendments to offer. I have no objection.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the act entitled "An act to authorize the Secretary of War to exchange deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition and components, and for other purposes," approved June 1, 1926 (U. S. C., title 10, pp. 1209 and 1210), is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a section to read as follows:

"Sec. 3. In the administration of sections 1 and 2 of this act, as amended, the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to transfer the powder and other explosive materials from such deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition and components thereof to the Secretary of Agriculture for distribution and sale by the Secretary of Agriculture. No expense in connection with such distribution and sale shall be borne by the War Department, and the Secretary of Agriculture shall reimburse the Secretary of War for the powder and explosive materials transferred under this section in amounts equal to the credits the Secretary of War would have received in an exchange under sections 1 and 2 of this act. Amounts so reimbursed are authorized to be made available for the expenditure by the War Department for ammunition or components thereof. The President is authorized to suspend the provisions of this section in case of national emergency.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: Page 1, line 6, after the figures "1926," insert "44 Stat. 680"; in same line, in the parenthesis, strike out "pp." and insert "secs."; and also in the same line, after the figures "1209," strike out the word "and" and insert a comma.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following substantive amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafford: On page 2, line 5, after the word "sale," insert "in such amounts and at such times as the latter may determine."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer another amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafforn: Following the last amendment, insert "to farmers at not less than cost under such regulations as he may prescribe for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS-H. R. 14199

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, the Army appropriation bill as passed by the House contains two of the most unjust and unfair provisions yet proposed in Congress. The one is the Taber amendment, which denies to Army officers, active and retired, the right granted them for many years to count certain other service than active commissioned service for pay purposes.

The pay readjustment act was passed by Congress in 1922 after most exhaustive investigation and hearings based on the following principles, as stated by the committee:

The compensation is commensurate with duties and responsibilities attached to rank, yet provides for increases due to increased experience and efficiency apart from rank. It protects the Government in the case of abnormally rapid promotion and the individual in the case of abnormally slow promotion. * * * Finally, it automatically and satisfactorily protects the interests of National Guard and reserve officers * * *.

This amendment would completely disrupt this act and bring about a most inequitable pay situation, and one entirely contrary to the principles upon which the pay act was founded.

Its effect in grades and amounts for the fiscal year 1934 is substantially as follows:

13 colonels 480 lieutenant colo- nels 1, 247 majors 1, 372 captains 906 first lieu-		543 colonels Nothing. 217 lieutenant colonels Nothing. 1, 286 majors Nothing. 2, 356 captains Nothing. 1, 863 first lieutenants_ Nothing.
tenants	66, 360
4,017 Total
1, 200 retired officers_ National Guard	897, 515	1,360 retired officers_ Nothing.
officers Reserve Corps	195, 504
officers	100,000
	3, 023, 998

No brigadier general or major general, or any other active officer commissioned prior to 1904, would lose one cent.

Less than 3 per cent of the colonels lose anything.

One thousand three hundred and seventy-two, or less than 37 per cent of the captains on the active list, bear $1,065,130, or more than 58 per cent of the loss.

One thousand two hundred and forty-seven, or less than 50 per cent of the majors bear $564,214, or more than 30 per cent of the loss.

Eighty-nine per cent, or $1,629,344, of the entire reduction for the active list is borne by about 40 per cent of the captains and majors. In other words, less than 22 per cent stand 89 per cent of the reduction.

More than 60 per cent of these officers came up from the Twenty-three per cent graduated from the Military or Naval Academy.

Fourteen per cent came from the National Guard.

The annual individual losses in many cases are staggering. Some majors lose $1,716; some captains $1,903, which combined with their other losses—pay cut and reduction in rental and subsistence allowances—will make a total loss of almost 50 per cent.

Losses in grades range as follows:

Colonels, from nothing to $967.64.

Lieutenant colonels, from nothing to $1,215.96.

Majors, from nothing to $1,716.

Captains, from nothing to $1,903.20.

More than 46 per cent of the retired officers are affected, and it is a tragic fact that most of them were retired for physical disability. Some lose one-third of their pay.

The major portion of the sacrifice will be borne by officers commissioned just before, during, and after the World War. This group constitutes in general the promotion "hump," all of whom had World War service. They face a bleak future now on promotion. To add this additional burden seems unduly unfair and unjust.

An officer must make provision for his family in case of his death. The only methods open to one on a salary are life insurance, purchase of a home on monthly installments, and savings, such as building and loan. Most of these officers are now making such provision by carefully budgeting their salaries. By drastic economy they are able to stand the normal economy reductions. But with reductions of the magnitude this amendment would impose many must lose the equity in their homes, let their life insurance lapse, and drop their savings, a result not short of disaster to them.

Throughout this crisis Army officers have accepted without complaint any cut Congress feels is necessary to apply to all Government personnel. And this despite the fact that due to rental and subsistence allowance reductions they, in common with the other uniformed services, stand a greater cut than other Government personnel; and despite the further fact that in the past 25 years their pay has been increased but 11 per cent, while increases of other Government personnel during that period range from 25 per cent to 187 per cent.

But this amendment presents an entirely different picture. Discrimination against them is accentuated. It would constitute virtual repudiation by the Government of a longstanding pact with its sworn defenders. It gives rise to a general apprehension that notice is thus served of the Government's intention to depart from the practice of more than a century and disregard prior commitments and inducements at will. Should this apprehension change to conviction, the effect in the uniformed services would be well nigh demoralizing.

The other provision is the Connery amendment, which would deny pay to retired officers whose income is in excess of $3,000.

For three-quarters of a century active-duty pay and retirement pay have been part and parcel of the same general question. Retired pay has always been considered in fixing active-duty pay resulting in a considerable reduction in the latter. This reduction represents the officer's contribution to his retired pay.

This amendment would make the officer's right to his previously earned pay dependent upon a contingency having no connection with public service. In principle it would repudiate the understandings and agreements this Government maintained with the retired officer during the entire period of his active service, the terms of which he has fully performed on his part.

His retired pay is an exceedingly modest stipend, but 89 receiving more than $5,000 per year. The remainder ranging from a few hundred dollars to $4,500, with only brigadier generals and colonels of over 30 years' active service receiving the latter amount.

Retired pay ends with the officer's death. Most of these officers have no other income save what they can earn. To make decent provision for their family they must seek employment. This amendment denies them that right, granted to every other American citizen, without being drastically penalized should their labors prove remunerative to the limited extent of just over $3,000. It places a premium on indolence and idleness and penalizes thrift and industry.

Throughout the business world retirement on liberal annuities is recognized as a sound business principle. Such annuities are never denied because through thrift the recipient has laid aside some savings for his declining years or is able to put those declining years to some remunerative use.

During their many years of active service Army officers have no opportunity of engaging in other remunerative avocations, professions, or business. They are limited to their Army duties, and in most cases to their Army incomes. Those few who from inheritance or gifts from wealthy families have outside means easily could escape the effect of this amendment by transfer to wife or other relative. But the less fortunate, whose only means of supplementing his income is by his own efforts, has no escape.

The amendment is susceptible to much more drastic constructions, under which no retired pay could be drawn if an officer's income from all sources exceeds $3,000. This well might result in pauperizing a physically disabled officer.

Both amendments passed the House without hearings. No committee had investigated them; their effects were not explained. They were acted upon hurriedly and without record vote, and certainly with little appreciation of the facts. However, the Senate committee, being fully apprised of the facts concerning them and their effects, has reported the bill with both of these amendments stricken out.

Army officers are confident that when the other Members of Congress know the facts they, too, will see the justice of their elimination and will not permit the injustice their retention would impose.

An Army officer's work is not a job but a career, a life work of devotion to duty. This engenders a keenly developed sense of justice. He has confidence that his Government will preserve that sense of justice.

That complete confidence in the definite commitments and inducements of his Government is the corner stone of his very existence. Destruction of that confidence would be a national tragedy.

SCHOOL BOARD, FRAZER, MONT.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 7532, to provide funds for cooperation with the school board at Frazer, Mont., in the completion of the high-school building there to be available to Indian children of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation. Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

SCHOOL BOARD, WOLF POINT, MONT.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 9064, to provide funds for cooperation with the school board at Wolf Point, Mont., in the extension of the public-school building to be available to Indian children of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

COLUMBIA NATIONAL FOREST

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1492, an act to add certain lands to the Columbia National Forest in the State of Washington.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

LOWER BRULE INDIAN RESERVATION

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 13007, a bill providing for the restoration of an Indian agent for the Lower Brule Indian Reservation.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

GEN. CASIMIR PULASKI

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 6490, authorizing the erection of a memorial to Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski at Savannah, Ga.

There being no objection, the Clerk called the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to erect at Savannah, Ga., a suitable tablet or marker to commemorate the heroic services rendered during the Revolutionary War by Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, who died from wounds received at the siege of Savannah on October 11, 1770.

Sec. 2. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $5,000 to carry out the provisions of this act.

With the following committee amendment:

Page 1, line 9, after the word "hereby," insert "authorized to be."

The amendment was agreed to.

With the further committee amendment:

In line 11, strike out "$5,000" and insert in lieu thereof

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment striking out "$2,500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$500."

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Jenkins to the committee amendment: Strike out "$2,500" and insert in lieu thereof "$500."

The amendment to the committee amendment was agreed to.

The committee amendment, as amended, was agreed to. The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

AMENDMENT OF THE IMMIGRATION ACT

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 13811, to amend section 23 of the immigration act of February 5, 1917 (39 Stat. 874).

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE DELAWARE RIVER AT BUSHKILL, PA.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14030, authorizing the Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Delaware River at or near Bushkill, Pa.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE COLUMBIA RIVER IN OREGON

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14109, authorizing The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Columbia River at a point approximately 5 miles upstream from the city of The Dalles, in the State of Oregon, to a point on the opposite shore in the State of Washington.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE OHIO RIVER IN GALLATIN COUNTY, ILL.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14134, to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Shawneetown, Gallatin County, Ill., and a point opposite thereto in Union County, Ky.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER NEAR BROWNVILLE, NEBR.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5235, to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Brownville, Nebr.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER NEAR RULO, NEBR.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14126, authorizing John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, both of Falls City, Nebr., and .William Shepherd, of Rulo, Nebr., his or their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Rulo, Nebr.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

MODOC NATIONAL FOREST, CALIF.

The Clerk called the next bill on the Consent Calendar, H. R. 188, to extend the provisions of the forest exchange act, approved March 20, 1922, to certain lands adjacent to the Modoc National Forest in the State of California.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

APPROPRIATION FOR RETURN TO PHILIPPINE ISLANDS OF UNEM-PLOYED FILIPINOS

The Clerk read the next resolution on the Consent Calendar, House Joint Resolution 577, a joint resolution to provide for the return to the Philippine Islands of unemployed Filipinos resident in the continental United States, to authorize appropriations to accomplish that result, and for other purposes.

Mr. JENKINS. I object.

OTOE AND MISSOURIA TRIBES OF INDIANS

The Clerk called the next bill on the Consent Calendar, S. 4578, conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to adjudicate the rights of the Otoe and Missouria Tribes of Indians to compensation on the basis of guardian and ward.

Mr. STAFFORD. I object.

INCREASE IN THE LIMIT OF COST OF ONE AIRCRAFT CARRIER

The Clerk read the next bill on the Consent Calendar, H. R. 14243, to authorize an increase in the limit of cost of one aircraft carrier.

Mr. SCHAFER. I object.

HAWAII NATIONAL PARK

The Clerk read the next bill on the Consent Calendar, S. 4374, an act to empower the superintendent of the Hawaii National Park to perform the functions now performed by the United States commissioner for the said national park, and for other purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

AGRICULTURAL ENTRY OF LANDS WITHDRAWN, CLASSIFIED, OR REPORTED AS CONTAINING MINERALS

The Clerk read the next bill on the Consent Calendar, H. R. 13745, to provide for agricultural entry of lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing any of the minerals subject to disposition under the general leasing law or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as valuable for any of the deposits subject to prospecting, leasing, or development under the general leasing act of February 25, 1920, or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, shall be subject to appropriation, location, selection, entry, or purchase if otherwise available in the form and manner and subject to the receivations provisions limitations and conditions of ject to the reservations, provisions, limitations, and conditions of the act of Congress approved July 17, 1914 (38 Stat. L. 509; U. S. C., title 30, sec. 123)

With the following committee amendments:

On page 4, line 4, strike out the words "any of the deposits" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "sodium and/or sulphur

On page 1, line 11, after the end of the line add the following: "Provided, however, That lands lying within the geologic structure of a field, or withdrawn, classified, or reported, as valuable for any of the minerals named herein and/or in any of said acts, or upon which leases or prospecting permits have been applied for or granted, for the production of any of such minerals, shall not be subject to such appropriation, location, selection, entry, or purchase unless it shall be determined by the Secretary of the Interior that such disposal will not unreasonably interfere with operations under said leasing acts."

The committee amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

TO LEASE CONCESSIONS ON RESERVOIR SITES, INDIAN IRRIGATION PROJECTS

The Clerk read the next bill on the Consent Calendar, H. R. 5070, to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to lease concessions on reservoir sites and other lands in connection with Indian irrigation projects.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized in his discretion to lease concessions on reservoir sites and other lands under his jurisdiction in connection with irrigation projects being constructed or operated and mainwith irrigation projects being constructed or operated and maintained for the benefit of Indians: Provided, That such concessions may be leased by the Secretary of the Interior under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, for such considerations and for such periods of time as he may deem proper, the term of no concession to exceed a period of 10 years: Provided further, That the funds derived from such leases shall be available for use in accordance with the existing laws and regulations in the operation and maintenance of the trigostion projects with which they are and maintenance of the irrigation projects with which they are connected.

With the following committee amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:
"That the Secretary of the Interior, after consultation with the Indians involved, be, and he is hereby, authorized in his discretion indians involved, oe, and he is hereby, authorized in his discretion to grant concessions on reservoir sites, reserves for canals or flowage areas, and other lands under his jurisdiction in connection with irrigation projects constructed or being constructed or operated and maintained for the benefit of Indians, and to lease such lands for agricultural, grazing, or other purposes: Provided, That such concessions may be granted, or lands leased by the Secretary of the Interior under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe for such considerations and for such periods of time as he of the Interior under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, for such considerations and for such periods of time as he may deem proper, the term of no concession to exceed a period of 10 years: Provided further, That the funds derived from such concessions or leases, except funds so derived from Indian tribal property for which the tribe has not been compensated, shall be available for use in accordance with existing laws in the operation and maintenance of the irrigation projects with which they are connected. The funds so derived from Indian tribal property shall be deposited to the credit of the proper tribe."

Amend the title so as to read: "To authorize the Secretary of the Interior to grant concessions on reservoir sites and other lands in connection with Indian irrigation projects and to lease the lands in such reserves for agricultural, grazing, and other purposes."

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. LaGuardia: Page 2, line 8, after the word "with," insert "and consent of."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: Page 2, line 14, after the word "and," insert the word "also"; and, after the word 'leased," insert the word "any."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

WATER SUPPLY, NAVAL STATION, GUANTANAMO BAY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14201) to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to make a long-term contract for the supply of water to the United States Naval Station at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Mr. SCHAFER. I object.

ADMISSION OF WYOMING

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3475) to amend section 5 of the act approved July 10, 1890 (28 Stat. 664), relating to the admission into the Union of the State of Wyoming.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

OSAGE INDIANS, OKLAHOMA

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (S. 3085) relating to the tribal and individual affairs of the Osage Indians of Oklahoma.

Mr. DISNEY. I object.

CONFERRING DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF SCIENCE, NAVAL ACADEMY

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 13367) to confer the degree of bachelor of science upon graduates of the Naval Academy.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

LI PO-TIEN

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14323) authorizing an appropriation to the Government of China for the account of Li Po-tien.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY CONFERENCE, LONDON

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House Joint Resolution 536, authorizing an appropriation for participation by the United States in an international monetary and economic conference to be held in London.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

NAVY RATION

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill (H. R. 14438) to effect needed changes in the Navy ration.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. There is a similar Senate bill on the Speaker's desk, and, without objection, the Clerk will report

There was no objection, and the Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That sections 1580 and 1581, Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of June 29, 1906, and the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. 570, 571, 1193; U. S. C., title 34, secs. 902, 903, 906), are hereby repealed.

The Navy ration issued to each person entitled thereto shall consist of the following daily allowance of provisions: 8 ounces of biscuit or 12 ounces of soft bread or 12 ounces of flour; 12 ounces of preserved meat or 14 ounces of salt or smoked meat or 20 ounces of fresh meat or fresh fish or poultry; 12 ounces of dried vegetables or 18 ounces of canned vegetables or 44 ounces of fresh vegetables; 4 ounces of dried fruit or 10 ounces of canned fruit or 6 ounces of preserved fruit or 16 ounces of fresh fruit. fruit or 6 ounces of preserved fruit or 16 ounces of fresh fruit; 2 ounces of cocoa or 2 ounces of coffee or one-half ounce of tea; 4 ounces of evaporated milk or 1 ounce of powdered milk or 4 ounces of evaporated milk or 1 ounce of powdered milk or one-half pint of fresh milk, together with 1.6 ounces of butter, 1.6 ounces of cereals or rice or starch foods, one-half ounce of cheese, 1.2 eggs, 1.6 ounces of lard or lard substitute, two-fifths of a gill of oils or sauces or vinegar, 5 ounces of sugar and such quantities of baking powder and soda, flavoring extracts, mustard, pepper, pickles, salt, sirup, spices, and yeast as required.

Sec. 2. Any article comprised in the Navy ration may be issued in excess of the authorized quantity: Provided, That there be an underissue of the same value in some other article or articles.

Sec. 3. The Secretary of the Navy is authorized to increase the above-stated allowances on those vessels and stations having an allowed complement of less than 150 men and subsisting on a ration allowance, when, in his opinion, such vessels and stations are operating under conditions which warrant such increases.

Sec. 4. The Secretary of the Navy is authorized to fix the limit of the cost of rations on destroyers, submarines, mine sweepers, tugs, aircraft, and other vessels and stations subsisted under the direction of commanding officers.

direction of commanding officers.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill was ordered laid on the table.

WATER LEVELS OF LAKE OF THE WOODS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate Joint Resolution 124, to provide for the determination of claims for damages sustained by the fluctuation of the water levels of Lake of the Woods in certain cases, and for other purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

COST OF FUTURE TRADING

The next business on the Consent Calendar was Senate Joint Resolution 108, to authorize and direct the Secretary of Agriculture to investigate the cost of maintaining the present system of future trading in agricultural products and to ascertain what classes of citizens bear such cost.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

CONFERENCE ON AERIAL LAW

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House Joint Resolution 568, authorizing an appropriation for the expenses of participation by the United States in the Third International Conference on Private Aerial Law to be held in Rome, Italy, in 1933.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

NEW AIR MAIL CONTRACT

The next business on the Consent Calendar was House Resolution 359, opposing the letting of new air mail contracts or renewals or extensions of existing contracts until the committee authorized by the House of Representatives submits its report.

Mr. SCHAFER. I object.

PURCHASE OF ALLOTMENTS OF DECEASED INDIANS

The next business on the Consent Calendar was the bill H. R. 14059, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior, in behalf of Indians, to purchase the allotments of deceased Indians, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he hereby is, authorized, in his discretion and under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to purchase the trust or otherwise restricted allotments of any deceased Indian, for resale by him to other Indians on time payments extending over a period of not to exceed 20 years; and the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, prescribe such reasonable rate of interest for the use of such funds as he may deem necessary or advisable. The proceeds derived from the sale of such lands shall be subject to disposition for the benefit of the heirs of the deceased allottee in accordance with existing law

SEC. 2. Appropriations are hereby authorized, in such amount as may be necessary, to carry out the purpose of this act, and all payments by purchasing Indians shall be credited to the fund from which appropriated on the books of the Treasury, and shall again be available for such purposes without reappropriation by Con-

SEC. 3. Where Indian tribal funds are appropriated for the purposes of this act, and any land is bought with such funds, such land may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior and with the consent of the tribal council or other tribal authorities, be assigned to unallotted members of the tribe without requiring repayment therefor, or sold by the Secretary of the Interior to such member pursuant to sections 1 and 2 hereof.

SEC. 4. Title to all land so acquired shall be conveyed to purchasers under this act by appropriate deed, or other evidence of title, with such restrictions on alienation, taxation, or encumbrance as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, and no such land shall hereafter be sold or encumbered without his approval: Provided, however, That no part of any appropriations made pursuant hereto shall be used for the purchase of land for any person who is of one-fourth or less than one-fourth degree of Indian blood.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafford: Page 1, line 6, after the word "Indian," insert the following: "where it is not practicable to have devolution of the allotment to the heirs or to make partition thereof among them."

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the reading of the engrossed copy of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The engrossed copy is not here. The bill will go over until to-morrow.

RELIEF OF WATER USERS ON IRRIGATION PROJECTS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14432, to extend temporary relief of water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is advised there is a similar Senate bill (S. 5525). Without objection, the Clerk will report the Senate bill.

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to extend to water users on Indian irrigation projects like relief to that provided in an act approved April 1, 1932, applying to water users under the reclamation law for the remaining half of such charges due for the calendar year 1932 and for all similar charges to become due for the calendar year 1933, the said Secretary to issue appropriate regulations for the carrying out of the provisions of this act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF SCIENCE ON GRADUATES OF NAVAL, MILITARY, AND COAST GUARD ACADEMIES

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14282, to confer the degree of bachelor of science upon graduates of the Naval, the Military, and the Coast Guard Academies.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

TEXAS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

The Clerk called House Joint Resolution 596, authorizing the President, under certain conditions, to invite the participation of other nations in the Texas centennial celebration, providing for the admission of their exhibits, and for other purposes.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS MISSISSIPPI RIVER AT OR NEAR BATON ROUGE, LA.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14378, to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Baton Rouge, La.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS OHIO RIVER NEAR SISTERSVILLE, W. VA.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14462, to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Sistersville, Tyler County, W. Va.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS POTOMAC RIVER AT OR NEAR DAHLGREN, VA.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14303, authorizing the George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge Corporation, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Potomac River at or near Dahlgren, Va.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

SALE OF SURPLUS COAL FOR DISTRIBUTION TO THE NEEDY

The Clerk called the next business, House Joint Resolution 526, authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to sell surplus coal at nominal prices for distribution to the needy.

Mr. STAFFORD and Mr. BLANTON objected.

BRIDGE ACROSS MERRIMAC RIVER AT OR NEAR PLUM ISLAND POINT, MASS.

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14537, authorizing Essex Shore Way (Inc.), its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across the Merrimac River at or near Plum Island Point, Mass.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS' STAMP TAX

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 12843, to change the name of the retail liquor dealers' stamp tax in the case of retail drug stores or pharmacies.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

INDIAN SERVICE

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14648, providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is advised that there is a similar Senate bill. Without objection, the Clerk will read the Senate bill.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in addition to the estimates of appropriations for the Bureau of Indian Affairs transmitted in the Budget for the fiscal year 1935 in the customary order and arrangement there shall be submitted for the consideration of Congress an alternate arrangement of such estimates with a view to simplification and clarity of presentation and consideration thereof.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

UNITED STATES ROANOKE COLONY COMMISSION

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14412, to enable the United States Roanoke Colony Commission to carry out and give effect to certain plans for the comprehensive observance of the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of English-speaking civilization in America.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

PROTECTION OF MIGRATORY BIRDS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 11991, to authorize the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury to turn over to State agencies, for use in the enforcement of laws for the protection of migratory birds, forfeited vessels acquired by the Department of Justice and Treasury Department and no longer needed for official use.

Mr. SCHAFER. I object.

IMPORTATION OF MILK AND CREAM

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14569, to regulate the importation of milk and cream and milk and cream products into the United States for the purpose of promoting the dairy industry of the United States and protecting the public health.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

POWER SITES

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 277, defining and regulating power sites upon the Blackfeet Reservation, in the State of Montana.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

SCHOOL BOARD, SHANNON COUNTY, S. DAK.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2340, to provide funds for cooperation with the school board of Shannon County, S. Dak., in the construction of a consolidated high-school building to be available to both white and Indian children.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

INDIAN SERVICE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3654, to authorize turning over to the Indian Service vehicles, vessels, and supplies seized and forfeited for violation of liquor laws.

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I object.

CALIFORNIA STATE PARK SYSTEM

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14534, to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of California for the use of the California State park system.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

BRIDGE ACROSS NEW YORK BAY BETWEEN BROOKLYN AND STATEN ISLAND

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14631, authorizing the Interboro Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge across New York Bay between Brooklyn and Staten Island.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

AMENDMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CODE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 100, to amend section 586c of the act entitled "An act to amend subchapter 1 of chapter 18 of the Code of Laws for the District of Columbia relating to degree-conferring institutions," approved March 2, 1929.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I object.

TAX ON FURS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14532, to amend section 604 of the revenue act of 1932 relating to the tax on furs.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

CIVIL-SERVICE POSITIONS

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14410, to amend section 3 of the act of May 28, 1928, relating to salary rates of certain civil-service positions.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

NATIONAL FORESTS IN THE STATE OF IDAHO

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14226, for the inclusion of certain lands in the national forests in the State of Idaho, and for other purposes.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

The Clerk called the next bill, H. R. 14181, to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of Arizona for the use of the University of Arizona.

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I object.

WATERWAY IMPROVEMENTS

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that a bill that was overlooked may be reverted to. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. Mansfield] had a bill on the calendar that was not called. It was unwittingly skipped.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Wisconsin asks unanimous consent to return to a bill, which the Clerk will report by title.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Joint Resolution 533, amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that a similar Senate joint resolution (S. J. Res. 235) may be considered in lieu of the House joint resolution.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the Senate joint resolution, as follows:

Senate Joint Resolution 235

Resolved, etc., That when the authorization of a project of river and harbor improvement requires that local interests shall contribute a specific sum of money toward its cost, the Secretary of War, subject to the approval of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, may reduce the sum to be contributed to an amount which shall be in the same ratio to the amount of the required contribution as the actual cost of the work to which said contribution is applicable bears to its original estimated cost as set forth in the project document: Provided, That the reduction hereby authorized shall not extend to contributions heretofore made.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Mansfield: In lines 6 and 7, on page 1, after the word "War," strike out the words "subject to the approval of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "upon the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Senate joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House joint resolution was laid on the table.

WAR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I present the following conference report for printing under the rule.

The Clerk read the title of the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending 1934, and for other purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman a question. What was done with the Senate amendment appropriating $22,000,000 for boys' camps throughout the country?

Mr. COLLINS. It was disagreed to.

AMENDMENT OF REVISED STATUTES RELATING TO THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mrs. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 13378, an act to amend sections 416 and 417 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was read, as follows:

Page 1, line 6, strike out "five hundred" and insert "one hundred."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

OLEN H. PARKER

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 9473) for the relief of Olen H. Parker, with Senate amendment, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 9, strike out all after "Provided" down to and including "act," in line 11, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

JOHN HUNTZ ROLOFF

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 9272, an act to correct the rating of John Huntz Roloff, Fleet Naval Reserve, with a Senate amendment, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 2, line 4, strike out all after "Provided," down to and including "act" in line 6, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes to state that in recognizing these gentlemen for the purpose of asking unanimous consent to concur in Senate amendments, that in each case his committee has asked him to make the request.

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. That is correct.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wants to make the statement so that gentlemen may know that when he recognizes a Member for that purpose his committee has authorized it.

JACK C. RICHARDSON

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 8120, an act for the relief of Jack C. Richardson, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, strike out lines 4 to 5, inclusive, and down to and including "$143.04" in line 6, and insert "That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $143.04 to be paid to Lieut. Jack C. Richardson, United States Navy."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

JOHN O'NEIL

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 5989, an act for the relief of John O'Neil, with a Senate amendment thereto, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 9, strike out all after "Provided," down to and including "act," in line 10, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

ELMO K. GORDON

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 2844) for the relief of Elmo K. Gordon, with a Senate amendment thereto, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 7, after "hereby," insert "authorized to be."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the gentleman from Georgia a question.

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. I yield.

Mr. BLANTON. Do any of these bills passed by the House provide that no payments of any kind shall be made hereafter?

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. It provides that, instead of using the formal expression of the House, it shall say, "no compensation, back pay, or allowance."

Mr. BLANTON. That is not an answer to my question. Under the Senate amendment, after the passage of this bill, these men can draw a pension or can draw back pay or compensation. Is there a change in any of these bills since they were amended by the Senate from what the House proposes to do as to compensation or pension?

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. There is not.

HENRY DIXON LINEBARGER

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with respect to the bill (H. R. 2599) for the relief of Henry Dixon Linebarger.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 8, strike out all after "1919" down to and including "act." in line 10, and insert "Provided, That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

GEORGE BRACKETT CARGILL, DECEASED

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with reference to the bill (H. R. 5548) for the relief of George Brackett Cargill, deceased.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 8, strike out all after "Provided," down to and including "act," in line 10, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

JOHN E. DAVIDSON

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with respect to the bill (H. R. 9326) for the relief of John E. Davidson.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 11, strike out all after "Provided," down to and including the word "act," in line 13, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

WILLIAM JOSEPH LACARTE

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with respect to the bill (H. R. 6409) for the relief of William Joseph LaCarte.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, strike out line 11, and down to and including "act," in line 12, and insert "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

WILLIAM JOSEPH VIGNEAULT

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with respect to the bill (H.R. 792) for the relief of William Joseph Vigneault.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment as follows:

Page 1, line 9, strike out all after "vided," and down to and including "act" in line 10, and insert: "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

Mr. VINSON of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I make the same request with respect to the bill (H. R. 1936) for the relief of Sydney Thayer, jr.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment as follows:

Page 1, line 12, strike out all after "further," down to and including "act" in line 14, and insert: "That no compensation, retirement pay, back pay, pension, or other benefit shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

BRIDGE ACROSS MISSOURI RIVER, KANSAS CITY, KANS.

The SPEAKER. At the request of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Milligan] the Chair lays before the House the following Senate concurrent resolution which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate Concurrent Resolution 44

Resolved, by the Senate (the House of Representatives con-curring), That the action of the Speaker of the House of Repre-sentatives and of the Vice President of the United States in signing the enrolled bill (H. R. 14500), to extend the time for completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Kansas City, Kans., be and the same is hereby rescinded.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. McSWAIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff, with Senate amendments, disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McSwain]? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. FITZPATRICK, MAY, and COCHRAN of Pennsylvania.

REPEALING OBSOLETE SECTIONS OF REVISED STATUTES

Mr. HARLAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 9877) to repeal obsolete sections of the Revised Statutes omitted from the United States Code, with a Senate amendment, and agree to the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 7, strike out "R. S. 5599."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

HERMAN H. BRADFORD

Mr. ALLGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4039) for the relief of Herman I. Bradford, with Senate amendments, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Allgood]?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

Page 1, line 8, strike out "$451.55" and insert "$337."
Page 1, line 10, strike out all after "1919" down to and including "1928," in line 1, page 2.

The Senate amendments were agreed to.

ANNIE M. EOPOLUCCI

Mr. ALLGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 5150) for the relief of Annie M. Eopolucci, with a Senate amendment, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and in lieu thereof insert the following: "That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to Annie M. Eopolucci, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $20 per month, in a total amount of not to exceed $5,000, such payments to be in full settlement of all claims against the Government for the death of her son, John E. Eopolucci, who, while serving as a member of the armed guard of the United States Navy on the steamship Aztec, lost his life when said steamship was torpedoed and sunk on April I, 1917, this while in the active service of the United States."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

ANNUAL ASSESSMENT WORK ON MINING CLAIMS IN ALASKA

Mr. SMITH of West Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the resolution (H. J. Res. 533) providing for the suspension of annual assessment work on mining claims held by location in the United States and Alaska, with Senate amendments, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The Clerk read the title of the House joint resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from West Virginia?

Mr. STAFFORD. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, on yesterday evening when the gentleman preferred this request, I asked the privilege to have the matter go over so as to examine the Senate amendment. At that time I said in private conversation to the gentleman that I was opposed to the Senate amendment. I have examined it since and I wish to state that I am thoroughly in accord with the Senate amendment, and take issue with the position of some Members who are opposed to it. I wished to make that statement for the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from West Virginia? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. Evans of Montana, Parsons, and Arentz.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. WARREN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Record to include a short open letter to Congress by Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer, one of the great publications of the country.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Warren]?

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. MAPES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

THE MICHIGAN DELEGATION IN THE HOUSE

Mr. MAPES. Mr. Speaker, when the Speaker's gavel falls at 12 o'clock noon next Saturday to mark the end of this Congress, Michigan will lose temporarily the services in this body of a large part, and the best part, of its delegation. In the order of seniority of service, those who will leave us at that time are:

EARL C. MICHENER, of the second district, a lawyer and parliamentarian of the first rank, with 14 years of continuous service to his credit, who has, during that time, won for himself a place of recognized leadership in this body, surpassed by none and equaled by few. He has served brilliantly as a member of the Committees on the Judiciary and Rules. He has been untiring in his work for his district, and has brought to his service, at all times, industry, intelligence, and ability of the highest character. [Applause.]

JOHN C. KETCHAM, of the fourth district, with 12 years of continuous service to his credit. Mr. Ketcham perhaps has the widest personal State acquaintance and reputation of any one in the delegation. For many years before coming to Congress he was a leader in agricultural activities of the State and since coming to Congress, while taking an active part in legislation generally, he has been recognized as an authority on questions relating to agriculture. Earnest, industrious, and able, he is a forceful and ready debater, an influential and valuable Member of this body, whose presence and counsel here will be greatly missed. [Applause.]

ROBERT H. CLANCY, of the first district, with eight years of service to his credit. Mr. CLANCY represents in part metropolitan Detroit. He has always been alert and active in looking after the interests of his constituents. He has exceptional aptitude and ability as an organizer. His service has been of the utmost benefit of his district and State. [Applause.]

Frank P. Bohn, of the eleventh district, with six years of continuous service to his credit. Before entering public life Representative Bohn was a distinguished doctor of medicine with an unusually successful and lucrative general practice. State senator for four years, a banker, a man of exceptionally strong character and good judgment, a counselor and friend, he has impressed himself upon the membership of this body the same as he has upon the community in which he lives. He enjoys the respect, confidence, and esteem of every one who knows him here and at home to an extent which it is the privilege of few to enjoy. [Applause.]

SEYMOUR H. PERSON, of the sixth district, a successful lawyer, and State senator for four years, with two years of service to his credit here. Mr. PERSON is a careful and earnest student of public affairs, a man of high purpose, character, and ability. His service in Congress has been during one of the most trying times in our Nation's history, perhaps the most trying, as far as the experience of the individual Member is concerned, for a generation at least. We have all come to admire him and to respect his judgment. His retirement will be a distinct loss. [Applause.]

It is not necessary to attempt here to evaluate the services in detail of these colleagues. Each, in his own individually, characteristic, and personal way, has made his impress and has performed his duties as a Member of this body faithfully, conscientiously, and with ability. I said at the beginning that Congress and the country would lose their services temporarily after the 4th of March. I said temporarily, because, while some of them have no idea now of reentering public life, I suspect that the constituents of every one of them will insist upon his returning to this body at the next election.

In behalf of the entire Michigan delegation in the next Congress, I extend to them sincere best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity. [Applause.]

REMOVING EXISTING DISCRIMINATIONS INCIDENTAL TO CERTAIN LAND GRANTS

The SPEAKER. The Chair is advised that there was an error made in a bill which was signed by the President on the 14th day of this month, and takes the privilege of laying before the House Senate Joint Resolution 259, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate Joint Resolution 259

Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933

Resolved, etc., That the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933, be, and the same is hereby, amended by striking out "July 2, 1866" where it occurs therein and inserting in lieu thereof "July 27, 1866."

The Senate joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for three minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

JUSTICE M. C. GEORGE

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, it is my sad duty to announce to the House the death of a distinguished Republican of my home city, who was a Member of this House half a century ago, namely, M. C. George. Judge George was the first of a long line of Republican Congressmen who represented our State in this House, succeeding, when he came here in 1880, Gov. John Whitacre.

When Judge George was 2 years old his family came to Oregon by covered wagon. They settled on a homestead near the present site of Lebanon. He was born on a farm in Noble County, Ohio, May 13, 1849. Judge George attended Santiam Academy and Willamette University, came to Portland to study law, and was admitted to the bar in 1875. He was elected to the State senate in 1876, and in 1880 to the position of Oregon's one Representative in the Forty-seventh Congress.

At the time of his death Judge George was, so far as known, the only surviving Member of the National House of Representatives elected in that year.

Judge George also served in the Forty-eighth Congress, and after that he declined to run for renomination. He visited Congress in the spring of 1930, observing the fiftieth anniversary of his service there.

After Judge George left Congress, he practiced law for several years in Portland and then went on the bench, where he served until he retired from active life and lived highly honored in retirement the rest of his years. He lived to the ripe old age of 84.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS—IS AMERICAN INDUSTRY TO BE THE VICTIM OF DEPRECIATED FOREIGN CURRENCIES? IS AMERICAN LABOR TO BE FORCED FROM THE ENVIABLE LIVING STANDARD IT HAS ALWAYS ENJOYED? ONLY TIME CAN TELL

Mr. CROWTHER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks on depreciated currency.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. CROWTHER. Mr. Speaker, depreciated foreign currencies are serving as stepladders to assist the foreign producers to scale the United States tariff wall. Several bills were introduced in the first session of the Seventy-second Congress: H. R. 8557 by Mr. Crowther, H. R. 8688 by Mr. Hawley, and in the second session H. R. 13999 by Mr. Hill. The purpose of this proposed legislation was to reestablish the tariff rates on imports that had been reduced by depreciated foreign currencies. At the public hearings held by the Ways and Means Committee, some 50 witnesses testified, and 20 briefs were filed.

The opposition to the passage of this remedial legislation came almost entirely from the so-called converting paper mills who were enjoying a material advantage by purchasing their wood pulp from European countries who had gone off the gold standard and materially depreciated their currencies.

The industries hardest hit by depreciated currencies include pottery, steel, rugs and carpets, toys, metal novelties, salmon, tuna and sardine canning, electric-storage batteries, pig iron, coke, anthracite coal, paper and fiber, electric equipment and lamps, and textiles of cotton, wool, silk, and rayon.

Nearly every State in the Union is seriously affected by the resulting competition and from Maine to California American producers raised their voices in protest against the demoralization of local markets and industries due to the depreciation of foreign exchange. Two serious problems were presented: First, the unfair competition the American producers were suffering from, and, second, the loss in revenue to the Treasury by decreased customs collections. The most conservative estimate submitted evidenced a loss of $20,000,000 in revenue annually under present foreign-currency values.

An article valued at £1 with a 50 per cent ad valorem duty entered the port of New York in 1930 at $4.86 plus $2.43, or a landed cost of $7.29. With the pound at $3.40 plus the 50 per cent duty of $1.70, the article's landed cost is $5.10, a differential of $2.19.

What can the American producer do to retain his share of the business? Cheapen the product and reduce wages. He must act on one or possibly both of these alternatives unless he throws up the sponge and quits. If he follows the line of least resistance and quits, that means another contribution to the unemployment tragedy.

Professor Kemmerer, of Princeton University, made the following statement in a personal note to Director of Customs Eble:

I believe that the artificial stimulation of export trade by means of currency inflation is a policy that in the long run hurts the country adopting it, for it exploits home labor and results in the country giving an increased amount of its own home products for a decreased amount of foreign products. However, I think that for a short time it strengthens the country's power to compete with other countries for foreign markets. In this way it acts like a sort of export bounty, and in its effects is like dumping. It really is not a fair kind of competition. It is punching below the belt. In the case of imports from countries adopting this policy, I think it would be perfectly logical for countries remaining on the gold standard to apply the principles of antidumping countries.

In the French "Congressional Record" of November 14, 1931, the following statement appears:

The fall in value of the monetary units of certain countries has made it necessary to make provisions for the application of compensation surtaxes for exchange variations in order to protect our market against the influx of exports from those countries.

In another part of this report they say further-

The complaints from numerous national industries have recently taken on an increasingly urgent character. After an intensive study of the situation the government has deemed that it could no longer postpone the application of protective steps intended to avoid the crowding of our markets and great difficulties for our industries.

Both these statements have in substance been the basic argument of the proponents of this legislation. The Democratic majority however seem perfectly satisfied with existing conditions. They acknowledge that all ad valorem rates in the present tariff law are reduced in exact ratio to the depreciation of currency in the countries of export. Their contention that specific duties are raised, simply begs the question. To be sure, they represent a higher rate when translated into ad valorem equivalent, but in the great reduction in landed cost which, after all, is the competitive factor, the chief element is the lowered invoice price which even plus the specific duty totals a landed cost which it is impossible for American producers to meet in fair competition. While the specific duties as I have illustrated are increased as to their ad valorem percentage, the Treasury does not receive any additional revenue. They collect in specific duties what we intended they should collect under the Hawley-Smoot law. In collecting ad valorem duties the Treasury loses revenue on every transaction involving imports from countries with depreciated currencies.

It must be a matter of regret to the people of this country that a proposition of acknowledged merit should have been made a political football. The resulting slashes in our tariff rates seemed entirely satisfactory to the Democratic side of the House. That these rates were being automatically reduced as a result of foreign nations deserting the gold standard, seemed to them to be an ideal development. It saved them the time and trouble of preparing and introducing a tariff bill in conformity with their pre-election declarations and promises. They are looking forward to the international conference which under the "new deal" is to cut down our tariff rates and naturally they feel that nothing should be done to embarass their delegates who are to sit in at the conference.

Only to a limited degree was real protection accorded to American industry and labor in the Hawley-Smoot law. The principal factor in the adjudication of appeals to the Tariff Commission is consideration of the different in production costs here and abroad.

A few years ago in addition to this difference the Republican Party's platform added this sentence: "Together with a reasonable profit to American industries." In my estimation nothing less than that is real protection. The present law is a competitive tariff, but as a result of foreign depreciated currencies the element of even fair competition has vanished.

If these free-trade internationalists succeed in breaking down the policy of protective tariff, there will be a day of reckoning with American labor. Is American industry to be the victim of such procedure? Is American labor to be forced from the enviable living standard it has always enjoyed? Only time can tell.

SENATE BILL REFERRED

A bill of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker's table and, under the rule, referred as follows: S. 246. An act for the relief of Galen E. Lichty; to the Committee on Claims.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled a bill and joint resolution of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H. R. 7716. An act to amend the radio act of 1927, approved February 23, 1927, as amended (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 47, ch. 4), and for other purposes; and

H. J. Res. 138. Joint resolution for the relief of the State

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bills of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 1752. An act to authorize an appropriation for the purchase of land in South Dakota for use as camp sites or rifle ranges for the National Guard of said State;

S. 2654. An act to allow credit in connection with homestead entries to widows of persons who served in certain Indian wars:

S. 4008. An act to amend article 5 of the act of Congress approved June 7, 1897, relating to the approval of regulations for preventing collisions upon certain harbors, rivers, and inland waters of the United States; and

S. 5417. An act to extend the operation of the act entitled "An act for the temporary relief of water users on irrigation projects constructed and operated under the reclamation law," approved April 1, 1932.

BILLS PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee did, on this day, present to the President for his approval bills of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 2601. An act for the relief of William Mathew Squires;

H. R. 5367. An act for the relief of Jerry V. Crane;

H. R. 6270. An act for the relief of Alexander F. Sawhill;

H. R. 7432. An act to authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to delegate certain of its powers;

H. R. 10749. An act to authorize acceptance of proposed donation of property in Maxwell, Nebr., for Federal building purposes;

H. R. 11980. An act authorizing the President to make a posthumous award of a distinguished-flying cross to Glenn H. Curtiss, deceased, and to present the same to Lua Curtiss, mother of the said Glenn H. Curtiss, deceased;

H.R. 12769. An act to provide an additional authorization for the acquisition of land in the vicinity of Camp Bullis, Tex.:

H.R. 12977. An act to amend section 808 of Title VIII of the revenue act of 1926, as amended by section 443 of the revenue act of 1928;

H. R. 13026. An act to amend chapter 231 of the act of May 22, 1896 (29 Stat. 133, sec. 546, title 34, U. S. C.);

H. R. 13750. An act to regulate the bringing of actions for damages against the District of Columbia, and for other purposes;

H. R. 13960. An act to amend the description of land described in section 1 of the act approved February 14, 1931, entitled "An act to authorize the President of the United States to establish the Canyon De Chelly National Monument within the Navajo Indian Reservation, Ariz.";

H. R. 14204. An act to amend section 653 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia;

H. R. 14321. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, to acquire a new site in Huntsville, Ala., and to construct a building thereon for the accommodation of the courts, post office, and other Government offices:

H. R. 14363. An act making appropriations for the Departments of State and Justice and for the judiciary and for the Departments of Commerce and Labor for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes;

H. R. 14461. An act to provide for placing the jurisdiction, custody, and control of the Washington city post office in the Secretary of the Treasury; and

H. R. 14489. An act relating to the construction of a Federal building at Mangum, Okla.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. WARREN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow, March 1, 1933, at 11 o'clock a. m.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. McLEOD: Committee on the District of Columbia. H. R. 14670. A bill to provide for the furnishing of food to children attending schools in the District of Columbia; with amendment (Rept. No. 2172). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. GILBERT: Committee on the Library. S. 5625. An act authorizing an appropriation to provide for the completion of the George Rogers Clark Memorial at Vincennes, Ind.; without amendment (Rept. No. 2173). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. KERR: Committee on War Claims. S. 4326. An act for the relief of R. S. Howard Co. (Inc.); without amendment (Rept. No. 2174). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. HARE: Committee on War Claims. Senate Joint Resolution 194. Joint resolution conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to render findings of facts in the claim of the Mack Copper Co.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2175). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. PATMAN: Committee on the District of Columbia. H. R. 14725. A bill authorizing the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to grant a permit for the construction of an oil and gasoline pipe line; without amendment (Rept. No. 2176). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. BLACK: Committee on Claims. H. R. 8057. A bill for the relief of Ruth Relyea; with amendment (Rept. No. 2178). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. BLACK: Committee on Claims. H. R. 14331. A bill for the relief of the J. M. Dooley Fireproof Warehouse Corporation, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2179). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. MILIGAN: A bill (H. R. 14787) to authorize the construction of certain bridges and to extend the times for commencing and/or completing the construction of other bridges over the navigable waters of the United States; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. GLOVER: A bill (H. R. 14788) to amend the act entitled "An act limiting the privileges of the Government free bathhouse on the public reservation at Hot Springs, Ark., to persons who are without and unable to obtain the means to pay for baths," approved March 2, 1911; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. McLEOD: A bill (H. R. 14789) to amend the act of July 1, 1898, entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," as amended; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LEA: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 613) to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. THATCHER: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 614) proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the method of amending it; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

Memorial of the Senate of the State of Oklahoma, memorializing Congress to take early action removing the Federal gasoline tax, leaving taxation of gasoline sales exclusively as a State function; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of New Mexico, memorializing Congress to enact legislation allowing home owners to borrow directly from the Government upon a plan similar to the Federal land loan act; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of North Dakota, memorializing Congress to remove the pressure under which the farmers are struggling and thus preserve peace and order in a great country; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin, memorializing Congress for higher tariff on dairy products; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin, memorializing Congress to enact legislation for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President in a primary election; to the Committee on Election of President. Vice President, and Representatives in Congress.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

10731. By Mr. BEAM: Resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois on the question of farm mortgages and foreclosures; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

10732. Also, resolution adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor, relative to appropriation for the Customs Service; to the Committee on Appropriations.

10733. By Mr. BIDDLE: Petition of members of Phillips-Jones Post, No. 1349, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Lewistown, Pa., opposing any changes in veterans' legislation as recommended by the Economy League and the United States Chamber of Commerce, and favoring immediate and full payment of the adjusted-service certificates and enactment of the widows and orphans' pension bill; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10734. By Mr. CLARKE of New York: Petition of Frances E. Willcox and 17 residents of Smyrna, N. Y., opposing any legislative act that would legalize alcoholic liquors stronger than one-half of 1 per cent; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10735. By Mr. DEROUEN: Petition of the police jury of the parish of Acadia, State of Louisiana, praying that immediate relief be provided by the United States Congress by legislation permitting the reshaping of Federal land-bank loans so that a very serious condition will not result by an immense amount of land being taken over by the Federal land bank; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

10736. By Mr. CONDON: Petition of Thomas W. Allard, Robert B. Hough, Anna L. Kempf, Henry A. White, William E. Gould, Geragas Keshdaian, Albert Atwood, Louis Servant, James Mahan, and 687 other citizens of Rhode Island, protesting against any repeal or modification of existing legislation beneficial to Spanish war veterans, their widows or dependents; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10737. By Mr. GIBSON: Petition of Vergennes Post, No. 14, American Legion, Department of Vermont, indorsing and supporting the recommendations of the War Policies Commission; to the Committee on Military Affairs.

10738. Also, petition of West River Valley Post, No. 16, American Legion, Department of Vermont, opposing any of the proposed reductions in benefits now paid and against any revision in the privileges now accorded by law to veterans of all wars; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10739. By Mr. GRIFFIN: Petition of Gilbert Lovell, of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, opposing an appropriation of $2,000,000 to the War Department for the care of unemployed young men in citizens military training camps; to the Committee on Appropriations.

10740. By Mr. HOUSTON of Delaware: Resolution of the Newark Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Newark, Del., referring to the motion-picture industry; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10741. By Mr. KVALE: Petition of Monday Study Club, Slayton, Minn., urging enactment of bill 1079 and Senate Resolution 170; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10742. By Mr. LAMBERTSON: Petition signed by Dr. O. O. Barker and 15 other citizens of Effingham, Kans., protesting against the carrying of firearms; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10743. By Mr. MEAD: Petition of Buffalo Flour Club, Buffalo, N. Y., protesting against the proposed domestic allotment plan; to the Committee on Agriculture.

10744. By Mr. SMTTH of West Virginia: Resolution of the Charleston City Council, Charleston, W. Va., requesting legislation in Congress which would authorize the Postmaster General to issue a special series of stamps commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization of Thaddeus Kosciusko; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

10745. Also, resolution of the Smith-Thompson Post, American Legion, Dunbar, W. Va., opposing legislation for the reduction of appropriations for national defense; to the Committee on Appropriations.

10746. By Mr. SWICK: Petition of Charles D. Boggs, 428 Line Avenue, Ellwood City, Lawrence County, and 25 other residents of the fourth ward of Ellwood City, Pa., urging the enactment of the stop-alien amendment providing for the exclusion of 6,280,000 aliens in the apportionment of congressional districts; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10747. By Mr. TREADWAY: Petition of citizens of West-field, Mass., favoring the elimination of aliens in making future apportionments for congressional districts; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10748. By Mr. WITHROW: Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin, memorializing Congress to change the laws governing officers' retirement pay so that no such pay will be allowed to anyone who receives a salary or other income of $4,800 or more, and that the money thus saved be used to pay the soldiers' bonus in cash to veterans who are unemployed and in dire need; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

10749. By the SPEAKER: Petition of W. Bissell Thomas, accusing Jesse C. Adkins and F. Dickinson Letts, associate justices of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, of malfeasance in office; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1933

(Legislative day of Tuesday, February 28, 1933)

The Senate met at 10.30 o'clock a. m., upon the expiration of the recess.

THE JOURNAL

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for the approval of the Journal of February 28.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. FESS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Coolidge Copeland Costigan Dale Ashurst Johnson Robinson, Ind. Russell Schall Austin Bailey Bankhead Kendrick Schuyler Keyes Sheppard Shortridge Smith Dickinson Barbour King La Follette Lewis Dill Bingham Fletcher Logan McGill Smoot Steiwer Black Blaine Frazier Stephens Swanson Thomas, Idaho Thomas, Okla. Townsend Borah Bratton George Glass McKellar McNary Metcalf Brookhart Broussard Bulkley Glenn Moses Neely Goldsborough Gore Grammer Hale Harrison Bulow Norris Trammell Tydings Vandenberg Nye Oddie Byrnes Capper Caraway Hastings Hatfield Patterson Pittman Walcott Walsh, Mass. Carey Hayden Hebert Reed Robinson, Ark. Clark Connally Watson

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I wish to announce that the senior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. Shipstead] is unavoidably absent. I ask that this announcement may stand for the day.

Mr. NORRIS. I desire to announce that my colleague the junior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Howell] is necessarily detained because of illness. I will let this announcement stand for the day.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Eighty-four Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Haltigan, one of its clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 44) rescinding the action of the Speaker of the House and the Vice President of the United States in signing the enrolled bill H. R. 14500.

The message also announced that the House had passed, without amendment, bills and a joint resolution of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 5525. An act to extend temporary relief to water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes:

S. 5622. An act providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935;

S. 5675. An act to effect needed changes in the Navy ration; and

S. J. Res. 259. Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4039) for the relief of Herman H. Bradford.

The message also announced that the House had severally agreed to the amendment of the Senate to each of the following bills of the House:

H.R. 792. An act for the relief of William Joseph Vignesult:

H.R. 1936. An act for the relief of Sydney Thayer, jr.; H.R. 2599. An act for the relief of Henry Dixon Linebarger:

H.R. 2844. An act for the relief of Elmo K. Gordon;

H. R. 5150. An act for the relief of Annie M. Eopolucci;

H. R. 5548. An act for the relief of George Brackett Cargill, deceased;

H. R. 5989. An act for the relief of John O'Neil;

H.R. 6409. An act for the relief of William Joseph La-Carte;

H.R. 8120. An act for the relief of Jack C. Richardson; H.R. 9272. An act to correct the rating of John Hunt

H.R. 9272. An act to correct the rating of John Huntz Roloff, Fleet Naval Reserve;

H. R. 9326. An act for the relief of John E. Davidson;

H. R. 9473. An act for the relief of Olen H. Parker;

H.R.9877. An act to repeal obsolete sections of the Revised Statutes omitted from the United States Code; and

H.R. 13378. An act to amend sections 416 and 417 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bill and joint resolution, each with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

S.5122. An act to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture: and

S. J. Res. 235. Joint resolution amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendment of the Senate to the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 533) providing for the suspension of annual assessment work on mining claims held by location in the United States and Alaska; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Evans of Montana, Mr. Parson, and Mr. Arentz were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message further announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff, asked for a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. May, and Mr. Cochran of Pennsylvania were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 5070. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to grant concessions on reservoir sites and other lands in connection with Indian irrigation projects and to lease the lands in such reserves for agricultural, grazing, or other purposes;

H. R. 6490. An act authorizing the erection of a memorial to Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski at Savannah, Ga.;

H. R. 12047. An act to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes: and

H. R. 13745. An act to provide for agricultural entry of lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing any of the minerals subject to disposition under the general leasing law or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolution, and they were signed by the Vice President:

S. 1752. An act to authorize an appropriation for the purchase of land in South Dakota for use as camp sites or rifle ranges for the National Guard of said State;

S. 2654. An act to allow credit in connection with homestead entries to widows of persons who served in certain Indian wars:

S. 4008. An act to amend article 5 of the act of Congress approved June 7, 1897, relating to the approval of regulations for preventing collisions upon certain harbors, rivers, and inland waters of the United States;

S. 5417. An act to extend the operation of the act entitled "An act for the temporary relief of water users on irrigation projects constructed and operated under the reclamation law," approved April 1, 1932;

H. R. 7716. An act to amend the radio act of 1927, approved February 23, 1927, as amended (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 47, ch. 4), and for other purposes; and

H. J. Res. 138. Joint resolution for the relief of the State of Idaho.

SUPPLEMENTAL ESTIMATE FOR LEGISLATIVE ESTABLISHMENT (S. DOC. NO. 211)

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the United States, transmitting, without revision, a supplemental estimate of appropriations pertaining to the legislative establishment, fiscal year 1933, amounting to $15,000, for expenses of inquiries and investigations, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

COMPACT BETWEEN THE STATES OF WYOMING AND IDAHO (S. DOC. NO. 212)

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a report dated February 24, 1933, from Robert Follansbee, Federal representative, pursuant to the act (46 Stat. 1039) (January 19, 1931) granting the consent of Congress to compacts or agreement between the States of Wyoming and Idaho with respect to the boundary line between said States, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys and ordered to be printed.

ECONOMIC ANALYSIS OF FOREIGN TRADE OF THE UNITED STATES IN RELATION TO THE TARIFF

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the chairman of the United States Tariff Commission transmitting in further response to Senate Resolution 325, practically all of the remainder of the manuscript in answer to the requirements of paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, and 9, and some of the material in response to paragraphs 5 and 7 of the resolution, which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Finance.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Governor of North Carolina, transmitting certified copy of a joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of North Carolina, which, with the accompanying resolution, was referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, Raleigh, February 24, 1933.

The Hon. Charles Curtis,

Vice President, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. Curtis: I have the honor to transmit a certified copy of a joint resolution requesting Congress to refrain from a further invasion of sources of taxation heretofore enjoyed by the States, and that the Congress balance its Budget without further increase in the tax levies.

Respectfully yours,

J. C. B. EHRINGHAUS, Governor of North Carolina.

Resolution 18

A joint resolution requesting Congress to refrain from a further invasion of sources of taxation heretofore enjoyed by the States, and that the Congress balance its Budget without further increase in the tax levies

Whereas during the past decade the expenses of all units of local, State, and National Governments have increased to such huge and unprecedented sums as to become burdensome to our huge and unprecedented sums as to become burdensome to our people, since no people can contribute more than a reasonable proportion of its income in the aggregate to the support of government, no matter by whom levied nor differing as to whether such taxes be direct or indirect, privilege or excise; and Whereas all local units of our State government are largely decreasing their tax levies under pressure of the distressing conditions and by way of partial answer to the wailing cries of our people that taxes be reduced and that government become less burdensome: and burdensome; and

Whereas our State government has been compelled to relieve the landowners and farmers of a proportion of the tax levies for the support of public education, as provided for under the constitution, thereby necessitating the tapping of any new sources of revenue that could be found and which appear to have been exhausted, making it necessary to make drastic reductions in the expenses of our State government; and

Whereas in balancing our budget it is becoming necessary to eliminate all bureaus not absolutely vital to the functions of our government; and

government; and

Whereas in a further effort to balance our budget drastic and far-reaching reductions are being made in the vital functions of our government to such an extent as to seriously threaten the ability of our State to carry on its program of education, public welfare, construction and maintenance of highways, and other necessary functions reserved to it under the constitution; and

Whereas the Congress during the past year, in an effort to balance its Budget, under its privilege to levy excise taxes found it necessary to levy such taxes as 1 cent per gallon on gasoline, 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oils, 3 per cent consumers' tax on privately produced electricity; and privately produced electricity; and

Whereas the levying of such taxes is reflected in the decreased consumption of such commodities, in that our people are becoming tax conscious, and our sources of revenue are being depleted; which excise-tax levies, if retained, added to, and increased, will ultimately result in the complete absorption of the revenue from sources now enjoyed by the States, resulting in the inability of the States to function: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That the Congress of the United States be, and it is hereby, requested to refrain, in so far as possible, from a further invasion of the sources of revenue now enjoyed by the States.

SEC 2. That it remove, as soon as it may find it possible to do so, the present excise tax on gasoline, lubricating oils, consumers' tax on electricity, and other similar taxes inserted in its revenue bill of 1932.

SEC. 3. That the Congress balance its Budget in so far as possible by further economies in government and without additional excise-tax levies.

SEC. 4. That a certified copy of this resolution be forwarded by Governor Ehringhaus to the Congress of the United States and to each of the Members thereof from North Carolina.

SEC. 5. That this resolution be in full force and effect from and after its ratification.

In the general assembly, read three times and ratified this 20th day of February, 1933.

A. H. Graham,
President of the Senate.
R. L. Harris,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I. Stacey W. Wade, secretary of state of the State of North Carolina, do hearby certify the foregoing and attached three sheets to be a true copy from the records of this office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal.

Done in office at Raleigh this 23d day of February, A. D. 1933.

STACEY W. WADE. Secretary of State.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate the following concurrent resolution of the Legislature of the State of South Dakota, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry:

Senate Concurrent Resolution 1 (introduced by Mr. Gilliland)

A concurrent resolution relating to Senate bill 1197, known as the Frazier bill, and the enactment of the domestic allotment plan

Whereas it is an indisputable fact that this Nation can not, as

Whereas it is an indisputable fact that this Nation can not, as a whole, secure or enjoy prosperity until the large number of its citizens who are dependent upon agriculture for a living are given assistance in securing a fair return for their labor and investment, and until this can be accomplished, also are given assistance in carrying the heavy burden of existing agricultural debts; and Whereas it is the opinion and belief of the Legislature of the State of South Dakota that these objects can best be accomplished by the prompt passing of Senate bill No. 1197, known as the Frazier bill, to liquidate and refinance agricultural indebtedness, and by the enactment of the domestic allotment plan for reducing surplus production and securing a fair price for agricultural products: Be it therefore

Resolved by the senate (the house of representative concurring)

Resolved by the senate (the house of representative concurring) That we respectfully urge the Congress of the United States to speedily enact the Frazier bill and the domestic allotment plan in speedily enact the Frazier bill and the domestic allotment plan in order to avoid a collapse of our basic industry and all industries dependent upon it; be it further

Resolved, That the Congress of the United States is respectfully petitioned to expedite such legislation; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to supply copies of this resolution to each of the Senators and Representatives in Congress and to the governor of each of the United States with the request that it be transmitted to the legislature of each State.

President of the Senate.
JOE ATKINS, Secretary of the Senate. GEORGE ABILD, Speaker of the House. H. Bodery, Chief Clerk of the House.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate the following concurrent memorial of the Legislature of the State of Utah, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys:

> STATE OF UTAH, SECRETARY OF STATE.

I, M. H. Welling, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the following is a full, true, and correct copy of Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 2, memorializing Congress to pass House bill 11816 for the regulation and control of the public range of the United States and for the creation of grazing districts by the Secretary of the Interior under the direct supervision of the users of the public range, as passed by the twentieth legislature and approved by the governor February 23, 1933, as appears on file in my office.

on file in my office.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah, at Salt Lake City, this 25th day of February, 1933.

M. H. WELLING Secretary of State.

Memorializing Congress to pass House bill 11816 for the regulation and control of the public range of the United States and for the creation of grazing districts by the Secretary of the Interior under the direct supervision of the users of the public range Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Utah (the governor concurring therein), That-

Whereas there is urgent necessity for the enactment of proper legislation by the Congress of the United States for some regulatory control over the public range lands in the Western States, for the purpose of protecting the overuse of said grazing lands, and to stabilize the livestock interests thereon; and

Whereas the Colton grazing bill, introduced in the House of Representatives by the Hon. Don B. Colton as H. R. 11816, has been generally approved by the Western States, in which is situated the great bodies of grazing lands in the United States; and

Whereas the said Colton bill has been closely studied and analyzed by the livestick interests of Utah, and several local reserves have been organized by livestock interests of Utah, for the purpose of operating under the said Colton bill, and such interests are urging the immediate passage of the said Colton bill, and it is generally believed to be to the best interest of the people of Utah that the said Colton bill be enacted into the law: Be it therefore

Resolved, That we respectfully urge the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States to pass, and the President to approve, H. R. 11816 (by Don B. Colton) for the control and regulation of the public range during the present session of the Congress, to the end that its provisions may become effective at the earliest possible date; be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of State forward certified copies of this memorial to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President of the Senate of the United States, and to the President of the United States, and to Utah's congressional delegation.

The foregoing Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 2 was publicly read by title and immediately thereafter signed by the president of the senate, in the presence of the house over which he presides, and the fact of such signing duly entered upon the journal this 16th day of February, 1933.

J. FRANCIS FOWLES, President of the Senate.

Attest:

LYMAN S. RICHARDS, Secretary of the Senate.

The foregoing Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 2 was publicly read by title and immediately thereafter signed by the speaker of the house, in the presence of the house over which he presides, and the fact of such signing duly entered upon the journal this 16th day of February, 1933.

I. A. SMOOT, Speaker of the House.

Attest:

ERNEST R. McKay, Chief Clerk of the House.

Received from the senate this 17th day of February, 1933. Approved February 23, 1933.

HENRY H. BLOOD, Governor.

Received from the governor, and filed in the office of the secretary of state this 23d day of February, 1933.

M. H. WELLING, Secretary of State.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a telegram from Carson City, Nev., signed by W. G. Greathouse, embodying a joint resolution passed by the Legislature of the State of Nevada, which was ordered to lie on the table and to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CARSON CITY, Nev., February 28, 1933.

Hon. CHARLES CURTIS.

Washington, D. C .: The following resolution approved by Nevada Legislature to-day: "Senate joint resolution memorializing Congress to not close the United States mint at Carson City, Nev. " To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the

"To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

"The Legislature of the State of Nevada hereby respectfully represents that—

"Whereas the closing of the United States mint at Carson City, Nev., would be a calamity both to the mining industry and every business interest of this State, it being an imperative necessity to mine operators and prospectors with small quantities of bullion which they must sell to keep their activities going, and any arrangement by which such bullion would have to be shipped to assay offices at a distance would not be feasible; and

"Whereas the business of said mint in the past year has doubled and for no reason is its closing justified: Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Senate and the Assembly of the State of Nevada, That we earnestly entreat Congress to reconsider its action and to continue the appropriation for the United States mint at Carson City, Nev."

Carson City, Nev."

W. G. GREATHOUSE.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate resolutions adopted by the Legislature of the State of North Dakota, favoring the passage of legislation known as the Frazier farm relief bill, and the passage of legislation to create a farm debt commission to refinance farm loans so as to correspond with losses during the past 12 years, etc., which were referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

(See resolutions printed in full when presented to-day by Mr. FRAZIER.)

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate resolutions adopted by the Central Trades and Labor Council of New Orleans, La., opposing a continuance of the investigation by a Senate committee of the Louisiana senatorial election of 1932 and the spending of additional money therefor, which were referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

He also laid before the Senate a letter in the nature of a memorial from Dr. Victor B. Stassi, of New Orleans, La., remonstrating against a continuance of the investigation by a Senate committee of the Louisiana senatorial election of 1932 and the spending of additional money therefor, which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

He also laid before the Senate resolutions of the Common Council of the City of Blue Island, Ill.; the Common Council of the City of Revere, Mass.; the Common Council of the City of Schenectady, N. Y.; and the Common Council of the City of Milwaukee, Wis., favoring the passage of legislation authorizing the issuance of a special series of postage stamps of the denomination of 3 cents, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen and appointment as brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army on October 13, 1783, of Thaddeus Kosciusko, which were referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

He also laid before the Senate a telegram in the nature of a petition from the National Association of Merchant Tailors of America, New York City, N. Y., praying for the prompt passage of the so-called Dies bill, being the bill (H. R. 12044) to provide for the exclusion and expulsion of alien communists, which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also laid before the Senate a memorial of sundry citizens of Des Moines, Iowa (assembled in mass meeting under the auspices of the International Labor Defense), remonstrating against the passage of the so-called Dies bill, being the bill (H. R. 12044) to provide for the exclusion and expulsion of alien communists, which was ordered to lie on the

Mr. CAPPER presented resolutions adopted by the Woman's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Washington, D. C., the Methodist Episcopal Church of Palco, and local chapters of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Almena, Clayton, Eureka, and Kingsdown, all in the State of Kansas, favoring the passage of legislation to regulate and supervise the motionpicture industry, which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. RUSSELL presented a resolution adopted by Cobb County Post, No. 2681, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Marietta, Ga., favoring a moderate and reasonable inflation of the currency and the payment of adjusted-compensation certificates of World War veterans as a means of quickly and generally distributing such inflated currency, thereby alleviating the present economic distress of the people, which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

He also presented a resolution adopted by Cobb County Post, No. 2681, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Marietta, Ga., indorsing the "Buy American" movement, which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. COPELAND presented a resolution adopted by the American Legion Auxiliary, Yonkers Post, No. 7, of Yonkers, N. Y., opposing proposed reductions in veterans' appropriations and protesting against the methods and proposals of the National Economy League and the United States Chamber of Commerce with respect thereto, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the memorial of G. E. Manning and sundry other citizens of Oakfield, N. Y., remonstrating against the adoption of the so-called Couzens amendment to the Army appropriation bill, providing for the establishment of camps for the youth of the Nation and making appropriation therefor, which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the memorial of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Sodus Point and sundry other citizens, all in the State of New York, remonstrating against the passage of legislation legalizing the manufacture and sale of beer and liquors with an alcoholic content stronger than one-half of 1 per cent, which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FRAZIER. I present resolutions adopted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of North Dakota setting forth their opinions upon the farm situation and asking certain relief, which I ask may be printed in the RECORD and appropriately referred.

The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and, under the rule, ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Senate Resolution A-6 (introduced by Senator Martin) Be it resolved by the Legislative Assembly of the State of North Dakota:

Whereas ever since the order of the Federal Reserve Board, in May, 1920, calling for a contraction of the currency the farmers have witnessed the loss of their land through foreclosure until many counties in this State have had 80 per cent of all farms foreclosed; and

Whereas during the past two years this process of paying every-thing and receiving nothing for their crops has brought about a condition where to finish paying debts is mathematically impossible and the loss of their property and homes is now merely a matter of days; and

Whereas every attempt on the part of the Government to supply Federal loans has been intrusted to the directors and attaches of the Twin City banks, with jurisdiction over this territory; and Whereas these directors have manipulated the extension of these Government loans for the purpose of collecting their own loans, and through the process no new money has been available to the farmers; and

Whereas through mortgages, insurance policies, and other charges the farmer has been so securely bound that he is now unable to extricate himself; and

Whereas all of these conditions thus accumulated and occurring together have caused the farmers to lose faith in the Government and the officials who have administered it during the past 12 years, and are now in almost open rebellion; and
Whereas the farmers have no further hope than to save their homes and families from utter ruin, and have openly banded together to protect these homes by the use of force, acting collectively; and

Whereas any attempt to prevent them from congregating and using any means, peaceful or otherwise, to protect their families will inevitably culminate in disorders and insurrections: Therefore be it

Resolved, That we petition Congress to be advised of the situation that it may act speedily and wisely to remove the pressure under which the farmers are struggling and thus preserve peace and order in a great country. To this end we ask Congress to pass the following legislation:

1. The Frazier bill and a farm debt commission that will refinance the farms and scale down farm debts to correspond with farm losses during the past 12 years.

2. That the distribution of Government finance agencies be taken away from the manipulation of bankers and placed in the hands of directors whose only ambition shall be to actually aid agriculture.

3. That the Patman bill be passed, paying the soldiers by the ssuance of Treasury notes.

4. That the Wheeler bill be passed remonetizing silver, which will remove from the hoarded money of the country the unwarranted and stupendous premium which it now commands.

5. The apportionment plan in which we insist upon the cost of production; be it further

Bestleyd That Congress take full notice of this receipt and

Resolved, That Congress take full notice of this warning and at least partially understand that we have reached a crisis in the handling of our farm problem, and it now becomes the duty the handling of our farm problem, and it now becomes the duty of public officials to rise above party and command enough patriotism to rescue this country from the grip of the international bankers, who, because of an insatiate desire to accumulate more wealth, are fast driving the greatest Government on earth upon the rocks of destruction; be it further

*Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to our Members in Congress and to the Speaker of the House and to the

Mr. SMOOT presented the following concurrent memorial of the Legislature of the State of Utah, which was ordered to lie on the table:

STATE OF UTAH, OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE. I, M. H. Welling, secretary of state of the State of Utah, do hereby certify that the following is a full, true, and correct copy of Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 7, a memorial to the Congress of the United States protesting against the Bratton amendment to the Treasury and Post Office bill eliminating the Salt Lake veterans' hospital and regional offices at Salt Lake City as appears on file in my office.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Utah at Salt Lake City, this 21st day of February, 1933.

M. H. WELLING Secretary of State.

A memorial to the Congress of the United States protesting against the Bratton amendment to the Treasury and Post Office bill eliminating the Salt Lake veterans' hospital and regional offices at Salt Lake City

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Utah (the governor concurring therein):

Whereas there is an urgent need for retention of the veterans' hospital and regional offices at Salt Lake City maintained to serve a large section of the intermountain region not otherwise served; and

Whereas it is proposed by an amendment to the Treasury and Post Office bill, in conference between the Houses of Congress of the United States, such amendment being known as the Bratton amendment, to abolish such regional offices and to close such hospital: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Utah in regular session assembled, That the Congress of the United States be urgently requested to refrain from any act closing such regional offices and veterans' hospital at Salt Lake City; be it further Kesolved, That the secretary of state forward copies of this memorial to Utah's delegation in Congress.

J. Francis Fowles.

J. FRANCIS FOWLES, President of the Senate. The foregoing Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 7 was publicly read by title and immediately thereafter signed by the speaker of the house, in the presence of the house over which he presides, sides, and the fact of such signing duly entered upon the journal this 18th day of February, 1933.

LYMAN S. RICHARDS.

Secretary of the Senate.

I. A. Smoor,

Speaker of the House.

The foregoing Senate Concurrent Memorial No. 7 was publicly read by title and immediately thereafter signed by the president of the senate, in the presence of the house over which he preand the fact of such signing duly entered upon the journal this 20th day of February, 1933.

Attest:

ERNEST R. McKay,

Chief Clerk of House.

Received from the senate this 20th day of February, 1933. Approved February 20, 1933.

HENRY H. BLOOD, Governor.

Received from the governor and filed in the office of the secretary of state this 21st day of February, 1933. M. H. WELLING

Secretary of State.

Mr. BRATTON presented the following joint memorials of the Legislature of the State of New Mexico, which were ordered to lie on the table:

House Joint Memorial 2 (introduced by Jack M. Potter)

A memorial memorializing the Congress of the United States to include in the plan for an adequate flood control of the Mississippi River area the construction of flood-control reservoirs on the Dry Cimarron River within the State of New Mexico

Whereas the Congress of the United States, on May 15, 1928, passed a flood control act for the purpose of controlling the devastating floods in the lower Mississippi River; and

Whereas stream control, not only in the lower Mississippi Val-ley, but throughout the entire water bed of the entire Mississippi River, is necessarily a part of an adequate plan, to solve this situation: and

Whereas control by reservoirs of tributary streams for the purpose of withholding and controlling flood and waste waters, as well as for irrigation and other beneficial uses, is a necessary part well as for irrigation and other beneficial uses, is a necessary part of an adequate plan for the control of the Mississippi Valley; and Whereas the Dry Cimarron River in Colfax and Union Counties, N. Mex., a tributary of the Mississippi, annually contributes large and disastrous amounts of flood waters to the Mississippi under

Mhereas the hydrographic survey of the Dry Cimarron River in New Mexico, made by the State of New Mexico, shows three dam sites for flood-control reservoirs, which are sufficient and adequate sites for flood-control reservoirs, which are sufficient and adequate for control of all waters arising in New Mexico:

Now, therefore, the Eleventh Legislature of the State of New Mexico does hereby request the Congress of the United States, and all bureaus and departments of the Federal Government, to include in the plans for Mississippi Valley flood control the construction of the said three flood-control reservoirs on the Dry Cimarron River in the State of New Mexico; and be it Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be forwarded to the Hon. Sam Bratton, and Hon. Branson Cutting, Senators of New Mexico, and to the Hon. Dennis Chavez, Representative in Congress from the State of New Mexico.

ALVAN N. WHITE.

ALVAN N. WHITE, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Attest:

GEO. W. ARMIJO, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives. TAYLOR E. JULIEN, President pro tempore of the Senate.

Attest:

F. E. McCulloch,

Chief Clerk of the Senate.

Approved by me this 23d day of February, 1933.

ARTHUR SELIGMAN,

Governor of New Mexico.

House Joint Memorial 4 (introduced by Willis Ford)

A memorial to Congress to allow home owners to borrow directly from the Government upon a plan similar to the Federal land

Whereas under present conditions all industries and all prop

Whereas under present conditions all industries and all property owners are being encouraged, except the home owner, for whom little or no relief is being provided; and

Whereas because of such conditions, people, rather than attempt to have and own their homes, are turning away from the individual homes and living in apartments, hotels, tenements, and other rented property; and

Whereas it is essential to the public welfare and vital to our American civilization that the building and owning of individual homes be encouraged among our people: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of New Mexico does hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to pass such legislation as will allow the individual to borrow directly from the Government of the United States, through such agencies as may be established, for the purpose of building, buying, or improving the home, under a plan similar to that allowed farmers under the provisions of the Federal farm loan act; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent to our Senators and Representatives in Congress and to the presiding officers of both Houses of the United States Congress

ALVAN N. WHITE, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Attest:

GEO. W. ARMIJO, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives. TAYLOR E. JULIEN, President pro tempore of the Senate.

Attest:

F. E. McCulloch, Chief Clerk of the Senate. Approved by me this 21st day of February, 1933.

ARTHUR SELIGMAN. Governor of New Mexico.

BOULDER CANYON LAKE AND PARK

Mr. ODDIE. Mr. President, in opposition to S. 5637, introduced for the establishment, development, and administration of the Boulder Canyon National Reservation and the development and administration of the Boulder Canyon Project Federal Reservation and for other purposes, I made a brief statement before a subcommittee of the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys of the Senate on February 24, 1933, which I submit for the RECORD, as follows:

The very title of this act indicates its extreme complexity. It assembles a number of problems, the solutions of which should be made entirely separate and the subjects of separate bills. It will be six or seven years before the lake is created and the officials of the State of Nevada and its representatives in Congress should be given full opportunity to investigate the question of forming a national park surrounding the lake. There is no apparent need for hurry in this matter and the people of Nevada should be fully informed of every detail concerning it before legislation is finally expected.

On February 15, 1933, the Federal District Court, District of Nevada, dismissed the complaints in the pending tax suits by the Six Companies (Inc.) so that that company is now liable for the Six Companies (Inc.) so that that company is now liable for the payment of taxes on the property at the Hoover Dam. Having failed to win in the courts, the Secretary of the Interior has conceived and is now pressing this legislation for action to create a national park, and to establish an exclusive jurisdiction reservation, all for the purpose of circumventing and evading the sovereignty and the laws of the State of Nevada. Having lost in the pending tax cases, the Secretary of the Interior now seeks in behalf of the Six Companies (Inc.) to accomplish by way of legislation what he failed to accomplish through the courts. There is no way that this act can be amended to the satisfaction of the State of Nevada. The whole basis upon which the legislation is built is too complex and involved, and I therefore strongly oppose reporting this bill in this Congress.

On the question of the attempt made by the Secretary of the Interior to create a reservation of exclusive Federal jurisdiction and his activities in behalf of the Six Companies (Inc.) in prosecuting their suits against the officials of the State of Nevada, I made an extended statement in the Senate on February 15, 1933, pages 4126 to 4138 of the Congressional Record of that date. This was before the news was received of the dismissing of the complaints in the pending tax suits by the Federal district court.

The Secretary of the Interior wrote me on February 25, 1933, concerning this statement, and I submit his letter for the RECORD, together with my reply:

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR, Washington, February 25, 1933.

Hon. TASKER L. ODDIE,

United States Senate.

My Dear Senator Oddie: My attention has been called to a statement made by you yesterday before one of the committees of the Senate regarding the proposed reservation in connection with the Hoover Dam area.

Evidently you have not understood just what we have been trying to do at Boulder City and in the surrounding area. The Federal Government must accept full responsibility for this construction town. We have endeavored to make it clean, decent, and a wholesome place for American families of small means. We have wholesome place for American families of small means. We have maintained the reservation with care, not only to safeguard the welfare of the worker on the job but it has also been necessary for us, because of the Nevada laws and customs, to fight off the bootlegger, the prostitute, and the gambler. Judging by what is going on in other parts of Nevada, without our special efforts not only would the bootlegger and the prostitute and the gambler be admitted to our construction city, but the costs of the project would be increased and the authorities of the Federal Government would have to accept responsibility for conditions that to say the would have to accept responsibility for conditions that, to say the least, would be undesirable and unwholesome.

All other questions are of secondary consideration in a matter of this kind, having to do with human welfare and with the dignity of the Federal Government.

Very sincerely yours,

RAY LYMAN WILBUR.

FEBRUARY 28, 1933.

Hon. RAY LYMAN WILBUR,

Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D. C.
MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY: Your letter of February 25, 1933, expressing such great solicitude for the workers at Hoover Dam is indeed difficult to reconcile in the light of the many things you have done to assist the Six Companies (Inc.), the private contractor, the builder of the dam, in its attempt to evade the tax and mine safety laws of Nevada and thus unjustly fatten itself at the expense of the people of the State and the lives and welfare of the workers at Boulder City.

In attempting to create the so-called Boulder Canyon project Federal reservation of exclusive Federal jurisdiction on inadequate constitutional and statutory premises you provided the Six Companics (Inc.), the contractor, with the pretext which that company cited in its suits to evade the payment of taxes to Clark County and the State of Nevada and the mine safety laws. Fur-County and the State of Nevada and the mine safety laws. Furthermore, at the expense of the taxpayer you supplied Federal legal assistance to the private company in directing the counsel of the Reclamation Service to file an amicus curiæ brief in its behalf. Through your request the Attorney General also filed an amicus curiæ brief in support of the Six Companies (Inc.), additional and most effective Federal counsel at no cost to the Company.

Your position and that of the Six Companies (Inc.), which you sustained in this matter, was recently completely overruled by the Federal district court in dismissing the tax suits. In the bill which you are now proposing it is apparent that you are attempting to accomplish by legislation that which the Federal court has recently refused to grant.

The Government in these cases would not have received any of the savings in tax payments and by the use of dangerous but cheaper methods of construction. The Six Companies (Inc.), however, would have benefited at the expense of the State and at nowever, would have benefited at the expense of the State and at the greater risk of loss of life and injury to the workers at the dam. When you say in defense of your action in attempting to create an exclusive Federal-jurisdiction reservation, "not only to safeguard the welfare of the worker on the job" and your official acts have been so detrimental to the best interests of the worker, it leaves only one conclusion, that your letter of professed solicitude for the welfare of the worker is only a smoke screen to hide tude for the welfare of the worker is only a smoke screen to hide your efforts in behalf of the Six Companies (Inc.).

All of these disclosures emphasize the great necessity for an immediate and thorough investigation of your department, the Six Companies (Inc.), and the relationship existing between this Government enterprise and those having dealings with it.

It ill becomes a Federal official in your position to make a misleading and unjust attack on a sovereign State. I resent your misrepresentations regarding conditions in Nevada, as well as your prejudiced defense of the conditions existing at Hoover Dam which have resulted in much unnecessary loss of life, human suffering, and misery for which your department and the Six Companies (Inc.) are responsible.

Very sincerely yours,

Tasker L. Oddie.

TASKER L. ODDIE.

MISSOURI RIVER BRIDGE, KANSAS

Mr. CAPPER. Mr. President, I enter a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill (H. R. 14500) to extend the time for completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Kansas City, Kans., was passed. I move that the House of Representatives be requested to return the papers to the Senate for the purpose of having the bill corrected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and that order will be made.

REPORT OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS COMMISSION (S. DOC. NO. 210)

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, as chairman of the Public Buildings Commission, I submit the annual report of that commission, as is done every year, and I ask that it may be printed, with the illustrations, as a public document and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Mr. COPELAND, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill (S. 4928) to provide fees to be charged by the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1324) thereon.

Mr. CAPPER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 6402) to further regulate banking, banks, trust companies, and building and loan associations in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1326) thereon.

Mr. SCHUYLER, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, to which was referred the bill (S. 3789) for the relief of Benjamin Wright, reported it with amendments and submitted a report (No. 1327) thereon.

Mr. SMITH, from the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, to which was referred the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 434) to authorize and direct the Secretary of Agriculture to provide additional facilities for the classification of cotton under the United States cotton standards act, reported it without amendment.

Mr. ASHURST, from the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, to which was referred the bill (S. 5664) to amend an act approved March 4, 1929 (45 Stat. 1548), entitled "An act to supplement the last three paragraphs of section 5 of the act of March 4, 1915 (38 Stat. 1161), as amended by the act of March 21, 1918 (40 Stat. 458), reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1329) thereon.

Mr. TOWNSEND, from the Committee on Claims, to which were referred the following bills, reported them each without amendment and submitted reports thereon:

H.R. 2935. An act for the relief of J. R. Reimer (Rept. No. 1330); and

H. R. 7278. An act for the relief of Joseph Vigliotti (Rept. No. 1331).

Mr. STEIWER, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 5214) for the relief of Withycombe Post, No. 11, American Legion, Corvallis, Oreg., reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1332) thereon.

Mr. COOLIDGE, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 657) for the relief of Peter Bess, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1333) thereon.

Mr. BROOKHART, from the Committee on Claims, to which were referred the following bills, reported them each without amendment and submitted reports thereon:

H. R. 3694. An act for the relief of Ada B. (Gould) Gollan (Rept. No. 1334); and

H. R. 10170. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son (Inc.) (Rept. No. 1335).

Mr. CAPPER, from the Committee on Claims, to which were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment and submitted reports thereon:

H. R. 5444. An act to provide an additional appropriation as the result of a reinvestigation, pursuant to the act of February 2, 1929 (45 Stat. 2047, pt. 2), for the payment of claims of persons who suffered property damage, death, or personal injury due to the explosions at the naval ammunition depot, Lake Denmark, N. J., July 10, 1926 (Rept. No. 1336):

H. R. 6774. An act to authorize amendment of the act of February 25, 1927, for the payment of damages caused by reason of the overflow of the Rio Grande on August 17, 1921 (Rept. No. 1337);

H. R. 6381. An act for the relief of Escha Whittington Casey (Rept. No. 1338); and H.R. 3848. An act for the relief of Ed Symes and wife, Elizabeth Symes, and certain other citizens of the State of Texas (Rept. No. 1339).

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Claims, to which were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment and submitted reports thereon:

H. R. 973. An act for the relief of John L. Dunn (Rept. No. 1340):

H. R. 1203. An act for the relief of Edward J. O'Neil (Rept. No. 1342);

H. R. 1206. An act for the relief of George Beier (Rept. No. 1343):

H.R. 2217. An act for the relief of the Bethel Cemetery Co., the Presbyterian Church, Harold S. Stubbs, George Morgan, Edward Stapp, William J. Howard, David J. Seacord, Mary L. McIntire, Emma E. Foard, Herbert C. Hannigan, Sisters of St. Baisl, Edward Bedwell, and Rachel A. Loveless (Rept. No. 1344); and (Rept. No. 1345).

Mr. WHITE also, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 7040) for the relief of Sadie Bermi, reported it with an amendment and submitted a report (No. 1341) thereon.

Mr. LOGAN, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (S. 4773) for the relief of Capt. Guy M. Kinman, reported it with an amendment and submitted a report (No. 1346) thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to which were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment and submitted reports thereon:

H. R. 2294. An act for the relief of C. A. Cates (Rept.

H. R. 3626. An act for the relief of John I. Lowe (Rept. No. 1348);

H. R. 5947. An act for the relief of John Moore (Rept.

H. R. 6275. An act for the relief of Howard McKee (Rept.

H. R. 7128. An act for the relief of Della O'Brien (Rept. No. 1351);

H. R. 8215. An act for the relief of the National Bank of Commerce, El Dorado, Ark. (Rept. No. 1352); and

H. R. 8217. An act for the relief of the First National Bank of El Dorado, Ark. (Rept. No. 1353).

Mr. NYE, from the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 13745) to provide for agricultural entry of lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing any of the minerals subject to disposition under the general leasing law or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1355) thereon.

WATER RESOURCES OF THE SACRAMENTO, SAN JOAQUIN. AND KERN RIVERS, CALIF.

Mr. THOMAS of Idaho, from the Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation, submitted a report, pursuant to the resolution (S. Res. 177) authorizing an investigation of the subject of the utilization of the water resources of the Sacramento, San Joaquin, and Kern Rivers, in California (submitted by Mr. Johnson and agreed to June 27, 1932), which was ordered to be printed as Report No. 1325.

INVESTIGATION OF RENTAL CONDITIONS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. CAPPER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, submitted a report pursuant to the resolution (S. Res. 248) to investigate rental conditions in the District of Columbia, which was ordered to be printed as Report

BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION INTRODUCED

Bills and a joint resolution were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. FRAZIER:

A bill (S. 5697) making it a crime to represent oneself to be an Indian, and providing punishment therefor; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. WHEELER:

A bill (S. 5698) granting certain public lands to the State of Montana for the use and benefit of the Northern Montana College, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys.

By Mr. NORRIS:

A bill (S. 5699) to amend the act of July 1, 1898, entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," as amended; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ODDIE:

A bill (S. 5700) to extend the mining laws of the United States to the Death Valley National Monument in California, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys.

By Mr. BINGHAM:

A joint resolution (S. J. Res. 260) to validate an act of the fourth special session of the twelfth legislature of

H. R. 7038. An act for the relief of Frances Southard | Puerto Rico entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the agricultural credit corporations of the island of Puerto Rico, and for other purposes," approved October 21, 1932; to the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles and referred as indicated below:

H.R. 5070. An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to grant concessions on reservoir sites and other lands in connection with Indian irrigation projects and to lease the lands in such reserves for agricultural, grazing, or other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

H. R. 6490. An act authorizing the erection of a memorial to Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski at Savannah, Ga.; to the Committee on the Library.

H. R. 13745. An act to provide for agricultural entry of lands withdrawn, classified, or reported as containing any of the minerals subject to disposition under the general leasing law or acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto; to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Ayres, Mr. Oliver of Alabama, Mr. Douglas of Arizona, Mr. French, and Mr. Taber were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14359) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto.

The message further announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 14059) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior, in behalf of Indians, to purchase the allotments of deceased Indians, and for other purposes, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

The message also announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolution, and they were signed by the Vice President:

S. 5233. An act to provide for the protection of national military parks, national parks, battlefield sites, national monuments, and miscellaneous memorials under the control of the War Department;

S. 5469. An act to provide for the creation of the Morristown National Historical Park in the State of New Jersey, and for other purposes;

S. 5525. An act to extend temporary relief to water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes:

S. 5622. An act providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935;

S. 5675. An act to effect needed changes in the Navy

H.R. 792. An act for the relief of William Joseph Vigneault:

H. R. 1936. An act for the relief of Sydney Thayer, jr.;

H.R. 2599. An act for the relief of Henry Dixon Linebarger:

H. R. 2844. An act for the relief of Elmo K. Gordon;

H. R. 4039. An act for the relief of Herman H. Bradford;

H.R. 5150. An act for the relief of Annie M. Eopolucci;

H. R. 5548. An act for the relief of George Brackett Cargill, deceased:

H. R. 5989. An act for the relief of John O'Neil;

H.R. 8120. An act for the relief of Jack C. Richardson;

Roloff, Fleet Naval Reserve;

H. R. 9326. An act for the relief of John E. Davidson;

H. R. 9473. An act for the relief of Olen H. Parker;

H. R. 9877. An act to repeal obsolete sections of the Revised Statutes omitted from the United States Code:

H. R. 13378. An act to amend sections 416 and 417 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia;

H. R. 13872. An act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes; and

S. J. Res. 259. Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933.

HOUSE BILL PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The bill (H. R. 14059) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior, in behalf of Indians, to purchase the allotments of deceased Indians, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title and ordered to be placed on the calendar.

NAVAL APPROPRIATIONS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. HALE. I move that the Senate insist on its amendments, agree to the conference asked by the House, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Vice President appointed Mr. Shortridge, Mr. Hale, Mr. Keyes, Mr. Glass, and Mr. Broussard conferees on the part of the Senate.

LOCAL COOPERATION IN PROSECUTION OF WATERWAY IMPROVE-

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 235) amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements, which was, on page 1, lines 6 and 7, to strike out "subject to the approval of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors" and insert "upon the recommendation of the Chief of Engineers."

Mr. BULKLEY. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT-APPROVAL OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Latta, one of his secretaries, who announced that the President had approved and signed the following acts and joint resolution:

On February 28, 1933:

S. 2148. An act for the relief of Clarence R. Killion; and

S. 5339. An act authorizing the Secretary of War to convey certain properties to the county of Arlington, State of Virginia, in order to connect Lee Boulevard with the Arlington Memorial Bridge, and for other purposes.

On March 1, 1933:

S. 88. An act to authorize the Postmaster General to investigate the conditions of the lease of the post-office garage in Boston, Mass., and to readjust the terms thereof;

S. 466. An act for the relief of the Allegheny Forging Co.; S. 4327. An act for the relief of Lizzie Pittman; and

S. J. Res. 48. Joint resolution to authorize the acceptance on behalf of the United States of the bequest of the late William F. Edgar, of Los Angeles County, State of California, for the benefit of the museum and library connected with the office of the Surgeon General of the United States Army.

PROPOSED OCEAN MAIL CONTRACT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution (S. Res. 375) submitted by Mr. Black February 27, request-

H.R. 9272. An act to correct the rating of John Huntz | ing the Postmaster General to postpone the awarding of a contract for ocean mail service from Philadelphia-Baltimore to Liverpool-Manchester, which is as follows:

> Whereas specifications have been issued by the Postmaster General calling for bids on March 1 for an ocean mail contract from Philadelphia-Baltimore to Liverpool-Manchester, route No. 58-B, which involves the establishment of a new steamship service and the payment by the Government of about $1,000,000 per annum for 10 years, or $10,000,000 in mail money, and also involves the selling of vessels by the United States Lines Co. for a reported price of $500,000 each, which were recently purchased from the Shipping Board for $131,250 each; and Shipping Board for $131,250 each; and Whereas this proposed new steamship service competes with other American services already established at a great cost to the Government, which services also receive mail pay; and Whereas it is understood this new line is to be operated by the International Mercantile Marine Co. (Inc.), which already receives large subsidies from the Government, while at the same time operating foreign-flag lines competing with American lines; and Whereas it appears that there has not been and will not be sufficient time to fully investigate the economic necessity of such sufficient time to fully investigate the economic necessity of such line or the propriety of granting a mail contract on March 1 next, and as the matter of ocean mail contracts is to be generally investigated by a committee of the Senate; and

Whereas the Merchant Fleet Corporation reported on February

6, 1933, that this steamship service is not justified: Now, therefore,

be it

Resolved, That the Postmaster General be requested to post-pone the awarding of the said mail contract until the matter can be more fully investigated and the soundness of the proposition more completely determined from the standpoint of the Government's interest and all the facts and circumstances involved.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, during the debate upon this resolution yesterday many charges of fraud and corruption were made. It was charged that the contract in question would be invalid if made, and many strong adjectives were used. I suppose it is always so that at the end of a feverish session of this sort strong language is used which is not always justified by the facts of the case.

I do not intend to take much time, but I want briefly to try to show how utterly unwarranted were the charges of fraud or corruption that were made here yesterday. Of course, if they were justified, the contract would be no good whatsoever. The Attorney General now in office, or he who is about to come into office, would immediately move to set the contract aside. The Court of Claims would not enforce There would be no effect whatsoever in concluding the contract. But I want to show how utterly unwarranted were the charges.

We heard it said yesterday that the concern which is seeking the postal subvention is owned by J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Chase National Bank, who, by reason of their occupations, must be tainted with the faults which have recently been shown up regarding other but different bankers, as if it proved every bricklayer to be a felon to show that some one bricklayer had been convicted of a felony. Then it was argued that the fact that haste was being shown in the conclusion of the contract was conclusive evidence that it was fraudulent and corrupt.

It was stated that this $10,000,000 which was to be taken out of the United States Government in the course of 10 years was being stolen from the Government, and finally it was implied, if not stated, that any of us who would vote against the resolution would partake of the taint and the corruption which underlie the whole transaction.

Mr. President, I should like to consider a few of the facts. About 30 years ago the firm of J. P. Morgan, headed by the elder Morgan, did superintend the organization of the International Mercantile Marine, and, as I recall my financial history, that was the one conspicuous, outstanding failure among the great accomplishments of J. P. Morgan the elder. It never did succeed. It was always limping along. It had a burst of prosperity, as did every other shipowner, during the closing years of the war, but all the rest of the time it was just barely managing to stay alive.

About three years ago there was formed in New York a firm called the Roosevelt Steamship Co. (Inc.), and the organizers of that were a group of young men who had nothing whatever to do with J. P. Morgan & Co., or the International Mercantile Marine, except that the father of one of them, Mr. P. A. S. Franklin, was a high official of the International Mercantile Marine; but the organizers were these young men, Kermit Roosevelt and a group of his friends, including Vincent Astor, who supplied a good part of the capital.

After they had organized that Roosevelt Steamship Co. (Inc.) they conceived the idea of buying control of the International Mercantile Marine, not by private transaction but by buying the stock in the open market, and these young men, straining their credit to the utmost, except possibly Astor—I do not know whether he strained his or not, but I am told the others did—bought enough International Mercantile Marine stock in the open market some three years ago to secure control of that corporation.

When they got it, they found in its list of directors the names of J. P. Morgan and Charles Steele, Mr. Morgan's partner. But when they came to look up the stock list, they found that Mr. Morgan owned only one share of stock and that Mr. Charles Steele owned only one share; and if any Senator cares to verify that, he will find the complete stock list of this corporation printed in the Senate hearings on the Treasury and Post Office appropriation bill of last year, and that shows J. P. Morgan the owner of one share, and J. P. Morgan & Co. the owners of no shares.

Discovering that these young men had bought control of this company by this process, Mr. Morgan and Mr. Steele more than two years ago sent in their resignations from the board and the resignations of both of them were immediately accepted. That is the present connection of J. P. Morgan with the International Mercantile Marine. do not know whether he ever sold his one share of stock or whether he still has it, but out of this great number of shares, 615,000 of them being outstanding, J. P. Morgan owns one share, unless he has sold it within the last two years, and I do not know whether he has or not. He has not been a director for two years, nor has Mr. Steele. So that if it be true that the presence of J. P. Morgan on the board of the corporation makes all these contracts fraudulent-and it seems to me the reasoning from cause to effect in that premise is a little violent-if that be true, still this contract is not so tainted, because he has not been on the board for two years.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. BLACK. I do not desire to take the Senator's time, but I understood him to say that Morgan had not been on the board for three years.

Mr. REED. For over two years, I am told.

Mr. BLACK. Then a letter I find in the record, which the Senator has, evidently gave wrong information. It is on page 424 of the record.

Mr. REED. I have it open before me.

Mr. BLACK. It is dated March 7, 1932.

Mr. REED. That is correct. That is a letter from the chairman of the Shipping Board inclosing to the chairman of the House committee the latest list of directors and the latest stock list that he has for this corporation. Evidently he was sending on a list that was not up to date.

Mr. BLACK. That shows that Mr. Morgan was a director. I did not understand the Senator to say, did I—and I do not want to delay him at all—

Mr. REED. I am glad to answer the Senator's questions. Mr. BLACK. That these young gentlemen he mentions had the controlling stock in the International Mercantile Marine?

Mr. REED. Quite so; they did.

Mr. BLACK. This record shows that each one of them has 12,500 shares out of a total of 615,000.

Mr. REED. They have told me that they bought control more than two years ago in the open market. In what names the stock may be, I do not know. I saw some brokers' accounts in large numbers of shares, and it may be that some of their stock is carried in that way.

Mr. BLACK. The Senator is familiar with this record, however, which does show, if it is correct, that they do not own a majority, but only a small portion of the stock.

Mr. REED. I am familiar with the record, which shows that not more than some forty or fifty thousand shares are in their names; yes.

Mr. BLACK. Out of some 615,000 shares.

Mr. REED. Yes; but they or anybody else may own stock that is in a broker's name, and I am relying entirely upon their statement to me last night that they bought control of the company in the open market some three years ago; and that Mr. Morgan and Mr. Steele resigned from the board more than two years ago.

Some stress was placed by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKellar] yesterday upon the fact that the International Mercantile Marine owned some eight ships, or thereabouts, which flew the British flag, and which were subject to commandeering by the British Government in the case of the war needs of that Empire. That was completely and effectually answered by the senior Senator from New York [Mr. Copeland] when he showed that away back in the boom days of 1920, when shipping was at a premium, the International Mercantile Marine wanted to sell those ships and get rid of them so as to have nothing but ships flying the American flag, and at the personal request of President Wilson the ships were not then sold, but were retained by the company.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. May I add this statement to what I said yesterday? Not alone did President Wilson act to interfere with the sale of the ships to a British company, but a move was made for our Shipping Board to buy those ships and have them transferred to the American flag, and actually a contract was drawn up. Then, because economy was thought of, it was decided not to do that. In other words, the ships were left in the hands of the International Mercantile Marine much against the desire of that outfit and in spite of every effort on their part to dispose of them. Further than that, repeatedly and continuously since that time they have tried to divest themselves of the ownership of ships for which there is no demand in the world.

Mr. REED. I thank the Senator. I think it is very clear from the facts that have been brought out by the Senator from New York that it certainly can not be charged that there is any culpability in the International Mercantile Marine still having title to those ships which fly the British flag. They have been trying for nearly 15 years to get rid of them and, for causes altogether apart from their own desires, they have been prevented from doing so.

Now, let us take the picture as it confronts a citizen of Philadelphia and the railroads which enter that port. Philadelphia is connected to-day with Liverpool by two lines of steamers: First, a collection of little boats extremely slow, of small carrying capacity, operated by the Cunard Line; second, another group of very small boats, very slow, operated by Francis Whitten & Co. Both of those establishments are prominent British-owned shipping companies. If an exporter of meats, for example, is asked to ship his meat to England by way of Philadelphia, he looks about him to see what steamer service is available. He finds these two lines of small slow boats which consume more than two weeks, I am told, in making the voyage. Of course, he says, 'I will not ship by Philadelphia. I will send my meats on to New York or to some other port where I can get decently rapid lines of ships." It is very natural that he should take that course. I should add also that the two lines have no refrigerating facilities, and obviously such a shipment, particularly in the summer season, would be a foolish one for an American exporter to make. That is just an illustration of the present handicap.

Seeing that situation, this group of young men, headed by Mr. Kermit Roosevelt, thought they saw an opportunity. They found that the United States Lines, a subsidiary of the International Mercantile Marine, owned two old transports, two vessels which in war time had been used as transports for American troops. They are in pretty good condition in spite of their age. Their mechanical equipment is good. They are capable of about 16 knots speed, and with an outlay of about $125,000 on each of them they can be made into very proper, effective, serviceable cargo and passenger steamers. Their passenger accommodations have not been rehabilitated since war days and, of course, would have to be put in shape. That would cost about $125,000 each.

These young men, finding that the ships could be bought from the subsidiaries, interested the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and the Reading Railroad, all of which have Philadelphia terminals, in putting up the money or having it put up to make the down payment on the purchase of those ships. The Philadelphia Mail Steamship Co. was organized at the instance of those three railroads. They have made a contract with the United States Lines for the purchase of the two transports and the possible purchase of two more ships also owned by the United States Lines for the same service.

Having done that, they applied to the Shipping Board for permission to institute this service, stopping at Hampton Roads or Norfolk, then at Baltimore, then at Philadelphia, and thence to Liverpool. Some question arose as to whether the service should be weekly or fortnightly. If the service were weekly, the mail pay under going rates would be about $1,000,000 a year for the two ships, or about $500,000 per ship, but if the service is fortnightly, as seems probable, because that is what is preferred by the Post Office Department, the subsidy will be only one-half as much. Instead of being $1,000,000 a year it will be $500,000 a year or $250,000 to each ship. It is highly probable that the fortnightly service will be all that the Post Office Department will authorize.

The proposition was put up to the Shipping Board and at a meeting attended by each of the three members of the Shipping Board and by the president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation and by Mr. Chauncey Parker, the general counsel, as well as some other officials of the board, these facts were laid before the board. The board unanimously approved the project, and said that the line was a desirable one and that it was well for America to take control of that route, which obviously it will do. I am told that within recent days both the Cunard and the Francis Whitten people have stated that if this line begins operation they will have to quit, because they can not compete with 16-knot modern steamships with the little ships they have in the service, and they have both stated that they would go out of the service. Instead of being a British monopoly it will become an American monopoly.

The Shipping Board heard all that; heard the amount of freight that it is possible to originate in Chesapeake Bay, at Baltimore, and at Philadelphia; and unanimously approved it. Joining in that approval was Admiral Cone, the Democratic member of the Shipping Board.

Then the matter went to a board composed of the chairman of the Shipping Board, the Postmaster General, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce, and that board unanimously approved the project. There was not any secrecy about this. There was no undue hurry. The matter has been investigated for many weeks. Finally, on the authority of those two boards, invitations for bids were sent out by mail inviting people to come in and bid on the operation of the route. After those invitations had been mailed it was discovered that there were certain contradictory statements in them, certain errors in the specifications laid down in the proposal, and a telegram was sent to each of the addressees of the mail communications calling attention to the errors in the letter which had been mailed to him. That is the foundation for the statement made yesterday that the invitation to bid had been sent out by telegraph. It was only the correction of the errors that went out by telegraph. If it had not been for those errors all of the bids would have been in and the contract would have been let to the best bidder on the 20th day of February and this controversy would not be here at all. But because of the clerical mistakes in the invitation and the necessity for correcting them by that subsequent telegram, the date for filing the bids had to be postponed until noon of March 1, to-day.

It has been suggested that the haste which is shown, the unreadiness to postpone the whole business at the suggestion of one Senator, shows of itself a corrupt motive or some concealed impropriety in the transaction. I ask the Senate to consider the merits of that argument. On next Saturday noon the present Government of the United States becomes completely overturned and a new Government takes its place. Obviously a new Shipping Board will come into office. Obviously new Secretaries of Commerce and of the Navy and a new Postmaster General will come into office. They will be confronted with the complete rebuilding of their departments in all probability. They have to learn the details of a thousand matters of pending business. It is perfectly obvious that it will take many months for that new crew to learn its job. It will be months before they will be able to give an instant's thought to this matter.

Is it any wonder that these young men, who are pressing forward with this proposal, which to them seems entirely sound, which has been reviewed and found sound by all of these Federal officials, should be impatient at the prospect of many months of delay? I grant, Mr. President, that these Democratic officials when they come into office will be men of high integrity and will discharge their duties conscientiously. I grant all that and I should expect rather confidently that when they get to it their verdict would be exactly the same as that of all the present high officials who have unanimously said the proposal is all right.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. REED. I am glad to yield to the Senator.

Mr. NORRIS. The Senator is touching upon a point in the debate now that has interested me from the beginning. I do not profess to have any knowledge about it, but I do confess that I feel that a contract of this magnitude, extending over a long term of years—10 years, I understand—ought not to be passed on by officials just a day or so before they are going out of office.

I am not impressed with the Senator's argument that it is going to take six months to reach this matter. It seems to me the proper thing to do, to avoid all possibility of any suspicion of anything being wrong about it, is to delay it for 30 days or such matter. I do not believe it would take more than that time. I do not like the idea of the Postmaster General, just on the eve of his going out of office, approving a contract of this magnitude extending over a period of years.

I know nothing about the facts the Senator has narrated. I assume the Senator has them all correct, and it would seem on the face of it that there is nothing wrong about it. But a delay of 30 days, it seems to me, would not hinder or interfere with the new officials who are coming into office and who will pass on it and they ought to be allowed an opportunity to do it. That is the thing that impresses me more than anything else.

Mr. REED. I am afraid the Senator's assumption that they would do it in 30 days would not be borne out by the events.

Mr. NORRIS. I should think they could do it in five or six days. I said 30 days because necessarily it would take some time for them to get squared around in their offices. It certainly would not take more than a few hours to look over the record, and if they found it all right they could approve it.

Mr. REED. Well, Mr. President, it has taken weeks for the present officials to study the case. The new Democratic Cabinet heads and other officials are going to be confronted with the whole problem of reorganization of their departments, with budgetary questions, with problems arising out of the depression, and I should be greatly surprised if they were able to give one single moment's consideration to this matter for six months. After all, why should all the business of the Government suspend merely because somebody else has been elected?

I was in warm sympathy with the lame-duck constitutional amendment so well and ably and persistently presented by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Norris], and I! took pleasure in voting for it over and over again as it came before the Senate several times, but in any system, even under his worthy amendment, there is bound to be a hiatus between the election of the new Government and the going out of the old, and it is surely not a correct governmental principle that all work shall stop during that interval.

If no Democrats had taken part in this transaction, I should say that there might be some possible partisan advantage to be gained here, but everybody in the Senate Chamber, Mr. President, and everybody who knows anything about the Shipping Board, concedes the integrity and the fearlessness of Admiral Cone, who is the Democratic member of that board, and it is almost offensive to him to suggest that he is conniving in something which is wrong and which the Democratic administration would not continue.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. I yield. Mr. FESS. I am glad the Senator is making the statement he is. Anyone listening to what was said vesterday. as I listened while presiding over the body, that this action had to be taken by noon to-day in order that it might be done under the administration of Postmaster General Brown. would think there was something ulterior on the part of the Postmaster General. I have reread the language that was used in debate yesterday, and there can not be any other inference from it than that the Postmaster General is in the midst of a corrupt deal. Yet the Senator is making a statement that the Postmaster General is simply acting in accordance with the approval of the Shipping Board and with the approval of the other two Cabinet members associated with him in the matter and is merely a routine officer performing his duty without reference to any discretion in the matter at all.

Mr. REED. The Senator is exactly right, except in one respect. It is true that this matter originated before the Shipping Board, and of course the Postmaster General had nothing to do with that. It is true that the proposition was put into its present form by discussions with the Shipping Board and, after the Shipping Board had approved it, it passed it up to a board of four officials, one of whom was the Postmaster General, another of whom was the Secretary of Commerce, another of whom was the Secretary of the Navy, and the fourth was the chairman of the Shipping Board, Mr. O'Connor. That board passed in review upon what the Shipping Board had previously done, and that board unanimously, including the Postmaster General, found that it was all right. So far as I can learn, that was the Postmaster General's first contact with this matter. It did not originate with him. He was not the deus ex machina of this plan. It originated with Kermit Roosevelt and his partner, and they put it up to the Shipping Board after they had made arrangements with the three railroads to incorporate the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Co. It was only after all that had happened, and after the Shipping Board, including Admiral Cone, had passed favorably upon this proposal, that it was brought to the attention of Postmaster General Brown.

It is popular in these concluding days of the administration to speak of Postmaster General Brown as if he were the personal devil of the administration. That seems to be stylish. Some of us know that there is no sense in that attitude, but even if Postmaster General Brown were as bad as the most eloquent of our Democratic adversaries has ever said, granting all that, he can not be blamed for this, because he had nothing to do with it at all except, as a member of that last board, to review the proposal and to sign the contract when it is put before him, as I hope it will be in a little while.

Mr. FESS. I thank the Senator.

Mr. REED. I thank the Senator for his suggestion.

Mr. President, there will be wonder, perhaps, at the earnestness that I show in this matter. I think the explanation of it may be considered to be this: Let me say, to begin with, that I never heard of the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Co. until about the third day of last month when they came down here for a hearing before the Shipping Board. I was busy in the Senate, and I could not go to the hearing, but I asked Mr. Huntley, my secretary, to represent me. The junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. Davis] was there for a few minutes at the beginning of the hearings and then had to leave. All the Representatives in Congress from Philadelphia were there, because there is great public interest in this matter. There is desperate unemployment in Philadelphia at this minute; those people are going to have to find another meal to-day and not eight months from to-day; and anything we can do to help business in Philadelphia it is our obvious duty to do.

I became more interested in this question when I discovered that from the time William Penn sailed up the Delaware River in 1681, right down to the year 1915, there never was a time when Philadelphia lacked direct ocean communication with Great Britain. Throughout those centuries there never was a year when she was without it, until in 1915 the disturbances of the war and the plotting of competing lines, which I do not need to go into here because it is all past history, caused the collapse of the steamship company that was operating out of Philadelphia. So from 1915 down to recent years when the Cunard and the Furness Withy lines began sending miserable little slow steamers to Philadelphia, that city has been without any direct communication. The same thing, to a considerable extent, has been true of Baltimore, I understand, and it is only in recent years that Baltimore has begun to take its proper position as an Atlantic seaboard city.

Is it any wonder that the Representatives of Pennsylvania, of Maryland, and of Virginia, who realize that this line will help them by touching at Norfolk or at Hampton Roads, feel an intense interest to see this bargain carried on to consummation?

It is not that we are trying to play any trick on the Government; it is not that Mr. J. P. Morgan, from the middle of his "spider web," is concocting some scheme to extort an unjustified bounty from the United States. He has no more to do with it than I have with the government of Timbuktu. He does not stand to profit from it in any possible degree, and to come here and to charge that J. P. Morgan and the Chase National Bank are behind this scheme is simply making a wild statement for which there is not one iota of substance or foundation.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. REED. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, the Senator made the statement that there is no basis for the statement made by me. Does he desire to yield now to have me insert in the RECORD the list of directorships held by officers of this company, which he says is controlled by young men, showing their connection with numerous Morgan banks and numerous Morgan

Mr. REED. The Senator put that in the RECORD yesterday. Mr. BLACK. No; I did not, but I have it all here from the directory of directories.

Mr. REED. Yes; I know the Senator has that. The Senator has an old list of the directors of the International Mercantile Marine.

Mr. BLACK. I am not talking about the International Mercantile Marine. I am talking about the young president-young Mr. Franklin, as the Senator has said. He is a director or otherwise connected with the following corporations: Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co., Atlantic Transport Co., Columbian Steamship Co., Engineers' Public Service Co., National City Bank, National Surety Co., Northern Insurance Co. of New York, Ocean Transport Co. (Inc.), Santander Navigation Corporation, Seamen's Bank for Savings in the City of New York, Terminal Warehouse Co., Western New York & Pennsylvania Railway Co., White Rock Mineral Springs Co., and New York Indemnity Co.

I can take each one of the men that the Senator referred to as "this young group," and can show that some of them are directors in Morgan banks, in the Chase National Bank, I in the National City Bank, and in all the various Morgan interests that were shown by what the Senator referred to as the "spider web" a few minutes ago.

Mr. REED. If the Senator will show that they are directors of J. P. Morgan & Co., he is performing a wonder, because J. P. Morgan & Co. is a partnership and they do not have any directors.

Mr. BLACK. I did not say "J. P. Morgan & Co." I said banks and other vehicles used by J. P. Morgan & Co. through interlocking directors. J. P. Morgan, of course, does not operate the Guaranty Trust Co. under the name of J. P. Morgan & Co., but everybody knows he operates it; and I can show the Senator that some of these young men to whom he refers are directors in the Guaranty Trust Co., some of them in the Chase National Bank, some of them in the National City Bank, and other corporations, which it was shown a short time ago were all interlocking with each other and are the beneficiaries of the subsidies which the Government pays.

Mr. REED. If the Senator thinks that that kind of argument proves anything. I am going to leave him to the gratification of his own eloquence.

Mr. BLACK. Would the Senator object to my reading the list of directorships held by Mr. John W. Hanes?

Mr. REED. I do not object at all. It rather brightens up my speech.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. Hanes is a director in the Vick Chemical Co., Motor Improvements (Inc.), Investors Equity Co., Reynolds Investing Co., Reynolds Metals Co., General Realty & Utilities Corporation, Aviation Corporation, Selected Industries (Inc.), Commercial National Corporation, Reybarn Co. (Inc.), U. S. Foil Co., Thompson-Starrett Co., Roosevelt Field (Inc.), Marine Union Investors (Inc.), Bankers' Trust Co., Case, Pomeroy & Co., Thomas Young Nurseries (Inc.), Vick Financial Co., Southern Corporation, and Bankers Co.

I can show the Senator, if he wants me to show it, that he is also director in Stone & Webster Co. and various other interests that were mentioned a few days ago. These are simply some of the young men the Senator says have control of this purely philanthropic movement.

Mr. REED. As I said before, if that proves anything to the Senator, he is welcome to it, and he will doubtless find that they belong to some clubs and churches, too.

Mr. BLACK. Yes: I find that some of them are connected with churches, and I can show that some of these young men also are connected as directors with various publications.

Mr. REED. The Senator must mean then that the Philadelphia Steamship Co. is going to be controlled by the White Rock Mineral Springs Co. and No. 1 Broadway Corporation and the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. BLACK. Yes; if there is any money to be gathered in more than they have already fleeced the public out of; that is correct.

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from North Carolina?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. BAILEY. I should like to ask the Senator from Alabama a question for my own information. Would the Senator be in favor of this contract and its execution of it by the Postmaster General if the institutions to which he has referred were not interested, as he alleges?

Mr. BLACK. I would not be in favor of this contract under any circumstances or conditions.

Mr. BAILEY. That is what I thought. So the mention of these institutions, then, is mainly by way of prejudice; it is not by way of argument?

Mr. BLACK. No. The mention of these men is, if the Senator from Pennsylvania will yield-

Mr. REED. I yield. Mr. BLACK. It is because of the fact that the Senator from Pennsylvania made a statement that they were not connected in any way with the Morgan interests or the International Mercantile Marine.

Chase National Bank or the National City Bank, and I brought this in to show that they are. That was the object. Mr. BAILEY. So that the matter is wholly incidental and does not relate to the merits of the question? Mr. BLACK. I desire to state that I would be opposed to this contract whoever might make it, and that it is my belief that the particular group to which I have referred are the ones who are behind the vast stripping of the taxpayers of this country by the subsidies which have heretofore been granted; that there is a scheme and a system on their part which they have utilized to the fullest extent, and that the overwhelming portion of the great subsidies which have heretofore been paid have gone into their pockets for their private profit.

Mr. BAILEY. And still, as the Senator says, he would be against this contract if all the institutions and men to whom he refers were eliminated from the contract.

Mr. BLACK. The Senator is correct. I would be against it because I believe it is wrong, because I believe it is unjust, and further because I do not personally believe there would have been any effort to get through such a contract if this group had not been behind it. I do not think it could have gotten to first base.

Mr. BAILEY. I was trying to find out what relation these institutions and corporations and men had to this contract. I do not get that.

Mr. BLACK. If the Senator will yield further, I will state that it is by reason of the fact that they are directors of the company which will operate these steamships.

Mr. BAILEY. Still, that does not relate them to the con-

Mr. BLACK. It relates them to the controversy to this extent: It is my judgment that an investigation of the subsidy will show that there has been an unfair system and scheme planned and devised, largely by the master minds in this group of banking interests in New York, and that they have taken advantage of that situation and wielded their immense power to extract the taxpayers' money, as they say, legally, through subsidies; but according to my belief, while some of it may be within the law, it is wrong none the less.

Mr. BAILEY. But the Senator does not relate these corporations and men to the controversy itself or to the contract. He would be against the contract under any circum-

Mr. BLACK. I would be against this contract; and I do not think the ordinary citizen who depends upon selfinitiative and his own ability to make his living ever would have proposed any such contract. I think it is only those who have been accustomed to growing wealthy, not by their own initiative and their own aggressiveness and their own ability, but by chicanery and manipulation of stocks, privileges, and high tariffs fostering monopolies, and that this is a part of the same old system that has been going on, and is legalized graft.

Mr. BAILEY. Nevertheless, if the corporation getting the contract were owned by poor and unknown men, the Senator would still be opposed to it?

Mr. BLACK. I would still be opposed to this contract. My own judgment is that poor men never would have had any chance to get anywhere with it.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, there is one other fact in this matter which has not been alluded to by anybody, and that is that the International Mercantile Marine and the Roosevelt Steamship Co. (Inc.) will not participate in this mail subvention at all. It will go entirely to the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Co.; so that even if Mr. Morgan still owns his one share, and even if he had not resigned as a director two years ago, and even if, by ownership of that one share and his membership on the board. he controlled the International Mercantile Marine, he would not get a single penny of these mail payments that are to be made. It will go entirely to this little Philadelphia company, the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Co., because it has the mail contract and gets the mail pay, and not the

There we are. Out of a few suspicions and a few big | names has been built a perfect mountain of imaginary crime. There is not one iota of proof to sustain the statement so often made here yesterday that this contract is

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. Gladly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Passing over the immediate subject of the Senator's discussion, what has the Senator to say about the proposal to rush these contracts through on the 1st of March-contracts which will bind the Government for a period of 10 years; contracts which might rest upon their merit and be passed over two or three days and be considered by the incoming administration, which is to have charge of the Government for the next four years? Are there any circumstances which make the matter emergent and which demand action to-day at 12 o'clock, just 25 minutes from this time, rather than subsequent to the 4th of March?

Mr. REED. I am very glad indeed that my friend has asked that question, Mr. President, because when he was called from the floor I had tried to explain that.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I will not ask the Senator to repeat it. I was called out, as the Senator says.

Mr. REED. It will be well worth my while to answer it again, because doubtless there are other Senators here who did not hear the statement at that time.

They have been working on this contract for weeks, Mr. President. It was finally brought up to the Shipping Board and by them examined most thoroughly. Hearings were had, and a unanimous vote taken by the Shipping Board, including Admiral Cone.

We know that the Shipping Board is certain to be changed in personnel after the 4th of March. We are led to expect that Admiral Cone will be kept on as the Democratic chairman. Those who know his work say that he has earned it; but, obviously, one of the Republicans will be dropped and a Democrat put on in his place.

The next step after the Shipping Board had acted after that hearing was that the matter then was taken before a board of review of four persons, consisting of the chairman of the Shipping Board, the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Postmaster General. That was the Postmaster General's first contact with this matter, by the way; and that board of review was similarly unanimous in passing upon the matter.

The bids have been sent out. They were sent out a considerable time ago by mail. Then they had to be corrected by telegram. If that had not been so, this whole matter would have been cleaned up on February 20; but, because of a clerical error in the invitations, telegrams had to be sent out, and that is the reason for the delay to the 1st of

The matter has taken weeks to work up to this point and to arrive at this conclusion. If we should wait until after the 4th of March we would have to start in again at the very bottom, with new officials coming into new duties which they will necessarily take time to master. I grant that the subject will meet with the same fairness when they get around to it that it is meeting with now; but it will be many months before the new Democratic officials, in the pressure of their work, will be able to give it the thorough attention that it needs, and we are desperately in need of the work. Philadelphia needs this steamship service. I explained while the Senator was out how we are utterly unable to compete with the two British lines there to-day, but how both of them will be mastered by these new swift steamers; and it means an immense lot of business for Philadelphia. That is my reason for haste.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. Gladly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. It seems to me, notwithstanding the circumstances to which the Senator has referred, that if the Government is to be bound for a period of 10 years respecting these contracts, the administration which is just coming in ought to be given an opportunity to pass upon them. In other words, what is the haste? What is the meaning of the language read into the RECORD by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. Black] yesterday or some previous day in which it was stated that unless these contracts are made before the present administration goes out they will not be made at all? Why is it assumed that that is the case?

Mr. REED. I did not see that statement. I saw the statement that there was need for haste; yes.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The statement was read into the RECORD by the Senator from Alabama, and I called the attention of the Senate to it yesterday, that it is imperative that every possible haste be made-

Mr. REED. That is right.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. That the contract be closed on this date, the 1st of March; that otherwise the contract probably will not be made at all.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. REED. I do.

Mr. NORRIS. If I may interject, I think the Senator from Pennsylvania himself in substance made that statement yesterday.

Mr. REED. I did not mean to couple the latter part.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Assuming, as the Senator has stated, that fair consideration will be given to the matter after the 4th of March, how is it that the conclusion is reached by those making the contract that it will not be entered into unless entered into immediately?

Mr. REED. That is not my conclusion, Mr. President.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania further yield to the Senator from Nebraska? Mr. REED. I do.

Mr. NORRIS. In the Congressional Record of yesterday the Senator from Pennsylvania is quoted as saying:

Does the Senator remember the touching consideration that Pennsylvania got from the last Democratic administration? Does not the Senator know full well that this contract never will be signed on any terms for any Philadelphia concern?

Mr. REED. I must confess that the Senator has made his point. We all make statements in the heat of debate that we wish we had not made, and that is the case here. [Laughter.]

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator does not wish, then, to stand on that statement?

Mr. REED. No; I do not think so. I will admit that the joke is on me there; but, Mr. President, here is a very serious factor, speaking of the humorous side of this matter: If this contract is executed now, to run for 10 years, it is only right and just that that should be done, because for 6 out of those 10 years it will be a Republican administration that will have to work under it; whereas if we postpone its execution to March 4 this 10-year contract will be executed by a Democratic administration, which will have only four years' control of it.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator from Pennsylvania is indulging in a form of classic humor that does not amuse me. [Laughter.]

Mr. REED. I would not expect it to amuse the Senator from Arkansas. I should expect it to pain him to the heart. [Laughter.]

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. May I add that while I recognize the Senator as a great Senator and an able lawyer, I do not regard him as a prophet.

Mr. REED. I have never posed as being a prophet, Mr. President. I have discovered that most human beings who do get themselves into trouble, and that is why I do not think the slightest attention should be paid to the prophecy | read by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Norris] a minute ago.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from New York?

Mr. REED. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. COPELAND. I desire to ask the Senator a question. I do not know whether he heard what I said yesterday about the efforts being made by British shipping interests to control the action of the coming economic conference.

Mr. REED. No. Mr. President; I was called from the Chamber shortly after the Senator began.

Mr. COPELAND. To repeat just a word I said yesterday, the British Chamber of Commerce for Shipping, at a meeting a few days ago, formulated resolutions to be presented to the British Government, and, among other of these resolutions, was one which provided for an appeal to the British Government to have the delegates who are to serve in the economic conference-and some of whom are to come here for conversations before—to make every effort to induce the delegates of other countries to band together with the British delegates against all these aids for shipping which we have undertaken in this country.

I think this is no reflection upon the British Government but it does demonstrate that British shipping interests are striving in every possible way to hamstring the American merchant marine.

Mr. REED. There is no question about that.

Mr. COPELAND. I want to ask the Senator this question: What will be the effect upon those advocates of that policy in the British shipping interests if it is heralded abroad, reported in the London Times and other papers, that the United States Senate has passed a resolution condemning the authorities of our Government in continuing the policy which we established when we passed the Jones-White Act?

Mr. REED. I should think they would be very much enheartened by the news.

Mr. COPELAND. Naturally so.

Mr. REED. And I should think the Cunard Line and the Furness-Withy Line, who will continue to hold their monopoly of the Philadelphia-Baltimore-Liverpool service, would be perfectly delighted to know that the American Senate had prevented an American line from competing with them.

Mr. COPELAND. It seems to me, if the Senator will bear with me, that that is sure to be the effect. I remember that at one time Stevenson, in his philosophical idea of things, when asked what he would do if he were suddenly told that he was to die to-morrow, said, "Well, it would be my duty then to do to-day exactly as I had expected to do to-morrow."

As I conceive the duty of officials, in theory, at least, they do not know that the administration is ending. The business of Government must go on. There are certain measures now which, to my knowledge, are pending before the Shipping Board which have to do with the extension of loans. It is not right for the Shipping Board to stop functioning because we are to have a change of administration on the 4th of March. I do think that it is a very unfortunate thing that this particular important contract should have been acted upon at so late a time.

Mr. REED. But this is of small importance compared with a lot that have gone through without any such fuss. Mr. COPELAND. That is true, and, of course, if this had gone through six months ago there would not have been a

Mr. REED. Not a word.

Mr. COPELAND. But I am greatly concerned, for if we pass this resolution-and with certain whereases in it I would not be unwilling to vote for it, perhaps—I fear that we would be doing the shipping industry in America great harm by that sort of thing.

Mr. REED. I think we would. But I think I ought to say here, in justice to the Senator from Alabama, that I do not for one moment believe that he is trying to help the British not his motive, and he does not need to disclaim it, because I will do that for him.

Mr. COPELAND. If the Senator will bear with me, I will say so, too.

Mr. REED. But I am sure that what the Senator is trying to do would be of vast benefit to the Cunard and Furness-Withy lines, and would be of great injury to American shipping, and would substantially handicap us in the coming economic conference.

We are going to find the nations of Europe ganging up on us in many things, and this is one of many. I would be sorry to see the American Senate furnish fuel for their fire by taking such action as is proposed.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. BLAINE. It gets down to this with me: Is there any real necessity for any further extension of the ocean mail service? The present facilities have taken care of all the needs in the past, and will they not take care of them in the future? As I look over the schedule, it seems that some of the ships carry only a few pounds of mail.

Mr. REED. It is true of some lines that they are carrying only a few hundred pounds, but providing for the carriage of the mails was not the only motive the Congress had in enacting the Jones-White law. We wanted to see the American flag flying on the seven seas, and we took the only possible way of doing it.

Mr. BLAINE. In these times there are a lot of things we can not do that we would like to do.

Mr. REED. I agree with that.

Mr. BLAINE. This may be one of them.

Mr. REED. I do not think this is one of them, and the Shipping Board after an examination of the project is unanimous in saying it is not one of them.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, will the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to me?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. COPELAND. I think the Senator from Pennsylvania is entirely right when he says what he does about the purpose of the Jones-White Act. When we debated the matter here in the Senate, we never contended for a moment that the mail pay was for actual service rendered alone. Our endeavor was to build up an effective American merchant marine. We have conditions to deal with different from those in other lands. It costs two or three times as much to build an American ship in an American shipyard as it does to build one abroad. By reason of the La Follette Acts, which were intended, and properly so, to guard American seamen, it costs more to operate a ship under the American flag, because there are restrictions on the hours of labor, and requirements as to the air space, and sanitary provisions, which are not in the shipping laws of other countries. So, when we discussed all these matters in connection with the Jones-White Act, we frankly said that the object was more than simply to pay for the poundage of the mail. It was in order that there might be built up an American merchant marine, so that American manufacturers and merchants and agriculturalists could send their products in American bottoms and receive raw materials in this country in American bottoms. That was the purpose.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, the Senator has described exactly what will happen if this contract goes through. The Furness-Withy Co. will withdraw its small, slow boats from the Philadelphia service. The Cunard Line has stated that it will do the same thing. They both admit that those small ships will be replaced by two fast, modernized American ships, which will keep up a sufficient service under the American flag to take care of the whole route. How can any American doubt the desirability of that? That will mean the employment of American sailors, it will mean increased activity in the ports which are served by these lines. Hampton Roads, Baltimore, Philadelphia, all will take on new life because of it. How can any American want to postpone that for months in times like these by taking such action as is proposed? When we were asked to give relief shipping industry as against the American. I know that is | to other communities we did not hang back and say, "Oh, you a month from now." We have cooperated with the other States in giving aid as promptly as we could, and we ask the same treatment now of our sister States.

The suggestion is made that the Shipping Board and these Cabinet heads should not act before the 4th of March on this matter. If we apply that suggestion to other activities of the Government, we will see how wrong it is. Do we stop voting here because we are to go out of office on the 4th of March? Do Senators cease from voting and speaking and remain passive, and let their successors perform all their functions? Of course they do not. The accumulation of business during the three months of the interim would be too great. Every day, in every department of the Government, discretionary decisions are being made, and that will continue right up to the 4th of March, and it ought to, in any administration. I should say the same thing four years from now, when the Democratic departments will be continuing their activities right up to the 4th of March. It has to be done.

In the Treasury Department, in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, hundreds of decisions are being made right now and will continue to be made up to the 4th of March, and that was done by the Democrats in 1921, and properly so. I never could discover that there was anything worse in the quality of those decisions than had been found in the quality of the decisions made before the election.

SEVERAL SENATORS. Vote! Vote!

Mr. REED. I would rather not have a vote now. Let us take up something else.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator if we can not take a vote now. We have been told these contracts will be entered into at 12 o'clock.

Mr. REED. That is true.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Of course, we all know that the Senator can occupy the floor until after 12 o'clock and further complicate the matter, but I am wondering whether the Senator wishes to do that.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I do not want the Senate to take action on this resolution. I have tried in all sincerity to explain the facts this morning, and there has not been any time I have been speaking when there have been more than 20 Senators present. That is not through any discourtesy toward me, but it is because they are all exceedingly busy. But if we take a vote on the resolution now, it will necessarily be an uninformed vote, except on the part of those few Senators who have done me the honor to listen to my statement of facts this morning.

It is a senseless thing for me to be wasting time prolonging argument on this. I have talked to the point and nothing but the point since the Senate met this morning. But I have stated my entire knowledge of the matter, and while I do not intend to permit a vote, I would suggest that it would be wise on the part of the Senate to occupy itself in something useful instead of compelling me to waste time.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. May I ask the Senator what he means by the statement that he will not permit the Senate to vote, after he has announced that he has concluded his argument?

Mr. REED. I do not think it is fair or right, or within the province of the Senate, to interfere with this administrative act, and I shall argue that phase of the matter at some length, unless the Senate wishes to take up some other matter at this time.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. May I say to the Senator, if he will be good enough to yield to me just a second-

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. That it occurs to me that he is doing just the thing which from time to time has been done here by other Senators. After the debate has been fairly exhausted, he announces his purpose to take advantage of the rule of the Senate which permits one who gets the floor to talk as long as he pleases on any subject he chooses to speak about, and thus prevent a decision by the Senate. It occurs to me that we ought to have a vote on well, we will postpone it to the new Congress and give it to this resolution, and that the Senator is hardly in a position to say that he will not permit the Senate to act.

> Mr. REED. Mr. President, I have been a member of the Senate for 10 years, and I have seen filibusters carried on from both sides of the aisle. I remember vividly when we had before us a measure called the Dyer antilynching bill. and the Democratic leader at that time, Senator Underwood, rose and stated frankly that there was to be a filibuster, that that bill would never be permitted to come to a vote. We saw the absurd spectacle of the Senate being forced to spend two weeks in a discussion of the question whether the approval of the Journal of the first day should be had.

> Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Sen-

Mr. REED. In just a moment. My good friend the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. HARRISON] improved the occasion by speaking for hours upon the question whether the Chaplain's prayer should be included in full in the Journal of the

In spite of the absurdity of the situation, I will say, if I may, that he made a most extraordinarily clever and amusing speech, but it was not so amusing to those who were responsible for the business that was pressing for action.

Now I yield to the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator now announces his purpose to follow the very example which he condemns.

Mr. REED. It is a dreadful example and I am sorry the Senator forces me to follow it. I might say that I do not approve at all of the rule permitting unlimited debate. I should be strongly in favor of a rule which would not permit me to do what I am doing at this minute, deliberately preventing a vote on this resolution. I am doing it because I am apprehensive that the Senate would probably take snap judgment, because most of the Senators who sit here have not heard the arguments and because I think in all probability the snap judgment, which I am apprehensive would be taken, would be an injustice to the State which I represent and to its neighbor States, Maryland and Virginia.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield further?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator admits that if the Senate should take a vote it would agree to the reso-

Mr. REED. No: I do not admit it at all.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Then, what did the Senator mean by saying the Senate would take snap judgment?

Mr. REED. I am apprehensive it would do so. I can be apprehensive of it without knowing it. The Senator called attention a few minutes ago that I am not a prophet, and he thinks I would make a very poor one, so I am not going to try to prophesy what the vote would be, but I feel apprehensive.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I know the Senator is a poor prophet when he undertakes to say what will be the result of the political election four years hence. [Laughter.]

Mr. REED. Oh, Mr. President, that is not a prophecy; it is a certainty. [Laughter.]

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator has again demonstrated a peculiar quality of assurance. [Laughter.]

Mr. REED. I am so confident of that event that I do not feel the need of proving my assertion or calling any witnesses to substantiate my statement.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma, Mr. FESS, and others addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield; and if so, to whom?

Mr. REED. I will yield first to the Senator from Oklahoma, who rose first, I believe.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. I want to ask the Senator from Pennsylvania a question to see if I understand his purpose. The Senator is now engaged in what is sometimes termed a filibuster?

Mr. REED. For about half an hour. I shall not talk nearly as long as the Senator from Oklahoma did in his last flibuster.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. The Senator will talk long enough to accomplish his purpose?

Mr. REED. Yes.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. That is all I have ever tried to do. If that is true, the Senator is occupied at this time in endeavoring to keep the Senate from going on record on a matter as to which, in the opinion of the Senator, they would make a mistake if they did go on record at this time.

Mr. REED. Oh, no, Mr. President; not at all.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. I understand the Senator's position to be that if we should take a vote on the pending resolution, we would probably pass the resolution and that would be a mistake.

Mr. REED. No; not at all. I am apprehensive the Senate might do so. The Senator will understand that a good many Senators heard the arguments yesterday when, if I may say it in slang, "the bloody shirt was waved" and it was explained that this must necessarily be corrupt because J. P. Morgan & Co. and the Chase National Bank were behind it. I have demonstrated this morning that the Chase National Bank and J. P. Morgan & Co. have not anything whatever to do with it, but most of the Senators did not hear me. They were busy on other matters.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. BLACK. I have been here and heard the Senator, but I did not hear the Senator make any such demonstration.

Mr. REED. The Senator's reasoning abilities and mine do not seem to march in common.

Mr. BLACK. I thank the Senator.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator a further question?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield further to the Senator from Oklahoma?

Mr. REED. I yield.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. I understood the Senator to say that he does not approve of filibusters and that filibusters are wrong fundamentally, but that occasionally, in order to keep the Senate from doing an unwise act, it is necessary to have a filibuster for the purpose indicated.

Mr. REED. Oh, no; not quite that. In order to keep the Senate from doing a greater wrong I am resorting to the somewhat preposterous custom of filibustering for half an hour.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Of course the Senator feels that he is justified in that filibuster?

Mr. REED. I am justified in doing what I am doing to prevent a greater wrong.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Will the Senator please explain to the Senate, so it may appear in the Record and harmonize his position in being opposed to a rule which permits unlimited debate, and then taking advantage of the rule when, as he has just stated, he feels justified in so doing?

Mr. REED. I think we ought to be doing something useful, and I am going to be in favor of remaining in session a half hour later to-night so the country will not be the loser by this proceeding.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. I have just succeeded in getting an interpretation from the Senator, because since I have been here he has engaged in the same kind of filibuster, as well as others.

Mr. REED. The Senator does not reproach me for it?

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma. Oh, no! I am not criticizing the Senator. It is the only weapon we have. I have used it myself. All that I have been able to obtain at the hands of the Senate I have obtained through a filibuster.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. BLACK. I understand the Senator to say he is only going to filibuster half an hour?

Mr. REED. About that long.

Mr. BLACK. Then, may I ask the Senator if he has any assurance from Mr. Walter F. Brown that he is going to sign the contract at 12.30 o'clock?

Mr. REED. I have not had the slightest communication with Mr. Brown.

Mr. BLACK. Did the Senator have that assurance from the gentleman with whom he talked over the long-distance telephone in connection with this contract?

Mr. REED. The Senator is making a statement which I am sure that he would regret after reflection, but I will answer his question. I did not talk to anybody over the long-distance telephone.

Mr. BLACK. I understood the Senator to say that he did. Mr. REED. No.

Mr. BLACK. I beg the Senator's pardon.

Mr. REED. Not on this or any other subject.

Mr. BLACK. I understood the Senator to say he did so talk last night.

Mr. REED. Oh, no.

Mr. BLACK. Then I withdraw that part of my statement.

Mr. REED. And I withdraw the sharpness with which I replied.

Mr. BLACK. I desire to ask the Senator if he had any assurance from the gentleman with whom he talked, where-ever he talked with him—

Mr. REED. The facts I gave to the Senate to-day were given to me yesterday and this morning by a vice president of the International Mercantile Marine. The statement that I was going to speak until 12.30 o'clock was based on an assurance from my secretary that this matter would be acted on by that time.

Mr. BLACK. Will the Senator state to whom his secretary talked and from whom he got that assurance?

Mr. REED. He does not say in his memorandum to me. Mr. BLACK. Would the Senator object to reading it aloud?

Mr. REED. Yes; I do. I do not think that is required. Mr. BLACK. I understand that the Senator has assurance indirectly through his secretary that if he can keep the Senate from acting until 12.30 o'clock there will be action on this matter by Postmaster General Brown.

Mr. REED. No; I have not said anything of the sort. I will read the memorandum of my secretary:

The Shipping Board probably will break up about 12.30.

That is the extremely interesting message from my secretary.

Mr. BLACK. The Senator is willing for us to vote at 12.30?

Mr. REED. I do not care what the Senate does, but I do not intend that it shall apply lynch law to the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. BLACK. So far as that is concerned, the Senator may continue until he gets tired, but we take the position that this is looting the Treasury; and we would prefer, even if the Senator's statement is correct, to have happened what he has said would happen rather than to have a looting of the Treasury.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President-

Mr. REED. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Ohio.
Mr. FESS. I am interested to know, in the light of the background of facts that the Senator has given of the procedure leading up to the signing of this contract, whether the Senator from Pennsylvania or any Senator would feel that if the Senate would take a vote now and vote adversely, that would have any effect whatever upon signing the contract, even though we did it before the contract is signed.
I would like to know whether the Senator feels that the contracting parties would pay any attention to what we might do in the light of the facts the Senator has now

Mr. REED. I am glad the Senator asked that question. I have not talked with the Postmaster General about this, and I do not know how he feels about it. But if I were Postmaster General, I should pay no attention whatsoever to the passage of the resolution by the Senate. Here is the reason why I would not do so: The Congress, with the approval of the President, has enacted the Jones-White law. If I, as an executive official, should be convinced of the fairness and legality of a proposed contract and of its advantages to the United States, I should go ahead and not permit Congress, by a resolution of one branch of it without the acquiescence of the other branch and without the approval of the President, to repeal that act in effect. If I were the Postmaster General, I would not pay the slightest attention to the pending resolution if it were passed.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. In view of what the Senator has now stated, will he consent to a vote at 12.30 o'clock?
Mr. REED. Yes.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Very well. I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, and that at 12.30 o'clock p. m. we take a vote on the pending resolution without further debate.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I hope that will be agreed to.

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, I gave notice a few days ago of my desire and intention to propose taking up a House bill having to do with the development of American air transport services overseas. I want to make it the unfinished business and then lay it aside temporarily to take up the appropriation bill. I would like to have the Senator include in his request that provision with reference to the House bill to which I have adverted.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I had hoped to get consideration during the day of a bill which was discussed at some length here the other day, the bill (S. 5639) providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing a postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years, and for other purposes. I am sure that we ought to be able to dispose of that in a short time.

Mr. McNARY. I want to cooperate with the Senator, and I am sure that the bill will take only a short time. If he will modify his proposal to include the House bill to which I have referred, H. R. 8681, I shall be glad to consent.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. How long does the Senator think it will take to dispose of that bill?

Mr. McNARY. I think we can dispose of it in a short time.
Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Does the bill involve a subsidy?

Mr. McNARY. No. It has passed the House and has a national importance. It provides for no subsidy. It does not take effect until three years from the time it shall be passed.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I will modify my requests with that assurance and the assurance of Senators on this side of the Chamber, who are familiar with it, that the bill which the Senator from Oregon has in mind will not require very much time. Of course, while it is under consideration one can move to proceed to the consideration of another matter. I ask that we proceed to the consideration of the bill referred to by the Senator from Oregon, H. R. 8681, to develop American transport services overseas, and so forth, and that at 12.30 o'clock p. m. to-day we vote on the resolution of the Senator from Alabama without further debate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, may I ask what the bill of the Senator from Oregon is?

Mr. McNARY. It is to develop American air transport services overseas.

Mr. BLACK. Much as I regret to do it and interested as I am in securing a vote on the resolution which I have offered, I can not believe that it is proper to couple the Senator's measure with the pending proposal of the Senator from Arkansas, because that bill raises again the question of subsidy by mail contracts.

Mr. McNARY. I think not.

Mr. BLACK. Very well. I shall not object, but I understand it does.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, may I understand the situation with reference to the matter which the Senator from Arkansas mentions, the postponement of mortgage foreclosures. Is that included in the unanimous-consent agreement and is it to follow consideration of the bill which the Senator from Oregon mentions?

Mr. McNARY. No; that was not included, but I think the general opinion among Senators is that it should be.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, because of the conversations being carried on in the Chamber it was impossible to hear the statement of the Senator from Oregon. Will he repeat it?

Mr. McNARY. I stated that the Hull-Walcott bill is not included in the proposal of the Senator from Arkansas, but I think it is the general consensus of opinion that it should be.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I will state to the Senator from Idaho and to the Senator from Oregon, too, that if the bill to which the Senator from Oregon refers, the bill to develop American air transport services overseas, should require any considerable length of time in discussion, and if the expectation of the Senator from Oregon is not met, I shall move, if someone else does not do so, to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 5639 having relation to the post-ponement of mortgage foreclosures.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, may I ask the Senator from Alabama if he will strike from his resolution the whereases which I discussed with him privately?

Mr. BLACK. I am perfectly willing to eliminate a part of them.

Mr. COPELAND. A parliamentary inquiry

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. COPELAND. When it comes time to vote on this question, would it be proper then to make any changes in the resolution which is pending?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Under the rule the resolution must be agreed to first; then the question comes on agreeing to the preamble, and it may then be amended or rejected. If the preamble were stricken out first, there would have to be some changes made in the body of the resolution.

Mr. COPELAND. May I ask the Senator from Alabama if he will not make the changes in order that we may not be estopped when the time comes for the vote and be unable to vote upon the modifications?

Mr. BLACK. I do not want the Senator to be estopped and I do not understand that the Senator from Arkansas intended that we should do anything except vote upon the resolution or any amendment that might be proposed.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I do not think I said that. I include the words "any amendment that may be offered." Let us save a little time, if we can.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. COPELAND. Would it be in order to offer an amendment before we vote?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It would be, as the Chair understands the Senator from Arkansas now to frame his request, the words "or any amendment thereto" having been added. Is there objection?

Mr. FRAZIER. Mr. President, there is pending on the calendar House bill 13991, commonly known as the allotment bill. It seems to me that there should be some time given to that bill at this session. It has passed the House; it was considered by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry of the Senate for, I think, two or three weeks; hearings were held on it; it was amended somewhat. I should like to get the bill before the Senate and, at least, have it discussed on the floor and some action taken upon it at this session. At the first opportunity I am going to move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of that

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Robinson] as modified? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered. The Chair lays before the Senate a bill, the title of which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (H. R. 8681) to develop American air transport services overseas, to encourage the construction in the United States by American capital of American airships for use in foreign commerce, and to make certain provisions of the maritime law applicable to foreign commerce by airship.

PURCHASE AND SALE OF COTTON BY THE GOVERNMENT

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, before yielding to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 5122) to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

That there is hereby created in the Department of Agriculture a cotton board (hereinafter referred to as the board). Such board shall consist of six members, to be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, all of whom shall be qualified and experienced in either the purchasing, handling, or production of cotton. The members of the board shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be paid their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. They shall hold office during the pleasure of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Sec. 2. The Secretary of Agriculture, the Federal Farm Board, and all other departments and agencies of the Government are hereby directed—

(a) To sell to the said cotton board at such price as may be agreed upon by the Secretary of Agriculture and the board all cotton now owned by them.

(b) To take such action and to make such settlements as are necessary in order to acquire full legal title to all cotton on which money has been loaned or advanced, upon such terms as they may deem fair and just, and to sell this cotton also to the board in the same manner as is provided in the preceding paragraph hereof. SEC. 3. The board shall have authority to borrow money upon all cotton in its possession or control and deposit as collateral for such loans the warehouse receipts for such cotton.

SEC. 4. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with such warehouse receipts as collateral security. SEC. 5. The Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules and reg-

SEC. 5. The Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, is hereby authorized and directed to enter into contracts with the producers of cotton to sell to any such producer an amount of cotton, in the hands of the board, equivalent in amount to the amount of reduction in production of cotton by such producer below the amount produced by him in the preceding crop year, in all cases where such producer agrees in writing to reduce the amount of cotton produced by him in 1933, below his production in the previous year, by not less than 30 per cent, without increase in commercial fertilization per acre per acre.

To any such producer so agreeing to reduce production the Sec-ther provision that such cotton producer shall not use the land taken out of cotton production for the production for sale, directly or indirectly, of any other nationally produced agricultural commodity or product.

SEC. 6. The board shall sell the cotton held by it at its discretion: Provided, That it shall dispose of all cotton held by it by March 1, 1935: Provided further, That the board is authorized to sell unlimited amounts, at any time a price equivalent to not less than 10 cents basis middling seven-eighths inch staple at the ports can be procured.

SEC. 7. The Secretary of Agriculture is hereby authorized and directed to make all necessary rules and regulations and to employ such officers and employees as are necessary to execute the provisions of this act: Provided, That no salary or compensation shall be paid to any person in excess of that paid to Federal employees for like or similar services.

Mr. McNARY. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, the Senator from Utah [Mr. King] took quite an interest in this bill, and I understand offered certain amendments to it. I believe he is not in the Chamber. Is it in order to object to the motion?

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, I had not heretofore noted the absence of the Senator from Utah. Of course, I do not want to take advantage of his absence.

Mr. GORE. I object if the request is for unanimous consent.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Objection does not carry the matter over.

Mr. KING entered the Chamber.

Mr. McNARY. I note the Senator from Utah has returned to the Chamber, and I ask the clerk again to state the title of the bill in the amendment of the House to which I have moved to concur.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 5122) to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oregon that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I am surprised at the action of the House in respect to the measure which is now before us, and I can not understand the haste with which the bill is being pressed for passage in this body. The measure passed by the Senate dealing with the cotton in the hands of certain Government agencies contained a number of provisions which afforded some little protection to the Government and to the people. The House discarded the Senate bill and has transmitted to the Senate the measure now before us. Perhaps my observations are a little too general for the reason that I have not had an opportunity to read the House bill and have not learned of many of its provisions. I am advised that the House has written practically a new bill, in which, as stated, important provisions of the Senate bill were eliminated.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, will the Senator allow me to interrupt him?

Mr. KING. In a moment. In order that I may be advised of the provisions of the bill before us, I desire to have the clerk read it for my information if not for the information

To any such producer so agreeing to reduce production the Secretary of Agriculture shall deliver a nonnegotiable option contract agreeing to sell to said producer an amount of cotton equivalent to the amount of his estimated reduction of the cotton in the possession and control of the board.

The producer is to have the option to buy said cotton at the average price paid by the board for the cotton procured under section 2 and is to have the right at any time up to January 1, 1934, to exercise his option, upon proof that he has compiled with his contract and with all the rules and regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture with respect thereto, by taking said cotton upon payment by him of his option price and all actual carrying charges on such cotton; or the board may sell such cotton for the account of such producer, paying him the excess of the market price at the date of his contract after deducting all actual and necessary carrying charges: Provided, That in no event shall the producer be held responsible or liable for financial loss incurred in the holding of such cotton or on account of the carrying charges therein: Provided further, That such agreement to curtail cotton production shall contain a fursible for financial cost of the senate. It is my opinion that very few Senators know the action of the House or the terms of the bill now before us. I now yield to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, there was in the bill a provision for the purchase of Red Cross cotton which is now being edit to the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, there was in the bill a provision for the purchase of Red Cross cotton which is now being offered, as I understand, below the market. The Senator from Utah objected to that, and that provision went out. Section 4, providing that the cotton might be purchased from farmers who were being distressed by the banks, also over the market price at the date of his contract after whence the provided from farmers who were being distressed by t options, and that by March, 1935, the cotton shall all be disposed of and the Government be relieved of its holdings.

As matters now stand, Mr. President, the Senator will appreciate that if the Government dumps its cotton on the market, with the conditions now existing, it will further depress the price. If the Government gets out of it, and turns it over to the farmers whose options will be exercised on that cotton, and that cotton alone, and who will reduce their acreage in accordance with their options taken, it will get rid of the surplus to that extent; the acreage will be reduced, and, therefore, there will not be any reproduction of the surplus, and benefit will inure to the entire country if cotton rises in price in consequence thereof, which we all confidently believe it will.

I have heard no objections from any parties interested in cotton, from the man who makes the cloth down to the man who grows the raw material; and those of us who are dependent upon the proceeds from the sale of cotton have all worked earnestly to bring about a satisfactory bill on this subject. We have agreed on it; it has passed the House; it has passed the Senate; and it is the universal opinion that it may be the beginning of the break in the deadlock of the commodity-price depression.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Utah has the floor. Does he yield to the Senator from Oklahoma?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. GORE. I desire to ask the Senator from South Carolina if the bill as it comes back from the House prohibits the Government from making any future purchases of Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, under the present set-up this bill provides that all the cotton the Government has shall be disposed of to the farmers who may take the options. What the Government may do under the law I am not advised or what else Congress may do I am not advised. but I want to state to the Senator here and now that one of the depressing influences on the cotton market for the last three years has been the holding of this Government cotton without the trade knowing when and where and how it would be disposed of. It was for that reason that I drafted this bill, hoping that we might dispose of such cotton in such manner as to be of benefit to the growers by giving them a stake in it and also relieving the Government of its holdings.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, I do not believe the Senator quite understood my question. As I understand from his statement, however, the bill, as it comes from the House, does require the Government to dispose of all its cotton by a certain date in 1935?

Mr. SMITH. Yes. Mr. GORE. I think that is desirable. The point I was inquiring about is this: Can the Government, under this measure as it comes back from the House, make additional purchases of cotton on the market?

Mr. SMITH. It can not purchase an additional bale. Mr. GORE. That was the point I had in mind, and that was my first question. I think the Senator misunderstood

Mr. SMITH. The Government can not purchase an additional bale. It is restricted entirely to the disposition of the cotton it now has; that is all.

Mr. GORE. I thought-from the statement I understood the Senator to make in conversation with him-that that was the point, and I desired that point to go into the RECORD.

Mr. SMITH. It is in the RECORD. There is no such intimation in the bill, and there is no possibility of the Government buying a bale outside. The bill simply provides for the disposition of the cotton it already has on hand.

Mr. GORE. The Government disposes of what it already has in hand by a fixed date, and makes no purchase in addition to that?

Mr. SMITH. That is correct.

Mr. GORE. That relieves my mind on those points, and, while I still do not favor the bill, it greatly diminishes my objection to it.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, in order that all may learn of the material changes made by the House, I again request that the bill be read.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read the amendment from the House of Representatives in the bill passed by the Senate.

The amendment of the House of Representatives was again read.

PROPOSED OCEAN MAIL CONTRACT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the resolution (S. Res. 375) submitted by Mr. Black on February 27, 1933, requesting the Postmaster General to postpone the awarding of a contract for ocean mail service from Philadelphia-Baltimore to Liverpool-Manchester.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The hour of 12.30 o'clock having arrived, under the unanimous-consent agreement a vote is to be had upon the resolution offered by the Senator from Alabama [Mr. Black].

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, I desire to withdraw a part of the resolution, and offer an amendment to it.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator can modify his

Mr. BLACK. Beginning on line 9 of the preamble with the words "which were recently purchased from the Shipping Board," and going down to and through and including the second paragraph on the second page, ending with the words "is to be generally investigated by a committee of the Senate; and," I desire to withdraw that part of the preamble.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator modifies his reso-

Mr. BLACK. Now, Mr. President, I desire to add, after the word "investigated" on line 3 of the resolution, the words "by the Senate."

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator further modifies his resolution.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Alabama if he will also omit the last "whereas" before the resolution?

Mr. BLACK. I do not desire to omit the last "whereas," because it is based on a report that I have on my desk.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I do not think the Senate has before it any-

The VICE PRESIDENT. No debate is in order. The Senate is to vote on the resolution at half-past 12. The Senator may offer an amendment.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, my thought about the matter is that this resolution ought not to contain, in its preamble, any matter which is not-

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, a point of order.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Debate is not in order. The Senator can offer an amendment.

Mr. COPELAND. Very well. I move to amend the resolution by striking out the last of the "whereases."

The VICE PRESIDENT. That motion will not be in order until after the original resolution is voted upon. The preamble must be voted on after the resolution is acted upon.

The question is upon agreeing to the resolution, as modified.

Mr. BLACK. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Chief Clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOGAN (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. DAVIS], who is absent. I do not know how he would vote. I therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. McNARY (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HULL]. Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my

Mr. PATTERSON (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from New York [Mr. Wagnerl, who is unavoidably absent from the Chamber.

Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my vote. If I felt free to vote, I should vote "nay."

Mr. SHORTRIDGE (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the senior Senator from Montana [Mr. Walsh). Not knowing how he would vote, I am not at liberty to vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. McKELLAR (after having voted in the affirmative). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Delaware [Mr. Townsend], which I transfer to the senior Senator from Arizona [Mr. ASHURST], and will allow my vote to stand.

Mr. STEPHENS. I am paired with the junior Senator from Indiana [Mr. Robinson]; but I am assured that he would vote as I shall vote upon this question, and therefore I am free to vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. SHEPPARD. I desire to announce that the Senator from Arizona [Mr. ASHURST], the Senator from Illinois [Mr. LEWIS], the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HULL], the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. Long], and the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. REYNOLDS] are detained from the Senate on official business.

Mr. HASTINGS. I desire to announce the absence of my colleague the junior Senator from Delaware [Mr. Town-SEND] on business of the Senate.

Mr. NORRIS. My colleague [Mr. Howell] is absent on account of illness.

Mr. FESS. I desire to announce the following general

The Senator from Maine [Mr. WHITE] with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. REYNOLDS]; and

The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. KEAN] with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. Long].

I also desire to announce that the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG] and the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Norris] are detained from the Senate in a committee meeting.

The result was announced—yeas 45, nays 28, as follows: YEAS-45

Hayden Bankhead Caraway Barkley

Clark Connally Coolidge Costigan Dill Blaine Bratton Fletcher Brookhart Frazier Broussard Bulkley

George Glass Gore Harrison

Dickinson

Lewis

Logan

Norbeck

Johnson Kendrick King La Follette McGill McKellar Neely Nye Pittman

Robinson, Ark.

Russell

Hebert

Metcalf

Keyes

Swanson Thomas, Okla Trammell Tydings Walsh, Mass. Wheeler

Schall

Smoot Steiwer Thomas, Idaho

Walcott

Schuyler

Sheppard Smith Stephens

NAYS-28 Hatfield

Austin Bailey Barbour Bingham Carey Copeland Dale

Ashurst

Couzens

Cutting

Howell

Hull

Bulow

Byrnes

Capper

Fess Glenn Goldsborough Grammer Hale Hastings Kean

Oddie NOT VOTING-23 Norris Patterson Reynolds Robinson, Ind. Shipstead Shortridge

Townsend Vandenberg Wagner Walsh, Mont. White

So Mr. Black's resolution, as modified, was agreed to. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Fess in the chair). The question now is on the preamble of the resolution, as modified.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Debate is not in order. The question is on agreeing to the preamble as modified.

The preamble, as modified, was agreed to.

The resolution and preamble, as modified and agreed to, are as follows:

Whereas specifications have been issued by the Postmaster General calling for bids on March 1 for an ocean mail contract from Philadelphia-Baltimore to Liverpool-Manchester, route No. 58 B. which involves the establishment of a new steamship service and the payment by the Government of about $1,000,000 per annum for 10 years, or $10,000,000 in mail money, and also involves the selling of vessels by the United States Lines Co. for a reported price of $500,000 each; and

Whereas the Merchant Fleet Corporation reported on February 6,
1933, that this steamship service is not justified: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Postmaster General be requested to postpone the awarding of the said mail contract until the matter can be more fully investigated by the Senate and the soundness of the more completely determined from the standpoint of Government's interest and all the facts and circumstances

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I desire to make a short statement in reference to the vote I have just cast.

As everyone knows, this steamship line, if put into effect, would run out of the port of Baltimore together with Philadelphia and Norfolk. I should like very much to see this line inaugurated. In normal times perhaps my vote might have been different; but with the depleted condition of the United States Treasury, with the Budget in its present state of $4,000,000,000 unbalance, I feel that we should not duplicate services which are already being well cared for. The mail will go to England and to Europe from New York and from Baltimore and from Philadelphia as it has been going for these many years; and I do not feel that this new line, with its million-dollar-a-year charge upon the Federal Treasury, is a proper measure to be voted upon favorably at this time.

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, it may be too late to take effective action. The deed may be done. The contract may be signed. An empty and exhausted Treasury may have been further exhausted upon the stroke of the clock at high noon. The Postmaster General may have cut through redtape entanglements and accelerated the speed which ordinarily characterizes the business of the Government.

In any event, I desire to move that the Secretary of the Senate be directed to notify the President, the Postmaster General, and the Shipping Board at once of the action just taken on this resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oklahoma.

The motion was agreed to.

REMOVAL OF RESTRICTIONS ON OPEN-MARKET TRADING IN GRAIN FUTURES ON CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President, on yesterday I submitted a resolution, Senate Resolution 376, which went over under the rule, the senior Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] having objected to its consideration and said he would take it up to-day. He informs me now that he has no objection to the resolution. It is a resolution calling upon the Agricultural Department for certain information.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. This is a mere resolution of inquiry?

Mr. WHEELER. A resolution of inquiry, that is all; and the senior Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] tells me that he has no objection to it. It only asks for information from the department.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the resolution for the information of the Senate.

The resolution (S. Res. 376) was read, considered, and agreed to, as follows:

Whereas it is desirable to get the opinion of the Secretary of Agriculture as to whether or not the 500,000 bushels limitation required to be reported upon by operators on boards of trade should be fixed by law or allowed to be made variable by orders of the Secretary; and Whereas on October 24, 1932, there was lifted and suspended the restrictions on open-market trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade by order of the Secretary of Agriculture;

Whereas these restrictions upon short selling in 1927 for a short time were suspended; and

Whereas prices after both such suspensions declined to the advantage of the speculative short seller and to the disadvantage advantage of the speculative short seller and to the disadvantage of producers; and

Whereas the decline in prices, following the order of the Secretary of Agriculture on October 24, 1932, reached lower levels than had theretofore ever been recorded: Be it

Resolved, That the Secretary of Agriculture is hereby directed to ascertain the facts and report to the Senate, giving full and complete answer to the following questions and such others as may occur to him as being pertinent to this matter:

(1) What was the purpose of suspending on October 24, 1932, the reports from board of trade members required pursuant to the grain futures act of the accounts of speculators and short

(2) Were these reports suspended on recommendation of the present chief of the grain futures department, or were they suspended on request of members of the Chicago Board of Trade or other exchanges? If the latter, who were these parties and what was their position in the market at that time? Were they long or short? If short, did they buy in at a profit when prices later

(3) What was the effect upon wheat prices of the suspension of the restrictions? What was the position in the market of those affected by the suspension, at the time and just prior to suspension? What has been their position since?

(4) To what extent have big speculators been active in wheat futures transactions during the drastic price declines of the past two or three years? Have they been dealing on the long or the short side of the market, and to what extent?

Resolved further, That the Secretary of Agriculture in such report shall make a full disclosure of the names and addresses of all persons and firms that have held a speculative short position in wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade equal to or in excess of 1000 000 bushels at any time during the past two or in excess of 1,000,000 bushels at any time during the past two or three years, while prices have suffered unprecedented declines, and shall indicate which of these, if any, were also found on the short side of the market during that period in 1927 when the restrictions were lifted the first time.

The preamble was agreed to.

PURCHASE AND SALE OF COTTON BY THE GOVERNMENT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary].

Mr. KING obtained the floor.

Mr. BRATTON. A parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. BRATTON. What is the motion of the Senator from Oregon?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon moves to concur in the House amendment to Senate bill No. 5122, and the Senator from Utah has the floor.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina stated, if I understood him correctly, that there was no objection to the House bill now before us. I have before me the record of the proceedings of the House of Representatives of yesterday, and I discover that 183 Members of the House voted against the bill and only 188 voted for it. There was some sharp debate, evidencing opposition to the policies which are imbedded in this bill and to substantially all of its provisions.

Mr. President, I associate myself with the able Representatives who, in the debate yesterday, excoriated this bill, showed its unsatisfactory provisions, and the maze of difficulty and confusion into which we would plunge the Government and the cotton industry by its passage.

In the bill just read—and I shall refer in a moment to some of the statements made by two or three of the Representatives-I discovered that there had been eliminated in the House section 2 of the Senate bill, which, upon motion of the Senator from Tennessee, was incorporated in the measure. I shall refer to that in a moment.

The bill as it passed the House also contains the words, "and directed" which had been stricken from the bill in the Senate, so that now the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is not only authorized to lend money for this fantastic, unsound, and speculative scheme and adventure, but it is directed to lend money to this new board created by the bill which is to take the place of the Farm Board, the stabilization organization, and the A. C. C. A. organization—these pyramided organizations which have been created and organized directly or indirectly by Congress. This language seeks to compel the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan its funds to the new board to be set up under this bill.

The bill transfers some of the duties of the Farm Board, and the Stabilization Corporation, and the A. C. C. A., to which I have referred, to another Federal board, which is given extensive powers, including the right to borrow money ad libitum from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mr. President, there is something inexplicable, something which seems to me unfair and unjust, in inserting provisions which the Senate had stricken from the bill for the protection of the Treasury, and putting into the bill, as the House did, a provision compelling the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend, we do not know how much money, millions, perhaps tens of millions, of dollars to another Federal board with authority, in some respects, greater and more dangerous than that given to the Farm Board.

My information is that there are two and three million bales of cotton which will come under the control of this board, and upon which there are to-day liens and obligations aggregating tens of millions of dollars.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. JOHNSON. I have been looking at the RECORD, but I have been looking at it very casually and hastily. Is it a fact that yesterday in the House an amendment was attached to the bill by which it would become obligatory upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend this money?

Mr. KING. I would like to look at the bill.

Mr. JOHNSON. I observe on page 5269 of the RECORD, for instance, an amendment that was presented, as follows: "The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed." Is that the amendment to which the Senator refers?

Mr. KING. The Senator is correct.

Mr. JOHNSON. It reads:

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with such warehouse receipts as collateral security.

May I inquire of the Senator whether there is any other collateral that is taken by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation save the warehouse certificates?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the Senator is an able lawyer, and if I understand him, he interprets the language as requiring the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans in unlimited amounts to the new Federal board, with which it may discharge the millions of dollars of liens upon the cotton purchased by the Farm Board, the Stabilization Corporation, and the American Cotton Cooperative Association and obtain title to the same; and that such loans must be made upon no security or collateral other than warehouse

The Senate bill authorized loans to the new board by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but it left that organization full power to determine whether loans should be made. and if so, the terms upon which they should be made. It did not "direct" loans to be made, nor did it attempt to prescribe the security or collateral required on the loans to which the board should agree. I appreciate that all efforts to amend this bill will be unavailing. It has been predetermined that it shall pass, that the Senate bill shall be repudiated even in this body wherein it originated, and the unsound measure now before us shall be hurried to the President. It is to be hoped that it will fail to receive his signature.

As stated, there were attempts to incorporate in the Senate bill some few safeguards and to afford some modicum of protection to the Government. But such efforts are to be frustrated and the Government again to be projected into unsound schemes and enterprises which are, in my view, at variance with our theories of economics and government and in contravention of the rights of individuals and without constitutional warrant.

In my opinion, the plan embodied in the pending measure possesses many of the infirmities and evils of the so-called Farm Board act and embarks the Government upon an unsafe and turbulent sea of perilous experimentation. All precepts to which we have given heed, all theories of government to which we have averred attachment, all constitutional axioms and practices are discarded and ignored in the bill which this body will soon crown with its benediction.

This bill is founded upon the theory that private initiative is at an end, that the rightful authority of citizens to govern themselves and manage their own affairs is inadequate in this age, that all of the political and economic views upon which we and our fathers have relied are no longer to be followed. Paternalism, or Socialism, or both, are to supplant the democratic policies and philosophy upon which our country has advanced to the highest station among the nations of the earth.

Mr. Hoover's Farm Board was an assault upon our economic and political structure, and has created demoralization, not alone in the fields of agriculture but in all departments of our economic and political life. It introduced unsound principles and dangerous economic and political policies, undermined the faith and confidence of many of the people in a proper individualism and in the duties and functions of States and local governments, and reversed the political philosophy upon which our institutions rest.

This bill goes far beyond the Farm Board act, in Federal usurpations and devitalizing paternalism. The Federal Government is to engage in the cotton business upon a stupendous scale. It is to use the moneys taken from the people by taxation or borrowed from them upon its issued securities to purchase several million bales of cotton. It is to discharge liens and obligations upon these cotton reserves; it is acquiring the legal title to the same by the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars; it is to sell the cotton as and when its officials determine, fixing the prices for the same, as well as the terms upon which sales are to be made.

The general board can destroy the cotton market or unsettle cotton prices and cause such violent fluctuations as to destroy all private activities in the buying and selling of this product. It can affect the prices of all cotton textiles and all commodities into which cotton enters. It can use the power given it by this bill to coerce or cajole farmers to limit cotton production, as well as production of agricultural commodities that enter into the agricultural markets.

Under this bill speculation and gambling in cotton are not only possible but inevitable.

If it had been suggested a few decades ago that the National Government exercise the authority granted by this bill it would have aroused fierce opposition.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to

Mr. KING. Yes.

Mr. BYRNES. What the Senator from California inquired was as to whether or not the Reconstruction Finance Corporation secured as collateral for such a loan anything other than the warehouse receipts for cotton.

Mr. JOHNSON. That is exactly what I was inquiring.

Mr. BYRNES. I so understood the Senator. The language of the bill as it now stands provides that such warehouse receipts shall be accepted as collateral security, but authorizes the board to reach a determination as to the terms under which those loans can be made. For instance, a warehouse receipt for cotton may be based upon a price of 6 cents a pound, and a bale of cotton would be worth $30. Terms would be arrived at as to the loan to be made upon such warehouse receipt. That is what the bill for which my colleague is responsible provides.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Utah yield to me?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. JOHNSON. I am seeking information, and I would like to inquire whether the Senator from South Carolina reached the construction he has just suggested by virtue of the amendment that is found on page 5269 and which was yesterday adopted by the House?

Mr. BYRNES. I am referring to the bill only as it is written, with the language which authorizes and directs the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance money and to make loans to the board in such amounts and upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. That was the intent of it.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, if the Senator from Utah will yield further, that is exactly what the board is authorized and directed to do, so far as security may be concerned. But I will ask the Senator from South Carolina to follow the last clause, "with such warehouse receipts as collateral security." That is, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized and directed to make loans upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, "with such warehouse receipts as collaterial security."

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, may I explain the matter to the Senator?

Mr. JOHNSON. I would be very glad to have the Senator do so.

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. SMITH. That is a custom which has been universal, even before we had the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It means this, that they will take the warehouse receipts, and will agree with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as to what proportion of the value of the cotton they will advance and yet be perfectly safe. In other words, if the cotton is worth $30 a bale, they are justified, if they so agree, to advance within 1 or 2 cents a pound of its market value. That is all it means, and every cotton man knows that that is universally done. That is all it would do.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, it is obvious that there is some difference of opinion as to the meaning of this new provision, and I think the questions propounded by the Senator from California should be seriously considered. The average reader, or judge, in the construction of the language of this section, would say that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was limited in the collateral which it was to exact for making a loan to the taking of the warehouse receipt.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KING. In a moment. If it had been intended that the board might require collateral in addition to the warehouse receipts, why did not those who drafted the provision, add words, clearly stating that in addition to warehouse receipts, other collateral might be required?

I now yield to the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President, if the Senator will permit me a moment, I think we may dispose of this as a practical proposition. The board would have no other assets except the cotton it bought. It could offer nothing but the cotton.

Mr. KING. It will have its notes, its credits, whatever it has, little or much.

Mr. GEORGE. It is not authorized to borrow a penny except to take over this cotton. It has no assets except the cotton. It would have no collateral to offer except the cotton. The language very clearly shows that the cotton is to be the only thing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to make a loan on. But even if the language did not carry that very clear implication, the cotton board would have neither the power to borrow except to buy cotton, nor security to offer except the cotton actually purchased.

Mr. KING. Does the Senator assume that it will make no profits upon some of the sales, and that such profits, which might consist of notes or personal property or other collateral, might not be utilized?

Mr. GEORGE. It is not contemplated that they would make a profit. It is simply for the purpose of disposing of two lots of cotton. It is limited entirely to two already accumulated by the Government and on which the Government has already advanced the full market value of the cotton. While the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to make loans, the money will go directly into the other pocket of the Government, that is, into another agency.

Mr. KING. May I inquire of the Senator if the Hanover Bank and many other banks have not made extensive loans to the A. C. C. A. upon this cotton, loans aggregating tens of millions of dollars, in addition to the loans which the Government has made to the stabilization corporation and the A. C. C. A., all of which practically have been lost?

Mr. GEORGE. The A. C. C. A. has lost money. The Farm Board has lost money. That is lost beyond all recovery. What they have, so far as this matter is concerned, is a certain lot of cotton which is worth its market value and no more than its market value. I think, although I do not make the statement positively, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has already financed the cotton in the hands of this particular Government agency, perhaps not in | they may not raise any agricultural products for sale, difull, but certainly in large measure.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from Tennessee?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. Let me call attention to the fact that this is putting the cotton already owned by the Government in the hands of a commission for the purpose of making smaller the next year's yield of cotton. The Government has this cotton and owns it. By utilizing it in the way pointed out the board will make a contract with the planters of cotton by which they will reduce the amount of cotton raised next year.

Everybody admits that the cotton owned now has an unhappy effect on the price. It depresses the price all the time. It injures the cotton farmer in that way. By properly managing the surplus which the Government now owns, as it will go into the hands of this board, it can be utilized for making contracts for the present year with the producers of cotton, which will minimize or reduce the yield of cotton this next year and therefore help the cotton farmer—or at least not hurt him. He will be allowed to buy the cotton already in his district as cheaply as he could raise it to save his life. He will be permitted to raise other crops, feed crops and so forth, and he will be greatly benefited. We all realize that the farmers are in a bad fix and especially the cotton farmers. We must get the bill through now if it is to have any effect on the ensuing crop, the crop that is being put in the ground now in some of the far South territory. We are very anxious to get it done.

Mr. KING. Let me ask the Senator, in view of the statement just made that this would take land out of cultivation, whether the Senator is accurate? As I heard the bill read, and I have had no opportunity to analyze it because it has been brought here without an opportunity for us to examine it, I interpret it as providing that lands which have heretofore been producing cotton, if withdrawn under the terms of the bill, could not be used for nationally produced agricultural commodities for sale directly or indirectly.

Mr. McKELLAR. Like wheat or corn, for instance. Yes; we do not want to interfere with those commodities. Under the bill there is no reason in the world why the farmers can not raise more hay, more vegetable crops, more small grains of every kind. There is no reason why they should not do it and I have no doubt they will. They will raise things to be consumed on the farm that will give them a better living at home while, by means of limiting the cotton crop, they will get a better price for their chief money crop, which is cotton.

Mr. KING. Then if I understand the Senator we are to use the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the power of the Government to force contracts—perhaps that is too strong a term-to obtain contracts from the farmers under the terms of which, in order to get the benefits of this bill and of money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, through the power of the Federal Government, they must enter into agreements not only to not grow cotton upon land which they own, but that they will not grow any other agricultural crops that might be for sale directly or indirectly in the markets of nationally produced agricultural products.

Mr. McKELLAR. Oh, no; it does not go that far. For instance, they could not use the land to greatly increase the wheat crop.

Mr. KING. Why not?

Mr. McKELLAR. There are several reasons for that, but the principal and best reason is that we can not produce wheat profitably on cotton land even in good times.

Mr. KING. The Senator now concedes that a producer of cotton could not raise wheat if he were to enter into a contract under the provisions of this bill; so it comes down to this, that we are requiring farmers who have produced cotton to agree, first, in order to get the benefit of the act, to grow no more cotton during the period prescribed, upon lands upon which cotton has been produced; and, secondly, rectly or indirectly, in the markets of nationally produced agricultural products. As the Senator said, they may not produce wheat and may not of course produce corn. There are many other agricultural commodities which find markets nationally and internationally, and they may not produce crops of that character upon their lands. They must, as the Senator said, produce only those things which they consume upon the farm, garden vegetables and so forth, that would not enter into competition with nationally produced agricultural commodities.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. BYRNES. Is the Senator objecting because he is interested in the cotton farmer, or is he objecting because he says the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would not proceed to fix the security, or is he objecting because he believes it would increase the production of wheat and do injury to the wheat farmer?

Mr. KING. I am objecting to the whole scheme contemplated by this bill for some of the reasons I have imperfectly

Mr. BYRNES. Just on general principles?

Mr. KING. I am objecting because I think it an unwise, unsound, and speculative venture; that it is inconsistent with our political institutions and our economic policies: that it will strengthen paternalism and contribute to the development of highly objectionable and dangerous socialistic

Mr. BYRNES. First, as to the warehouse receipts, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation now can lend money to banks upon the collateral security of such banks and under the Federal reserve law.

Mr. KING. It can if it wants to do so.

Mr. BYRNES. It has the authority to do so.

Mr. KING. But it is not compelled to do so.

Mr. BYRNES. No: but it will accept warehouse receipts for cotton notes if such warehouse receipts have been pledged as security for the notes.

As to the other objection, that it would require cotton farmers to make the contract, no representative from a cotton State is objecting to it.

As to the third statement that it might cause the growing of wheat, under the language of the bill, the farmer may not produce any nationally produced crop except for his own consumption. He can not produce it for sale.

So I think all three objections thus far stated by the Senator are really answered by the provisions of the bill.

Mr. KING. The failure of a call on States to protest against this measure does not prove that it is wise or should be enacted into law. Many persons have not opposed unsound policies or measures, either from a failure to fully comprehend their significance or inherent dangers or by reason of indifference, or from supposed benefits that might be

The junior Senator from South Carolina and his colleague [Mr. Smith] are adepts at legislation and language. They are persuasive on the floor and in private conversation. But I am not persuaded to follow them in support of this bill, But my objection to the bill is fundamental. I think it projects the Government into speculation into the cotton business with all its problems and uncertainties, into agricultural activities, to a degree wholly inconsistent with the functions and authority of the Federal Government and which is not only a bad precedent, but in the end will injuriously, if not disastrously, affect the cotton market and the farmers themselves.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the senior Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. SMITH. The Senator is thoroughly aware that unfortunately the Government is already in the cotton business and we are trying to get it out. The Government has the cotton. That cotton has a depressing influence on the market. Nobody knows how or when or where it may be disposed of. Were the Government to attempt right now to put the 3,000,000 bales of cotton on the market, it would depress it far below the distressing price at the present time.

Let us go a step further. If the Government does not dispose of it under the terms of this bill, it must hold it. It has the cotton. If another crop is made approximating a normal crop, it stands to lose still further 2 or 3 cents a pound, or perhaps $30,000,000 additional.

Mr. KING. The Senator is making a speech in my time, but I consent.

Mr. SMITH. The Senator does not object to getting the light, and I am trying to show him the light.

Mr. KING. Very well; proceed, as I am always desirous of obtaining light.

Mr. SMITH. Here is the Government with 3,000,000 bales of cotton. If it does not dispose of it, under the terms of the bill it must dispose of it with possibly a normal crop coming on to add to that tremendous surplus. Under the terms of the bill we say we will take out of the surplus the 3,000,000 bales of cotton and distribute it amongst the farmers in lieu of that much production. Therefore we will have 3,000,000 bales out of the surplus, 3,000,000 bales curtailed out of production, and the Government out of the business, the farmer having a stake in cotton which under depressed conditions he has not disposed of, thereby relieving the situation from both ends, both as to surplus, because we take 3,000,000 bales out of the surplus, and as to production, because we take 3,000,000 bales out of production.

If the Senator does not think that this is going to get the Government out of the cotton business and put it back in the hands of the cotton farmers and then provide for its distribution when the cotton year comes on in October, 1933, then I am afraid he does not understand the purposes of the bill. We hope that the application of the bill will inevitably be that the farmers will dispose of their cotton—not the board, but the farmers. The farmers have an option that they have gained by virtue of signing a contract that they will not produce cotton on cotton land.

The wheat people came in and said, "You will plant that land in wheat." We said, "All right; we will provide that the land can not be planted in anything that will come in competition with that which you are producing."

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, may I add just a word to what the Senator from South Carolina has said? I invite the attention of the Senator from Utah to section 7 of the bill, which provides:

The board shall sell the cotton held by it at its discretion: Provided, That it shall dispose of all cotton held by it by March 1, 1935.

In other words, it provides for disposition of the surplus cotton now in the hands of the Government, and I believe it is the best way that has been suggested by anyone for the Government to get out of the cotton business.

Mr. KING. Let me ask the Senator why the House struck out the provision which called for the sale of the cotton before August 15, 1933, and extended the period to January 1, 1934?

Mr. McKELLAR. I want to say to the Senator that I much prefer the provisions of the Senate bill to those of the bill as it passed the House, but time is the essence of the existing situation. If this matter is postponed until the next session of Congress it will be impossible to carry it out this year. It is of the most intense importance that the bill, if it is passed at all, should be passed at this session of Congress. Therefore I am willing to accept the terms of the bill as it passed the House, not because I believe it is better than the Senate bill, but because it is necessary to get the measure through immediately. I do not believe the House bill is hedged about in the way I would like to see it done.

Two amendments which I offered were left out and the amendment of the Senator from Utah, which was a good amendment, was also left out. I should be very happy to have these amendments inserted at a later date, but planting time is upon the growers in southern Texas, and in southern Florida, and unless we get this bill through we shall lose the entire good effect of the proposed legislation for this year.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, it would seem that I should yield to the eloquent, fervent appeals of the three able Senators who are pleading for this bill, particularly when I sit in such close proximity to them. Their presence is overaweing, their eloquence persuasive; and nevertheless, my power of resistance still exists; I am opposed to the bill and shall vote against it. Notwithstanding my regard for the Senators and my knowledge that they sincerely believe that this proposed legislation will be productive of good. I can not share the optimistic views they express. We have so often of late followed policies foreign to our traditions and practices and beliefs-so at variance with our theories of government and its relation to individuals and private business-that in this period of depression we seem to lose our balance and wander into devious and dangerous paths. The hope of some temporary relief, through some expedient or experiment, allures us from the safe but perhaps hard and rugged road. In my opinion this bill tends to perpetuate evils which have grown up under the Federal Farm Board, under its maladministration and unwise policies.

This scheme projects the Government again into the buying and selling of agricultural commodities; it sets up another Farm Board without some of the powers which the present board posseses but without limitation upon the drafts which the new board may make upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. There is no limitation. It may be millions, it may be tens of millions that may be required in order to release this cotton from the liens and mortgages and other obligations to which it must respond.

One would think, Mr. President, that we had had enough experience of the Government engaging in activities of this character. One would suppose, with the wrecks caused by the Farm Board, its maladministration, and the evil and calamitous consequences of its activities, that we would not care to embark upon another enterprise which promises disaster.

Mr. President, I return to the point I was discussing when the Senators projected themselves into the debate and presented their views in favor of this measure. I make no criticism of them, of course, and regret that I find myself so much opposed to the views of Senators for whom I entertain high regard. But, believing the bill to be unwise, I regard it as my duty to enter my protest against its enactment into law.

As I have said, I have no expectation of defeating the bill. There are forces in its favor which will overcome all opposition in this body. I understand that many northern cotton users, not improperly, are associating themselves in the movement to secure the passage of this bill, and a combination between the New England States and some cotton States is one which it is difficult to defeat. I think that both the cotton-mill men and the cotton producers are making a serious mistake in backing this bill.

It may be that the textile-mill operators hope to secure the cotton cheaper under this plan than if they had to go out on to the market and buy it; that if they can make some sort of a composition or reach an understanding with the Federal board to be created, they may expect to obtain their cotton at prices below market prices; but as to that I shall not speculate. At any rate, there is, as I understand, a sort of fellow feeling, an association—and not improperly—between the interests to which I have referred, the millmen and some cotton producers, and they are seeking the passage of this bill.

I return now, Mr. President, to the question, Why did the other House insert a provision that will be construed as compulsory and require the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan the millions and tens of millions of dollars that may be required to release this cotton from the liens and the obligations now imposed upon it? Why did they not leave it as other persons who are seeking credit from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are left, to make terms and to obtain, if they can, from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation upon business lines credit, instead of compelling the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to open up the Treasury of the United States and to make loans whether they will or not?

If this organization shall come with warehouse receipts, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as the bill undoubtedly is to be interpreted, will be compelled to extend credit without any limitation upon the amount which may be demanded. I object to that provision; and, in view of the fact, Mr. President, that the Senate considered the subject and heard the statement of the Senator from Michigan and the Senator from Connecticut in opposition to the words "and directed." as well as subsequent observations which were made, I find no reason for the Senate's position to be repudiated other than that proper and adequate security that would satisfy reasonably prudent trustees of the Government, the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, can not be offered, and therefore it was deemed best to require the trustees, against their will perhaps, to extend credit to the new organization which we are creating by this bill.

I protest against this amendment. It is unwise; it is unjust to the Government; it is unfair to the taxpayers of the United States. If another measure were to be introduced which directed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan to everybody or to anybody or to any organization, railroad or bank, there would be a loud protest here. It would be said that it was unwise and unsound legislation.

The Senator from Tennessee offered an amendment when the bill was before this body providing that the cotton should be sold before August 15 of this year. That period has now been extended. Why? Was it in order to give additional time for speculation? Of course it will be said it is for the purpose of in some way preserving a reasonable market; but, Mr. President, we will have upon our hands for this long period of time several million bales of cotton to disturb the market, to depress prices, and to hang as a sword of Damocles, so to speak, over the entire textile industry of the United States which depends upon cotton.

That has been one of the evils of the Farm Board and of the Stabilization Corporation. The Farm Board went into the market and speculated in cotton; it speculated in wheat; it tried to get a corner upon cotton and upon wheat; it tried to peg prices, and the result was that the Government lost more than $300,000,000 in the wild orgy of speculation and in other unsound and wholly indefensible practices. Yet, with that experience before us, we propose to create another organization to engage in speculation-for that is what this means-and, more than speculation, to coerce the farmers to accept certain terms, for instance, not to use their own land as they see fit, not only not to grow cotton but to refrain from growing any other agricultural commodity that may come into competition with the agricultural commodities of other portions of the United States. As I have said, this plan is unsound and indefensible upon principles of recognized economics or accepted views as to the functions of the Federal

I said a moment ago in reply to the statement of the Senator from South Carolina, that everybody had assented to this bill, that in the House of Representatives it was passed by a majority of 5 votes. I want to show, Mr. President, that some of the strong men of that body pointed out some of the evils of this measure. I read a few sentences from the remarks of Representative Hart, of Michigan, a courageous and able exponent of sound economic principles as they apply to agriculture and to business generally. He stated:

We on the Democratic side went out in the last campaign in the Middle West and sunk them—because they were speculating in farm products, but yet we bring before this House a more vicious measure for speculation than was ever contained in the farm marketing act.

Referring to the Republicans—

Let us see what our candidate for President, the new President, who won upon that issue in the West, said about it. I am reading from the Democratic Campaign Textbook and quoting from Mr. Roosevelt's speech immediately after he landed from that airplane in Chicago and reached the platform:

"We should repeal immediately those provisions of law that compel the Federal Government to go into the market to purchase, to sell, to speculate in farm products."

We not only have not repealed those provisions but we are now supplementing that organization by another, and drawing upon the Treasury of the United States, and compelling the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to dip into it and take out money for speculative purposes, and to take it out without limitation.

Now, we bring a bill upon this floor which provides for direct speculation in cotton. We not only provide for putting the Government into speculating in cotton but we bribe and invite each individual cotton farmer to join with us. We ask him to come in and gamble with us in the cotton market. We say to him, "If you will cut down your acreage, while your son raises his, or while he obtains some one else who will go out and raise more cotton, we will give you a certain percentage of this cotton upon which you may speculate, and if you lose we will pay the loss."

This bill invites gambling and speculation; and, as usual, the Government of the United States stands at the cross-roads to pay all the losses. We are not very consistent, Mr. President. We are not following Democratic principles as to the functions of government and the limitations imposed upon it; nor are we in harmony with the Democratic platform or with the declarations of our candidate for the Presidency, who will soon enter the White House.

Now, that is what this bill does. This bill is also sponsored by the American Cotton Cooperatives.

He ought to have said "one cooperative," the American Cotton Cooperative Association, this Creekmore corporation; this organization which has contributed to the payment of Mr. Creekmore $75,000 a year salary or compensation, which he controls and which he desires to perpetuate; and this organization, which is dominated by him, is demanding that it shall not surrender any of these profits illegitimately obtained in speculation at the expense of the Government, instead of turning them over to the Farm Board to reduce pro tanto the claim which the board has against the American Cotton Cooperative Association and the Stabilization Corporation for the more than $150,000,000 which legally and equitably it has against them.

They claim that they were stabilizing when they lost $60,000,000 of the Government's money.

It is more than $60,000,000, may I say—$20,000,000 first appropriated to pay the defunct, bankrupt cotton cooperatives of the South, 11 out of the 13, as I now recall, having become bankrupt. The Farm Board paid their debts to the extent of twenty millions. Then $63,000,000 were lost, and then ninety millions were lost, through the speculations and folly of the Stabilization Corporation under the direction of the Farm Board in cooperation with the A. C. C. A.

Yet we come in here and agree to take this cotton off their hands on a deal. We do not fix the market price. We say they may come in and deal with us. When the Government gets through with that dealing proposition, you will find this American Cotton Cooperative has segregated some millions of dollars, which they will take back into the market and speculate with and lose again.

He was interrupted by Mr. BANKHEAD:

Will the gentleman yield?

And after having yielded, Mr. Bankhead propounded this question:

Can the gentleman point out where the adoption of this resolution would increase the loss in cotton already suffered by the Government?

Mr. Hart. Nobody can point out whether we will increase or decrease the loss, because you are going into a speculative deal. You can not go into any commodity market unless you are speculating. There is no certainty about these markets. That has been the wrong assumption. That was the assumption of the Federal Farm Board—that they could stabilize; that they could orderly market and carry on the business different than the ordinary individual would. Now they say we will lose some money if we do not carry out this plan.

I say to you that within 30 days I can produce independent dealers in this country who will take this cotton off the market; take it off the hands of the cooperatives and pay the market price for it; men who know what they are doing with it; not a lot of politicians and propagandists who have been handling this deal, but substantial cotton merchants who have been marketing cotbut substantial cotton merchants who have been marketing cotton throughout the world for generations; not those who have made their money out of the Federal Treasury, but men with ability to judge the markets; men who know the quality of cotton; men who have built up their trade throughout the world. They will take that cotton off your hands at the market price, and the market will immediately rebound, because the world will have confidence in the men who buy it. To-day you are talking about reestablishing confidence in this country. You will never reestablish confidence by putting Government millions into speculation.

Mr. President, those are caustic and critical words, but I am inclined to think they are within the field of facts.

Mr. President, I ask leave to insert as a part of my remarks excerpts from addresses by Representatives STAF-FORD and HOPE yesterday in the House on this measure.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The matter referred to is as follows:

The matter referred to is as follows:

Mr. Stafford. Mr. Chairman, this is the most gigantic gambling proposition that has ever been proposed to the Congress.

Instead of the American Cooperative Cotton Association doing the gambling that cost the Government $53,000,000 out of the Treasury of the United States in their attempt to boost and hold the price of cotton for the 1929-30 crop and the 1930-31 crop, you are transferring that exploded proposition to a new board.

If I had not served on the special committee to investigate Government competition with private business and listened attentively to Mr. Creekmore, that $75,000 beauty who is vice president of the American Cooperative Cotton Association, I would not be presumptuous enough to take time at this moment to discuss this bill; but this bill is for the relief of the American Cooperative Cotton Association that in 1929-30 purchased 1,300,000 bales of cotton and of the 1930-31 crop purchased 1,770,000 bales which it now has in its possession, and paid to the farmers 90 per cent of the market price when the price was 15 cents. To-day they are holding the bag.

With loans from the Farm Loan Board of tens of millions of dollars and with loans from the banks of $10,000,000, this bill is dollars and with loans from the banks of $10,000,000, this bill is for the direct relief of the Hanover Bank, for the relief of the Chase National Bank, for the relief of the other New York banks from which this cooperative association has obtained loans. You want the Treasury to come to the relief of the banks. You want want the Treasury to come to the relief of the banks. You want the Treasury to come to the relief of the American Cooperative Association that to-day has over 3,000,000 bales of cotton hypothecated to secure these extravagant loans, and have the National Government hold the bag. Where is your consistency, except this consistency in wholesale plundering of the Treasury?

In 1929 and 1930 there was a surplus of 9,000,000 bales; in 1930 and 1931 there was a surplus of 10,000,000 bales; in 1931 and 1932 there was a surplus of 13,000,000 bales; and now you propose by this chimerical piece of economic legerdemain to attempt a curtailment of acreage of 30 per cept in an endeavor to stimulate the tailment of acreage of 30 per cent in an endeavor to stimulate the price.

Have you not received enough poison by reason of this artificial attempt against all laws of trade and against the laws of supply and demand in trying to artificially stimulate the price by the colossal failure of the Farm Board?

Why, even Mr. Creekmore had to admit that the law of supply and demand determines the price in the last analysis. Never before have I known such a gigantic proposal of sticking the hand into the Treasury for the benefit of private bankers, who have loaned millions to the American Cotton Cooperative Association, which is absolutely bankrupt. The Farm Board has loaned tens of millions to this association with a shoe-string capital of $79.500 all in the fountied endeavor to control prices of follows. $79,500, all in the fanatical endeavor to control prices in a falling market. Have you not had enough illustration of the futility of the Government attempting to bolster prices by withdrawing cotton from the market, when you can see from the figures I have given here and from the testimony which I have referred to and given here and from the testimony which I have referred to and which I have here, that such a plan is unworkable?

In these times, of all times, we should be circumspect. When I reentered Congress four years ago I voted against the agricultural marketing act, because I had no faith in it and because it was counter to every sound economic principle. As I am leaving Congress, I am going to vote against this gigantic socialistic venture, which not only equals that in its stupidity but goes farther into the Treasury and which will entail another loss of millions of dellars of the taynayers' money. Come out in the open and of dollars of the taxpayers' money. Come out in the open and admit that this is stabilization. It is going to fail, just as your efforts failed and were bound to fail under the agricultural marketing act. [Applause.]

Mr. Hope. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, all the discussion that has taken place on this bill so far has been upon the assumption that this bill is going to make the cotton farmer rich, if we enact it. I do not read in this bill anything of the kind. As a matter of fact, this is not a new plan. If some of you remember what was known as the Walla Walla wheat plan something like a year and a half ago, you will see that exactly the same plan is contemplated here. But the Walla Walla plan had more justification because of the fact that the Stabilization Corporation itself had the wheat on hand. It did not have to go and get it from the cooperatives, or the Red Cross, or from the Department of Agriculture. In order to put that plan in operation we did not have to start a new board. The Walla Walla operation we did not have to start a new board. The Walla Walla plan was presented to the Farm Board and they turned it down because they thought it would not work, after their economists had given it the most careful study. I studied the Walla Walla plan at that time and I was not convinced it would work, and I frankly told the proponents of the plan that I thought the effect of the Walla Walla plan, if adopted, might be to actually increase wheat acreage. What is likely to happen in this case if you adopt this particular plan? I hold in my hand here a statement some one sent around to us this morning, I presume one of the proponents of the measure, though not signed by anyone, and in this statement it is asserted that unless we pass this bill the this statement it is asserted that unless we pass this bill the acreage of cotton will be increased by from 5 to 10 per cent, and attention is called to all of the capital that is available for cotton production this year. If, in view of the present low price of cotton, the acreage is going to be increased from 5 to 10 per cent, I submit that if you say to the farmers that there is going to be a reduction on the part of some farmers, other farmers will not go into the plan and will increase production.

You are not going to be able to make contracts with all of the You are not going to be able to make contracts with all of the cotton farmers; there is not enough cotton to go around. The result will be that you will have some who will cut down production and others who will increase it, and nobody will know until the end of the year what the result will be, whether an increase or a decrease. Besides, production is dependent on weather as well as acreage. In 1930 the production of cotton per acre was 147.7 pounds, and the very next year, 1931, it was 200 pounds per acre. So you could very easily, on account of weather conditions, have an actual increase in production, even assuming you have some acreage reduction as suggested in this bill.

What you are doing here is setting up another farm board, an you have some acreage reduction as suggested in this bill.

What you are doing here is setting up another farm board, an organization to stabilize the price of cotton; an organization which has the power to take over cotton now held by the cotton cooperatives, and make a complete settlement with these cooperatives of the indebtedness which they now owe the Federal Government. The loss on these loans to-day is about $58,000,000. If you pass this bill, you are giving this board authority to go in and make settlement with these cotton cooperatives without any further investigation on the part of this Congress as to how that indebtedness was incurred, whether such a settlement ought to be made, or whether the cotton cooperatives have other property which could be taken over in payment of this indebtedness to the Government of the United States.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, since coming into the Chamber I have received a communication from a prominent resident of the South who has just obtained a copy of this bill as it passed the House; and in this communication he says:

I have just read the Smith cotton bill as amended by the House Agricultural Committee and reported to the House.

It passed the House, may I say, as it was reported.

The House committee removed all the safeguards and made the measure vicious in an important way. Were the House measure to prevail, the A. C. C. A. could keep all its assets and be relieved, at taxpayers' expense, of all its obligations.

Under the House measure there would be a new brand of uncertainty, trade fear, and concern, and in all likelihood American cotton would further decline in value.

The bill as passed by the Senate, if amended to include provision for a definite and known selling policy—say sales in lots not exceeding 500 bales, so as to attract many buyers, and in monthly quantities not exceeding 100,000 bales so as not to glut the market—would, I feel, bring about new confidence and a better market

But if finally adopted as the House has amended it, it would simply wreck all that remains of constructive marketing facilities.

But, Mr. President, as I have indicated, appeals of that character fell upon deaf ears in the House, and the bill which eliminated the safeguards provided in the Senate bill passed, but with a majority of only five.

Mr. President, as the bill is before us, it provides that this board can make any character of settlement it desires with the American Cotton Cooperative Association. I have before me some data showing the speculative activities of that association; that it would go and buy and sell, and sell and buy, in order to make a profit, and when losses occurred it would charge them to the Stabilization Corporation and load them upon the Farm Board, or, when there were profits, they would be put on a shelf by themselves, to be appropriated by Mr. Creekmore and the organization with which he is affiliated. They want now to keep those profits, no one knows how much-four, five, six, or ten millions; I have heard various amounts—they want to keep those profits, though the A. C. C. A., through its manipulations and activities, contributed to the loss of more than $150,000,000 through the activities of the Farm Board and its subsidiaries in buying and selling cotton in the United States, first $20,000,000, then $63,000,000, then $90,000,000, and we do not know what accumulating losses have occurred since those figures were submitted.

Mr. Creekmore's A. C. C. A. is a paper organization. It is not a cooperative. It is a corporation for speculation. Farmers do not own it. It is owned by a coterie that have derived profits from its operations. I have before me two volumes of the testimony taken by the Shannon committee in which the activities of Mr. Creekmore's organization are revealed. They show, in my judgment, a record that can not be defended.

Mr. Creekmore has been before various committees of the House and the Senate, admitting his compensation of $75,000 a year; admitting, as is shown by the record and by the hearings before the committee of which the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] is the chairman, that other members of that organization were receiving ten, fifteen, and twenty thousand dollars a year. They want to maintain this A. C. C. A. They want to seize upon or hold whatever profits have been realized from their activities, though their activities have resulted in losses of tens of millions of dollars to the Treasury, instead of turning what assets they have back to the Farm Board, and receiving credit, of course, upon the obligations of the A. C. C. A. and the Stabilization Corporation to the Farm Board.

But for some reason some concern was manifested in behalf of the American Cotton Cooperative Association. The Senate was determined that it should disgorge any funds in its possession and unanimously decided that it should not retain any of the speculative profits which it now holds, but that it should be compelled to turn them back to the Farm Board. The House struck out this provision, and Mr. Creekmore and the American Cotton Cooperative Association are to retain the speculative profits in their

Mr. President, this organization lost many millions in its wild speculations and passed the losses on to the Stabilization Corporation and the Farm Board.

Mr. President, I am disappointed in the action of the House. I feel sure that the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKellar] is equally dissatisfied with its action. I feel sure that all Senators who have investigated this matter, the policies and principles involved, must regret the action of the House.

I have said all that I care to say. Nothing will avail. This bill is slated to go through, but I want to register my opposition to it. I protest against projecting the Government again into the buying and selling of commodities and speculating in the market. I protest against creating another board which will, I believe, involve our Government in further losses and in further complications and will be utterly ineffective in bringing relief and benefit to the cotton producers of the United States or to agriculture

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House of Representatives. The motion was agreed to.

LOANS IN PUERTO RICO BY THE RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I report back favorably from the Committee on Territories and Insular Affairs the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 260) to validate an act of the fourth special session of the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the agricultural credit corporations of the Island of Puerto Rico, and for other purposes," approved October 21, 1932, and I submit a report (No. 1329) thereon.

Mr. President, this would authorize the Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee the repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It was thought they had the right to pass this law. It is a wise and a just law. This joint resolution would merely validate the law they have passed. There is no objection to it: there is need for haste, and I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be reported for the information of the Senate.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Whereas the fourth special session of the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico passed an act entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the agricultural credit corporations of the island of Puerto Rico, and for other purposes," approved by the Governor of Puerto Rico on October 21, 1932, and which reads as follows:

"SECTION 1. The Governor of Puerto Rico is hereby authorized and empowered to guarantee to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of Puerto Rico is hereby authorized and empowered to guarantee to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Finance Fina and empowered to guarantee to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation created by the act of the Congress of the United States known as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, the repayment of loans made by said corporation under the provisions of said act, and amendments thereto, to the agricultural credit corporations organized in Puerto Rico.

"Sec. 2. The total sum of any guaranty or guaranties given by the Governor of Puerto Rico to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation under the provisions of section 1 of this act shall not exceed $500,000.

"SEC. 3. In acting in accordance with the authorization hereby conferred the Governor of Puerto Rico shall furnish the guaranties hereby authorized, in such form and under such terms as may be mutually agreed upon between him and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Sec. 4. All laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. It is hereby declared that an emergency exists requiring that this act shall take effect immediately, and it shall, therefore, take effect immediately after its approval by the governor."

And
Whereas counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has held that this act is contrary to the organic act of Puerto Rico; and

Whereas it is convenient to the welfare of the agricultural interests of the island of Puerto Rico to permit the guaranty by the government of Puerto Rico of loans by the Reconstruction Finance to agricultural credit corporations organized under

Corporation to agricultural credit corporations organized under the laws of the island; and Whereas according to section 34 of the organic act of Puerto Rico approved March 2, 1917, the Congress of the United States reserves the power and authority to validate or annul all laws enacted by the Legislature of Puerto Rico: Therefore be it Resolved, etc., That the act of the fourth special session of the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to great the control of the temperature of Puerto Rico and the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to great Puerto Rico and the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico and Twelfth Rico and T

Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the agricultural credit corporations of the island of Puerto Rico, and for other purposes," approved by the Governor of Puerto Rico on October 21, 1932, is hereby validated.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I ask that the Senator from Connecticut make a brief explanation of the measure

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was authorized by the Congress to make loans to Puerto Rico. In order that they might do so properly, as to other States, it was necessary for the Legislature of Puerto Rico to pass an act authorizing the governor to prepare such papers as would guarantee the payment of the loan. It was ruled by the counsel for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that the Governor of Puerto Rico and the legislature did not have authority to enact such legislation under the organic act without validation by the Congress of the United States.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. And this gives that authority?

Mr. BINGHAM. This joint resolution does not give any authority, but it validates the act as it passed the legislature. Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Very well, Mr. President;

I see no objection to it.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution, which was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Haltigan, one of its clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 13520) making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House insisted upon its amendment to the bill (S. 5337) to amend the Federal farm loan act, as amended, to permit loans for additional purposes, to extend the powers of Federal land banks in the making of direct loans, to authorize upon certain terms the reamortization of loans by Federal and joint-stock land banks, and for other purposes, disagreed to by the Senate; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Steagall, Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Goldberough, Mr. McFadden, and Mr. Strong of Kansas were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

DISPOSITION OF DETERIORATED EXPLOSIVES

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a bill from the House of Representatives and calls the attention of the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. La Follette] to it.

The bill (H. R. 12047) to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the act entitled "An act to authorize the Secretary of War to exchange deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition and components, and for other purposes," approved June 1, 1926 (44 Stat. 680; U. S. C., title 10, secs. 1209, 1210), is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a section to read as follows:

"Sec. 3. In the administration of sections 1 and 2 of this act, as amended, the Secretary of War is authorized and directed to transfer the powder and other explosive materials from such deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition and components thereof to the Secretary of Agriculture for distribution and sale in such amounts and at such times as the latter may determine, to farmers at not less than cost, under such regulations as he may prescribe, for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes, by the Secretary of Agriculture. No expense in connection with such distribution and sale shall be borne by the War Department, and the Secretary of Agriculture shall reimburse the Secretary of War for the powder and explosive materials transferred under this section in amounts equal to the credits the Secretary of War would have received in an exchange under sections 1 and 2 of this act. Amounts so reimbursed are authorized to be made available for the expenditure by the War Department for ammunition or components thereof. The President is authorized to suspend the provisions of this section in case of national emergency."

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. President, this bill proposes to reestablish a policy of selling defective explosives to farmers which was in operation from 1920 to 1928. During that period deteriorated explosives in the possession of the War Department were transferred to the Department of Agriculture and sold to farmers for use in blasting, principally in clearing land. The provision worked very well during the eight years it was on the statute books. The revolving fund created in the Department of Agriculture to carry on the work was augmented by approximately $67,000 at the end of the period, due to the fact that the department charged a few cents per hundred more than the cost.

Under this bill it will be possible for the deteriorated explosives which are now, under the law, exchanged with the companies which manufacture explosives, to be turned over to the Department of Agriculture and the policy resumed of permitting these explosives to be sold to the farmers who desire to purchase them for land clearance.

There will be no expense to the War Department, nor will there be any loss to the Government, judging by past experience under the law as it was in operation from 1920 to 1928.

So far as I know, there is no opposition to the bill. It has passed the House of Representatives. General Hof, Chief of Ordnance, appeared and testified that the War Department had no objection to the bill providing an amendment was inserted which has been incorporated in the measure.

In view of the shortness of time before the adjournment, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill. I have conferred with the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary], who had charge of the legislation when it was previously enacted, and he is in agreement that the legislation is properly drawn, and that it is wise to enact the measure.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I yield.

Mr. KING. Has the Senator considered the wisdom of providing that, upon request of farm organizations, the War Department should turn over these deteriorated explosives? The point I have in mind is this, that we are perpetuating or creating another Federal agency in the Department of Agriculture, and the farmers have to go to the Department of Agriculture, if we do not arrange that they shall go to the places where explosives are obtained, without the interposition of an agency the cost of which, of course, would be upon the Federal Government.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. President, I will say to the Senator from Utah that my understanding is that the manner in which these explosives were made available to farmers heretofore under the law, from 1920 to 1928, was somewhat as follows: Arrangements were made by the department, through the agricultural colleges and experiment stations; and, through them, the agricultural county agents ascertained how many farmers in a particular area desired to purchase these deteriorated explosives suitable only, as I understand it, for blasting purposes.

They then certified the amount which was desired to be purchased in the particular community, the shipments were made, and a charge was made by the department sufficient to cover all of the cost; and, as I stated a moment ago, at the end of the 8-year period there was $67,000 more money in the fund than at the time it was created, which I think should be some assurance to the Senator that this would not put any inordinate expense upon the Government.

At this particular time in many of these areas where lands are owned and awaiting clearance, the Senator knows there has been some influx of unemployed, people returning to their homes, and I believe that furnishing these explosives at reasonable prices would enable many of those who have thus returned to their homes to clear more land and to provide products for their own subsistence.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I have no objection to the bill. I suggest to the Senator that a case was brought to my attention—I am not sure whether it involved explosives or not—in which it was claimed that some defective explosive was delivered and in handling it the person who got it was injured and insisted that the Government should pay for the injuries which he sustained. I suggest that the Department of Agriculture, if it does not do so, should take proper releases from persons who obtain these explosives, so that there will be no comeback on the Government.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. So far as I know, Mr. President, no such claim has ever been given any serious consideration. Of course, persons handling explosives may be injured. Explosives are dangerous if handled by one who is not familiar with them. But, judging by previous experience, I think it is fair to state that these defective explosives were very helpful, and we can hope for a similar efficient administration of this provision of law if it is passed.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Wisconsin that the Senate proceed to consider the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

AIR TRANSPORT SERVICES

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8681) to develop American air transport services overseas, to encourage the construction in the United States by American capital of American airships for use in foreign commerce, and to make certain provisions of the maritime law applicable to foreign commerce by airship.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I object to the consideration of the bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill has been heretofore laid before the Senate, and was temporarily laid aside.

Mr. KING. I shall have to ask for a quorum.

Mr. BINGHAM. Will not the Senator withhold that for a moment?

Mr. KING. Certainly.

Mr. BINGHAM. It is my intention to ask that the bill now pending be temporarily laid aside and that we take up the District appropriation bill, which I have been holding back for two or three days, in order to allow other matters to go through. It is very important that we get this appropriation bill passed.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me to make a motion?

Mr. BINGHAM. Certainly.

REGULATION OF INTERSTATE COMMERCE IN PANAMA CANAL

Mr. JOHNSON. Yesterday there came to us from the House Senate bill 4491, duly passed by the House with certain amendments. Thereupon, at the request of some of the members of the Committee on Commerce, which committee had reported the bill originally, I asked that the Senate disagree to the amendments of the House, that there be a conference, and that conferees be appointed. Conferees were thus appointed. The papers have not yet, I understand, gone over to the House. If they have, I want now to move that they be returned, because those who then asked that a conference be held now ask that the amendments be concurred in and that the bill become a law finally by action of the Senate.

I move first, Mr. President, that we rescind the action of the Senate by which conferees were appointed; and, if the papers have gone to the House, that they be recalled.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, to what bill does the Senator refer?

Mr. JOHNSON. The Senator from Florida [Mr. Fletcher] will recall Senate bill 4491, a shipping bill, which was passed by the Senate last year. The bill went to the House, and has been passed by the House now with certain amendments. I have just explained that it was asked of me by certain members of the Committee on Commerce that a conference be held, and acting for the Commerce Committee I made the motion; but those who then made the request have this morning told me that the amendments are satisfactory to them; and fearing that there would be no legislation of the character they desire, they have asked that the amendments of the House be concurred in and accepted, and on behalf of the committee I make this motion.

Mr. KING. I have no objection.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, the request of the Senator will be granted.

Mr. JOHNSON. I move now, Mr. President, that the amendments of the House on that bill be concurred in.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from California moves that the Senate concur in the House amendments to House bill 4491.

The motion was agreed to.

POSTPONEMENT OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURES

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, those who have indicated that they are especially interested in the bill (S. 5639) providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing the postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years, and for other purposes, have reached an agreement under which I think the bill can be passed without further debate.

Mr. BROOKHART. Mr. President, I am interested. What is the agreement?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The agreement is to strike out section 5 which has relation to the advancing of $100,-000,000 to the joint-stock land banks. The whole section is to go out.

Mr. BROOKHART. Of course, I would much prefer to have the whole section remain in the bill, but I am for the bill with the section out.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. We propose to strike out that section and I think we can dispose of the bill and thus assure some chance of action by the body at the other end of the Capitol.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, will the Senator permit a question?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Certainly.

Mr. REED. Does the amendment now proposed strike out the provision which allows the payment of mortgage interest and principal in the form of joint-stock land bank notes?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Yes; the whole provision relating to the advance to joint-stock land banks in section 5 goes out of the bill under the arrangement, and if consent is given for just a few minutes I think we can dispose of the bill. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, may I inquire if this is what is known as the Hull-Walcott bill?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. That is the bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas? The Chair hears none.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 5639) providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing the postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years, and for other purposes.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, pursuant to the statement which I just made I move to amend by striking out section 5 of the bill and to renumber the sections.

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield just a moment?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Arkansas yield to the Senator from Oregon?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Certainly.

Mr. McNARY. Has the matter been submitted to the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. Hull] and the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. Walcott], the authors of the bill?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. It has not been submitted to the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. Hull], but I understand it is satisfactory to the other Senators interested.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, that provision was not contained in the bill as introduced by the Senator from Tennessee. It was added by the committee just before the bill was reported and I am satisfied that its elimination would be satisfactory to the Senator from Tennessee.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Tennessee to strike out section 5.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. If there are no further amendments the question is, Shall the bill be engrossed and read a third time?

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time and passed.

PRICE HUFF

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I was told that the House had amended the Senate amendments.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The House disagreed to the amendments of the Senate and have asked for a conference.

Mr. REED. I move that the matter be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Pennsylvania a question?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. McNARY. At the time his request was submitted my attention was distracted. Did his request have reference to the War Department appropriation bill?

Mr. REED. No; it is a small private bill. Mr. McNARY. Very well.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business may be temporarily laid aside and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the formal reading of the bill be dispensed with, that the bill be read for amendment, and that the committee amendments be first considered.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MEDICINAL LIQUORS

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. COPELAND. Will the Chair tell me how I may bring up and get consideration of a bill relating to the prescribing of medicinal liquors? Can it be done by motion? I do not wish to displace the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Will the Chair please inform one who is ignorant of the particular procedure how he may get the bill before the Senate?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The only way is by unanimous consent or by motion, which would displace the appropria-

Mr. COPELAND. I ask unanimous consent that after the disposal of the District of Columbia appropriation bill and the bill of which the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] is in charge, the Senate shall proceed to consider the bill (H. R. 14395) relating to the prescribing of medicinal liquors.

Mr. ASHURST. Mr. President, I rise to request order. There is so much confusion in the Chamber that it is impossible to hear what is going on.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate will be in order. Will the Senator from New York repeat his request?

Mr. COPELAND. I ask unanimous consent that after the disposition of the District of Columbia appropriation bill and the bill of which the Senator from Oregon [Mr. Mc-NARY] is in charge, the Senate shall proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 14395) relating to the prescribing of medicinal liquors. I ask that that bill may be made the order of business at that time.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, there is so very much confusion in the Chamber I could not hear the Senator. What was his request?

The VICE PRESIDENT (rapping for order). The Senate will please be in order. The Senator from New York will restate his request.

Mr. COPELAND. I ask unanimous consent that after the disposition of the District of Columbia appropriation bill and the present unfinished business, the bill (H. R. 14395) relating to the prescribing of medicinal liquors may be made the order of business.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. ODDIE. After that is disposed of I ask that the gasoline tax bill be laid before the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. We must dispose of one matter at a time. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from New York?

Mr. BROOKHART. I object.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. COPELAND. The Senator from Iowa objected to the proposed unanimous-consent arrangement. Would it be in order to move that that arrangement be entered into?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It would take a two-thirds vote to make the bill a special order.

Mr. COPELAND. I am not sure that it would be wise to make such a motion at this time.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. LONG. Would it not be possible by a majority vote to proceed to the consideration of the medicinal liquor bill now?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair stated that it might be done by a majority vote, but that it would set aside and displace both the pending appropriation bill and the unfinished business.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, may I appeal to the Senator from Iowa? The medicinal liquor bill is not a wet or dry proposition. It has been agreed to generally. It is agreed to by the Prohibition Bureau, by the Attorney General, by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and I know of no opposition from any dry organization. If the Senator will read the report submitted to the House he will learn the reasons why it is important to have the bill passed. I hope the Senator will withdraw his objection.

Mr. BROOKHART. Mr. President, I have just taken some expert advice-medical advice, too-on the bill and I have had some experience in the courts on the medicalprescription stuff. I am not impressed by the statement of the Senator from Wisconsin, so I can not withdraw my objection.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, may I be allowed to inform the Senator from Iowa that I believe it would help improve what we are getting in the District of Columbia at the present time and would not lessen the quantity.

Mr. BROOKHART. The Senator is more of an expert on that matter than I am. [Laughter.] I insist upon my objection.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Objection is made. The clerk will state the first amendment to the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The Chief Clerk proceeded to read the bill.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 2, line 7, before the words "is appropriated," to strike out "$6,500,000" and insert "$9,500,000," so as to read:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to defray the expenses of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, any (not including the proportionate share of the States in any revenue arising as the result of the expenditure of appropriations made for the fiscal year 1924 and prior fiscal years) now required by law to be credited to the District of Columbia and the United States in the same proportion that each contributed to the activity or source from whence such revenue was derived shall be gradited whall to the District of Columbia derived shall be credited wholly to the District of Columbia, and, in addition, $9,500,000 is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be advanced July 1, 1933, and all the remainder out of the combined revenues of the District of Columbia, namely.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

POSTPONEMENT OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURES

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I was anxious to obtain the floor on yesterday, but I did not want to interfere with the passage of the resolution which was then pending. It is not my purpose to discuss the amendment which has just been reported to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, and I hope I shall occupy only a very brief period of the time of the Senate.

On Monday, when the so-called bankruptcy bill was before the Senate, it had been my intention to offer an amendment thereto. The amendment which I had intended to offer had been printed. I did not know that the Senate would complete consideration of the so-called bankruptcy bill on Monday evening. However, it was necessary for me to leave the Chamber about 5 o'clock, and after that hour the bankruptcy bill was passed and thus I had no opportunity to offer the amendment which I had intended to offer.

I then had intended to offer it as an amendment to the so-called Hull-Walcott bill (S. 5639) providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing the postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years. I have been necessarily absent from the Chamber for a while, and I am just this minute informed that that bill was passed a few moments ago. There was no quorum call. I am very much interested in that bill. I therefore find myself in a position where I can not offer to that bill the amendment which I had intended to offer to the bankruptcy bill. Therefore, I am persuaded to move that the vote by which the Hull-Walcott bill was passed shall be reconsidered.

There were a number of Senators who were interested in the bill, but there was no quorum called. I understand that does not excuse a Member in any respect whatever, but in the confusion that exists here on the floor it is sometimes impossible to know what business the Senate is really transacting. I do not understand why there should be any urge for haste; at least there ought to be an opportunity to consider such important legislation. For that reason, I move that the vote by which the bill was passed be reconsidered.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair will suggest that the motion should be entered now, the bill not being before the Senate at this time.

Mr. BLAINE. May I inquire where the bill is, Mr. President?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator might move to proceed to the consideration of the motion to reconsider, but that would displace the pending appropriation bill, unless it were done by unanimous consent.

Mr. BLAINE. I should like to know whether the bill is in the Senate or where it may be, so that we may know what course to pursue.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair is just informed that the bill is in the office of the Secretary of the Senate.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, may I suggest to the Senator from Wisconsin, if it will serve his purpose, that he simply enter the motion to reconsider and let us consider the proposition later. Would that be satisfactory to the Senator?

Mr. BLAINE. I ask unanimous consent that the vote by which the bill was passed may be reconsidered.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Wisconsin that the vote whereby the amendment was agreed to and the bill passed may be reconsidered?

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I gave notice yesterday and to-day that at the first possible opportunity the bill to which the Senator from Wisconsin refers would be brought before the Senate. I took the first opportunity to do that. An arrangement was entered into which made the bill satisfactory to those who have been heretofore opposing it. There are only two days of the session remaining. If any opportunity is to be afforded the House of Representatives to consider this bill, which is designed to stop for a period of two years foreclosures of farm mortgages, the bill must get to the House at a very early hour. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin will not insist upon reconsidering the vote by which the bill was passed. If he does so it may defeat all prospect for the legislation.

What is the amendment that the Senator wishes to propose? I understood him to say it had relationship to the bank-ruptcy act.

Mr. BLAINE. The amendment I have mentioned is the same as Senate bill 5640, a bill to liquidate, finance, and refinance agricultural indebtedness. It was particularly germane not only to the bankruptcy bill but also to the Hull-Walcott bill bearing upon the same subject, dealing with the same proposition. I want to say to the Senator from Arkansas that it is not my purpose to delay the passage of the Hull-Walcott bill. I am, indeed, unfortunate in this that I am not privileged to be on the Senate floor at all times, and while I do not offer that as an excuse, yet, Mr. President, it was understood here this morning that after the disposal of the Black resolution we would take up the bill, as I understand, that came over from the House of Representatives relating to some subsidy for ocean mail service by lighter-than-air craft, and that that bill would be temporarily laid aside for the consideration of the bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia. Resting upon that assumption, I was absent from the Chamber when the Hull-Walcott bill was called up, considered by unanimous consent, and disposed of.

Mr. President, as I understand, the bill has not been messaged to the other House. If I should enter a motion to reconsider, would that have the effect of retaining the bill in the possession of the Senate?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It would.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I am not anxious to retain that bill in the Senate for any great length of time; it is not my purpose to delay its consideration; but if I am forced into this situation, then, Mr. President, I shall enter the motion.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. As I understand, the bill to which the Senator refers, which he seeks now to incorporate into the measure which recently passed the Senate relating to the suspension of farm-mortgage foreclosures, was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and no action whatever was taken by that committee. It is apparent to me that to reopen this question and inject into it so large a proposition as is involved in the bill of the Senator from Wisconsin will result in the failure of all legislation relating to mortgage foreclosures. I should like very much, of course, to accede to the suggestion of the Senator from Wisconsin for reconsideration, but it occurs to me that the bill which he seeks to incorporate as an amendment to the measure already passed is one of very great importance.

The subject matter of this bill has been under consideration by the Banking and Currency Committee of the Senate for some weeks; the committee is continuing its hearings on the subject; it has made no report, and I am morally sure that if the question shall be reopened the only result of doing so will be to deprive the body at the other end of the Capitol of all opportunity to consider the proposed legislation for the suspension of farm-mortgage foreclosures as provided in the so-called Hull-Walcott bill.

I hope the Senator will treat his bill as an independent proposition and not insist upon attaching it as an amendment to the bill that has already passed, for to do that, as already stated, would make necessary reconsideration and probably provoke a prolonged discussion in the Senate. Only two days remain of the session, and that is little enough time; indeed, it is too little time for the body at the other end of the Capitol to act on the so-called Hull-Walcott bill. It is certain that to open this very large proposition, which is of very great importance, and which is incorporated, perhaps, in a half dozen measures before the Committee on Banking and Currency, will be to encompass the defeat of all such legislation. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin can see his way clear to treat his own bill independently.

Mr. BLAINE. I would be very happy to follow the suggestion of the Senator from Arkansas, but I have a deep sense of responsibility respecting legislation for the aid of agriculture. In my humble opinion, the bill which I introduced, which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, goes to the very root of the difficulties that confront agriculture, while all other bills that have passed the Congress or passed the Senate or passed the House of Representatives are largely in the nature of attempts to extend the time when debts will finally come due and must be paid, to create additional debtor classes, and to heap a greater burden upon agriculture even than it now bears.

I do not regard the bill to which I refer as one that needs a great deal of explanation. It is a very simple proposition. I undertake to adjust the present machinery of the Federal land-bank system to the plan which is outlined in the bill, and it seems to me, Mr. President, notwithstanding the fact that this bill is before the Committee on Banking and Currency, that it should be taken up and considered by the Senate.

I wish to recur to the so-called bankruptcy bill and to state that one section of that bill, as I recall, received no hearing whatever at the hands of any committee. I refer to the railroad section of the bill, which was not considered by the Judiciary Committee; in fact, as I understand, only one section of that bill was given consideration there; that was the individual-debtor section, and that received scarcely any consideration whatever by the Judiciary Committee, indeed, not more than 15 minutes being devoted to the consideration of that bill. Yet there was a persistent and insistent demand here that that legislation should be considered by the Senate.

The character of the bill to which I refer is of far more importance to agriculture than all the legislation, embracing some 30 bills, that has passed the Congress in very recent years. It ought to be given consideration.

Therefore, Mr. President, if we are to give the farmers of this country any hope whatever for the restoration of agriculture, it must be through some plan by which the capital structure will be reorganized and the entire system of financing agriculture will be reorganized. It is not going to be reorganized and saved through any system of advancements whereby additional debtor classes and additional agricultural obligations are created. There has not been a single bill passed by this Congress in the six years during which I have been here that has, in fact, reduced agricultural indebtedness one penny. The effect of every bill looking toward the financing of agriculture that has passed the Congress has been to increase agricultural indebtedness in this country, and to heap higher interest upon interest, compounded interest, and debts upon debts.

So, Mr. President, when this great industry faces the situation so familiar to all of us, I think the Senate of the United States can take a few hours in the consideration of a bill which goes to the proposition of an entire refinancing plan for agriculture in America.

Now, Mr. President, I desire briefly, for the information of the Senate, to outline the provisions of the bill.

Under section 2—I am speaking now of S. 5640, introduced by myself—the Federal Farm Loan Board is directed to liquidate, finance, and refinance all farm mortgages and farm indebtedness, and to extend credit to farmers eligible under the Federal farm loan act, which eligibility is set forth in paragraph 6 of section 12 of the Federal farm loan act.

Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. I assume that my motion to reconsider has been entered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Dickinson in the chair).

It has

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry: As I understand, the Senator from Wisconsin has made a motion to reconsider, or given notice of an intention to make a motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has entered the motion. Mr. CLARK. Then he has made the motion?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has entered the motion.

Mr. CLARK. Then, Mr. President, if he has made the motion to reconsider, a further parliamentary inquiry: Is a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table now in order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is.

Mr. CLARK. Then, Mr. President, I move to lay on the table the motion to reconsider.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I have not yielded the floor, and the Senator from Missouri has simply trespassed upon my good nature. I am not unwilling to yield for a question.

Mr. CLARK. But, Mr. President, as I understand the situation, the Senator from Wisconsin originally gave notice of a motion to reconsider, proceeded to address himself to the subject matter which he desired reconsidered, and now proceeds to enter the motion, at which time a motion to lay on the table should be in order.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is the understanding of the Chair that a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table is in order.

Mr. BLAINE. I have not made a motion.

Mr. JOHNSON. I make a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. JOHNSON. If merely a motion to reconsider has been entered, how is it possible to move to lay it on the table before the motion is made?

Mr. CLARK. The Chair stated-

Mr. JOHNSON. I think the Chair is in error.

Mr. CLARK. That is what I was trying to find out. The Chair stated that the motion to reconsider had been entered, had been made. Therefore a motion to lay it on the table should be in order.

Mr. JOHNSON. My understanding of what the Senator from Wisconsin has done is simply to propose a motion to reconsider, and not to enter a motion or make a motion to reconsider at this time.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. NORRIS. Is it not necessary, in order to make a motion to lay on the table, that the Senator should have the floor when he makes it? Can he interject, without getting permission of the Senator who has the floor, and make that motion?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska is correct.

Mr. CLARK. But, Mr. President, the Senator from Wisconsin originally gave notice of an intention to make a motion to reconsider, and then interrupted his own speech to make the motion to reconsider, at which time a motion to lay on the table should be in order without obtaining the floor from the Senator from Wisconsin.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In the opinion of the Chair, the Senator from Wisconsin did not yield the floor except for a parliamentary inquiry, which is always in order, but not for the purpose of making a motion to lay on the table. The Senator from Wisconsin still has the floor.

Mr. WALCOTT. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry: Do I understand that the motion for reconsideration has actually been declared adopted?

Mr. BINGHAM. Oh, no!

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No.

Mr. WALCOTT. Then it is merely before the Senate. It has merely been entered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Just entered.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, a point of order. I did not understand the Senator from Wisconsin to make any motion but to give notice of his intention to make the motion at some future time.

Mr. BLAINE. I entered the motion. The motion can be made later on and passed upon.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. FESS. I think there was confusion at the desk. The Senator from Wisconsin has not made a motion to reconsider. He has simply announced that he entered the motion. The entering of the motion is not subject to tabling; and that was the confusion.

Senator from Wisconsin has not made his motion to reconsider-

Mr. FESS. He has not.

Mr. CLARK. I do not contend that I am entitled to make a motion to lay on the table. If he has made it, I submit that I am entitled to make a motion to lay on the table.

Mr. FESS. That is correct.

Mr. CLARK. That was the substance of my parliamentary inquiry to the Chair.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I inquire of the Senator from Wisconsin whether he made a motion to reconsider.

Mr. BLAINE. I desired to enter a motion to reconsider. Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator merely gave notice that he would make a motion. That simplifies the

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, a further parliamentary inquiry in order to clarify the situation. What is the technical difference between entering a motion and making a

The PRESIDING OFFICER. As the Chair understands. in practical effect there is no particular difference; but the Senator from Wisconsin has had the floor all the time, and has not yielded it for any purpose.

Mr. BARKLEY. He could not give notice of a motion and enter a motion and then make the motion, all with the same holding of the floor.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. He has not done that.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me? The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. BLAINE. I do.

Mr. FESS. The difference is that entering the motion to reconsider suspends it, and it may not be called up after the adjournment of the Senate unless some one makes the

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Why, Mr. President, a Senator entering a motion to reconsider may make the motion within two days unless some other Senator gets the floor and makes it sooner. Any Senator has the right to make the motion, having voted in the affirmative, if he can get the floor.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, there is some confusion. Anyone can make the motion to reconsider within two days; but if he enters it, then he can make it within a year afterwards if he wants to. That is why we enter the motion; and the entering of this motion can defeat this legislation entirely.

Mr. BARKLEY. The entering of a motion may postpone action indefinitely.

Mr. FESS. Certainly.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin has the floor.

Mr. BLAINE. As I understand the parlimentary situation, the bill is still in the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BLAINE. Now, Mr. President, I will proceed with an explanation of Senate bill 5640, which I had intended to offer as an amendment to the Hull-Walcott bill.

While probably repeating, I point out that under section 2 the Federal Farm Loan Board is directed to liquidate, finance, and refinance all farm mortgages and farm indebtedness, and to extend credit to farmers eligible under the Federal farm loan act, which eligibility is set forth in paragraph 6 of section 12 of the Federal farm loan act, providing that loans shall be made to any person who is engaged or is about to engage in the cultivation of the farm proposed to be mortgaged, with not exceeding 3 per cent interest and 1 per cent on the principal per annum.

The maximum loan is fixed at $15,000, but preference shall be given to applications for loans of $5,000 and under. This limitation is necessary in order to prevent the financing of corporate farming and to discourage speculation in farm

Mr. CLARK. There is no dispute about that. If the | lands. The bill limits the financing to the farmer-owned and farmer-operated farm.

The facilities of the Federal land banks shall be used for the purpose of carrying out this act.

Under Section 3, the funds with which to carry out the refinancing of agriculture shall be provided by the issuing of farm-loan bonds by the Federal farm-loan system, through the Federal Farm Loan Board and the Federal land banks, the bonds to bear interest at the rate of not to exceed 3 per cent, and to be secured by first mortgages on farms. The Treasurer of the United States is authorized to invest the proceeds of the franchise tax received from the Federal reserve system, amounting now to about $150,000,000, to support the par value of the bonds.

Under Section 4, if all the farm-loan bonds are not readily purchased, then the Federal land banks shall present the remainder to the Federal reserve banks, which shall forthwith issue and deliver to the Federal land banks Federal reserve bank notes, which are now provided for by the Federal reserve act. Federal-reserve-bank notes are of substantially the same character as Federal-reserve notes and other currency issued against securities and collateral. This provision does not introduce into our monetary system any different character of currency than is now possible under existing laws.

One-half of all payments of interest are to be placed in a sinking fund invested in municipal, State, or United States Government bonds, to assure the stability of the bonds and also as an assurance against defaults in the honds

The Federal Farm Loan Board is to continue as the governmental agency to supervise the Federal land banks.

By section 6 of the bill, a board of agriculture, consisting of four members from each land-bank district, to be elected by the farmers in a practical and democratic way, is created. Such board of agriculture will be the liaison officers between the farmers and the Federal Farm Loan Board and the Federal land banks, and will directly represent the farmer borrowers. That board will meet annually, and each member is paid a reasonable per diem with necessary traveling expenses while on official business.

Such board of agriculture will select an executive committee consisting of three as the immediate and direct representatives of the board of agriculture, and thus the representatives of the borrowing farmers, and they shall be paid a salary of $7,500 a year and traveling expenses while on official business. The executive committee will conduct the general business in behalf of the board of agriculture and the borrowing farmers.

The details of the method of electing the board of agriculture and selecting the executive committee thereof are provided for in sections 7, 8, 9, and 10.

Sections 11, 12, and 13 specify in broad terms the powers and duties of the board of agriculture and the executive committee thereof. The trouble now respecting agricultural loans through any Federal agency is that bureaucratic organizations have been built up, without much regard for agricul-

The board of agriculture and the executive committee, being direct representatives of the borrowing farmers, will emphasize at all times the fact that agriculture is the foundation of our economic structure.

The executive committee of the board of agriculture is to counsel with and supervise the work of the liquidating, financing and refinancing of farm mortgages and farm indebtedness, and shall have power, in case of crop failure or other emergency, to extend the time payments due on loans from time to time for a period not exceeding three years, provided that the mortgagor pays the taxes and insurance premiums on the mortgaged property.

The bill is brief and readily understood. Practically all of the red tape under the Federal farm loan act is eliminated. There will be no stock issued by the Federal land banks, and the Federal land banks will be put in a position to liquidate and settle farm mortgages owned by them or by any other financial institution or by individuals, and thus liquidation can proceed without severe shock to farmers who are now swamped with farm indebtedness.

For future farming, as to all future loans, the plan set up under this proposal will be a separate and distinct organization, using the facilities of the Federal Farm Loan Board, an existing governmental agency, as the administrative agency, in cooperation with the board of agriculture and the executive committee thereof, for long-term financing. All other Federal farm-loan agencies or undertakings will liquidate, through the usual processes, and will cease to function, without further or other legislation, except temporary emergency agencies. Such agencies always have existed and always will exist whenever there is an emergency that should be met. But as to long-term financing, all governmental agencies of every character will go out of business in the usual processes of liquidation.

I understand that the refinancing of farm mortgages will not exceed from a billion to two billion dollars a year, and as the Federal reserve bank notes are issued, such issue, in the course of banking practices, will gradually retire other currency issues, or the various currency issues will be interchangeable, to accommodate agriculture, commerce, and industry.

The plan is not designed as an inflationary measure. have endeavored to divorce the financing of farmers from all inflationary proposals. Inflationary proposals should be considered separate and aside from the proposals contained in the bill, as the refinancing of agriculture should not be caught in the jam of the controversy over inflationary measures.

I ask that the bill be printed in full in the RECORD at this place in my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?
There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That this act shall be known by the title "the farm loan act."

SEC. 2. The Federal Farm Loan Board is hereby authorized and directed to liquidate, finance, and refinance farm mortgages and other farm indebtedness now existing and to make loans and extend credit to farmers eligible under the Federal farm loan act, as amended, secured by first mortgages on farms, to an amount equal to 80 per cent of the fair value of such farms, including the land mortgaged and the value of insurable buildings and improve-ments thereon, through the facilities of the Federal farm-land banks and national farm-loan associations, and to make all neces-banks and national farm-loan associations, and to make all necessary rules and regulations for the carrying out of the purposes of this act: Provided, however, That the amount of loans to any one borrower shall in no case exceed a maximum of $15,000, nor shall any one loan be for a less sum than $100, but preference shall be given to applications for loans of $5,000 and under, such loans to be made at a rate not to exceed 3 per cent interest and 1 per cent principal per annum.

SEC. 3. The funds with which to carry out the provisions of section 2 hereof shall be provided by the issuing of farm-loan bonds by the Federal farm-loan system, through the Federal Farm Loan Board and Federal land banks, as now provided by law, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed 3 per cent per annum and be secured by first mortgages on farms. Such bonds, after delivery to the Federal Farm Loan Board, may by it be sold at par to any individual or corporation, or to any by it be sold at par to any individual or corporation, or to any State, National, or Federal reserve bank, domestic or foreign, or to the Treasurer of the United States. The Treasurer of the United States is authorized to invest the proceeds of the franchise tax received from the Federal reserve system to support the par value of the bonds issued pursuant to this act.

SEC. 4. In case all of said farm-loan bonds are not readily purchased the Federal land banks shall present the remainder to such Federal reserve bank or banks as the Federal Farm Loan Board and the Federal Reserve Board shall designate, and said reserve bank or banks shall forthwith issue and deliver to the aforesaid land banks Federal reserve bank notes, as now provided by law, to an amount equal to the par value of such bonds as are presented. Such farm-loan bonds are to be offered by Federal reserve banks and accepted by Federal reserve agents as the sole security for all Federal reserve bank notes issued under the provisions of this act: Provided, however, That bonds issued prior to the effective date of this act under the Federal farm loan act shall not participate in any of the funds, securities, or benefits provided for in this act.

SEC. 5. The Federal land banks shall turn over one-half of all payments of interest and principal on such farm-loan bonds, for which the Federal reserve banks issue Federal reserve bank notes, to the reserve banks holding such bonds, and shall be by them reinvested as a sinking fund in municipal or State bonds and in bonds of the United States Government, to meet defaults in such bonds and to assure against the depreciation of such bonds.

SEC. 6. There is hereby created a board of agriculture consisting of four members from each land-bank district, elected by sisting of four members from each land-bank district, elected by the farmers of such districts, who shall be elected biennially by delegates selected by a mass convention of at least 10 farmers in each county or parish within the United States, who are indebted and declare it to be their intention to take advantage of this act: Provided, however, That all elections held subsequent to the year 1933 shall be participated in solely by members of the national farm-loan associations, and that in the election of members of the board of agriculture each district delegate shall be eligible to cast as many votes as there are members in his national deligible to cast as many votes as there are members in his national farm-loan association, county, or parish convention.

SEC. 7. The district delegates so elected shall meet at the situs of their respective land banks and elect four members of the of their respective land banks and elect four members of the board of agriculture, who shall hold their offices from the date of such election and for a period of two years from March 4 following, and who shall receive $15 per diem and necessary traveling expenses and subsistence while on official business, to be paid by the United States Government.

SEC. 8. The Federal Farm Loan Board is hereby authorized and directed to give public notice, through the Federal land banks, to the farmers of each county or parish of the time and place of holding the first county or parish convention, which shall be held at the seat of government of each county or parish; and it shall at the same time give notice of the first convention of the district delegates, to be held in the city in which the land bank is located, notice of such convention to be given at an early date after the passage of this act. after the passage of this act.

SEC. 9. The farmers attending such county or parish convention and the district delegates attending such district convention shall organize and make such rules and regulations for their procedure as they deem necessary or convenient, and shall elect a president and a secretary and make arrangements for such other and future conventions as they may deem necessary, and they shall at all times cooperate and assist the board of agriculture, the Federal Farm Loan Board, the Federal land banks, and national farm-loan associations in carrying out the provisions of this act: Provided, That subsequent to the 1933 elections all national farm-loan associations shall succeed to the powers and duties heretofore conferred upon parish and county conventions.

SEC. 10. Immediately after their election the members of the board of agriculture, upon call of the Federal Farm Loan Board, shall meet at Washington, D. C., and organize by electing a chairman and a secretary, and they shall make such rules and regulations as they deem necessary and expedient in carrying out the purposes of this act. They shall elect an executive committee of three, none of whom shall be members of the board of agriculture, who shall hold their office at the will of said board, and who shall receive a salary of $7.500 per annum, and necessary traveling expenses and subsistence while on official business, to be paid by the United States Government.

SEC. 11. The members of the board of agriculture shall report to the executive committee the progress of liquidating, financing, and refinancing farm mortgages and farm indebtedness in their respective districts.

SEC. 12. The executive committee of the board of agriculture shall counsel with and supervise the work of liquidating, financing, and refinancing farm mortgages and farm indebtedness by the Federal Farm Loan Board and the Federal Reserve Board. They shall report any member of the farm loan system or the Federal Reserve Board who neglects, hinders, or delays the carrying out of the provisions of this act to the President of the United States, who may thereupon remove any such person.

SEC. 13. The executive committee of the board of agriculture shall have power in case of crop failures or other emergency to extend the time payments due on loans made under this act from time to time for a period not exceeding three years, provided that the mortgagor pays the taxes and insurance premiums on the mortgaged property.

SEC. 14. The provisions of the Federal farm-loan system and the Federal reserve banking system shall apply as far as applicable in carrying out of the provisions of this act; and all laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith are for the purpose of this act repealed.

Sec. 15. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated a sum sufficient to carry out the provisions of this act.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, this bill, as every Senator will appreciate, is germane to the Hull-Walcott bill. I shall analyze the Hull-Walcott bill. I do not recall the amendments which have been adopted, but they do not affect materially the bill as it was reported to the Senate.

What does the Hull bill do? It is to be administered through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to make available half a billion dollars, that is, $500,000,000, for what purpose? To lend to the farmer? No. To lend to the mortgagor? No. To whom is the loan to be made? Under the Hull-Walcott bill the loan is to be made to the creditor of the farmer, to be made to the mortgagee, and that mortgagee, I assume, may be a bank, an investment company, a life insurance company, any corporation or any individual. So the Hull-Walcott bill is not a measure to refinance agriculthat it is a bill to create another class of debtors.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. BARKLEY. The Senator realizes, of course, that it has been the policy of Congress, in providing funds to be loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to provide that they shall accept primary security in return for the loans. The farmers who are intended to be protected or relieved by this measure are those who already have first mortgages on their farms, and who have been unable to pay the interest or amortization or taxes for a period of 6 or 12 months, as the case may be.

Manifestly, where a farmer has already given, either to a land bank, or a joint-stock land bank, or to an insurance company, or to any other organization or to an individual, a first mortgage on his farm, he could not give another first mortgage, and the Government has never yet been willing or consented to accept second security for the money which it lends.

Therefore, in order to make this bill of any service whatsoever to delinquent farmers, it was necessary to make the loan to somebody who could give the Government equal security with that which they hold themselves, and only in cases where the lender to the farmer has paid the taxes, or taken care of the delinquent interest or amortization, can this money be loaned in lieu of the loan to the farmer, because he can not give to the Government a first mortgage on his property, somebody else holding a first mortgage from him. That is the reason why this bill provides that the money shall be loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the mortgagee, because the mortgagor is not in a position to give the Government any security that is

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I am well aware of the situation which the Senator describes, but I wonder whether the Senator from Kentucky can with his mind's eye get a picture of the farmer with a first mortgage on his farm who is in default in interest, principal, and taxes. Of what benefit is it going to be to that farmer to have additional advances made by the Government of the United States through this intermediary body? The Senator ought to know that the cost involved in the transaction is a cost that is going to be paid by the farmer, when the mortgagee consents to do what is prescribed. So it is an attempt simply to heap upon the farmer another burden.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, there would not only be no additional cost, but the farmer would get a material reduction in the interest which he would have to pay to the mortgagee, and he would get an assurance that there would be no foreclosure proceedings instituted for at least two years. In the present circumstances, when we are trying to pass some legislation to hold off foreclosures until Congress can pass a permanent law for refinancing farm mortgages, and get a rate of interest of 4 per cent, something to enable the farmer to feel safe for at least two years would certainly be of some benefit and some relief to the distressed farmers of this country.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, the Senator from Kentucky has not in his mind's eye this farmer to whom I refer.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I have had nothing else in my mind's eye for weeks. I know all about him. He exists in my State, no less than in Wisconsin, and in all the other parts of the country. The mail of all of us has been burdened with the pleas of the farmers, who are being put off their farms by foreclosure proceedings, to do something to relieve them; if we can not do something for permanent relief at this session, to do something temporarily, until we can pass a permanent act.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I still insist that the Senator has not this farmer in his mind's eye. He can ride along the beautiful paved highways of the State of Kentucky and see the farmsteads as he goes along, but I fear that the Senator from Kentucky has not been in very close communication with many farmers in the United States. I think that if the Senator had had some recent experience with ture. There can be nothing else read out of the bill than | lending agencies, he would have found that neither the farmer nor the mortgagee could turn his hand without somebody taxing him for some charge and for some costs. Whatever the provisions of this bill may be, it will be found that in the end there will be necessity for abstracts, the examination of the abstracts, appraisals, expenditures of every class and character, and somebody will have to pay the bill; and in the past, with respect to all these projects, it has been Mr. Farmer who has paid the freight. What assurance is there that the farmer is protected against that burden by anything in this bill? There is none at all.

Of course, Farmer Jones always pays the freight. It is true that he would receive a reduction in interest on a small portion of debt. A loan might be made for default for more than six months in the payment of mortgage interest and principal due under the terms of the mortgage and delinquent taxes in arrears for more than 12 months, and during the 2-year period the rate of interest, is 4 per cent; but on the balance of the debt-that is, the greater portion of the debt-the old rate, compounded, perhaps, will continue.

Mr. President, under the provisions of the Hull-Walcott bill, for two years there is a postponement of the defaulted interest and principal and taxes. After the 2-year period has gone by, what happens to the farmer? I again ask the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. Barkley] to place in his mind's eye the farmer. Two years have passed by. Not one dollar has the debt been reduced. In the meantime there has been an accumulation of taxes. The same old rate of interest, all the way from 5 to 8 per cent, on the balance of the principal, which constitutes the largest part of the farmer's indebtedness, is grinding on. For the 2-year period that interest on the balance of the principal is not discharged under the bill. Moreover, during the 2-year period, while the farmer is struggling along, 4 per cent interest is charged on a small portion of the indebtedness, but the interest upon the interest on the balance of the principal is piling higher and higher. At the end of two years what do we have?

We will assume a farmer's mortgage of $10,000. We will assume that his default is $1,000. The $1,000 principal in default, and taxes and interest, bears 4 per cent interest. Then we have $9,000 in addition to the $1,000 in default, and interest upon that at the old rate. At the end of the first year of the 2-year period we have the interest upon the interest. We have the accumulation of taxes during the two years. At the end of the 2-year period we have all these accumulations of interest, taxes, interest upon the principal plus the defaulted interest, principal, and taxes, and the interest upon those items, heaped upon the farmer.

Can any Senator for one moment conscientiously suggest to a farmer in debt to the extent of $10,000 that he is being offered a single item or penny of relief? I doubt if there is a Senator on the floor of the Chamber at this time who would have the courage-no, the dishonesty, if you pleaseto suggest to a farmer that he will receive any relief whatever so far as the actual financial condition of the farmer is concerned. It is preposterous. It is worse than preposterous. It is deception. How long are we going to continue thus to deceive the farmer?

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Florida?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. FLETCHER. What the Senator is pointing out would depend altogether on the regulations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. There is nothing in the law that requires them to make these charges. The law does not require a reduction of the interest.

Mr. BLAINE. The original indebtedness still continues to bear the original rate of interest fixed in the bond or the note the farmer has given.

Mr. FLETCHER. Only the advances due to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that take up the interest, installments, and taxes.

Mr. BLAINE. That is 4 per cent.

Mr. FLETCHER. Under the farm loan act the borrower has to pay 8 per cent.

Mr. BLAINE. Yes; he is getting a small reduction on the interest, taxes, and the installment unpaid, which is a very small portion of the total indebtedness. He is getting that reduction for two years, but point out to me what substantial relief that is to the farmer.

Mr. FLETCHER. It stops foreclosure for two years. No one can foreclose his mortgage.

Mr. BLAINE. Oh, it stops the foreclosure! Better that the foreclosure had proceeded than to chain that farmer to servitude of more debts for two years. Relief to agriculture? No. Mr. President, it is deception.

Mr. President, the proposal in the Hull-Walcott bill is a moratorium, but it is a moratorium in the true sense. It means financial death to agriculture and to the farmer who is driven to accept this type of deceptive legislation. Then Senators urge the necessity of the bill immediately going to the House, that it should not be delayed for a single moment, that it should not be considered for any length of time, that no amendments should be considered, but it should be driven through the Congress.

I submit if we would have an upturn in affairs in the next year or in the next two years, so that the farmer might receive cost of production plus a reasonable profit for the products of his farm, then indeed it might serve the farmer some to stay the possibility of foreclosure, even though such a harsh measure is applied. But when agriculture has a capital structure such as was builded during the war, such as was builded during the period of inflation, it is unfair to the present generation of farmers, it is a crime against the future generations of farmers, to tie the farmers and the future generations of farmers to a capital structure, the support of which will mean absolute and abject slavery for the farmers. The farmer's back is bent under the present load of debt. Under the scheme proposed by the Hull-Walcott bill his back will break under the added load of debt.

My objection to the bill to which I called attention, the additional charge to the farmer, can be dismissed. I simply pointed out the fact that some one is going to pay those charges. But that is not the material weakness of the bill. In fact I could waive that. My objection is that it is being represented to the farmer, and the farmer is being deceived into believing that we are extending him aid by creating another class of debtors and putting the farmer deeper in debt.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Louisiana?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. LONG. I am not very well posted on the provisions of the bill, but I have understood that the bill would grant a two-year extension on mortgages and reduce the rate of interest. That is all I thought the bill did. I thought it allowed the farmers an extension of their mortgages for two years instead of foreclosing them now, and reduced the rate of interest from 8 per cent to 4 per cent. I would like to see a lot more done for the farmer, but it does that much, does it not?

Mr. BLAINE. Yes; but how much is that?

Mr. LONG. It is not enough.

Mr. BLAINE. It is nothing. It is worse than nothing.

Mr. LONG. Oh, I do not agree to that.

Mr. BLAINE. It is a moratorium, it is true, but it is financial death to the farmer. It means financial sacrifice to the farmer, binding him for two years to more debts.

Mr. LONG. Is it not better to give him two years than to close him out now?

Mr. BLAINE. A farmer who is going to be closed out in two years ought not be deceived. He ought to save, presently, something from the wreck. To deceive him for another two years is placing him under a system of involuntary servitude for that period tary servitude for that period.

Mr. WALCOTT. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Connecticut?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. WALCOTT. The term "involuntary servitude," it seems to me, is pretty far-fetched. I shall take only a moment of the time of the Senator from Wisconsin, but he has just stated that it would be better for the farmers to have their farm mortgages foreclosed now than to be placed under the conditions of the bill. He now suggests that to have their mortgages extended for two years puts them in a condition of "involuntary servitude."

Mr. BLAINE. Let me interrupt the Senator. I do not want the Senator in my time to lead the Senate to believe that this bill does what he is now saying it will do. The Senator is evidently not very familiar with the bill that he prepared or assisted in preparing. The bill does not reduce the rate of interest on the mortgage debt. It simply reduces the interest on that part of the debt—that is, the delinquent taxes, the defaulted interest, and the default in installment payments—but the interest on the balance of the debt which constitutes the main portion of the principal indebtedness. The rate of interest, if it is 8 per cent, continues throughout those two years and the taxes and compounded interest mount higher and the total debt increases.

Mr. WALCOTT. Mr. President, that is perfectly correct. I do not claim that there is any reduction in the interest or the principal of the debt, and, in my own time, I shall explain it further, but I do claim that the bill, if enacted, will afford an enormous moral and mental relief to the thousands upon thousands of mortgagors who have had their mortgages foreclosed and those who are facing foreclosure; and I can show the enormous increase in the number of those mortgagors and the importance of bringing them quick temporary relief while we work out some permanent plan. This bill, I claim, will afford that relief.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, the Senator when he first interrupted me, as I recall, said that when I used the language "involuntary servitude" I was using pretty strong language. There is no other or truer characterization of this measure than that it is "involuntary servitude" for two years for the farmer. His consent is not obtained but only the consent of the mortgagee. The mortgagor is led to believe he is getting something; a deception is being worked upon him; the farmer is being fooled. The Senator knows and I know that no farmer under this bill, should it become a law, is going to receive a single dollar by which he can discharge his indebtedness. Can there be any other result? I am not claiming the Senator is engaged in any personal deception; it is a legislative deception; and it is not the intent of course of any Senator personally to offer this as a deceptive piece of legislation; but nevertheless it is deceptive legislation; it is fooling the farmer, and I have undertaken to point out wherein it fools the farmer.

Mr. WALCOTT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a moment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Connecticut?

Mr. BLAINE. I yield.

Mr. WALCOTT. It not only is not deception, but if the farmer does not wish to accept the offer which this bill would allow to be tendered him he does not have to do so. There is nothing forced on the farmer. It is a purely voluntary act on his part; and that offer, if he chooses to accept it, will bring him the relief that his farm and his home can not be taken away from him for two years while Congress is considering a more permanent measure. If that is deception, then I do not know the meaning of the word. That, to my mind, is a kindness, although it is not saving any dollars of his with the exception of foregoing a part of the interest which he has to pay to the mortgagee. The Senator from Wisconsin and I agree entirely on that. It is not expected to be charity, but it is offering him something that has real value for his mental and moral relief and for his actual financial relief, provided conditions get better in the next two years and the prices of his commodities pick up and allow him again to earn money.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, I am quite sure the farmers of this country will be very happy; they will be delighted; indeed, they will be cheered when they learn from the lips of the Senator from Connecticut that this is to be a "moral and a mental relief" to agriculture. Agriculture is not deficient either in mentality or morality; and the farmer does not need either the "moral relief" or the "mental relief" that these guardians of the farmer want to extend to him. God pity the farmer if he is to have this guardianship extended over his life and the life of his family even for the period of two years. I thought the cat would soon get out of the bag if we could have this bill considered for a reasonable time.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wisconsin yield to the Senator from Montana?

Mr. BLAINE. Yes; I yield.

Mr. WHEELER. All we have been giving the farmer in the last four years is moral and mental relief, is it not?

Mr. BLAINE. Yes, and that is what the farmer has been getting for a long time from business men and bankers who have wrecked the country and who have wrecked our economic structure. The farmer has been receiving gratuitous advice from those gentlemen, and now he is to receive the guardianship of other gentlemen in the Senate and in the House of Representatives.

Mr. President, I perhaps have used some very strong language, but I think it is justifiable. Oh, it is true that the farmer must sign up something, I presume, on the dotted line. He has got to acknowledge his poverty of course, he must go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and acknowledge his poverty. That is true. He will do that voluntarily, I presume; yes, he must execute and acknowledge a certificate setting out the facts as to his default in the payment of taxes; he must certify that he has not paid the interest; he must certify that he has not paid the installments which are due, and the mortgagee is thereupon to be paid such delinquent taxes in accordance with the terms of the mortgage.

So the farmer must come as a beggar on his knees and certify to his poverty, so that the mortgagee may be put in the debtor class as an intermediary between the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the farmer, and then it is said that this is offering relief to agriculture. If I were at a crossroads or on the farm, my characterization of this legislation would be expressed in one word—bunk!

I think I know something about the farmers—at least the farmers in my State. It has been my privilege to live among the farmers during my lifetime and to have undertaken to serve agriculture of my State, as I understood it, not only in a personal way but also in an official way and also in a neighborly way; and I think I understand something about agriculture. I think I understand something about the mental operations of the farmers—the organized farmers and the unorganized farmers. During the 4 years-yes; during the last 12 years-of agitation I have yet to find a single communication from an individual farmer, either from my own State or any other State of the Union, ever suggesting that the Congress of the United States should undertake to perpetrate upon the farmers of this country the deception that is contained in the bill known as the Hull-Walcott bill. After the farmer has dragged himself through his poverty and made complete confession of that poverty before some notary public or some other official, after he has certified to his poverty and to his distress, then the mortgagee may obtain a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Now, let us take a few more views of the farmer; let us look at him back upon the farm. Perhaps the mortgagee was his predecessor upon that farm; perhaps the mortgagee was once a farmer who operated that farm and sold it to the mortgagor. Mr. President, it ought to be obvious to anyone that that neighbor, who himself perhaps has no other means of support than the interest upon that mortgage, who, perhaps, has retired and for the few more years he has to live upon this earth has a little income from this mortgage; certainly he can not be expected to join in the humiliation of the farmer and in effect in his involuntary servitude. Ah, Mr. President, if you so expect, you do not know the American farmer; you misjudge him.

It may be a bank that is the mortgagee. Will that bank take advantage of this ill-advised proposal? Scarcely. If that particular bank holds one or several mortgages, it is inconceivable that it is going to handle the individual cases. I am just analyzing what takes place back in the country among the farmers. No; the bank will go to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and obtain a lump sum, or else it will not continue long in business in that agricultural community; at least it will not continue long to have the support of that agricultural community.

If it is an insurance company—a great life-insurance company, or a small life-insurance company, or any character of insurance company—is it conceived for one moment that that insurance company is going to ask these individual farmers to confess their property and certify to their distress? Certainly not. That is inconceivable.

Then I ask, Is it some financial institution, or a building and loan association? While I am speaking of the farmer now, what I have said can be applied as well to the home owner in so far as the bill authorizes him to confess his poverty and his distress. Can any Senator conceive of any financial institutions, building and loan associations, or other similar institutions, asking the individual home owner or the individual farmer to certify to his distress and his poverty? No.

Well, then, let me ask, what other creditor of the farmer or the home owner is going to go through this process? I can conceive of none. I can conceive of no mortgage creditor of the farmer who would ever consent to undertake this kind of a scheme for agricultural relief.

Mr. President, when the bill is analyzed, when it is subjected to consideration of its detailed operation in practical effect, I can come to no other conclusion than that it is a mere pretense, a sham, a deception, and unworthy of the time of Congress to consider its passage or approval.

Mr. President, we hear much complaint in these days about the Congress. I have heard in private conversation and I have heard on the floor of the Senate some strong intimations in severe criticism of the press gallery, of the newspapers of this country, because of their attitude toward the Congress and the criticisms that are made; but I want this afternoon frankly to advise the Senate and the United States that back upon the farms there is almost an entire lack of confidence, not only in the Congress but in government. That lack of confidence arises not through ill will toward democracy, not through ill will toward parties, not through ill will toward Members of the Congress—but that lack of confidence arises because of the repeated deceptions that have been imposed upon the farmers of this country by the Congress and by Presidents and by Cabinets.

I am not surprised that the farmers take the law into their own hands. I am not surprised that they resort to force to protect their homes and their firesides. I am not surprised that they go on strike. I am surprised that they have not gone further in protecting their homes and their firesides. When I suggest that even though their action may involve violence, it involves also a higher law, the right of self-preservation.

Mr. President, this sort of legislation for the farmer has been going on for quite a considerable time. As I said the other day, as I understand, there were some 30 measures, all bearing the robe and cloak of farm relief. To those measures we have added two more—one, the so-called debtors' provision; another, the Hull-Walcott bill; and I think, Mr. President, that I can no better serve the people of my country than to review the last two proposals of farm relief.

Mr. President, I have very inadequately described the Hull-Walcott bill. I have discussed it only from the standpoint of the farmer. It does more than harm to him; it is harmful to the country. It is harmful to the credit of the United States. During the last few months there have been attempts to raid the Treasury of the United States, through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and we find the credit of our Government sagging; we find its bonds falling below par; and if this sort of thing continues for any length of time, the Government of the United States will find itself where it, too, will need to resort to insolvency proceedings. I am not going into that feature of the bill.

I shall take some time to poke a little fun at the so-called farm-relief debtor bill.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, does the Senator mean the Hull bill?

Mr. BLAINE. No; the bankruptcy bill for the relief of farmers. I want to point out these matters for this reason: I do not know whether it will receive general consideration by the press, but I want to emphasize that practically every piece of legislation that has been passed under the cloak of being in aid of agriculture to-day finds agriculture deeper and deeper in the mire of distress and debt. Why?

Mr. President, the larger portion of those measures can be characterized only as I have characterized the Hull-Walcott bill. From the standpoint of relief, they were merely bunk. The farmers of the country know that language, and appreciate the force of it, and have expressed it with a greater degree of force than I can express it.

Now, let us look at some more of this bunk—"Relieving the farmer"—"Moratorium"—"Saving his home from fore-closure"—"Saving his home from sheriff's sale." Let us see what some of the proposals are.

No one has pointed out how a single foreclosure is going to be prevented under the Hull-Walcott bill; and, if prevented, nothing has been brought to the attention of the Senate that persuades me that at the end of two years he will be any better off than he is to-day. My own conviction is, as I have pointed out, that the farmer will be in far greater distress, with more debts, more obligations, and a heavier burden to carry.

The Hull-Walcott bill is only one futile method of extending a moratorium to the farmer. I want to point out another scheme, the bankruptcy bill.

Section 77 of the bankruptcy bill provides that courts of bankruptcy are authorized, upon petition of at least 15 farmers within any county who certify that they intend to file petitions under that section, to appoint for such county one or more—now, note—one or more referees to be known as conciliation commissioners.

"Conciliation commissioners"—one or more in each county of the United States!

Well, I can envision what is going to happen. You know, we have a lot of farm leaders in this country. Many of them have been honest, sincere, and determined leaders, men who have not for one moment misled or betrayed their fellow farmers; but we get a new growth of farm leaders every once in a while nearly everywhere. It will be found under this bill that it will be that character of "savior" for the farmer who will be running around in the several counties of the United States with a petition to be signed by 15 farmers, and when he gets that petition signed he will file it with the court of bankruptcy; and immediately, he being the leader of the county, the one man interested in protecting the farmers of the county, he will be appointed conciliation commissioner as a matter of course, because he will have the indorsement of these 15 farmers.

This job is not to be laughed at in these days of unemployment. That is the method by which a conciliation commission is initiated. But, of course, the bill is very careful to provide that no individual shall be eligible to appointment as a conciliation commissioner unless he is eligible for appointment as a referee in addition, and, in addition, is a resident of the county, familiar with agricultural conditions, not engaged in the farm-mortgage business, or the business of financing farmers, or transactions in agricultural commodities, or the business of marketing or dealing in agricultural commodities. It is very careful to provide the qualifications for a conciliation commissioner. But I think the country can be assured that there will be enough gentlemen seeking the jobs who will be able to qualify for the jobs.

Now, what happens? We have the 15 farmers who are all going into this form of bankruptcy. It is said it is not bankruptcy, that this is a debtor section. I can conceive no distinction between an individual who undertakes to discharge his debts under this method and the individual who undertakes to discharge his debts under an ordinary bankruptcy proceeding or through an insolvency proceeding.

It does not make any difference by what name he is called, he is a man who can not pay his debts. He is to be pitied. But they did not want to stigmatize him as a bankrupt, so they call him a debtor. That is a great consolation to the man who is in debt and who is in poverty. It is a great satisfaction, I am sure, Mr. President, to be able to realize the distinction between yourself as a debtor who can not pay his debts and as a bankrupt. It is a fine distinction, but I presume these conciliation commissioners will be able to work out that distinction. I doubt whether the farmer will ever be able to detect it. He is too keen for that, he has too much common sense. He is not imbued with this everlasting overflow of "bunk," and he sees things as they are. He faces the sun as it rises. His eyes are clear, and his mind is honest.

Not only is a conciliation commissioner provided for but the court may appoint a supervising conciliation commissioner, and the importance of this Senators will be able to ascertain a little later in my discourse, or in the debate upon this question.

The supervising conciliation commissioner is to have such functions as the court may by order specify. There is to be a conciliation commissioner appointed, a supervising conciliation commissioner appointed, and now we will ascertain the process.

Upon the filing of any petition by a farmer or creditor under this section there shall be paid a fee of $10 to the clerk of the court.

That is to go into the Treasury of the United States, I presume. But that is only one ten-dollar bill for each farmer. The conciliation commissioner under this bill will receive for his services, including his expenses, $10 for each case docketed and submitted to him. That is to be paid out of the Treasury of the United States. Note that the conciliation commissioner will receive $10 for each of these cases. But that is not all. The supervising conciliation commissioner will receive for his services a per diem allowance, to be fixed by the court, but not in excess of $5 a day, together with sustenance and travel expenses in accordance with the law applicable to the Department of Justice.

That is, he will get his $5 a day, he will receive his Pullman fare, his hotel bill, his taxicab fees, his porter charges, and all those other little white metal pieces which he may or may not pay out during his travel in and among the counties of the State. That is all to be paid out of the Treasury of the United States.

As I understand, under this bill there can be just as many supervising conciliation commissioners as the court desires to select. Let us see just what happens. There are 48 States in the Union. I do not know how many counties there are in the 48 States, but it must run into quite a considerable number—I would assume into the thousands. So we will have the conciliation commissioner for each county, a number of supervising conciliation commissioners, and those gentlemen are to supervise the farmer while the farmer is getting himself out of debt. I will point out how they proceed, how they supervise, the tremendous power they will have. I want to be absolutely accurate.

Note the provision, Mr. President, if the creditors at any time desire supervision over the farming operations of a farmer—this is enough to make a farmer scream—the cost of such supervision shall be borne by the creditors or the farmer. Think of an honest farmer out there in his field having these officials attached to him. While he plows the soil in the spring, and plants his seed, cultivates the corn and the cotton, and harvests the corn and the cotton, here is a supervising conciliation commissioner over here and a supervising conciliation commissioner over there getting $5 a day and expenses for supervising the farmer.

exactly the absurdity of the law and not my characterization of it that makes it ridiculous.

Let us see what else there is:

But in no case shall the farmer pay more than one-half of the cost of this supervision.

That is real relief for the farmer. He is protected to the extent of one-half the cost of these supervisors. This is the bill which the Senate passed not very long ago-just a few days ago.

What can we expect the farmer to think of a Congress which writes into legislation—and I am speaking seriously now-that kind of "bunk"? I am not surprised that a legislative body falls into disrespect when it passes that character of legislation.

Mr. President, that is not all. There are many details of this bill which I can not take the time to discuss. Not being satisfied with bringing the farmer under this section, the exemption of the farmer under the individual-debtor section was taken out by amendment, so that he is brought under the two provisions. Therefore the farmer has three ways in which to go into bankruptcy: First, under the general bankruptcy act, under a voluntary proceeding; second, under the individual-debtor section; third, under the so-called farmerdebtor relief provision.

I am speaking now only of the last method by which he can go into bankruptcy. Unfortunately, however, the third method does not discharge him from his debts. That is the unfortunate situation, perhaps, a farmer may face. I shall confine my discussion to this one method.

The bill provides that not more than half of the cost of supervision shall be charged against the farmer. I do not know who drafted this bill, but very shortly after the provision splitting the costs 50-50 it seeks to protect him from all the charges in these conciliation-commissioner cases. That is a wise provision. He will get the supervision of the conciliation commissioner and the supervising conciliation commissioner without paying anything for it, unless he agrees to pay one-half of the cost; but the Government says he must not pay more than one-half of the cost for that supervision. That is very generous to him.

The Supreme Court of the United States, under this act, will have to take a course in agriculture. I can not see any escape from that.

This great court, on the bench of which, of course, there are no farmers, is to issue general orders to govern the administration of the office of conciliation commissioner. Here is a conciliation commissioner over in Posey County or some other county, and this great judicial organization must prescribe rules for the conduct of his office. Mr. President, a mere recital of the bill without any expression of opinion must convince anyone that its provisions are perfectly ludicrous, silly, ridiculous.

After five years, thanks to something or somebody, there will come an end to the conciliation commissioner and the supervising conciliation commissioner. By that time the law will have expired by its own terms unless another Congress renews or extends it. That is one redeeming feature about it. But let us examine briefly what may be done within those five years.

A petition may be filed by any farmer or by any creditor of such farmer. Do not worry about the farmer's part of it. He probably will not bother himself about this act excepting to obey the subpæna and order of the court. A petition may be filed by any creditor of a farmer stating that the farmer is insolvent—that is, bankrupt—and unable to meet his debts, and that it is desirable to effect a compromise or an extension of time to pay his debts. The purpose of the bill, I assume, is to bring about a composition of debts or to bring about an extension of the time within which to pay the debts. The first undertaking would be a laudable one, but does anyone think for a moment that the creditors of a farmer, who are usually the local merchants, the local implement dealers, perhaps the local doctor, possibly a note at the bank-those are about the only creditors the farmer has-does anyone assume that creditors of that character

Do you say that is ridiculous? It is ridiculous, but it is are going to compromise any more quickly or expeditiously under a conciliation commissioner than they would voluntarily? Common sense leads us to a conclusion with respect to that matter. The character of creditors of the farmer is such that they would compromise without having this tin-pan county conciliation commissioner intervening.

But that is the purpose exactly. We can come to the same conclusion respecting the extension of time for the payment of the farmer's debts. I am not complaining about that, but let us see what we have to go through. Let us see the processes through which the farmer must go before there is any possibility of composition or an extension of the terms for the payment of the debts.

He must answer. Then he must file an inventory of his estate. The bill enshrouds the farmer with a great deal of protection, saying that no attorney shall be necessary to appear in his behalf. When the farmer confronts this petition, when he must file a schedule and inventory, when he is subpensed to go to court to be examined, I dare say that he will never escape the necessity of consulting a lawyer. It is not what the bill says he may not require. It will be what the farmer in his own mind believes to be for his own best interests and protection.

Then he must file an inventory of his estate. I do not know why the drafters of the bill did not say his debts instead of an inventory of his estate. One would think he was a millionaire living up on the Hudson River in his grand estate. But he has to file an inventory of this country estate of his. Then he is marched off to court. He is subpænaed. In my own State he will be required in some cases to travel nearly 400 miles before he can get to court. The railroad fare is $3.60 or $3.80 for each and every hundred miles, and in addition he will have to pay his overnight hotel bills; but when he is commanded he must go to court and be examined.

The creditors, being somewhat suspicious of the farmer, then appoint a committee to submit to the conciliation commissioner a supplementary inventory of the farmer's estate. Why, Mr. President, the bill must have been drawn by somebody who lives on Fifth Avenue and practices law in the twenty-third story of a Wall Street office building, but whose knowledge of agriculture would seem to indicate that he might have obtained it when he visited a menagerie or the zoo, where he probably had seen a sacred ox. There is to be this inventory of the farmer's estate and a supplementary inventory of the farmer's estate. Then the proceedings are gone through, and the conciliation commissioner, who has general supervision, as I shall point out, fixes the time within which application for confirmation shall be made, and then various other proceedings follow.

Let me point out that after the filing of the petition and prior to the confirmation or any other disposition of the composition or extension proposal by the court, the court is empowered to "exercise such control over the property of the farmer as the court deems in the best interest of the farmer and his creditors." Read that to a farmer who is in debt. Just read that one sentence in the bill to a farmer who is burdened with debt and get his opinion of this character of legislation. The court is to exercise such control over the property of the farmer as the court deems to the best interest of the farmer and his creditors. Why, Mr. President, before I succeeded in having an amendment adopted to the bill providing for his exemptions and allowances, the bill as originally drafted, apparently drafted by some one who knows nothing about agriculture or agricultural conditions, would have placed under the control of the court every stitch of his clothing, every article of his personal property, and the homestead of the farmer as well.

Mr. President, the point I make respecting that is that those who drafted and initiated this legislation were not thinking about the farmer. The supervision by the court is not exclusive. I should qualify that. From the standpoint of the rule of law the court's control is exclusive, but the bill gives additional control or other control or supplemental control over the farmer's property to another official, and I shall now turn to that paragraph of the bill. I do not have the original draft of the bill before me so I are not give the reference, but I believe it is under subdivision or subsection (h).

It is not so under this proposed law. He is tied down to a servitude so long as his creditors may persuade the court that there is an opportunity for them to drain from him.

Under that paragraph the composition or extension proposal—may also include specific undertakings by the debtor during the period of the extension, including provision for payments on account, and may provide—for supervisory or other control by the conciliation commissioner over the farmers' affairs.

This is the control feature-

They are bound to get the farmer controlled; first, by the courts without his consent; second, by the conciliation commissioner with his consent; and, third—the control has not yet ceased; after this general control by the courts, and after this supervisory or other control; whatever that is nobody knows—there is to be "supervisory control and other control" over the farmers' affairs. Then, to tie this thing down, to nail it down, to clinch the nails, and be certain that the farmer would be under complete and absolute protection and guardianship, there is a provision in the bill giving blanket control to the court. I will read that paragraph. It is subdivision (n)—

The filing of a debtor's petition or answer seeking relief under this section shall—

Remember now that the filing of a petition for relief—that is, a petition by the creditor, a petition by the man to whom the farmer owes money—the filing of a petition by that man subjects the farmer—and his property, wherever located, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court.

Ah, they were certain to protect and aid the farmer!

Mr. President, the general bankruptcy law was a very carefully and intelligently drafted proposal. A great deal of time was taken in the drafting and consideration of that law. We do not find any such silly provisions in that law. A farmer may come under that law voluntarily if he so desires; but when the creditor of the farmer once files a petition under this proposed law, the farmer has no other course which he can follow, and no other proceeding which he may undertake. He is hog-tied by this proposed legislation which is going to become a law, as I understand, even as soon as this afternoon.

Mr. President, I presume I should have discussed this bill before it passed. I have no other excuse to make than that I was unable to be in the Chamber at that time for reasons that are well known to many of the Senators. I did not have the opportunity. So I do not regard it as unfair to the Senate, under the circumstances, to criticize this bill, as I think it justly deserves criticism.

So, Mr. President, under the original draft of this bill, without the amendment which I submitted and which was adopted, protecting the farmer as to his exemptions and allowances, the court would have had exclusive jurisdiction not only of the farmer but also of all his property. The filing of the petition pleading for relief under this section shall subject the farmer and his property wherever located to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court.

The farmer is to be subjected to these tender mercies. What does that provision mean in law? It is a double-barreled proposition. First, it subjects the farmer to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court, and that means the person of the farmer; that means the farmer's household; that means his wife; that means his children; that means his hired man; that means the help upon the farm—the control of the farmer. So it may be possible for the court, under that broad power, to put the farmer in servitude during the period for the consideration of the composition. That may be a year, it may be two years, it may be five years under this bill, and there would be no escape from it.

Under the present bankruptcy law the farmer may file his petition in a voluntary proceeding, select his exemptions, his personal property, his homestead, abandon all the rest of his property, and make himself free from the very moment that there has been an adjudication of bankruptcy.

It is not so under this proposed law. He is tied down to a servitude so long as his creditors may persuade the court that there is an opportunity for them to drain from him the last drop of blood, to extract from him the last ounce of energy, to take from him and his family every opportunity of freedom of choice. That is the legal effect of that provision.

Whether or not the Supreme Court of the United States would sustain it, I do not know; but our Supreme Court, as I recall, has said that under the broad power of enacting uniform bankruptcy laws the Congress might even provide death as a penalty for the violation of the law. This proposed legislation must be sustained, if it shall be sustained at all, upon the theory that Congress is legislating under the power to enact uniform laws on bankruptcy. exercising that power, and under the power conferred upon the court by subdivision (n), the court could command the farmer to stay upon his farm, to cultivate that farm, and do any act in connection with the conduct of that farm that might be prescribed by the court. The farmer's failure to obey would mean punishment for contempt, and that would mean a jail sentence. Yet that is the kind of a law, that is the kind of an act, that was proposed in the Senate and passed by the Senate.

What I have said has reference to the person of the farmer. The provision to which I have alluded, of course, would authorize a court in imposing involuntary servitude upon the farmer by way of punishment for the violation of an order of the court.

Do not mistake what may be done under this provision. The power is there, and the power once possessed by a court is usually exercised by a court. Make no mistake about that, either.

That is the person of the farmer; and, of course, that will go to his family so far as the farmer exercises control over his household. That means his children under 21 years of age. That means that those who are in his employment must obey, or they may be subjected to the penalty for disobedience.

Now, the control of his property: I will repeat the provision—

The filing of a petition pleading for relief under this section shall subject the farmer and his property, wherever located, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court.

If the House does not strike out the amendment which I offered, and which was adopted here, protecting the farmer in his right to his exemptions and allowances, there is some protection left to the farmer. If the House should fail to concur in that amendment, Mr. President, then the legal effect of this provision is that every piece of property, personal and real, belonging to the farmer or belonging to his family, will be under the control of the court. There never has been, in the history of the United States, the enactment of legislation of this kind that has gone so far to jeopardize the personal rights and the property rights of any single class in this country as does this bill; and yet this bill is paraded as aid to agriculture, while denying to the farmer his elementary constitutional rights!

Then, Mr. President, the leader on the Democratic side pleads with me not to disturb the Hull-Walcott bill, to give it a chance to be passed in the House. Let us not consider legislation that is of particular relief to the farmer, that goes to the root of his problem, that will discharge his debts, that will permit him to unload that burden of debt, is in effect his plea.

Mr. President, it seems to me that the Senate and the Congress might better turn their attention to other things than these temporary measures. Oh, I understand that they are designed by Senators honestly. They believe that they will serve the public; but I think it has been demonstrated now for a year and more that every piece of emergency legislation that has been enacted has driven us deeper and deeper and wider into this depression.

We have proposed here a Reconstruction Finance Corporation that was to save the banks; and in this country to-day there are four or five States where the governors of the States have closed the banks. There has arisen a condition where this Congress has authorized the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to close every national bank in every State where the same power may be exercised by the State.

Mr. President, I need not review these failures; but these failures ought to be a warning to the Senate that we can not continue this kind of legislation without destroying the confidence of the people in their Government and eventually destroying this Government. Let me frankly say, Mr. President, that a government that can not respond to the demands of our people to save them, their homes, and their property is not worth preserving. If that be treason, make the most of it.

Then, Mr. President, notwithstanding that, great party leaders will plead here that we should not reconsider the bill to which I directed my attention at the beginning of this debate.

Mr. President, it has not been my purpose during this session of the Congress to delay the Congress in any respect. I think the Members on both sides will concur in the statement that so far as I have been able personally to facilitate the carrying on of the business of the Senate, I have made every effort to expedite action in the Senate. I do not intend at this late hour to delay action upon any proposition; but I felt that I owed a duty to the men and women upon the farms, among whom I have lived a lifetime, whom I love, whom I respect. That duty that I owed to them was to challenge the Senate of the United States and the Congress of the United States in their onward rush of deceiving the farmers of my country.

So, Mr. President, if I may be able to obtain a favorable vote when I make the motion to reconsider the Hull-Walcott bill, I shall offer as an amendment bill S. 5640, not a bill designed to postpone any debt, not a bill to create a new class of debtors, not a bill to heap interest upon interest, and defaults upon defaults, and compounded interest thereon, but a bill designed to reconstruct the capital structure of agriculture and to advance funds at a rate of interest that agriculture can pay.

I have reviewed very briefly the provisions of the bill which I shall offer as an amendment. I do not care to prolong the debate further, as it will be but a few moments when I shall be required to leave the Chamber again for the evening. So. Mr. President, I trust that we may proceed with the regular order, and perhaps to-morrow morning we can take up the question of a reconsideration of the Hull-Walcott bill, and then a consideration of the amendment which I shall propose.

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. CLARK. Has the Senator from Wisconsin made his motion to reconsider?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that the Senator has simply given notice that he will file a motion to reconsider.

Mr. CLARK. Then, Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the Hull-Walcott bill was passed.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. The motion is not debatable.

Mr. BLAINE. I desire to make an inquiry of the Senator from Arkansas. Does the Senator from Arkansas assume that that parliamentary procedure is going to expedite the business of the Senate during the balance of the session?

Mr. President, I understand that the motion is not debatable. I will make my comment afterward.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Arkansas to lay on the table the motion of the Senator from Missouri.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. BLAINE. Mr. President, in view of the extraordinary haste and the very unusual attitude that has been exhibited on the floor of the Senate this afternoon, I desire to serve notice that from now on, as long as I can be present in the Senate Chamber, no other Senator shall be denied the opportunity to which in good conscience he is entitled.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the committee on page 2, which has already been stated.

Mr. KING. I ask to have the amendment restated.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be restated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 2, line 6, after the word "addition," it is proposed to strike out "$6,500,000" and insert "$9,500,000," so as to make the paragraph read:

That in order to defray the expenses of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, any revenue (not including the proportionate share of the United States in any revenue arising as the result of the expenditure of appropriations made for the fiscal year 1924 and prior fiscal years) now required by law to be credited to the District of Columbia and the United States in the same proportion that each contributed to the activity or source from whence such revenue was derived shall be credited wholly to the District of Columbia, and, in addition, $9,500,000 is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be advanced July 1, 1933, and all the remainder out of the combined revenues of the District of Columbia, namely:

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I do not intend to consume more than a minute.

I am very much opposed to this amendment, increasing the Federal appropriation for the District of Columbia from $6,500,000 to $9,500,000. I think that the District of Columbia, which is in better financial condition than any other part of the United States, with lower taxes than any other section of the United States, ought not to impose upon the Federal Government and upon the taxpayers of the United States this additional burden.

The appropriation carried in the bill as it came from the House I regard as liberal and entirely just and adequate; and I am opposed to taxing the people of the United States further in order to relieve the people of the District of Columbia from taxation.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was under the heading "General expenses, Executive Office," on page 3, line 18, after the word "services," to strike out "$105,520" and insert "$134,070," so as to read:

Building inspection division: For personal services, $134,070;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, line 20, after the word "services," to strike out "$35,600" and insert "$36,920," and in line 21, after the words "in all," to strike out "$35,900" and insert "$37,220," so as to read:

Plumbing inspection division: For personal services. $36,920; two members of plumbing board, at $150 each; in all, $37,220.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Care of District Building," on page 4, line 3, after the word "labor," to strike out "$76,860" and insert "$79,710," and in line 4, after the words "in all," to strike out "$91,860" and insert "$94,710," so as to read:

For personal services, including temporary labor, $79.710; service of cleaners as necessary, not to exceed 48 cents per hour, $15,000; in all $94.710:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Office of superintendent of weights, measures, and markets," on page 5, line 17, to increase the appropriation for maintenance and repairs to markets from $7,000 to $7,300.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Municipal architect's office," on page 6, line 2, after the word "services," to strike out "$60,700" and insert "$66,000, including not to exceed $1,500 for employment of engineering or other professional services, by contract or otherwise, and without reference to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 5) or the classification act of 1923, as amended," so as to read:

For personal services, $66,000, including not to exceed $1,500 for employment of engineering or other professional services, by contract or otherwise, and without reference to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 5) or the classification act of 1923, as amended.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I desire to register my disapproval of this amendment. I see no reason for augmenting the very liberal appropriation carried in the measure as it came from the House. No explanation has been given to justify this increased appropriation.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Public Utilities Commission," on page 6, line 17, after the word "services," to strike out "$37,565" and insert "$89,400," so as to read:

For two commissioners, people's counsel, and for other personal services, $89,400, of which amount not to exceed $5,000 may be used for the employment of expert services by contract or otherwise and without reference to the classification act of 1923, as amended.

Mr. CAPPER. Mr. President, on page 6, I move to strike out, on line 17, "$89,400" and insert in lieu thereof "$92,837."

Then on the same page, line 20, after the words "as amended," I move to strike out the period and insert a comma and the words "and of which amount not to exceed $688 shall be immediately available."

This would provide for obtaining additional information on housing in the District of Columbia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the amendment.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 6, line 17, to strike out "$89,400" and insert "$92,837," and on line 20 to strike out the period and insert a comma and the words "and of which amount not to exceed $688 shall be immediately available," so as to read:

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

For two commissioners, people's counsel, and for other personal services, $92,837, of which amount not to exceed $5,000 may be used for the employment of expert services by contract or otherwise and without reference to the classification act of 1923, as amended, and of which amount not to exceed $688 shall be immediately available.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 6, after line 23, to strike out—

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs: Provided, That this prohibition shall not be construed to affect any order or part of an order of such Public Utilities Commission other than with respect to the requirement of the installation of such meters.

And in lieu thereof to insert:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs if the initial rate exceeds 25 cents for the first 2 miles, or portion thereof, and 10 cents a mile thereafter: Provided, That this prohibition shall not be construed to affect any order or part of an order of such Public Utilities Commission other than with respect to the requirement of the installation of such meters.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I ask the Senate to amend the committee amendment by striking out, on page 7, lines 7 to 16.

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Department of vehicles and traffic," on page 9, line 2, to increase the appropriation for personal services from $68,320 to $73,780.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 9, line 7, after the word "commissioners," to strike out "$63,200" and insert "$77,640," so as to read:

For purchase, installation, and modification of electric traffic lights, signals and controls, markers, painting white lines, labor, maintenance of nonpassenger-carrying motor vehicles and such other expenses as may be necessary in the judgment of the commissioners, $77,640:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Register of wills," on page 10, line 14, to increase the appropriation for personal services in the office of register of wills from $60,000 to $68,490.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, is there any reason for increasing the appropriation for the Register of Wills?

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, several representatives of the bar association of the District of Columbia, and various other associations of lawyers of the District, appeared before us and urged that this amendment be made. The office is self-supporting, and in order to maintain the office as an efficient organization, it will be necessary to have this increase.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 10, line 21, after the word "periodicals," to strike out "$8,000" and insert "$10,000," so as to read:

For miscellaneous and contingent expenses, telephone bills, printing, typewriters, photostat paper and supplies, including laboratory coats and photographic developing room equipment, towels, towel service, window washing, street-car tokens, furniture and equipment and repairs thereto, and purchase of books of reference, law books, and periodicals, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Recorder of deeds," on page 10, line 23, after the word "services," to strike out "$48,585, including recopying or photostating old land records of the District of Columbia," and insert "$97,170, of which $6,000 shall be available only for recopying old land records of the District of Columbia," so as to read:

For personal services, $97,170, of which $6,000 shall be available only for recopying old land records of the District of Columbia.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, is there any justification for doubling the appropriation for the recorder of deeds?

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, for some reason unknown to us the House cut the appropriation recommended by the Budget in half, and at the earnest request of the Democratic members of the Committee on Appropriations the appropriation was put back at the figures recommended by the Budget.

Mr. KING. May I ask the Senator what the appropriation for this office last year was?

Mr. BINGHAM. The appropriation for last year was $97,170, with the legislative furlough taken out, and the Budget recommended the same amount this year.

The Senator may remember that I spoke to him about the necessity of getting through Congress legislation permitting the recorder of deeds to charge proper fees, so that the office would be self-supporting. In the opinion of the committee, there is no necessity for this office being a burden on the taxpayers, since the services rendered should be paid for. I think the Senator agreed with me, and agreed that as soon as possible in the new Congress legislation would be suggested providing for fees in this office which would make it self-supporting. If the provision inserted in the bill in the House were left in it, the recorder of deeds would have to discharge half the clerks in that office.

Mr. KING. I agree with the Senator that there is no defense for imposing upon the taxpayers the cost of maintaining this office. Those who have deeds and other legal instruments recorded ought to be compelled to pay for the recording, and I assumed that had been the case. I shall not object, in view of the fact that legislation will be necessary in order to compel the establishment of the fee system for recording deeds and other legal instruments.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, may I ask whether or not any fees are charged at the present time in this office?

Mr. BINGHAM. Fees are charged, but they are very inadequate, less than in any other city.

Mr. TRAMMELL. The suggestion of fees always provokes a question of doubt in my mind. I have seldom known of the instance of a city or county-and I presume the same thing is true in the District of Columbia-where the fees, instead of not being adequate, as a rule are not excessive. It is possible they charge about all the fees they can charge, and all the freight the traffic will bear at present, and that is the reason why they do not increase the fees. I always look with a good deal of suspicion on the idea of increasing fees.

Do the fees from this office go into the Treasury or go to some officer?

Mr. BINGHAM. The fees are covered into the Treasury. Mr. TRAMMELL. They are all covered into the

Mr. BINGHAM. Yes. But the fees at present are only 50 cents for the first 200 words. Even in the small village in which I live in Connecticut the fee for recording a small deed is 75 cents, where there is very little to be done; but in the District of Columbia the fee is only 50 cents for the first 200 words, and only 15 cents for each additional hundred words. The Senator will realize that is not an adequate charge; and the bill proposed, which I trust may some day be passed, would provide for a fee of $1 for the first 200 words.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Probably the existing fees are a little low. I know, however, that in localities not nearly so large and extensive in population and in transfers of property and litigation as the District of Columbia, the fees in total amount are enormous, but the rate is not very much above that charged here. I do not imagine the rate would be very much above what it is to maintain the office without calling on the Government to supplement the funds, as is the case at the present time. I think the office ought to be self-sustaining, but I do not believe there is any justification for any very great increase in the fees.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 11, line 11, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$10,000" and insert "$12,000," so as to read:

For miscellaneous and contingent expenses, including telephone service, printing, binding, rebinding, repairing, and preservation of records; typewriters, towels, towel service, furniture and equipment and repairs thereto; books of reference, law books and periodicals, street-car tokens, postage, not exceeding $100 for rest room for sick and injured employees and the equipment of and medical supplies for said rest room, and all other necessary incidental expenses, $12,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Contingent and miscellaneous expenses," on page 11, line 19, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$2,000" and insert "$3,000," and on page 12, line 3, after the word "officer," to strike out "$27,000" and insert "$31,000," so as to read:

For checks, books, law books, books of reference, periodicals, newspapers, stationery; surveying instruments and implements; drawing materials; binding, rebinding, repairing, and preservation of records; ice; repairs to pound and vehicles, not to exceed $500; traveling expenses not to exceed $3,000, including payment of dues and traveling expenses in attending conventions when authorized the Commissioners of the District of Columbia; expenses by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia; expenses authorized by law in connection with the removal of dangerous or unsafe and insanitary buildings, including payment of a fee of $6 per diem to each member of board of survey, other than the inspector of buildings, while actually employed on surveys of dangerous or unsafe buildings; and other general necessary expenses of District offices; $31,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 12, line 10, after the name "District of Columbia," to strike out "$55,875" and insert "$65,000," so as to read:

For printing and binding, including the printing of the report on the power needs of the District of Columbia, $65,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 13, line 16, after the word "ambulances," to insert "and except as otherwise specifically authorized in this act," so as to make the proviso

Provided, That no passenger-carrying automobile, except busses, patrol wagons, and ambulances, and except as otherwise specifically authorized in this act, shall be acquired under any provision of this act, by purchase or exchange at a cost, including the value of a vehicle exchanged, exceeding $650. No motor vehicles shall be transferred from the police or fire departments to any other branch of the government of the District of Columbia.

The amendment was agreed to:

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Employment service," on page 16, line 6, after the name "District of Columbia," to strike out "$10,207" and insert "$10,950," so as to read:

For personal services and miscellaneous and contingent expenses required for maintaining a public employment service for the District of Columbia, $10,950.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Street and road improvement and repair," on page 17, line 7, after the word "services," to strike out "$176,990" and insert $189,680," so as to read:

Salaries, highways department: For personal services, $189,680.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 17, line 16, after the word "vehicles," to strike out "$199,030" and insert "$224,030," so as to read:

For assessment and permit work, paving of roadways under the permit system, and construction and repair of sidewalks and curbs around public reservations and municipal and United States buildings, including purchase or condemnation of streets, roads, and alleys, and of areas less than 250 square feet at the intersection of streets, avenues, or roads in the District of Columbia, to be selected by the commissioners, and including maintenance of nonpassenger-carrying motor vehicles, $224,030.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Gasoline tax, road and street improvements and repairs," on page 19, after line 4, to insert:

Northwest: Oliver Street, Broad Branch Road to Nevada Avenue,

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 6, to Northwest: Nevada Avenue, Nebraska Avenue to Thirty-sixth Street, $7,200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 8, to Northwest: Forty-sixth Street, Fessenden Street to Davenport Street, $10,350.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 10, to insert:

Northwest: Davenport Street, Forty-sixth Street to Fortyseventh Street, $6,400.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 12, to Northwest: Elliott Street, Forty-sixth Street to Forty-seventh Street, $6,400.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 14, to Northwest: Forty-ninth Street, Albemarle Street to Chesapeake Street, $12,750.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 16, to insert:

Northwest: Forty-ninth Street, Massachusetts Avenue to Albemarle Street, $8,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 18, to insert:

Northwest: Walbridge Place, Park Road to Adams Mill Road, $6,900.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 20, to insert:

Northwest: Twelfth Street, Rittenhouse Street to Sheridan Street, $5,800.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 19, after line 22, to insert:

Northwest: Twenty-sixth Street, Virginia Avenue to New Hampshire Avenue, $9,800.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 20, to insert:

Northwest: Sixteenth Street, Columbia Road to Tiger Bridge, $105,000.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I ask the Senate to reject this amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 2, to insert:

Northwest: Rittenhouse Street, Georgia Avenue to Twelfth Street, $3,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 4, to insert:

Southeast: Park Place, Twenty-fifth Street to approximately 300 feet east, $2,800.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 6, to insert:

Southeast: Palmer Place, Twenty-fifth Street to approximately 350 feet east, $3,200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 8, to insert:

Northeast: Twenty-third Place, E Street to approximately 300 feet south, $3,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 10, to insert:

Northeast: E Street, Twenty-third Place to alley east of Twenty-fourth Street, $5,200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 12, to insert:

Northwest: Seventh Street, Nicholson Street to Oglethorpe Street, $2,900.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 14, to insert:

Northwest: Nicholson Street, Sixth Street to Seventh Street, $4,000;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 16, to insert:

Northwest: Longfellow Street, Second Street to Third Street, $8,100;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 18, to insert:

Northwest: Tuckerman Street, Second Place to Third Street, $3.500:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 20, to insert:

Northwest: Tuckerman Street, Eighth Street to Ninth Street, $5,200:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 22, to insert:

Northwest: Dahlia Street, Georgia Avenue to Ninth Street, $2,900;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 21, to insert:

Northwest: Eighth Street, Aspen Street to Butternut Street, $4,600;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 2, to insert:

Northwest: Ninth Street, Aspen Street to Butternut Street, $4,600;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 4, to

Northeast: Randolph Street, Bladensburg Road to Twenty-fourth Street, $11,500;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 6, to insert:

Southeast: First Street, N to O Streets, $8,000;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 7, to insert:

Southeast: O Street, First Street to Second Street, $8,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 9, to insert:

Southeast: Second Street, N Street to O Street, $8,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 10, to

Northwest: Reservoir Road, Foxhall Road to Conduit Road,

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 12, to insert:

Northwest: Thirty-first Street, Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to K Street and South Street, Thirty-first Street to Wisconsin Avenue, $7,400.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 15, to insert:

Northwest: Conduit Road, Reservoir Road to District line, $194.000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 17, to insert:

Southeast: Good Hope Road, Minnesota Avenue to Alabama Avenue, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 19, to insert:

Northwest: Grading Porter Street, from Connecticut Avenue to Klingle Road, $15,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, after line 21, to insert:

P Street Bridge: For the construction of a bridge to replace the existing bridge in line of P Street over Rock Creek in accordance with plans and profile of said work to be approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, including construction of and changes in sewer and water mains, employment of engineering or other professional services, by contract or otherwise, and without reference to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 5) or the classification act of 1923, as amended, and engineering and incidental expenses, $250,000: Provided, That any street-railway company using said bridge shall install thereon at its own expense an approved standard underground trolley system of street-car propulsion, and at its own expense shall thereafter maintain such underground construction and bear the cost of surfacing, resurfacing, and maintaining in good condition the space between the railway tracks and 2 feet exterior thereto as provided by law: Provided further, That if the Washington Railway & Electric Co. desires to maintain street-car operation during the construction of the bridge, the said company will construct and maintain at its expense a detour trestle constructed in accordance with plans approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and at such time as they may be directed to do so.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 23, line 9, after the word "necessary," to strike out "$200,000" and insert "$290,000," so as to read:

For construction of curbs and gutters, or concrete shoulders in connection with all forms of macadam roadways and adjustment of roadways thereto, together with resurfacing and replacing of base of such roadways where necessary, $290,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 23, line 12, after the word "material," to strike out "$450,000" and insert "$550.000." so as to read:

For the surfacing and resurfacing or replacement of asphalt, granite block, or concrete pavements with the same or other approved material, $550,000.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I shall not move to strike out any of these other items under the head of "Street improvements," but I may state that I have had many complaints during the past few days about some of these so-called extensions and improvements. May I say that in going over the city it has been my opinion that many streets that have adequate pavements are resurfaced and repaved at an expense that is wholly unnecessary. I do not agree with many of the activities and the so-called improvements of those who are looking after the streets. I think there are too many streets that are paved which ought not to be paved, and too many improvements when improvements are not needed. I shall certainly urge the Committee on the District of Columbia, in the future, to pay more attention to the streets, and to prevent many of these activities which I regard as extravagancies and abuses in the paving of the streets of Washington.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, while we are speaking of this matter of streets, I may say that it has been my observation that many of the streets here in Washington deteriorate very rapidly, indicating either poor construction or improper construction or excessively bad climatic conditions, which cause the streets to deteriorate very rapidly

If I did not occasionally visit other cities where there are about similar climatic conditions, I might charitably attribute the condition of the streets to the climatic conditions; but, finding that the streets in other places seem to hold up better and seem to be more evenly laid and constructed than in Washington, I sometimes wonder why it is that they have such bad success in constructing streets here and why it is the streets do not endure longer than they do.

It seems to me that it would be wise for those in charge of street construction in the city of Washington to see that the streets are built according to proper specifications and that there is absolute fulfillment of the requirements of the contracts, if that is not true to-day.

The matter of road construction in the District is one where there have been all kinds of opportunities for neglect and slighting of compliance with requirements to make firstclass streets that have some endurance. I have seen streets that were paved in Washington which in 2 or 3 or 4 years would go bad. It is very seldom that we find a street paved in Washington that is not full of waves, even newly paved streets. It seems there is something wrong with the street paving in Washington.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I supplement what the Senator has said, and I am associating myself with him in general in his observations. I can not approve and shall vote against this enormous increase from $1,741,350 to $2,849,350 under the head of street improvements.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, may I say to the Senator from Utah that this money all comes out of the gasoline-tax fund? It is collected from the users of automobiles for the purpose of keeping the District streets in repair. If it had not been that there was plenty of money in the gasolinetax fund to do it, the committee would not have approved it.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I think a proper and adequate reply to the comment of the Senator from Connecticut would be that if the gasoline tax is too high it should be. lowered, or if we are collecting more from the gasoline tax than can providently be expended in street improvement, we should amend the law and devote a part of that tax fund to relieving the homes and personal property of our citizens from taxation

I believe that there have been rather injudicious expenditures on the streets in Washington during the past few years. The complaint made by the Senator from Florida [Mr. TRAMMELLI is one which has been brought to my attention not once but a thousand times during the past two or three years. When I ride over the streets I find conditions which justify the Senator from Florida in making the complaint. I think there ought to be some changes in the organization that deals with our streets here. I believe that merely because we have a large fountain from which to draw, namely, the gasoline tax, we are not justified in expending it in this extravagant way. If there is too much collected, let us lower the tax or put the money in the Treasury and use it to relieve home owners of the burden of taxation which is upon them.

Mr. TRAMMELL. Mr. President, I do not know personally any of the District Commissioners or any of those occupying higher positions of responsibility in the District government, but I sometimes think that those who administer the affairs of the city, a city of approximately 600,000 population, have very little regard for the public interests.

A few moments ago the Senate adopted an amendment dealing with taxicab meters. Every time we have had an issue come before the Congress relative to the question of taxicabs, the charges to be made, and the rules and regulations which are to be imposed on those who operate taxicabs, I have noticed that the city officials invariably align themselves with a large taxicab company in the city, which everybody knows-whether the commissioners do or not-has tried for years to monopolize the taxicab business of the city of Washington.

About a year ago an outrageous proposition was made. The commissioners adopted the policy of requiring every taxicab to operate with a meter and to operate at certain rates, while most of the men engaged in the operation of taxicabs thought the rates then existing were all right and practically all of them had abandoned the use of meters. Many of the men who represent the independent taxicab operators and companies had never had any meters whatever. The result of the order issued by the commissioners was to require the installation of taxicab meters. They also increased the license tax for tags for taxicabs. A great majority of the men operating taxicabs in the city of Washington own their own cars or have bought them on credit or else have leased them. They had this additional increased tax imposed upon them and also the necessity of the cost of installing meters. The imposition was sufficient, although it has not yet been enforced through the courts, to drive a number of energetic, worthy, deserving men out of their jobs where they were trying to make a living in an honest way.

I can not understand the purpose of such a move on the part of the commissioners, except that it was to try to assist this big taxicab company, which has always insisted on high rates for taxicab service, which has always wanted meters and insisted upon every requirement on the part of the commissioners that would make it more difficult for the poor man without any means of any consequence to engage in the taxicab business. Of course, everybody knows it is not in the public interest to have regulations that would increase taxicab rates 40 to 75 per cent.

I was very much in sympathy with the action of the House when they prohibited the using of this fund for the purpose of increasing taxicab rates and requiring taxicab owners to install meters. That, in my opinion, would have been a very decided advantage to the one large taxicab company operating in the city, and would at once have succeeded in driving from an honest employment and vocation hundreds of taxicab drivers in the city who either own their own cars or operate in a mutual cooperative association. So far as I am concerned, I am very much in favor of the House provision, and regret very much that the Senate struck out that limitation.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 23, line 16, after the name "Highway Bridge." to insert "and not to exceed $10,000 for surveys, engineering investigations, and preparation of plans for a viaduct or bridge in the line of New Hampshire Avenue over the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad," and in line 21, after the word "vehicles," to strike out "$87,500" and insert "$122,500," so as to read

For construction, maintenance, operation, and repair of bridges, including $45,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for replacement of the fender pile system of the Highway Bridge, and not to exceed $10,000 for surveys, engineering investigations, and preparation of plans for a viaduct or bridge in the line of New Hampshire Avenue over the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and including maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles, $122,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 24, line 1, after the word "work," to strike out "$750,000" and insert "$840,000," so as to read:

For current work of repairs to streets, avenues, roads, and alleys, including the reconditioning of existing gravel streets and roads, and including the purchase, exchange, maintenance, and operation of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles used in this work, $840,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 24, line 5, after the figures "$30,000," to insert a comma and the following: "and the commissioners, under such conditions as they may prescribe, are further authorized to utilize the existing testing laboratory of the highways department for making tests of all materials for other departments and activities of the District government," so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, Provided, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, should they deem such action to be to the advantage of the District of Columbia, are hereby authorized to purchase a municipal asphalt plant at a cost not to exceed $30,000, and the commissioners, under such conditions as they may prescribe, are further authorized to utilize the existing testing laboratory of the highways department for making tests of all materials for other departments and activities of the District government.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 24, line 19, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$1,741,350" and insert "$2,849,350," so as to read:

In all, not to exceed $2,849,350, to be immediately available; to be disbursed and accounted for as "Gasoline tax, road and street improvements and repairs," and for that purpose shall constitute one

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Miscellaneous road and street improvements and repairs," on page 25, line 19, after the name "District of Columbia," to strike out the colon and the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That the amount expended hereunder shall not exceed $250,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 26, after line 15, to strike out:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for the operation of a testing laboratory of the highways department for making tests of materials in connection with any activity of the District government.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 28, line 9, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$500,000" and insert "$625,-000," and in line 11, after the word "exceed," to strike out $750,000" and insert "$1,250,000," so as to read:

Calvert Street Bridge over Rock Creek Park: For construction of a bridge to replace the Calvert Street Bridge over Rock Creek, including necessary changes in water and sewer mains, and including the employment of engineering or other professional services, by contract or otherwise, without reference to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 5), or the classification act of 1923, as amended, and engineering and incidental expenses, $625,000, and the commissioners are authorized to enter into contract or contracts for construction of said bridge at a cost not to exceed $1,250,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Trees and parkings," on page 29, line 11, after the word "items," to strike out "$81,600" and insert "$102,000," so as to read:

For contingent expenses, including laborers, trimmers, nurserymen, repairmen, teamsters, hire of carts, wagons, or motor trucks, trees, tree boxes, tree stakes, tree straps, tree labels, planting and care of trees on city and suburban streets, care of trees, tree spaces, purchase and maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vabilies, and miscellaneous trees. vehicles, and miscellaneous items, $102,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Sewers," on page 29, line 23, after the word "work," to strike out $206,863" and insert "$226,000," so as to read:

For cleaning and repairing sewers and basins, including the replacement of the following motor trucks: One at not to exceed $650; one at not to exceed $750; one at not to exceed $2,000; for operation and maintenance of the sewage pumping service, including repairs to boilers, machinery, and pumping stations, and employment of mechanics and laborers, purchase of coal, oil, waste, and other supplies, and for the maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles used in this work, $226,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 29, line 25, after the word "basins," to strike out "$159,400" and insert "$192,-000," so as to read:

For main and pipe sewers and receiving basins, $192,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 30, line 4, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$2,000; $368,200" and insert $3,500; $494,500," so as to read:

For suburban sewers, including the maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles used in this work, and the replacement of the following motor trucks: Three at not to exceed $650 each; one at not to exceed $3,500; $494,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 30, after line 11, to insert:

For the control and prevention of the spread of mosquitoes in the District of Columbia, including personal services, operation, maintenance, and repair of motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles, purchase of oil, and other necessary expenses, $28,800: Provided, That such mosquito control and prevention work as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may deem necessary in the areas under control of the Director of Public Bulldings and Public Parks of the National Capital may be carried on by that officer and the actual cost of such work reimbursed from this appropriation: Provided further, That such portion of this appropriation as the commissioners may deem necessary may be transferred to the Public Health Service of the Treasury Department for direct expenditure for the objects herein specified. For the control and prevention of the spread of mosquitoes in

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Collection and disposal of refuse," on page 31, line 15, to strike out "$400,000" and insert "$485,000," so as to read:

For dust prevention, sweeping, and cleaning streets, avenues, alleys, and suburban streets, under the immediate direction of the commissioners, and for cleaning snow and ice from streets, sidewalks, crosswalks, and gutters, in the discretion of the commissioners, including services and purchase and maintenance of equipment, rent of storage rooms; maintenance and repair of stables; hire and maintenance of horses; hire, purchase, maintenance, and repair of wagons, harness, and other equipment; maintenance and repair of non-passenger-carrying motor-propelled livery, blacksmithing, extra labor, new boxes, maintenance of weblicles necessary in cleaning streets and purchase of motor-propelled street-cleaning equipment; and necessary incidental expenses, $485,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 31, line 22, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$840,000" and insert '$1,025,000," so as to read:

To enable the commissioners to carry out the provisions of existing law governing the collection and disposal of garbage, dead animals, night soil, and miscellaneous refuse and ashes in the District of Columbia, including inspection; fencing of public and private property designated by the commissioners as public dumps; and incidental expenses, $1,025,000, including not to exceed $14,000 for repair and improvement of the garbage-reduction

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 32, after line 7, to strike out:

No part of the funds appropriated in this act shall be available for the operation of high-temperature incinerators for the disposal of combustible refuse.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Public playgrounds," on page 32, line 12, after the word "services," to strike out "$106,930" and insert "$109,630," so as to

For personal services, $109.630.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 32, line 21, after the word "truck," to strike out "$33,330" and insert "$38,950, of which $5,000 shall be available for putting the Northeast Playground in condition for play purposes," so as to read:

For general maintenance, repairs and improvements, equipment, supplies, incidental and contingent expenses of playgrounds, including labor and maintenance of one motor truck, $38,950, of which $5,000 shall be available for putting the Northeast Playground in condition for play purposes.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 33, line 5, after the word "term," to strike out "$27,209" and insert "$28,980,"

For the maintenance and contingent expenses of keeping open during the summer months the public-school playgrounds, under the direction and supervision of the commissioners; for special and temporary services, directors, assistants, and janitor service during the summer vacation, and, in the larger yards, daily after school, hower during the school term, 22,000. school hours during the school term, $28,980.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 33, line 7, after the word "pools," to strike out "$2,680" and insert "$2,760," so as to read:

For supplies, repairs, maintenance, and necessary expenses of operating three swimming pools, $2,760.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 33, line 9, after the word "maintenance," to strike out "$3,250" and insert "$4,000"; and in line 11, after the word "grounds," to strike out "$1,150; in all, $5,000" and insert "$1,400; in all, $6,000," so as to read:

Bathing pools: For superintendence, $600; for temporary services, supplies, and maintenance, $4,000; for repairs to buildings, pools, and upkeep of grounds, $1,400; in all, $6,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Electrical department," on page 33, line 18, to increase the appropriation for personal services under the electrical department. from $125,725 to $128,520.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 34, line 2, after the word "items," to strike out "$24,000" and insert "$30,000," so as to read:

For general supplies, repairs, new batteries and battery supplies, telephone rental and purchase, telephone service charges, wire and cable for extension of telegraph and telephone service, repairs of lines and instruments, purchase of poles, tools, insulators, brackets, pins, hardware, cross arms, ice, record book, stationery,

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 34, line 9, after the name "Metropolitan police department," to strike out $24,760" and insert "$27,760," so as to read:

For placing wires of fire alarm, police patrol, and telephone services underground, extension and relocation of police-patrol and fire-alarm systems, purchase and installing additional lead-covered cables, labor, material, appurtenances, and other neces-sary equipment and expenses, including not to exceed $4,100 for increased telephone facilities for the Metropolitan police department, $27,760.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 35, line 1, after the word "controls," to strike out "$962,000" and insert "$862,000, together with $25,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for this purpose for the fiscal year 1933," so as to read:

Lighting: For purchase, installation, and maintenance of public lamps, lamp-posts, street designations, lanterns, and fixtures of all kinds on streets, avenues, roads, alleys, and public spaces, part all kinds on streets, avenues, roads, alleys, and public spaces, part cost of maintenance of airport and airway lights necessary for operation of the air mail, and for all necessary expenses in connection therewith, including rental of storerooms, extra labor, operation, maintenance, and repair of motor trucks, this sum to be expended in accordance with the provisions of sections 7 and 8 of the District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year 1912 (36 Stat., pp. 1008–1011, sec. 7), and with the provisions of the District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year 1913 (37 Stat., pp. 181–184, sec. 7), and other laws applicable thereto, and including not to exceed $26,000 for operation and maintenance of electric traffic lights, signals, and controls, $862,000, together with $25,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for this purpose for the fiscal year 1933:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was under the heading "Public schools," on page 35, line 22, after the word "superintendents," to strike out "$606,027" and insert "$609,600," so as to read:

For personal services of administrative and supervisory officers in accordance with the act fixing and regulating the salaries of teachers, school officers, and other employees of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia, approved June 4, 1924 (43 Stat. pp. 367-375), including salaries of presidents of teachers colleges in the salary schedule for first assistant superintendents,

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 35, line 25, to include the appropriation for personal services of clerks and other employees of the public schools from $150,425 to $153,230.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 36, line 6, to strike out "$36,033" and insert "$38,600," so as to read:

For personal services in the department of school attendance and work permits in accordance with the act approved June 4, 1924 (43 Stat. pp. 367-375), the act approved February 5, 1925 (43 Stat. pp. 806-808), and the act approved May 29, 1928 (45 Stat. p. 998), $38,600.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was on page 36, line 10, after the word "class," to strike out "seven" and insert "eleven," so as to read:

For personal services of teachers and librarians in accordance with the act approved June 4, 1924 (43 Stat. pp. 367-375), including for teachers colleges assistant professors in salary class 11, and professors in salary class 12, $5,996,414.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 36, after line 20, to

No part of any appropriation made in this act shall be paid to any person employed under or in connection with the public schools of the District of Columbia who shall solicit or receive, or permit to be solicited or received, on any public-school premises, any subscription or donation of money or other thing of value from any pupil enrolled in such public schools for presentation of testimonials to school officials or for any purpose except such as may be authorized by the Board of Education at a stated meeting upon the written recommendation of the superintendent

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Care of buildings and grounds," on page 39, line 11, to strike out "$825,035" and insert "$829,600," so as to read:

For personal services, including care of smaller buildings and rented rooms at a rate not to exceed $96 per annum for the care of each schoolroom, other than those occupied by atypical or ungraded classes, for which service an amount not to exceed $120 per annum may be allowed, $829.600.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 40, line 1, after the word "power," to strike out "$250,000" and insert "$245,000," so as to read:

For fuel, gas, and electric light and power, $245,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Furniture," on page 40, line 7, after the name "Phelps Vocational School," to strike out "$30,000" and insert "$45,000," and, in line 10, after the words "in all," to strike out "$53,840" and insert "$68,840," so as to read:

For completely furnishing and equipping buildings and additions to buildings, as follows: School in Foxhall Village, $3,200; Logan School, $6,000; Phelps Vocational School, $45,000; Keene School, $6,000; Bancroft School, $5,600; Douglass-Simmons assembly-gymnasium and M Street Junior High School gymnasium, $3,040; in all, $68,840, to be immediately available and to continue available until June 30, 1935.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 41, after line 8, to insert:

For the purchase of books and equipment for the teachers colleges, $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 42, after line 2, to strike out-

No part of the appropriations herein made for the public schools of the District of Columbia shall be used for the free instruction of pupils who dwell outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to pupils who are enrolled in the schools of the District of Columbia on the date of the approval of this act.

And in lieu thereof to insert:

The children of officers and men of the United States Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and children of other employees of the United States stationed outside the District of Columbia shall be admitted to the public schools without payment of tuition.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 43, line 3, after the word "trucks," to strike out "$330,000" and insert "$380,000," so as to read:

For repairs and improvements to school buildings, repairing and renewing heating, plumbing, and ventilating apparatus, installation and repair of electric equipment, and installation of sanitary drinking fountains, and maintenance of motor trucks, $380,000, of which amount $100,000 shall be immediately available.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Buildings and grounds," on page 43, line 25, to strike out "$85,000" and insert "$105,000," so as to read:

For the erection of an 8-room building on a site already appropriated for in the vicinity of the Logan School, $105,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 44, line 3, to strike out "$140,000" and insert "$166,000," so as to read:

For the construction of an addition to the Deal Junior High School, including 10 classrooms and 1 gymnasium, $166,000.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, this item and the items following for the construction of an addition to the Browne Junior High School and for beginning the construction of a senior high school, increasing the appropriation from $433,000 to $500,000, raised the limit from $1,000,000 to $1,200,000. It seems to me that with the reduction in wages, the reduction in prices of building materials and various commodities entering into the construction of schools, there is no necessity for increasing the limit from $100,000 to $300,000 and no reason for increasing the other costs in the items just referred to.

I shall be glad to hear from the Senator from Connecticut with respect to the matter.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, the testimony before the committee which led us to restore the Budget figures was that, while it is true that costs have come down, the Budget estimate is very much less than it would have been for building the same class of schools two or three years ago. The Budget has taken full consideration of the very much lowered cost of building materials. The House arbitrarily cut down still further the item, and we were informed that the schools could not be built properly at the lower figure.

With regard to the item beginning in line 7, on page 44, for a senior high school in the Reno section, which is to be called the Woodrow Wilson High School, on the floor of the House the Budget estimate of $500,000 was cut to $433,000. The testimony before the committee was that this reduction would result in one month's delay in the opening of the school. It is expected that this school building will be completed and ready for occupancy one year from the coming fall, but if the appropriation shall be left at the figure provided by the House it will be impossible to get this school open in time for the beginning of the fall term.

With regard to the amount within which the building must be constructed, the Budget estimated the figure at $1,300,000 because that was about the figure within the limits of which the last senior high-school building was constructed. That building was constructed for very much less than the original estimate on account of the lower cost of building material; and undoubtedly, as the construction of the new senior high school proceeds, if costs continue to decrease, in next year's appropriation bill it will not be necessary to appropriate the entire balance, but a smaller

It was pointed out to the committee, however, by the architect and by the engineer-commissioner that if the cost were limited to $1,000,000 it would be necessary to make this school very much less attractive and effective than it ought to be, considering its importance and its position on one of the great parkways and one of the most conspicuous sites in the city. We were shown some drawings, and I can assure the Senator that there is nothing extravagant about the school. It will be built wisely at the lowest possible figure. I think the Senator will find, on investigation, that the probabilities are that it will not cost $1,300,000, but that is the best figure at which we could arrive, considering the cost of the last senior high school.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, if there is any one thing in connection with which I am willing to be extravagant it is in the construction of schoolhouses. I take a great interest in the school system here, and have been very anxious to see proper buildings constructed. However, it has seemed to me, as I have visited some of them, that the architectural features have not always been such as to excite admiration, and I have felt that the cost of the ground upon which some of the buildings have been erected has been entirely too great and that some of the construction contracts have been too high.

Of course I can not criticize these items because I have not had the advantage of the testimony which has been adduced before the various committees, but it has seemed to me, in this particular period, with lower costs, that these prices were a little high.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment reported by the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 44, line 6, after the word "gymnasium," to strike out "$140,000" and insert "$166,000," so as to read:

For the construction of an addition to the Browne Junior High School, including 10 classrooms and 1 gymnasium, $166,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 44, line 9, after the words "in the Reno section," to strike out "$433,000" and insert "$500,000," and in line 11, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$1,000,000" and insert "$1,300,000," so as to

For beginning the construction of a senior high-school building at Forty-first and Chesapeake Streets NW., in the Reno section, $500,000, and the commissioners are authorized to enter into conor contracts for such building, at a cost not to exceed $1,300,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 44, line 12, after the words "in all," to strike out "$798,000" and insert "$937,-000." so as to read:

In all, $937,000, to be immediately available and to be disbursed and accounted for as "Buildings and grounds, public schools," and for that purpose shall constitute one fund and remain available

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 45, after line 3, to

For the purchase of school building and playground sites, as follows:

For the purchase of additional land at the Phelps Vocational School for elementary-school purposes, $67,000.

For the purchase of additional land at the Syphax School, $25,000; in all, $92,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in the item for salaries of the Metropolitan police, on page 46, line 12, to increase the appropriation for personal services from $115,450 to $117,100.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 46, line 14, to increase the appropriation for fuel for the Metropolitan police from $7,000 to $8,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 47, line 12, after the words "harbor patrol," to strike out "$79,210" and insert "$84.000," so as to read:

For miscellaneous and contingent expenses, including rewards For miscellaneous and contingent expenses, including rewards for fugitives, purchase of gas equipment and firearms, maintenance of card system, stationery, city directories, books of reference, periodicals, newspapers, telegraphing, telephoning, photographs, rental and maintenance of teletype system and labor-saving devices, telephone service charges, purchase, maintenance, and servicing of radiobroadcasting systems, including $11,000 for use only in purchasing, maintaining, and servicing additional radio receiving sets for automobiles and the purchase and installation of radio input system in the several precinct stations, bureaus, and offices, purchase of equipment, gas, ice, washing, meals for prisoners. input system in the several precinct stations, bureaus, and offices, purchase of equipment, gas, ice, washing, meals for prisoners, medals of award, not to exceed $300 for car tickets, furniture and repair thereto, beds and bed clothing, insignia of office, police equipments and repairs to same, and mounted equipment, flags and halyards, storage of stolen or abandoned property, and traveling and other expenses incurred in prevention and detection of crime and other necessary expenses, including expenses of harbor patrol, $84,000, of which amount not exceeding $2,000 may be expended by the major and superintendent of police for prevention and detection of crime, under his certificate, approved by the commissioners, and every such certificate shall be deemed a sufficient voucher for the sum therein expressed to have been expended.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 48, line 1, after the word "condemned," to strike out "$72,200" and insert "$75,000," and in line 3, after the word "wagons," to insert "and not to exceed $2,800 for two police cruisers," so as to

For purchase, exchange, and maintenance of passenger-carrying and other motor vehicles and the replacement of those worn out in the service and condemned, $75,000, including not to exceed $2,000 for two patrol wagons and not to exceed $2,800 for two police cruisers.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 48, at the end of line 9, to strike out "$45,000" and insert "$54,000," so as to read:

Uniforms: For furnishing uniforms and other official equipment prescribed by department regulations as necessary and requisite in the performance of duty to officers and members of the Metropolitan police, including cleaning, alteration, and repair of articles transferred from one individual to another, $54,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Fire department, miscellaneous," on page 49, at the end of line 19, to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$26,000," so as to read:

Uniforms: For furnishing uniforms and other official equipment prescribed by department regulations as necessary and requisite in the performance of duty to officers and members of the fire department, including cleaning, alteration, and repair of articles transferred from one individual to another, $26,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 50, line 1, after the word "tools," to strike out "$42,740" and insert "$45,740," so as to read:

For repairs to apparatus, motor vehicles, and other motor-driven apparatus, fire boat and for new apparatus, new motor vehicles, new appliances, employment of mechanics, helpers, and laborers in the fire department repair shop, and for the purchase of necessary supplies, materials, equipment, and tools, $45,740: Provided, That the commissioners are authorized, in their discretion, to build or construct, in whole or in part, fire-fighting apparatus in the fire-department repair shop.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 50, line 19, to increase the appropriation for fuel for the fire department from $20,000 to $23,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 50, line 23, to increase the appropriation for contingent expenses, etc., for the fire department from $20,000 to $25,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Health department," on page 52, line 9, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$32.820" and insert "$34.820," so as to read:

For the maintenance of a dispensary or dispensaries for the treatment of indigent persons suffering from tuberculosis and of indigent persons suffering from venereal diseases, including payment for personal services, rent, supplies, and contingent expenses, $34.820

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 53, line 25, after the word "milk," to strike out "$6,600" and insert "$8,000," so as to read:

For contingent expenses incident to the enforcement of an act relating to the adulteration of foods and drugs in the District of Columbia, approved February 17, 1898 (30 Stat. 246-248), an act to prevent the adulteration of candy in the District of Coact to prevent the adulteration of candy in the District of Columbia, approved May 5, 1898 (30 Stat. 398), an act for preventing the manufacture, sale, or transportation of adulterated or misbranded or poisonous or deleterious foods, drugs, medicines, and liquors, and for regulating traffic therein, and for other purposes, approved June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. 768-772), and an act to regulate, within the District of Columbia, the sale of milk, cream, and ice cream, and for other purposes, approved February 27, 1925 (43 Stat. 1004-1008), including traveling and other necessary expenses of dairy-farm inspectors; and including not to exceed $100 for special services in detecting adulteration of drugs and foods, including candy and milk, $8,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 54, line 3, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$312" and insert "$480," so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That inspectors of dairy farms may receive an allowance for furnishing privately owned motor vehicles in the performance of official duties at the rate of not to exceed $480 per annum for each inspector.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 54, line 13, after the word "supplies," to strike out "$45,000" and insert "$48,-330," so as to read:

Child welfare and hygiene: For maintaining a child-hygiene service, including the establishment and maintenance of child-welfare stations for the clinical examinations, advice, care, and maintenance of children under 6 years of age, payment for personal services, rent, fuel, periodicals, and payment for personal services, rent, fuel, periodicals, and supplies, $48,330.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Courts and prisons," on page 57, line 8, after the word "exceeding," to strike out "3" and insert "7," and in line 9, after the word "exceeding," to strike out "23" and insert "19," so as to read:

For not exceeding 7 criers, not exceeding 19 deputy marshals who act as balliffs, clerks of jury commissioners, and per diems of jury commissioners, and for expenses of meals and lodging for jurors in United States cases, and of balliffs in attendance upon same when ordered by the court, $46,740: Provided, That the compensation of each jury commissioner for the fiscal year 1934 shall not exceed $250.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Public welfare—Division of Child Welfare," on page 60, line 8, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$3,000" and insert "$4,000," so as to read:

Administration: For administrative expenses, including placing and visiting children, city directory, purchase of books of reference and periodicals not exceeding $50, and all office and sundry expenses, $4,000; and no part of the money herein appropriated shall be used for the purpose of visiting any ward of the Board of Public Welfare placed outside the District of Columbia and the States of Virginia and Maryland; and a ward placed outside said District and States of Virginia and Maryland shall be visited not less than once a year by a voluntary agent or correspondent of said board, and that said board shall have power, upon proper showing, in its discretion, to discharge from guardianship any child committed to its care.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "General administration, workhouse and reformatory, District of Columbia," on page 62, line 21, after the word "services," to strike out "$290,540" and insert "$326,090," so as to read:

For personal services, $326,090.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 63, line 5, after the word "items," to strike out "$300,000" and insert "$340,-000," so as to read:

For maintenance, care, and support of inmates, rewards for fugitives, discharge gratuities provided by law, medical supplies, newspapers, books, books of reference, and periodicals, farm implements, tools, equipment, transportation expenses, purchase and maintenance of livestock and horses, purchase, exchange, maintenance, operation, and repair of non-passenger-carrying vehicles and motor bus; fuel for heating, lighting, and power, and all other necessary items, $340,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 63, at the beginning of line 8, after the word "necessary," to strike out "utilities" and insert "utilities, and," and in line 9, after the figures "$46,000," to insert a comma and "together with a further sum of not exceeding $54,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for maintenance, care, and support of inmates, and so forth, workhouse and reformatory, District of Columbia, contained in the District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year 1932," so as to read:

For continuing construction of permanent buildings, including sewers, water mains, roads, and other necessary utilities, and for equipment for new buildings, $46,000, together with a further sum of not exceeding $54,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for maintenance, care, and support of inmates, and so forth, workhouse and reformatory, District of Columbia, contained in the District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year 1932.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 63, line 18, after the word "enterprises," to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$28,000," so as to read:

For repairs to buildings and grounds, and maintenance of utilities, marine and railroad transportation facilities, and mechanical equipment not used in industrial enterprises, $28,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Tuberculosis Hospital," on page 65, line 15, to increase the appropriation for personal services in the tuberculosis hospital from $80,200 to $81,300.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 65, line 22, after the word "items," to strike out "$49,000" and insert "$61,000," so as to read:

For provisions, fuel, forage, harness, and vehicles, and repairs to same, gas, ice, shoes, clothing, dry goods, tailoring, drugs and medical supplies, furniture and bedding, kitchen utensils, medical books, books of reference, and periodicals not to exceed $200, temporary services not to exceed $1,000, maintenance of motor truck, and other necessary items, $61,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 65, line 24, after the word "sidewalks," to strike out "$4,000" and insert "$4.750," so as to read:

For repairs and improvements to buildings and grounds, including roads and sidewalks, $4,750.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium," on page 66, line 5, to strike out "$25,000" and insert "$35,000," so as to read:

For personal services, maintenance, and other necessary expenses, including maintenance of motor vehicles and the purchase and maintenance of horses and wagons, $35,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 66, line 7, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$1,950" and insert "$3,000," and at the end of line 9, to strike out "$40,000" and insert "$60,000," so as to read:

For completely furnishing and equipping the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium, including not to exceed $3,000 for the purchase of one nonpassenger and two passenger-carrying motor vehicles (including one bus), $60,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Gallinger Municipal Hospital," on page 66, line 13, after the word "labor," to strike out "$323,816" and insert "$329,830," so as to read:

Salaries: For personal services, including not to exceed $2,000 for temporary labor, $329,830.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 66, line 24, after the word "vehicles," to insert "for purchase, not exceeding $3,500, and maintenance of one motor ambulance," and on page 67, line 2, after the word "expenses," to strike out "$190,909" and insert "$210,000," so as to read:

For maintenance of the hospital; for maintenance of the quarantine station, smallpox hospital, and public crematorium, including expenses incident to furnishing proper containers for the reception, burial, and identification of the ashes of all human bodies of indigent persons that are cremated at the public crematorium and remain unclaimed after 12 months from the date of such cremation; for maintenance and purchase of horses and horse-drawn vehicles; for medical books, books of reference and periodicals, not to exceed $500; for maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles; for purchase, not exceeding $3,500, and maintenance of one motor ambulance; and for all other necessary expenses, $210,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 67, line 4, after the word "grounds," to strike out "$9,300" and insert "$9,500," so as to read:

For repairs and improvements to buildings and grounds, $9.500, including not to exceed $3,500 for the rearrangement of the electric service and wiring at the Gallinger Municipal Hospital and the jail for master metering, for the erection of a structure to house metering and switching equipment, and for the purchase of electric meters.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 67, after line 8, to insert:

For completing construction at Gallinger Municipal Hospital of an additional ward building for contagious diseases, $290,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "District Training School," on page 67, line 18, after the word "labor," to strike out "$82,030" and insert "$85,110," so as to read:

For personal services, including not to exceed $1,000 for temporary labor, $85,110.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 67, at the end of line 22, to strike out "$80,000" and insert "$90,000," so as to read.

For maintenance and other necessary expenses, including the maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles, the purchase and maintenance of horses and wagons, farm machinery and implements, $90,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 67, line 24, to strike out "$8,750" and insert "$9,750," so as to read:

For repairs and improvements to buildings and grounds, $9,750.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 63, to insert: For purchase and exchange of one 2-ton motor truck, $1,200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Industrial Home School for Colored Children," on page 68, line 4, after the word "services," to strike out "$34,280" and insert "$35,490," and in line 5, after the words "in all," to strike out "$34,780" and insert "$35,990," so as to read:

Salaries: For personal services, $35,490; temporary labor, $500; in all, $35,990.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 68, line 10, after the word "materials," to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$31.500," so as to read:

For maintenance, including purchase and maintenance of farm implements, horses, wagons, and harness, and maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles, and not to exceed $1,250 for manual-training equipment and materials, $31,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 68, line 12, to strike out $2,000" and insert "$2,660," so as to read:

For repairs and improvements to buildings and grounds, $2,660.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Industrial Home School," on page 68, line 22, after the word "vehicle," to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$23,000," so as to read:

For maintenance, including care of horses, purchase and care of wagon and harness, maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicle, $23,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Home for Aged and Infirm," on page 69, line 8, after the word "vehicles," to strike out "$60,000" and insert "$70,000," so as to read:

For provisions, fuel, forage, harness, and vehicles and repairs to same, ice, shoes, clothing, dry goods, tailoring, drugs and medical supplies, furniture and bedding, kitchen utensils, and other necessary items, and maintenance of non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles, $70,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Emergency relief," on page 69, after line 21, to strike out—

To enable the Board of Public Welfare to provide for the relief of all needy persons not otherwise provided for by appropriations herein made to such board, $625,000, payable wholly from the revenues of the District of Columbia.

And in lieu thereof to insert:

For the purpose of affording relief to residents of the District of Columbia who are unemployed or otherwise in distress because of the existing emergency, to be expended by the Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia by loan, employment, and/or direct relief, in the discretion of the Board of Commissioners and under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board and without regard to the provisions of any other law, payable from the revenues of the District of Columbia, $625,000: Provided, That not to exceed 8 per cent of such amount shall be available for administrative expenses, including necessary personal services.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Militia," on page 74, line 18, after the word "services," to strike out "$17,417" and insert "$24,750"; in line 19, after the word "labor," to strike out "$6,000" and insert "$6,650; pay of troops other than Government employees, $10,000"; and on page 75, line 20, after the word "service," to strike out "$8,400; in all, $31,817" and insert "$13,000; in all, $54,400," so as to make the paragraph read:

For personal services, $24,750; temporary labor, $6,650; pay of troops other than Government employees, $10,000; for expenses of camps, including hire of horses for officers required to be mounted, and for the payment of commutation of subsistence for enlisted men who may be detailed to guard or move the United States property at home stations on days immediately preceding and immediately following the annual encampments; damages to private property incident to encampment; reimbursement to the United States for loss of property for which the District of Columbia may be held responsible; cleaning and repairing uniforms, arms, and equipment; instruction, purchase, and maintenance of athletic, gymnastic, and recreational equipment at armory or field encampments, not to exceed $500; practice marches, drills, and parades; rent of armories, drill halls, and storehouses; fuel, light, heat, care, and repair of armories, offices, and storehouses; machinery and dock, including dredging alongside of dock; construction of buildings for storage and other purposes at target range; telephone service; printing, stationery, and postage; horses and mules for mounted organizations; maintenance and operation of passeger and non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles; street-car fares (not to exceed $200) necessarily used in the transaction of official business; not exceeding $400 for traveling expenses, including attendance at meetings or conventions of associations pertaining to the National Guard; and for general incidental expenses of the service, $13,000; in all, $54,400.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Public buildings and public parks, general expenses, public parks," on page 77, line 3, after the word "exceed," to strike out "two" and insert "four," and in line 6, after the words "and so forth," to strike out "$406,820" and insert "$481,-820." so as to read:

General expenses: For general expenses in connection with the maintenance, care, improvement, furnishing of heat, light, and power of public parks, grounds, fountains, and reservations, propagating gardens and greenhouses under the jurisdiction of the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital, including $5,000 for the maintenance of the tourists' camp on its present site in East Potomac Park, and including personal services of seasonal or intermittent employees at per diem rates of pay approved by the director, not exceeding current rates of pay for similar employment in the District of Columbia; the hire of draft animals with or without drivers at local rates approved by the director; the purchase and maintenance of draft animals, harness, and wagons; contingent expenses; city directories; communication service; car fare; traveling expenses, professional, scientific, technical, and law books; periodicals and reference books; blank books and forms; photographs; dictionaries and maps; leather and rubber articles for the protection of employees and property; the maintenance, repair, exchange, and operation of not to exceed four motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles and all necessary bicycles, motor cycles, and self-propelled machinery; the purchase, maintenance, and repair of equipment and fixtures, etc., $481,820.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 77, line 7, after the word "exceeding," to strike out "$25,000" and insert "$35,000"; in line 11, after the word "exceed," to strike out "$25,000" and insert "$75,000"; and in line 13, after the word "sections," to strike out "C and D" and insert "C, D, and G," so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That not exceeding $35,000 of the amount herein appropriated may be expended for placing and maintaining portions of the parks in condition for outdoor sports and for expenses incident to the conducting of band concerts in the parks; not exceeding $75,000 for the improvement and maintenance as recreation parks of Sections C, D, and G, Anacostia Park; not exceeding $30,000 for the improvement of the Rock Creek and Potomac connecting parkway; and not exceeding $10,000 for the erection of minor auxiliary structures.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "National Capital Park and Planning Commission," on page 78, after line 2, to strike out:

For reimbursement to the United States in compliance with section 4 of the act approved May 29, 1930 (46 Stat. 482), as amended, $1,000,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 78, line 18, after the word "periodicals," to strike out "$35,000" and insert "$36.800," so as to read:

For each and every purpose, except the acquisition of land, requisite for and incident to the work of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission as authorized by the act entitled "An act providing for a comprehensive development of the park and playground system of the National Capital," approved June 6, 1924 (U. S. C., title 40, sec. 71), as amended, including personal services in the District of Columbia, maintenance, operation, and repair of motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles, not to exceed $1,500 for printing and binding, not to exceed $500 for traveling expenses and car fare of employees of the commission, and not to exceed $300 for professional, scientific, technical, and reference books, and periodicals, $36,800.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "National Zoological Park," on page 79, line 13, after the word "periodicals," to strike out "$200,000" and insert "$210,200," so as to read:

For roads, walks, bridges, water supply, sewerage, and drainage; grading, planting, and otherwise improving the grounds, erecting and repairing buildings and inclosures; care, subsistence, purchase, and transportation of animals; necessary employees; traveling and incidental expenses not otherwise provided for, including not to exceed $2,000 for travel and field expenses in the United States and foreign countries for the procurement of live specimens and for the care, subsistence, and transportation of specimens obtained in the course of such travel; maintenance and operation of one motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicle required for official purposes; for the purchase, issue, operation, maintenance, repair, and exchange of bicycles and non-passenger-carrying motor vehicles, revolvers and ammunition; not exceeding $2,500 for purchasing and supplying uniforms to park police, keepers, and assistant keepers; not exceeding $100 for the purchase of necessary books and periodicals, $210,200, no part of which sum shall be available for architect's fees or compensation.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 79, after line 14, to insert:

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution are hereby directed to cause a study to be made as to the desirability of charging fees for admission to the National Zoological Park and to report thereon to Congress at the opening of the next regular session.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Water service: Washington Aqueduct," on page 80, line 15, after the word "therewith," to strike out "$400,000" and insert "$443,000." so as to read:

For operation, including salaries of all necessary employees, maintenance and repair of Washington Aqueducts and their accessories, including Dalecarlia, Georgetown, McMillan Park, first and second High Service Reservoirs, Washington Aqueduct tunnel, the filtration plants, the pumping plants, and the plant for the preliminary treatment of the water supply, ordinary repairs, grading, opening ditches, and other maintenance of Conduit Road, purchase, installation, and maintenance of water meters on Federal services, purchase, care, repair, and operation of vehicles, including the purchase and exchange of one passenger-carrying motor vehicle at a cost not to exceed $650; purchase and repair of rubber boots and protective apparel, and for each and every purpose connected therewith, $443,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 81, line 5, after the word "exceed" where it occurs the second time, to strike out "$1,600" and insert "$2,000"; in line 6, after the word "exceed," to strike out $2,000" and insert "$3,000"; and in line 13, after the word "maintenance," to strike out "$300,000" and insert "$323,160," so as to read:

For maintenance of the water department distribution system, including pumping stations and machinery, water mains, valves, fire and public hydrants, and all buildings and accessories, and motor trucks, and the replacement by purchase and/or exchange of the following motor-propelled vehicles: Three 750-pound trucks, not to exceed $550 each; one 1½-ton truck, not to exceed $700; one 3-ton truck, not to exceed $2,000; and one 5-ton truck, not to exceed $3,000; purchase of fuel, oils, waste, and other materials, and the employment of all labor necessary for the proper execution of this work; and for contingent expenses, including books, blanks, stationery, printing and binding not to exceed $2,000, postage, purchase of technical reference books and periodicals, not to exceed $275, and other necessary items, $7,500; in all for maintenance $233,160, of which not exceeding $30,000 shall be available for continuing a survey of water waste in the distribution system, including personal services, and not exceeding $5,000 shall be available for operation of pumps at Bryant Street pumping station upon interruption of service from Dalecarlia pumping station.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 81, line 21, after the word "system," to strike out "$200,000" and insert "$240,-000," so as to read:

For extension of the water department distribution system, laying of such service mains as may be necessary under the assessment system, $240,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 82, line 2, after the name "District of Columbia," to strike out "$110,000" and insert "$124,540," so as to read:

For installing and repairing water meters on services to private residences and business places as may not be required to install meters under existing regulations, as may be directed by the commissioners; said meters at all times to remain the property of the District of Columbia, $124,540.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 82, line 4, after the word "hydrants," to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$21,-100," so as to read:

For installing fire and public hydrants, $21,100.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 87, after line 12, to strike out:

SEC. 6. No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used to pay any increase in the salary of any officer or employee of the District of Columbia by reason of the reallocation of the position of such officer or employee to a higher grade since June 30, 1932, by the Personnel Classification Board or the Civil Service Commission.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, by direction of the committee, I am authorized to offer the amendment which I send to the desk. It proposes to incorporate in the bill language which has been in the bill in preceding years, and the committee saw no reason why it should not be in the bill this year.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 2, line 10, after the word "Columbia," it is proposed to insert the following:

And the tax rate in effect in the fiscal year 1933 on real estate and tangible personal property subject to taxation in the District of Columbia shall not be decreased for the fiscal year.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I inquire the reason for that amendment, in view of the change in the valuation of property and the rather unprecedented financial situation in the District of Columbia. It may be wise, but I can conceive of contingencies that might necessitate some rearrangement of the fiscal system and a refinancing.

Mr. BINGHAM. It has been the practice, Mr. President, for the past few years, particularly since the adoption of the lump-sum contribution, to take away from the commissioners the option of lowering the District taxes. The committee felt, in view of the fact that the Government made a contribution to the District, and the District asked for certain expenditures sometimes larger than we thought necessary, that they should come out of District taxes, and that the people of the District should not come back on us to lower their taxes and take advantage of the situation to have the Government make a larger contribution. Why the House left out the provision this year, I do not know. It was believed wise to put it back. In the opinion of the committee, the way to reduce taxes in the District is to make the assessment come a little nearer the value of the property rather than to reduce the tax rate.

Mr. KING. I shall not object, but I want to say very frankly that, so far as I am concerned, I would be willing to give greater powers to the commissioners to deal with the matters within the District, and thus relieve Congress of many of the questions and problems that are now presented to it for consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. I offer another amendment and ask that it may be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 8, line 13, it is proposed to strike out "$51,250" and insert "$59,250," and on the same page, line 15, to strike out "$50,500" and insert "$58,500." Mr. KING. Is there any reason for that amendment?

Mr. BINGHAM. We took this item, which is for the District Employment Service, out of the independent offices appropriation bill, with the idea that it should be put in this bill.

to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. I have another amendment, which is a mere correction of language in the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 21, after line 17, it is proposed to insert the following:

For grading, including construction of necessary culverts and retaining walls, the following.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. I offer another amendment by direction of the committee.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator whether the amendments which he is tendering now have been agreed to by the committee?

Mr. BINGHAM. They have been agreed to by the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment offered by the Senator from Connecticut on behalf of the committee will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 44, after line 11, it is proposed

For completing the erection of a junior high-school building on

For completing the erection of a junior high-school building on a site already purchased for that purpose at Nineteenth Street and Minnesota Avenue SE., in Anacostia, $175,000.

Not to exceed $45,000 of the unexpended balance of the reappropriation for rehabilitation of the Wilson Teachers College, contained in the District of Columbia appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is hereby made immediately available and shall continue available until June 30, 1934, for the improvement of the central heating plant for the M Street Junior High and Douglass-Simmons Schools.

Mr. BINGHAM. This amendment is designed to permit the completion of a building already under way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. I offer another amendment by direction of the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 63, after line 18, it is proposed to insert the following:

To provide a working capital fund for such industrial enterprises as may be approved by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, $46,000: Provided, That the various departments and institutions of the District of Columbia and the Federal Government may purchase, at fair market prices, as determined by the commissioners, such surplus products and services as meet their requirements; receipts from the sale of products and services shall be deposited to the credit of said working capital fund, and said fund, including all receipts credited thereto, shall be used as a revolving fund for the fiscal year 1934 for the purchase and repair of machinery, tools, and equipment, purchase of raw materials and manufacturing supplies, purchase, maintenance, and operation of non-passenger-carrying vehicles, purchase and maintenance of horses, and purchase of fuel for manufacturing purposes; for freight, personal services, and all other necessary expenses; and for the payment to inmates or their dependents of such pecuniary earnings as the commissioners may deem proper. To provide a working capital fund for such industrial enterprises such pecuniary earnings as the commissioners may deem proper

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I will ask the Senator for an explanation of that amendment.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, this item has been in the bill for several years. The Senator will realize that at Lorton, where the District reformatory is located, and at Occoquan, where the other institution called the workhouse is located, it is necessary to give the prisoners something to do. They may make bricks; they make automobile tags, and so forth. Under the existing law the products of the workhouse and the reformatory may be sold in the open market to anyone, but this limits the sale to the Federal Government and its institutions and the institutions of the District of Columbia. It also provides $46,000 for a revolving fund to be used for the purchase of materials, and so

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing | forth, in these institutions. It has been customary to put the item in the bill, and the commissioners felt very strongly about the necessity for it.

Mr. KING. I do not disagree; but I was wondering whether it was the purpose to increase the activities of the institutions referred to.

Mr. BINGHAM. No; not at all, Mr. President. As a matter of fact, this provision limits the sale to public institutions of the Government and the District of Columbia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Connecticut on behalf of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the clerk may correct all totals in the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, that order will be made. The bill is before the Senate and open to amendment.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Connecticut where is the provision which reinstates the old meter system for taxicabs in Washington?

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, there is no provision that reinstates the old meter system which used to enable a taxicab to charge something like 80 cents for a trip from the railroad station or the Capitol to the Mayflower Hotel. The meter system suggested by the committee would limit the rate to 25 cents for the first 2 miles or a fraction thereof and 10 cents a mile thereafter.

Mr. BLACK. May I ask the Senator on what page that amendment is found?

Mr. BINGHAM. It is found on page 7, lines 11 and 12. Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, have we voted on that amendment?

Mr. BINGHAM. That amendment was adopted when we reached page 7.

Mr. BLACK. I desire to move to reconsider the vote by which that amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the vote by which the amendment was agreed to will be reconsidered. Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I offered no objection to the Senator's request for reconsideration.

Mr. BLACK. I understood that

Mr. President, I am not sufficiently familiar with the facts to go into any extended argument on this amendment; but I do know that I have ridden in a number of taxicabs, and I have yet to find the first taxicab driver who is independent of the larger taxicab union who has not expressed himself to me as being opposed to being forced to raise the rates above the 20 cents which they now charge. At this time, when the banks are declaring moratoriums all over the United States, when people are harder pressed than they ever have been in the history of this country, I do not see why we should by legislation attempt to force a higher taxicab in the city of Washington.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, is this the provision in the bill which undertakes to put meters upon taxicabs?

Mr. BLACK. It is. It undertakes to reinstate the meters. Mr. BORAH. I agree with the Senator. I suppose I have canvassed a hundred taxicab drivers, and I have yet to find the first one who is in favor of it.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President-

Mr. BORAH. Let me ask whether this is not a change of the law.

Mr. BLACK. It states:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be

It is an express statement of law in an appropriation bill. It seems to me that probably it is subject to a point of order, but I am not raising that point.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, the language to which the Senator refers was put in by the House:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs—

Obviously that is new legislation, but the House put it in. What the Senate did was to add to that an amending clause so that the Public Utilities Commission could not require the installation of meters—if the initial rate exceeds 25 cents for the first 2 miles, or portion thereof, and 10 cents a mile thereafter.

That is the language.

Mr. BORAH. That is general legislation.

Mr. BINGHAM. It is an amendment to the legislation put in the bill by the House.

Mr. BORAH. Yes; but it is clearly legislation.

Mr. BINGHAM. It is a limitation, Mr. President.

Mr. BORAH. Yes; but it seems to me general legislation.
Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. McKELLAR. I want to say that there are hundreds of perfectly splendid young men—I know some of them who are college men—who find that the only way they can make a living is to run these independent taxicabs. This is an effort to squeeze out everybody except the large concerns which are vitally interested in it for themselves, of course.

Mr. BORAH. Of course it is.

Mr. McKELLAR. But I do not think we ought to agree to the amendment, and I hope it will not be agreed to.

I want to add this, if I may make a parliamentary inquiry: Is this provision subject to a point of order? If it is, I am going to make the point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is an amendment to the House provision, and the House provision makes this language in order.

Mr. McKELLAR. I hope it will be voted down, then. I am sorry it is not subject to a point of order.

Mr. KEAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me? Mr. BLACK. I yield to the Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. KEAN. At the committee hearing the names of more than 400 taxicab drivers were presented, asking that meters go on. To-day I have ridden in three taxicabs, and I asked the driver of each one of them, and each one of them said that he prefers the meters.

The trouble with the situation in Washington is that there is a taxicab company here which rents the taxicabs to its men for $4 a day. There is no financial responsibility. There are more accidents in Washington than in any other city in the United States in proportion to its size; and there is no protection whatever to the public against these taxicab drivers as the matter now stands.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, it is all right to require liability insurance, and I should be perfectly willing to support a proposal which would put into effect an insurance requirement; but this is a case where there may be 400 in favor of it but there are 400 who are opposed to it, and the 400 who are opposed to it are the independent young fellows who are seeking under the most adverse circumstances to make a living by running independent taxicabs. As one of them said to me the other day, "When that goes into effect, I go out of business." It is the protection of the young fellows who are trying to make a living in that way that I think we ought to take into consideration.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Alabama yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. BLACK. Yes; I yield.

Mr. BYRNES. I want to say to the Senator from Idaho that those independents, the young men to whom the Senator refers, will be forced as a result of this legislation to buy meters, and they have not the money with which to buy them. The object is to drive them out of business.

Mr. BORAH. Exactly.

Mr. BYRNES. Just at this time we are being furnished splendid taxicab service, at lower rates than in any other city in the country. The object of this amendment is to increase taxi fares at a time when people have less money to pay for taxi fares than ever before.

Mr. KEAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a moment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. To whom does the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. BORAH. I supposed I had the floor, but I have not. Mr. BLACK. I yield to the Senator from Idaho. I am perfectly willing to yield the floor. I wanted the matter to be discussed.

Mr. BORAH. I do not desire to take the floor away from the Senator.

Mr. BLACK. I am perfectly willing to give the Senator the floor.

Mr. KEAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me, just to reply?

Mr. BORAH. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. KEAN. Forty-five dollars is the price of a meter, and they can pay it in monthly installments.

Mr. BORAH. Yes; and the young fellow is already trying to pay for his taxicab in monthly installments, and if the Senator would listen to the stories of some of them who are undertaking to do that he would not want to add $45 to what they now have to pay.

Here is a young man who is paying his way through school through the effort of running a taxicab. It is proposed to add $45 a year to his expenses; and for whose benefit is the $45? It is for the benefit of the combination, not the independent young fellow.

Mr. KEAN. It is for the benefit of the public. Will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. BORAH. I yield.

Mr. KEAN. So far as these young men go, I want to say that most of them that I have talked to have been in favor of a taximeter, and a lot of the people who ride in the cabs are in favor of a taximeter, because at the present time if you get in a cab at the Union Station they will say, "We are now on a zone system," and you soon get to the limits of the zone, and the Mayflower Hotel is four zones away, and they charge you 80 cents. We have had that kind of testimony.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I do not know where that kind of testimony came from, and I do not know who is responsible for it; but I know that for 20 cents these young men haul you anywhere within the District, and you feel as though you were taking money out of their pockets when you pay them.

Mr. KEAN. I agree to that.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, if this matter is going on to-night, I am going to call for a quorum. I insist that the facts shall be presented.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, I called attention to this matter, and asked for the reconsideration, in order that we might vote to strike out the amendment. I believe the Senate will vote to strike it out. I believe it is wholly unjustified. I have been told by the boys who drive these taxicabs that there are very few companies that sell meters, and that it is a meter company that in the main has sought to bring about the reinstatement of meters.

Mr. BORAH. The Pittsburgh company that makes these meters is very much interested in the matter, I presume.

Mr. BLACK. I do not say that with any degree of criticism for the Senators who favor this amendment. I am simply stating the idea that the boys have who drive these taxicabs; I do know, however, whoever is for it or whoever is against it, that this would increase the present taxicab rates in Washington. I do know that the people are not able to stand increases at this time. If there should be any change, they should be decreased. I know also, from the boys I have talked to, that the independent drivers, those who are making their living out of using and driving one car, have expressed their vigorous opposition to this proposal to reinstate meters.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. BYRNES. The Senator is not in favor of reducing the compensation of the employees of the Departments and at the same time increasing the cost of their transportation, is he?

Mr. BLACK. Why, of course it is not fair. We have had a movement here to decrease the wages of Government employees, and they have been decreased; and now here comes a proposition to raise the price of their taxicab fares.

I ride in taxicabs. Nobody can make me believe that 25 cents is cheaper than 20 cents. I ride in a taxicab to the zone in which I live, out several miles, and it costs 40 cents. I rode the same distance with the old meter system—they claim now that this is not like the old meter system—and it cost me $2.05. This may not be intended to reinstate the old meter system, but it will eventually lead to that very thing, and it will eventually lead to the big taxicab companies's raising the price when they have squeezed out the little taxicab drivers.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, under the meter system, when you step in the taxicab how much does the meter show? About 25 cents, does it not?

Mr. BLACK. You start off at 25 cents. Before you go a foot you start off with 25 cents.

I do not know about the 400 signatures referred to by the Senator from New Jersey. They may have had 400 signatures signed to something; but if you will go out here now and get a taxicab and ride down the street with some boy who owns his car, you will find that he is not favorable to being coerced into a system which will place him at the mercy of the larger taxicab companies; but, even if he were, we are not justified in raising taxicab rates now.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, if the Senator will allow me, I have taken pains to inquire from the drivers of the different taxicabs in which I have ridden—I use them every day—and I have not yet found one who was not protesting against the reinstatement of the meter system.

Mr. KEAN. All I can say is that I have ridden to-day in three taxicabs whose drivers took the other view.

Mr. CAPPER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BLACK. I yield the floor.

Mr. CAPPER. Mr. President, I think the demand for the meter comes very largely from the two big companies that are trying to control the situation in Washington.

My impression is practically in line with that of the Senator from Idaho and others, that the majority of the taxi drivers here do not want the meter system, and that the two big companies are trying to crowd out the independents.

I received to-day the letter I have in my hand from an independent driver who is very much interested in this matter; and I will say that the overwhelming sentiment, as I get it, is against the meter so far as these independent drivers are concerned. In this letter he says:

The Public Utilities Commission's meter recommendation means about a 40 per cent increase in rates, and a decrease in riders of from 50 to 75 per cent. About 2,000 cabs carry their own insurance. The meters will force from 1,000 to 3,000 men out of work, and the meters will mean more accidents.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a minute? It will help the street-car system; will it not?

Mr. CAPPER. To be sure. The street-car companies, too, are very persistent in their efforts.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CAPPER. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Does the Senator know of a city in the United States where there is better and cheaper taxicab service than has been afforded to the city of Washington during the last 12 months?

Mr. CAPPER. I do not; and I think it has been greatly improved in the last year, and the situation is better than it was under the old system.

Mr. McKELLAR. This is just another effort to subsidize some special interest, that is all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. BORAH. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, may the entire question be stated?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee, which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 6, line 24, the committee proposes to strike out lines 24 and 25, down to the end of line 6 on page 7, and to insert:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs if the initial rate exceeds 25 cents for the first 2 miles, or portion thereof, and 10 cents a mile thereafter: Provided, That this prohibition shall not be construed to affect any order or part of an order of such Public Utilities Commission other than with respect to the requirement of the installation of such meters.

Mr. BLACK. A parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. BLACK. A negative vote will be a vote to strike the meter provision out, will it not?

Mr. McKELLAR. No; to strike out the Senate committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A negative vote will be a vote to reinsert the House provision.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I do not intend to let this matter go to a vote until the whole truth, founded on the testimony, has been presented to the Senate.

It is all very well to impute motives of dishonor or other motives to those who take a different view from the views which have been stated here so vigorously this afternoon, but I assure the Senate that there is quite another side to this question, and if it is the desire of the Senate to listen to me, and to take the time, I shall be glad to speak, or wait until to-morrow, as the Senate pleases.

Mr. President, the most extravagant statements have been made here to-day, founded on questions propounded to a few taxicab drivers. A little while ago the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Robinson], my leader, asked the question, "Have we not better and cheaper taxicab service in the District of Columbia than anywhere else in the country?" The answer given him was "Yes." I dispute that. We have here probably cheaper taxicab service than in any city of the same size or of larger size in the country, but there is no worse service anywhere than here. There is no service which contributes so much to accidents in the streets. There is no service anywhere which contributes so much to the distress of the drivers.

The committee received evidence to the effect that many of the drivers of taxicabs in this city are being supported by the missions. Men strive here to have the farmer get a proper price for his product, who desire to have the farmer receive for his wheat and corn the cost of production, and, if possible, a little profit, but with the taxicab business, these taxicab drivers can hardly live, even the fortunate ones, and there are hundreds of them who are being cared for in part by charity.

Of course, Senators may reflect, "Well, now, my fare has been 20 cents, but under the meter system it will be 35 cents." If a Senator is willing to have that fact influence his vote, that is his business; it is not mine.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. COPELAND. I yield.

Mr. BORAH. I am thinking about the fellow who owns his taxicab, or is trying to own his taxicab, who tells me that he will be put out of business if this provision goes into effect, and that he now is making a living. A poor living, but still a living. I could bring to the Senator a number of young men who are perfectly willing to go on record to that effect. I do not suppose there are very many Senators who ride home with a man who hauls them for 20 cents who content themselves with paying merely 20 cents. I doubt very much if there are very many, if any, Senators who do that. But I am anxious that the young man who is undertaking to make his living by driving a taxicab be not put out of business, and I am particularly anxious that the combination which is against him be not |

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, the Senator from Idaho is usually right on large matters, but I say to him in all kindness that on this small matter he is mistaken.

Mr. BORAH. This is no small matter to the man who has no other way of making a living. The right or chance to earn a living is no small matter.

Mr. COPELAND. Let me say to the Senator that the men before the committee fighting against this were the big taxicab companies of the city.

Mr. BORAH. Let me tell the Senator that the big taxicab fellows are not against it. I have been informed many times that it is the big companies who are arguing the matters. I am sure I can demonstrate that fact if given an opportunity.

Mr. COPELAND. I will be very happy to hear the Senator attempt to demonstrate it, because I sat through the hearings, and I saw the representatives of the big companies

Mr. BORAH. Very well. I know how the big companies present their men to the committees. They do not themselves go, but the big companies are in favor of this proposition. Why should they not be? It means putting out of business the independent men who are making a living.

Mr. COPELAND. The Senator speaks as if the rate in this city were 20 cents all over the city. As a matter of fact, we have a zone system here. It so happens that the Senator lives within the one zone.

Mr. BORAH. It so happens that the Senator lives within the limits of the city, and that is the zone.

Mr. COPELAND. If the Senator thinks that one can go anywhere in this city, under the present system, for 20 cents, there is no man in the Senate more mistaken than the Senator

Mr. BORAH. I say to the Senator that I go home every night, and my secretary goes home every night, and either go within the limits of the city, and could go, if we had a mind to do so, for 20 cents.

Mr. COPELAND. The Senator goes within the first zone of the city. If he had occasion to cross Wisconsin Avenue, he would pay another 20 cents.

Mr. BORAH. Suppose we cross the Million Dollar Bridge, as it is called, and go on the other side of the canyon; is that still in the zone?

Mr. COPELAND. Until you get to a certain point a quarter of a mile beyond the canyon; then you get into

Mr. BORAH. I feel that I could bring the Senator plenty of testimony to prove that the Senator is mistaken.

Mr. COPELAND. I will be very glad to hear the testimony, because I listened to an abundance of testimony, and I can stand some more, particularly if it justifies the position which the Senator from Idaho takes, which is a mistaken position, and he will find it to be so when he studies the evidence.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me? Mr. COPELAND. I yield.

Mr. REED. My home is 3 miles from the Capitol, and the taxicab fare at present is 20 cents. I am thoroughly convinced that no operator of a taxicab can make such a trip and even begin to pay expenses, to say nothing of taking care of his own personal needs. Naturally, as the Senator from Idaho has said, no one would dream of asking for such a ride for the bare 20 cents. But I have talked with a great many of these men, and their distress is evident. They are threadbare, and ragged, and pinched, and if a man is trying to support a family on any such scale of wage, it is obviously impossible for him to do more than keep body and soul together. I feel ashamed of myself every time I take such a trip in a cab labeled "20-cent Yet, there must be many people who would not dream of paying more than the stipulated rate of 20 cents. I am sure every Senator here feels the way I do about it.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, the Senator must bear in mind that while that is true, any number of rides for 20 cents are for two or three blocks, or half a dozen blocks, and it is by such fares, the men explain to me, they make their living. If all of the trips were these long rides about which the Senator speaks, of course they could not make a living. But a person may get in a taxicab here and drive down two or three blocks, or half a dozen blocks for 20 cents. It is through these short trips that the drivers make their money.

Mr. REED. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New York yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania?

Mr. COPELAND. I yield.

Mr. REED. I talked to a taxicab driver over in front of the Senate Office Building about noon to-day. He told me he had had one fare this morning and his fare gave him no tip. He had to spend the 20 cents to buy 2 gallons of gasoline. He did not have one red copper cent to get himself any lunch. He told it without any complaint as if it were the ordinary day's experience. I do not see how we can contemplate such a situation imperturbably.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New York yield to the Senator from Tennessee?

Mr. COPELAND. I yield.
Mr. McKELLAR. The remedy is not in putting in meters. If the existing fare is too low, let us give them a better fare; but when we require them to install meters we legislate for the benefit of the big taxicab company here.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, there are a number of Senators who have expressed their desire that the matter of the taxicab situation go over until to-morrow. I wonder if the Senator from New York may find it convenient to continue his discussion to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock?

Mr. COPELAND. Very well. Mr. BINGHAM. Will the Senator yield to me at this time to move a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning?

Mr. COPELAND. Certainly.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, before the Senator moves a recess may I say to Senators present that the hearings on the appropriation bill, at page 204, contain the names of those who came before the committee in what I conceive to be opposition to the independent taxicab drivers and. indirectly at least, favoring an increase in taxicab rates. The names are disclosed in the statement of Thomas W. Littlepage on behalf of the citizens' joint transportation committee, he being the chairman of that committee. His statement is as follows:

Mr. Chairman, this committee is a citizens' joint transportation committee made up with a view of attempting to help work out the traffic and transportation system in the District of Columbia. The representatives on this committee represent the Washington Board of Trade, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, the Federation of Churches, the Typothetæ, the Federation of Civil Associations, the Cosmopolitan Club, the Zonta Club, the Quota Club, the Kiwanis, the Optimist Club, and the chamber of commerce.

NAVAL APPROPRIATIONS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. SHORTRIDGE submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendment numbered 2. That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1. and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: "(None of which shall be available for increased pay for making aerial flights by more than eight nonflying officers or observers, to be selected by the Secretary | of the Navy)"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 3: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment insert ", but nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the voluntary employment in any such capacity of a retired enlisted man or a transferred member of the Fleet Naval Reserve without additional expense to the Government"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 4: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 4, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$744,794"; and the Senate agree to the same.

> SAMUEL M. SHORTRIDGE, FREDERICK HALE, HENRY W. KEYES, CARTER GLASS, E. S. BROUSSARD, Managers on the part of the Senate.

> W. A. AYRES, W. B. OLIVER. BURTON L. FRENCH. JOHN TABER, Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. SHORTRIDGE. I move the adoption of the report. The report was agreed to.

LANDS IN RAPIDES PARISH, LA.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 11242) to relinquish the title of the United States in and to lands in Rapides Parish, State of Louisiana. The bill is unanimously reported by the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys. It is favorably reported on by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and by the Department of the Interior.

There being no objection, the bill was considered, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That all the right, title, and interest of the United States in and to section 57, township 4 north, range 1 west, Louisiana meridian, Rapides Parish, La., containing 1354/100 acres, as shown on a plat of survey made by A. C. Phelps, deputy surveyor, approved March 13, 1839, by H. F. Williams, surveyor general for the district of Louisiana, and segregated thereon as a devable expression by a red the segregated thereon as a eral for the district of Louisiana, and segregated thereon as a double concession, be, and the same is hereby, released, relinquished, and confirmed by the United States to J. Taylor Compton, T. Maddox Compton, Ursula Compton Craig, and the legal representatives of J. M. Armstrong, and to their respective heirs and assigns forever: Provided, That the said parties shall first submit to the Secretary of the Interior satisfactory evidence of long continuous possession of the said land under claim or color of title, together with payment for the said land at the rate of $1.25 per acre.

SEC. 2. That when the required evidence and payment have been made a patent shall issue for the said described land to J. Taylor Compton, T. Maddox Compton, Ursula Compton Craig, and the legal representatives of J. M. Armstrong: Provided, That such patent shall only amount to a relinquishment of any right, title, and interest of the United States in and to the land.

AWARDS OF THE MIXED CLAIMS COMMISSION, ETC.

Mr. GLASS. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 12328) to authorize the assignment of awards entered by the Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany, the Tripartite Claims Commission, and the War Claims Arbiter. I will state that this bill was unanimously reported by the House committee and unanimously adopted in the House, and it has the unanimous report of the committee of the Senate.

There being no objection, the bill was considered, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That subsection (g) of section 2 of the settlement of war claims act of 1928 is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph to read as follows:

"(5) In the case of an assignment of an award, or an assignment (prior to the making of the award) of the claim in respect of which the award was made, by any such person, made in writing, duly acknowledged, and filed with the application for payment, such payment shall be made to the assignee."

SEC. 2. Subsection (k) of section 3 of such act is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph to read as follows:

(5) In the case of an assignment of an award, or an assign-"(5) In the case of an assignment of an award, or an assignment (prior to the making of the award) of the claim in respect of which the award was made, by any such person, made in writing duly acknowledged, and filed with the application for payment, such payment shall be made to the assignee."

SEC. 3. Subsection (f) of section 5 and subsection (h) of section 6 of such act are hereby amended by striking out "(4)" where it occurs in such subsections and inserting in lieu thereof "(5)."

CORRECTIONS IN ENROLLMENT OF AMENDMENT TO BANKRUPTCY ACT

Mr. HASTINGS submitted the following concurrent resolution, which was read, considered, and agreed to:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That in the enrollment of the bill (H. R. 14359) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, the Clerk of the House is authorized to make the following necessary changes in the Senate engrossed amendment:
On page 1, line 6, beginning with "by," strike out through the word "and" in line 7.

On page 1, line 14, strike out "74 and 75" and insert in lieu thereof "74, 75, and 77."

On page 19, line 16, strike out "or compositions"; and in lines 21 and 24, strike out the words "or composition."

On page 39, line 12, strike out the figure "76."

On page 41, line 9, beginning with the word "railroad," strike out through the period in line 11.

out through the period in line 11.

ENROLLED BILLS PRESENTED

Mr. VANDENBERG, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that on to-day, March 1, 1933, that committee presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bills and joint resolution:

S. 1752. An act to authorize an appropriation for the purchase of land in South Dakota for use as camp sites or rifle ranges for the National Guard of said State;

S. 2654. An act to allow credit in connection with homestead entries to widows of persons who served in certain

S. 4008. An act to amend article 5 of the act of Congress approved June 7, 1897, relating to the approval of regulations for preventing collisions upon certain harbors, rivers, and inland waters of the United States;

S. 5233. An act to provide for the protection of national military parks, national parks, battlefield sites, national monuments, and miscellaneous memorials under the control of the War Department;

S. 5417. An act to extend the operation of the act entitled An act for the temporary relief of water users on irrigation projects constructed and operated under the reclamation law," approved April 1, 1932;

S. 5445. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Rio Grande at or near Rio Grande City, Tex.;

S. 5469. An act to provide for the creation of the Morristown National Historical Park in the State of New Jersey, and for other purposes:

S. 5525. An act to extend temporary relief to water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes:

S. 5622. An act providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935;

S. 5675. An act to effect needed changes in the Navy

S. J. Res. 259. Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE .

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes; that the House had receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 11, 32, 33, and 40 to the said bill, and concurred therein; that the House had receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 5, 9, 16, and 18, and had concurred therein severally with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate; that the House insisted upon its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 6, 7, 8, 12, 22, 23, 27, 29, 30, 31, 36, 37, and 41; that the House requested a further conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon; and that Mr. Collins, Mr. WRIGHT, Mr. PARKS, Mr. BARBOUR, and Mr. CLAGUE were appointed managers on the part of the House at the further conference.

The message also announced that the House had receded from its disagreement to the amendments Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 10 to the bill (H. R. 14458) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and concurred therein; that the House insisted upon its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 7, 8, 9, and 11 to the said bill; that the House agreed to the further conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Woodrum, Mr. Boylan, and Mr. SUMMERS of Washington were appointed managers on the part of the House at the further conference.

WAR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask that the action of the House of Representatives on the War Department appropriation bill may be laid before the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Fess in the chair) laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives, which was read in part, as follows:

> IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, March 1, 1933.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the mendments of the Senate Nos. 11, 32, 33, and 40 to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 11, 32, 33, and 40 to the bill (H. R. 14199) entitled "An act making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes," and concur therein.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment Senate No. 5 and concur therein with the following

Page 8 of the engrossed bill, lines 21, 22, and 23, strike out "which shall draw interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, and such fund, including interest accruals" and insert "and such fund."

Mr. REED. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, will the Senator indicate to me, before any of these motions are put, at what point the so-called Couzens amendment will arise for consideration in respect to the handling of boys in cantonments?

Mr. REED. I am going to ask that that matter go to conference. I will ask for the appointment of conferees on those items on which the House persists in disagreeing. That will be one of the items which will go to the new conference.

Mr. VANDENBERG. In other words, there is nothing in the program of the Senate now which contemplates the foreclosure of further action on that amendment?

Mr. REED. That is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Pennsylvania to concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5.

The motion was agreed to.

The legislative clerk read from the House action, as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 9, and concur therein with the following amendment:

In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert "conviction has been affirmed by an appellate court unless approved by the Secretary of War.'

Mr. REED. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House to Senate amendment No. 9.

The motion was agreed to.

The legislative clerk read from the House action, as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 16, and concur therein with the following amendment: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment amended by inserting in lieu of the amount named therein "$2.700.000." $2,700,000.

Mr. REED. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate No. 16. The motion was agreed to.

The legislative clerk read from the House action, as

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 18, and concur therein with the following amendment: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment insert "$11,383,865."

Mr. REED. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18

The motion was agreed to.

The legislative clerk read from the House action, as follows:

That the House insists upon its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 6, 7, 8, 12, 22, 23, 27, 29, 30, 31, 36, 37, and 41.

The House asks a further conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon and appoints Mr. Collins, Mr. Wright, Mr. Parks, Mr. Barbour, and Mr. Clague to be the managers on the part of the House at said conference.

Mr. REED. On those amendments, just stated, I move that the Senate insist on its amendments, request a further conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. Reed, Mr. BINGHAM, Mr. STEIWER, Mr. CUTTING, Mr. KENDRICK, Mr. McKellar, and Mr. Fletcher conferees on the part of the Senate at the further conference.

RECESS

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I move that the Senate take a recess until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 6 o'clock and 7 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until to-morrow, Thursday, March 2, 1933, at 10 o'clock a. m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1933

The House met at 11 o'clock a. m.

The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O God of our fathers, Thy sovereign mercy and Thy daily providences are the overarching and the undergirding realities of our fondest hopes. It is through care divine that we are still treading our accustomed pathways; we thank Thee; how great are our obligations. O fill our breasts with the mightiest meanings until the laws of truth and charity become native in the depths of our souls. Forgive our trespasses; bury them in the sea of forgetfulness and remember them against us no more forever. May our labors be as fruitful vines, whose leaves shall be for the healing of the wounds of our Nation. In all of our relations to our high calling may we follow the teachings of the Man of Galilee. In His name we pray. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate disagrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14458) entitled "An act making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate had passed with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H. R. 14724. An act making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

PURCHASE OF ALLOTMENTS OF DECEASED INDIANS

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the engrossed copy of the bill (H. R. 14059) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior in behalf of Indians to purchase the allotments of deceased Indians, and for other purposes.

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, may I ask what is this bill? The SPEAKER. It is a bill that was considered yesterday by unanimous consent, but, later on, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Schafer] asked for the reading of the engrossed copy.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the engrossed copy may be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The question was taken, and the bill was passed. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

AMENDMENT OF THE BANKRUPTCY ACT

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 14359) entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States,' approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto," with a Senate amendment, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I think some of the gentlemen on this side desire to ask some questions in regard to this matter and have a little explanation of the amendment. So far as I am personally concerned, I do not intend to object to consideration at this time, but I think perhaps the gentleman ought to explain the amendment.

The SPEAKER. Let the Clerk report the Senate amendment. It seems to the Chair that is the best information that could be given the House.

Mr. DYER. The amendment is quite long and it will require some time to read it.

Mr. BLANTON. It ought to be read, I do not care how long it takes. There are some most important matters in this Senate bill.

Mr. DYER. I agree with the gentleman about that.

Mr. BLANTON. And they ought not to be in there, and we should take them out.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, if this is to be done by unanimous consent, there is no use taking up time in reading the amendment, because unless the amendment is made available for examination by the Members of the House I expect to object. It would be a useless consumption of time if unanimous consent is desired.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object, to ask the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Sumners] a question. What is the gentleman going to do about the provision of the Senate amendment that prevents receivers of railroads from in any way changing the status and wages of employees? With that in the bill there can be no sane reorganization. That provision ought to go out of the bill. If the employees of railroads are more important than the 120,000,000 people of the United States, the country ought to find it out.

The SPEAKER. Permit the Chair to make this statement for the benefit of the House. In collaboration with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SUMNERS] and the gentleman from New York [Mr. SNELL], and other gentlemen interested in this legislation who are members of the Judiciary Committee, an effort was made to bring about consideration of this amendment by unanimous consent in order to save the time of the House. As a matter of fact, it is a privileged matter and can be called up by the gentleman from Texas as a matter of right. Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, House bills with Senate amendments which do not require consideration in the Committee of the Whole may be disposed of on motion by direction of the committee originally reporting the House bill. The gentleman from Texas is entitled to recognition on a privileged matter, but it is a question of whether or not the House wants to grant unanimous consent in order to facilitate consideration of the amendment.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BLANTON. If this unanimous-consent request is granted, is not the whole matter still in the control of the chairman of the committee calling up the bill and can he not move the previous question at any time to shut off debate?

The SPEAKER. Certainly.
Mr. BLANTON. He can keep Members from having any time, whether we proceed under unanimous consent or upon his motion to recede and concur, which he can make at any

The SPEAKER. He certainly can.

Mr. BLANTON. For this reason we were hopeful we might get some agreement whereby we could call the amendment up by unanimous consent and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Sumners] would grant us time on some provisions in the amendment that we are fundamentally against.

The SPEAKER. That is entirely with the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BLANTON. If the gentleman from Texas can assure us we will be given some time, we will gladly go along with Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, there is no disposition on the part of the chairman to prevent a complete understanding of the amendment.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, with that assurance, I withdraw my objection.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object to ask the chairman of the committee if it is not true that there has been stricken from this bill by amendment in the Senate the provision which would have authorized the courts to grant extensions of time to individual debtors without the approval of the majority in number and amount of creditors.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. There has been such an amendment.

Mr. TARVER. In my opinion that is the only provision of the bill which would have been of any benefit to the farming class of this country, and this being true, as one Member of the House, I certainly would not be willing to give unanimous consent to agreeing to an amendment carrying with it such provision.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, there is something in here that I am not familiar with. I appreciate the necessity of this legislation and of expediting the matter. Why can we not agree to this?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit the Chair to make a suggestion? There is just one amendment, and the gentleman from Texas can call up the bill and have the amendment read. The gentleman from Texas would have an hour, and he can yield to whom he may desire and then move the previous question on the adoption of the amend-

Mr. MICHENER. My thought was that we might save the reading of the amendment, have the gentleman from Texas explain to the House what it means and just what is accomplished by the amendment, and by so doing we might get through in less than an hour.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, in view of the difficulty in getting unanimous consent, I call up the bill H. R. 14359, to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, this is a very important matter, and I think we ought to have a quorum. I make the point that there is no quorum present.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas makes the point that no quorum is present. The Chair will count. [After counting.] One hundred and sixty-three Members present, not a quorum.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The doors were closed, the Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 174]

Aldrich	De Rouen	Igoe	Rayburn
Bacharach	Dickstein	Johnson, Ill.	Robinson
Bankhead	Dieterich	Johnson, Okla.	Sanders, N. Y.
Bloom	Dominick	Johnson, S. Dak.
Boland	Douglas, Ariz.	Kading	Schuetz
Brand, Ga.	Doutrich	Keller	Selvig
Brand, Ohio	Eaton, Colo.	Kemp	Shreve
Buchanan	Erk	Kvale	Sirovich
Buckbee	Estep	Lambertson	Smith, Idaho
Burdick	Fishburne	Lehlbach	Strong, Kans.
Busby	Flood	Lewis	Sullivan, N. Y.
Campbell, Iowa	Freeman	McLeod	Sullivan, Pa.
Campbell, Pa.	Fulbright	Maas	Taylor, Tenn.
Canfield	Fulmer	May	Temple
Carter, Wyo.	Gasque	Milligan	Thurston
Cartwright	Golder	Montague	Underhill
Chapman	Griffin	Moore, Ohio	Wason
Chase	Guver	Mouser	Weaver
Chindblom	Hall, Ill.	Nelson, Wis.	Wolcott
Cole, Iowa	Hall, Miss.	Niedringhaus	Wolfenden
Cooke	Hall, N. Dak.	Oliver, Ala.	Wood, Ga.
	Hardy	Owen	Wood, Ind.
Coyle	Hare	Perkins	Yates
Crail	Carrier Street, Street	Pettengill	Yon
Crump	Haugen	Prall
Curry	Hornor	Pratt, Harcourt J.
Davennort	Hull, William E.	Fiate, Harcourts.

The SPEAKER. Three hundred and twenty-four Members have answered to their names. A quorum is present. On motion of Mr. Sumners of Texas, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the amendment. Mr. McKEOWN. Mr. Speaker, can we not agree upon the reading of only that part of the amendment that is in disagreement between the House and the Senate?

The SPEAKER. The Clerk can not distinguish the differences between the House and the Senate.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the Senate amendment be dispensed with and that it be printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The amendment is as follows:

Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives, H. R. 14359, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States,' approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto," do pass with the following amendment: Strike out all after the enacting clause and in lice thereof ment: Strike out all after the enacting clause and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"That the act of July 1, 1898, entitled 'An act to establish a uniform system of bankrutpcy throughout the United States,' as amended by the acts of February 5, 1903, June 15, 1906, June 25, 1910, March 2, 1917, January 7, 1922, May 27, 1926, and February 11, 1932, be, and it is hereby, amended by repealing sections 12 and 13 thereof and by adding thereto a new chapter to read as follows:

"'CHAPTER VIII

" PROVISIONS FOR THE RELIEF OF DEBTORS

"'SEC. 73. Additional jurisdiction: In addition to the jurisdic-SEC. 73. Additional jurisdiction: In addition to the jurisdiction exercised in voluntary and involuntary proceedings to adjudge persons bankrupt, courts of bankruptcy shall exercise original jurisdiction in proceedings for the relief of debtors, as provided in sections 74 and 75 of this act.

"'SEC. 74. Compositions and extensions: (a) Any person excepting a corporation may file a petition, or, in an involuntary proceeding before adjudication, an answer within the time limited by section 18(b) of this act, accompanied in either case, unless further time is granted, by his schedules, stating that he is insolvent or unable to meet his debts as they mature, and that he desires to effect a composition or an extension of time to pay his debts. The term "debt" for the purposes of an extension prodebts. The term "debt" for the purposes of an extension proposal under this section shall include all claims of whatever character against the debtor or his property, including a claim for future rent, whether or not such claims would otherwise constitute provable claims under this act. Upon the filing of such a petition or answer the judge shall enter an order either approving it as properly filed under this section, if satisfied that such petition or answer complies with this section and has been filed in good faith, or dismissing it. If such petition or answer is approved, an order of adjudication shall not be entered except as provided in subdivision (1) of this section: Provided, however, That in staving the action for adjudication in an involuntary pro-That in staying the action for adjudication in an involuntary proceeding the court shall make such stay conditional upon such terms for the protection and indemnity against loss by the estate as may be proper, and that in any other proceeding under this section the court may, as the creditors at the first meeting may direct, impose similar terms as a condition of delaying the appointment of a trustee and the liquidation of the estate. Any appointment of a trustee and the liquidation of the estate. Any person by or against whom a petition is filed shall be referred to in the proceedings under this section as "debtor." The term "creditor" shall include for the purposes of an extension proposal under this section all holders of claims of whatever character against the debtor or his property including a claim for future rent, whether or not such claims would otherwise constitute provable claims under this act. A claim for future rent shall constitute a provable debt and shall be liquidated under section 63(b) of this act.

63(b) of this act.

"'(b) After the filing of such petition or answer the court may upon reasonable notice to creditors and attorneys of record appoint a custodian or receiver, who shall inventory the debtor's estate and exercise such supervision and control over the conduct of the debtor's business as the creditors at any meeting or the court shall direct.

"'(c) The custodian or receiver, or if none has been appointed, the court, shall promptly call the first meeting of creditors, stating in the notice that the debtor proposes to offer terms of composition or extension, and inclosing with the notice a summary of the inventory, a brief statement of the debtor's in-debtedness as shown by the schedules, and a list of the names and addresses of the secured creditors and the 15 largest unsecured creditors, with the amounts owing to each as shown by the schedules. Any creditor may appear at or before the first meeting and controvert the facts alleged in the petition. In such case the court shall determine as soon as may be the issues pre-sented, without the intervention of a jury, and unless the mate-rial allegations are sustained by the proof shall dismiss the petition.

"'(d) At the first meeting (1) the debtor may be examined; (2) the creditors may nominate a trustee, who shall thereafter be appointed by the court in case it becomes necessary to liquidate the estate as provided in subdivision (1) of this section; and (3) the court shall, after hearing the parties in interest, fix a reasonable time within which application for confirmation shall be made. The court may later extend such time for cause shown, and may require as a condition of such extension additional terms for the protection of and indemnity against loss by the estate as may be proper.

"'(e) An application for the confirmation of a composition or extension proposal may be filed in the court of bankruptcy after, extension proposal may be filed in the court of bankruptcy after, but not before, it has been accepted in writing by a majority in number of all creditors whose claims if unsecured have been allowed, or if secured are proposed to be affected by an extension proposal, which number must represent a majority in amount of such claims; and the money or security necessary to pay all debts which have priority unless waived and the costs of the proceedings, and in case of a composition the consideration to be paid by the debtor to his creditors, have been deposited in such place as shall be designated by and subject to the order of the court.

as shall be designated by and subject to the order of the court.
"'(f) A date and place, with reference to the convenience of the parties in interest, shall be fixed for a hearing upon each application for the confirmation of the composition or extension proposal, and such objections as may be made to its confirmation.

"(g) The court shall confirm the proposal if satisfied that (1) it includes an equitable and feasible method of liquidation for

It includes an equitable and feasible method of liquidation for secured creditors whose claims are affected and of financial rehabilitation for the debtor; (2) it is for the best interests of all creditors; (3) that the debtor has not been guilty of any of the acts or failed to perform any of the duties which would be a ground for denying his discharge; and (4) the offer and its acceptance are in good faith, and have not been made or procured except as herein provided, or by any means, promises, or acts herein forbidden. In application for extensions the court shall require proof from each creditor filing a claim that such claim is free from usury as defined by the laws of the place where the debt is contracted. is contracted.

"'(h) The terms of an extension proposal may extend the time of payment of either or both unsecured debts and secured debts the security of which is in the actual or constructive posdebts the security of which is in the actual or constructive possession of the debtor or of the custodian or receiver, and may provide for priority of payments to be made during the period of extension as between secured and unsecured creditors. It may also include specific undertakings by the debtor during the period of the extension, including provisions for payments on account, and may provide for supervisory or other control over the debtor's business or affairs during such period by a creditors' committee or otherwise, and for the termination of such period under certain specified conditions: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not affect the allowances and exemptions to debtors as are provided for bankrupts under title 11, chapter 3, section 24, of the United States Code, and such allowances and exemptions shall be set aside for the use of the debtor in the manner provided for kenkrupts.

vided for bankrupts.

"'(i) Upon its confirmation an extension proposal shall be binding upon the debtor and his unsecured and secured creditors affected thereby: Provided, however, That such extension or composition shall not reduce the amount of or impair the lien of any secured creditor, but shall affect only the time and method of its liquidation.

of its liquidation.

"'(j) Upon the confirmation of a composition the consideration shall be distributed as the court shall direct, and the case dismissed: Provided, That the debts having priority of payment under title 11, chapter 7, section 104, of the United States Code, for bankrupt estates, shall have priority of payment in the same order as set forth in said section 104 under the provisions of this section in any distribution, assignment, composition, or settlement herein provided for. Upon the confirmation of an extension proposal the court may dismiss the proceeding or retain jurisdiction of the court may dismiss the proceeding or retain jurisdiction of the debtor and his property during the period of the extension in order to protect and preserve the estate and enforce the terms of the to protect and preserve the estate and enforce the terms of the extension proposal.

"'(k) The judge may, upon the application of the parties in interest, filed at any time within six months after the composition or extension proposal has been confirmed, set the same aside and reinstate the case, if it shall be made to appear upon a trial that fraud was practiced in the procuring of such composition or extension, and that knowledge thereof has come to the petitions since the confirmation, thereof

"'(1) If (1) the debtor shall fail to comply with any of the terms required of him for the protection of and indemnity against loss by the estate; or (2) the debtor has failed to make the required deposit in case of a composition; or (3) the debtor's proposal has not been accepted by the creditors; or (4) confirmation has been denied; or (5) without sufficient reason the debtor defaults in any payment required to be made under the terms of an faults in any payment required to be made under the terms of an extension proposal when the court has retained jurisdiction of the debtor or his property, the court may appoint the trustee nominated by the creditors at the first meeting, and if the creditors shall have falled to so nominate, may appoint any other qualified person as trustee to liquidate the estate. The court shall in addition adjudge the debtor a bankrupt if satisfied that he commenced or prolonged the proceeding for the purpose of delaying creditors and avoiding an adjudication in bankruptcy, or if the confirmation of his proposal has been denied. No order of liquidation or adjudication shall be entered in any proceeding under this section instituted by or against a wage earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil unless the wage earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage wage earner or a person engaged chiefly in farming or the tillage of the soil consents.

"'(m) The filing of a debtor's petition or answer seeking relief under this section shall subject the debtor and his property, wherever located, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court in which the order approving the petition or answer as provided in subdivision (a) is filed. In proceedings under this section, except subdivision (a) is filed. In proceedings under this section, except as otherwise provided therein, the jurisdiction and powers of the court, the title, powers, and duties of its officers and, subject to the approval of the court, their fees, the duties of the debtor, and the rights and liabilities of creditors, and of all persons with respect to the property of the debtor and the jurisdiction of appellate courts shall be the same as if a voluntary petition for adjudication had been filed and a decree of adjudication had been entered on the day when the debtor's petition or answer was filed and any decree of adjudication thereafter entered shall have the same effect as if it had been entered on that day.

"'(n) In addition to the provisions of section 11 of this act for the staving of pending suits, the court, on such notice and on such

"'(n) In addition to the provisions of section 11 of this act for the staying of pending suits, the court, on such notice and on such terms, if any, as it deems fair and equitable, may enjoin secured creditors who may be affected by the extension proposal from proceeding in any court for the enforcement of their claims until the extension has been confirmed or denied by the court.

"'(o) The judges of the courts of bankruptcy shall appoint sufficient referees to sit in convenient places to expedite the proceedings under this section.

"'(p) Involuntary proceedings under this section shall not be taken against a wage earner.

taken against a wage earner.

taken against a wage earner.

"'SEC. 75. Agricultural compositions and extensions: (a) Courts of bankruptcy are authorized, upon petition of at least 15 farmers within any county who certify that they intend to file petitions under this section, to appoint for such county one or more referees to be known as conciliation commissioners, or to designate for service in such county a conciliation commissioner previously appointed for an adjacent county. In case more than one conciliation commissioner is appointed for a county, each commissioner shall act separately and shall have such territorial jurisdiction within the county as the court shall specify. A conciliation commissioner shall have a term of office of one year and may be removed by the court if his services are no longer needed or for other cause. No individual shall be eligible to appointment as a removed by the court if his services are no longer needed or for other cause. No individual shall be eligible to appointment as a conciliation commissioner unless he is eligible for appointment as a referee and in addition is a resident of the county, familiar with agricultural conditions therein, and not engaged in the farmmortgage business, the business of financing farmers or transactions in agricultural commodities, or the business of marketing or dealing in agricultural commodities or of furnishing agricultural supplies. In each judicial district the court may, if it finds it necessary or desirable, appoint a suitable person as a supervising conciliation commissioner. The supervising conciliation commissioner shall have such supervisory functions under this section as the court may by order specify.

"'(b) Upon filing of any petition by a farmer under this section there shall be paid a fee of $10 to be transmitted to the clerk of the court and covered into the Treasury. The conciliation commissioner shall receive as compensation for his services, including all expenses, a fee of $10 for each case docketed and submitted to him, to be paid out of the Treasury. A supervising conciliation commissioner shall receive, as compensation for his services, a per diem allowance to be fixed by the court, in an amount not in excess of $5 per day, together with subsistence and travel expenses in accordance with the law applicable to officers of the Department of Justice. Such compensation and expenses shall be paid out of the Treasury. If the creditors at any time desire superout of the Treasury. If the creditors at any time desire supervision over the farming operations of a farmer, the cost of such supervision shall be borne by such creditors or by the farmer, as may be agreed upon by them, but in no instance shall the farmer be required to pay more than one-half of the cost of such superbe required to pay more than one-half of the cost of such supervision. Nothing contained in this section shall prevent a conciliation commissioner who supervises such farming operations from receiving such compensation therefor as may be so agreed upon. No fees, costs, or other charges shall be charged or taxed to any farmer or his creditors by any conciliation commissioner or with respect to any proceeding under this section, except as hereinbefore in this section provided. The conciliation commissioner may accept and avail himself of office space, equipment, and assistance furnished him by other Federal officials, or by any State, county, or other public officials. The Supreme Court is authorized to make such general orders as it may find necessary properly to govern the administration of the office of conciliation commissioner and proceedings under this section; but any district court of the United States may, for good cause shown and in the interests of justice, permit any such general order to be waived.

"'(c) At any time within five years after this section takes effect, a petition may be filed by any farmer, stating that the farmer is insolvent or unable to meet his debts as they mature, and that it is desirable to effect a composition or an extension of farmer is insolvent or unable to meet his debts as they mature, and that it is desirable to effect a composition or an extension of time to pay his debts. The petition or answer of the farmer shall be accompanied by his schedules. The petition and answer shall be filed with the court, but shall, on request of the farmer or creditor, be received by the conciliation commissioner for the county in which the farmer resides and promptly transmitted by him to the clerk of the court for filing. If any such petition is filed, an order of adjudication shall not be entered except as provided hereinafter in this section.

"'(d) After the filing of such petition or answer by the farmer.

'(d) After the filing of such petition or answer by the farmer,

"'(d) After the filing of such petition or answer by the farmer, the farmer shall, within such time and in such form as the rules provide, file an inventory of his estate.

"'(e) The conciliation commissioner shall promptly call the first meeting of creditors, stating in the notice that the farmer proposes to offer terms of composition or extension, and inclosing with the notice a summary of the inventory, a brief statement of the farmer's indebtedness as shown by the schedules, and a list of the names and addresses of the secured creditors and unsecured creditors, with the amounts owing to each as shown by the schedules. At the first meeting of the creditors the farmer may be examined, and the creditors may appoint a committee to submit to the conciliation commissioner a supplementary inventory of the farmer's estate. The conciliation commissioner shall, after hearing the parties in interest, fix a reasonable time within which application for confirmation shall be made, and may later extend such time for cause shown. After the filing of the petition and such time for cause shown. After the filing of the petition and prior to the confirmation or other disposition of the composition or extension proposal by the court, the court shall exercise such control over the property of the farmer as the court deems in the best interests of the farmer and his creditors.

"'(f) There shall be prepared by, or under the supervision of, the conciliation commissioner a final inventory of the farmer's estate, and in the preparation of such inventory the commissioner shall give due consideration to the inventory filed by the farmer and to any supplementary inventory filed by a committee of the creditors

"'(g) An application for the confirmation of a composition or extension proposal may be filed in the court of bankruptcy after but not before (1) it has been accepted in writing by a majority in number of all creditors whose claims have been allowed, including secured creditors whose claims are affected, which number shall represent a majority in amount of such claims, and (2) the money or security precessary to pay all debts which have the money or security necessary to pay all debts which have priority unless waived, and in case of a composition, the consideration to be paid by the farmer to his creditors has been deposited in such place as shall be designated by and subject to the order of the court.

"'(h) A date and place, with reference to the convenience of the parties in interest, shall be fixed for a hearing upon each application for the confirmation of the composition or extension proposal and upon such objections as may be made to its confirmation.

"'(i) The court shall confirm the proposal if satisfied that (1) it includes an equitable and feasible method of liquidation for secured creditors and of financial rehabilitation for the farmer; (2) it is for the best interests of all creditors; and (3) the offer and its acceptance are in good faith, and have not been made or procured except as herein provided, or by any means, promises, or acts herein forbidden. In applications for extensions the court shall require proof from each creditor filing a claim that such claim is free from usury as defined by the laws of the place where the debt is contracted.

"'() The terms of a composition or extension proposal may extend the time of payment of either secured or unsecured debts, or both, and may provide for priority of payments to be made during the period of extension as between secured and unsecured creditors. It may also include specific undertakings by the farmer during the period of the extension, including provisions for payments on account, and may provide for supervisory or other control by the conciliation commissioner over the farmor other control by the conciliation commissioner over the farmer's affairs during such period, and for the termination of such period of supervision or control under conditions specified: Provided, That the provisions of this section shall not affect the allowances and exemptions to debtors as are provided for bankrupts under title 11, chapter 3, section 24, of the United States Code, and such allowances and exemptions shall be set aside for the use of the debtor in the manner provided for bankrupts.

"'(k) Upon its confirmation a composition or extension profor the use of the debtor in the manner provided for bankrupts.

"'(k) Upon its confirmation a composition or extension proposal shall be binding upon the farmer and his secured and unsecured creditors affected thereby: Provided, That such composition or extension shall not reduce the amount of nor impair the lien of any secured creditor, but shall affect only the time and method of its liquidation.

"'(1) Upon the confirmation of a composition the consideration shall be distributed under the supervision of the conciliation commissioner as the court shall direct, and the case dis-tion commissioner as the court shall direct, and the case dismissed: Provided, That the debts having priority of payment under title 11, chapter 7, section 104, of the United States Code, for bankrupt estates, shall have priority of payment in the same order as set forth in said section 104 under the provisions of this section in any distribution, assignment, composition, or settlement herein provided for. Upon the confirmation of an extension proposal the court may dismiss the proceeding or retain extension proposal the court may dismiss the proceeding or retain jurisdiction of the farmer and his property during the period of the extension in order to protect and preserve the estate and enforce through the conciliation commissioner the terms of the extension proposal. The court may, after hearing and for good cause shown, at any time during the period covered by an extension proposal that has been confirmed by the court, set the same aside, reinstate the case, and modify the terms of the extension proposal.

proposal.

"'(m) The judge may, upon the application of any party in interest, file at any time within six months after the composition or extension proposal has been confirmed, set the same aside and reinstate the case, if it shall be made to appear upon a trial that fraud was practiced in the procuring of such composition or extension, and that knowledge thereof has come to the petitioners since the confirmation thereof.

"'(n) The filing of a petition pleading for relief under this section shall subject the farmer and his property, wherever located, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court. In proceedlocated, to the exclusive jurisdiction of the court. In proceedings under this section, except as otherwise provided herein, the jurisdiction and powers of the court, the title, powers, and duties of its officers, the duties of the farmer, and the rights and liabilities of creditors, and of all persons with respect to the property of the farmer and the jurisdiction of the appellate courts, shall be the same as if a voluntary petition for adjudication had been filed and a decree of adjudication had been entered on the day when the farmer's petition or answer was filed.

"(0) Except upon petition made to and granted by the judge when the farmer's petition or answer was filed.

"'(o) Except upon petition made to and granted by the judge after hearing and report by the conciliation commissioner, the following proceedings shall not be instituted, or if instituted at any time prior to the filing of a petition under this section, shall not be maintained, in any court or otherwise, against the farmer or his property, at any time after the filing of the petition under this section, and prior to the confirmation or other disposition of the composition or extension proposal by the court:

"'(1) Proceedings for any demand, debt, or account, including any money demand;

any money demand;

"'(2) Proceedings for foreclosure of a mortgage on land, or for cancellation, rescission, or specific performance of an agreement for sale of land or for recovery of possession of land;

"'(3) Proceedings to acquire title to land by virtue of any tax sale; Proceedings by way of execution, attachment, or garnish-

"(4) Proceedings by way of execution, attachment, or garmsnment;
"(5) Proceedings to sell land under or in satisfaction of any judgment or mechanic's lien; and
"(6) Seizure, distress, sale, or other proceedings under an execution or under any lease, lien, chattel mortgage, conditional sale agreement, crop payment agreement, or mortgage.

"(p) The prohibitions of subdivision (o) shall not apply to proceedings for the collection of taxes, or interest or penalties with respect thereto, nor to proceedings affecting solely property other then that used in farming operations or comprising the other than that used in farming operations or comprising the home or household effects of the farmer or his family.

"'(q) A conciliation commissioner shall upon request assist any farmer in preparing and filing a petition under this section and in all matters subsequent thereto arising under this section and in all matters subsequent thereto arising under this section and farmers shall not be required to be represented by an attorney in any proceeding under this section.

"'(r) For the purpose of this section and section 74, the term "farmer" means any individual who is personally bona fide engaged primarily in farming operations or the principal part of whose income is derived from farming operations, and includes the personal representative of a deceased farmer; and a farmer shall be deemed a resident of any county in which such farming operations occur. operations occur.

"'SEC. 76. Extensions or compositions made pursuant to the foregoing provisions of this chapter shall extend the obligation of any person who is secondarily liable to any person for the prompt payment of such debt or debts, or any part thereof, and a copy of the order confirming such extension or composition, certified as required by the provisions of law with reference to judgments and proceedings in courts of the United States, shall be sufficient evidence that such extension or composition has been confirmed in any suit or proceeding brought against any such person so liable.

been confirmed in any suit or proceeding brought against any such person so liable.

"'SEC. 77. Reorganization of railroads engaged in interstate commerce: (a) Any railroad corporation may file a petition stating that the railroad corporation is insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature and that it desires to effect a plan of reorganization. The petition shall be filed with the court in whose territorial jurisdiction the railroad corporation, during the preceding six months or the greater portion thereof, has had its principal executive or operating office, and a copy of the petition shall at the same time be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission hereinafter called the commission: Provided, That when any railroad, although engaged in interstate commerce, lies Commission hereinafter called the commission: Provided, That when any railroad, although engaged in interstate commerce, lies wholly within one State, such proceedings shall be brought in the Federal district court within the State in which the railroad is located. The petition shall be accompanied by payment to the clerk of a filing fee of $100, which shall be in addition to the fees required to be collected by the clerk under other sections of this act. Upon the filing of such a petition, the judge shall enter an order either approving it as properly filed under this section, if satisfied that such petition complies with this section and has been filed in good faith, or dismissing it if not so satisfied. If the petition is so approved, the court in which such order approving the petition is entered shall, during the pendency of the proceedings under this section and for the purposes thereof, have exclusive jurisdiction of the debtor and its property wherthe proceedings under this section and for the purposes thereof, have exclusive jurisdiction of the debtor and its property wherever located. The railroad corporation shall be referred to in the proceedings as a "debtor." Any corporation, the majority of the capital stock of which having power to vote for the election of directors is owned, either directly or indirectly through an intervening medium, by any railroad corporation filing a petition as a debtor under this section, or substantially all of whose properties are operated by such a debtor under lease or operating agreement may file, with the court in which such other debtor had filed such a petition, and in the proceeding upon such petition under this section, a petition stating that it is insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature and that it desires to effect a plan of reorganization in connection with, or as a part of, the plan of reorganization of such other debtor; and thereupon such court shall have the same jurisdiction with respect to it, its property and its creditors and stockholders as the court has with respect to such other debtor. Creditors of any railroad corporation having claims or interests aggregating not less than 5 per cent of all the indebtedness of such railroad corporation as 5 per cent of all the indebtedness of such railroad corporation as shown in the latest annual report which it has filed with the commission at the time when the petition is filed, may, if the railroad corporation has not filed a petition under this section, but subject to first having obtained the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission after heaving upon notice to such but subject to first having obtained the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, after hearing, upon notice to such railroad corporation, file with the court in which such railroad corporation might file a petition under the provisions of this section, a petition stating that such railroad corporation is insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature and that such creditors propose that it shall effect a reorganization; upon such filing of such a petition copies thereof shall be filed with the commission and served by the petitioning creditors forthwith upon the railroad corporation; the railroad corporation shall, within 10 days after such service, answer such petition; if such answer shall admit the jurisdiction of the court, that the claims of the petitioning creditors constitute the amounts necessary to entitle them to file such petition under this section, and that the railroad corporation is either insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature, the court shall, upon the filing of the the railroad corporation is either insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature, the court shall, upon the filing of the recommendations of the commission in writing, enter an order approving the petition as properly filed under this section if satisfied that it complies with this section and has been filed in good faith, or disapprove it if not satisfied; and if so approved the proceedings thereon shall continue with like effect as if the railroad corporation had itself filed petition under this section; if such answer shall deny either the jurisdiction of the court or that the claims of the petitioning creditors constitute such necessary amounts or that the railroad corporation is insolvent or unable to meet its debts as they mature, the court shall summarily try the issues, and if after the filing of the recommendations of the commission in writing it shall find that the petition complies with this section, and has been filed in good faith, the court shall enter an order approving the petition as properly filed court shall enter an order approving the petition as properly filed under this section, and the proceedings thereon shall continue with like effect as if the railroad corporation had itself filed a petition under this section; otherwise the court shall dismiss the petition.

petition.

"'(b) A plan of reorganization within the meaning of this section (1) shall include a proposal to modify or alter the rights of creditors generally, or of any class of them, secured or unsecured, either through the issuance of new securities of any character or otherwise; (2) may include, in addition, provisions modifying or altering the rights of stockholders generally, or of any class of them; (3) shall provide adequate means for the execution of the plan, which may, so far as may be consistent with the provisions of sections 1 and 5 of the interstate commerce act as amended, include the transfer or conveyance of all or any part of the property of the debtor to another corporation or to other corporations or the consolidation of the properties of the debtor with those of another railroad corporation, or the merger of the debtor with any other railroad corporation and the issuance of securities of either the debtor or any such corporation or corporations, for cash, or in exchange for existing securities, or in satisfaction of claims or rights, or for other appropriate purposes; and (4) may deal with all or any part of the property of the debtor. The term "securities" shall include evidences of indebtedness, either secured or unsecured, bonds, stocks, certificates of beneficial interest therein, and certificates of beneficial interest in property. The term "stockholders" shall include the holders of voting trust certificates. The term "creditors" shall, except as otherwise specifically provided in this section, include, for all purposes of this section and of the reorganization plan, its acceptance and confirmation, all holders of claims, interests, or securities of whatever character against the debtor or its property, including claim for firmation, all holders of claims, interests, or securities of whatever character against the debtor or its property, including claim for future rent, whether or not such claims, interests, or securities would otherwise constitute provable claims under this act.

"'(c) Upon approving the petition as properly filed the judge (1) may temporarily appoint from a panel of standing trustees qualified for such service to be selected and designated in advance by the commission a trustee or trustees of the debtor's estate, who shall have all the title and, subject to the control of the judge and consistently with the provisions of this section, shall exercise all the powers of a trustee appointed pursuant to section 44 or any other section of this act, and subject to the section 44 or any other section of this act, and, subject to the judge's control and the jurisdiction of the commission as provided by the interstate commerce act, as amended, shall have the power to operate the business of the railroad corporations; (2) shall fix the amount of the bond of such trustee or trustees and require the debtor, the trustee, or trustees to give such notice as the order may direct to creditors and stockholders and to cause publication thereof to be made at least once a week for two successive weeks of a hearing to be held within 30 days after such appointment, at which hearing or any adjournment thereof the appointment, at which hearing or any adjournment thereof the judge may make permanent such appointment, or may terminate it and may, in the manner herein provided for the appointment of trustees, appoint a substitute trustee or substitute trustees, and in the same manner may appoint an additional trustee or additional trustees, and shall fix the amount of the bond of the substitute or additional trustee or trustees; the trustee or trustees and their counsel shall receive such compensation as the judge may allow within a maximum approved by the commission; (3) may for cause shown, and with the approval of the commission, in accordance with section 20 (a) of the interstate commission, in accordance with section 20 (a) of the interstate commerce act as amended, authorize the trustee or trustees to issue certificates for cash, property, or other consideration approved by the judge, for such lawful purposes and upon such terms and conditions and with such security and such priority in payments over existing obligations, secured or unsecured, as might in an equity receivership be lawful; (4) shall require the debtor, at such time or times as the judge may direct and in lieu of the schedules required by section 7 of this act, to file such schedules and submit such other information as may be necesschedules and submit such other information as may be necessary to disclose the conduct of the debtor's affairs and the fairness of any proposed plan; (5) shall determine a reasonable time within which the claims and interests of creditors and stockholders may be filed or evidenced and after which no such claim holders may be filed or evidenced and after which no such claim or interest may participate in any plan except on order for cause shown; the manner in which such claims and interests may be filed or evidenced and allowed, and, for the purposes of the plan and its acceptance, the division of creditors and stockholders into classes according to the nature of their respective claims and interests; (6) shall cause reasonable notice of such determination, or of the dismissal of the proceedings, or the allowance of fees or expenses, to be given creditors and stockholders by publication or otherwise; (7) if a plan of reorganization is not proposed or accepted, or, if proposed and accepted, is not confirmed, within such reasonable time as the judge may, upon cause shown and after considering any recommendation which has been filed by the commission, allow, may dismiss the proceeding; (8) may, within such maximum limits as are fixed by the commission, as within such maximum limits as are fixed by the commission, as elsewhere provided in subdivision (f) of this section, allow a reasonable compensation for the services rendered and reimburseelsewhere provided in subdivision (f) of this section, allow a reasonable compensation for the services rendered and reimbursement for the actual and necessary expenses incurred in connection with the proceeding and plan by officers, parties in interest, reorganization managers, and committees or other representatives of creditors or stockholders, and the attorneys or agents of any of the foregoing, and by such assistants as the commission with the approval of the judge may specially employ; and (9) may on his own motion or at the request of the commission refer any matters for consideration and report, either generally or upon specified issues, to one of several special masters who shall have been previously designated to act as special masters in any proceedings under this section by order of any circuit court of appeals and may allow such master a reasonable compensation for his services. The circuit court of appeals of each circuit shall designate three or more members of the bar as such special masters whom they deem qualified for such services, and shall from time to time revise such designations by changing the persons designated or reducing or adding to their numbers, as the public interest may require: Provided, however, That there shall always be three of such special masters qualified for appointment in each circuit who shall in their respective circuits hear any matter referred to them under this section by a judge of any district court. For all purposes of this section claims against a railroad corporation which would have been entitled to priority over existing mortgages if a receiver in equity of the property of the debtor had been appointed by a Federal court at the date of the filing of the petition hereunder shall be entitled to such priority, and holders of such claims shall be treated as a separate class of creditors. If in any case in which the issues have not already been tried under the provisions of subdivision (a) of this section any of the debtor's creditors shall, prior to the hearing provided for in subdivision (c), clause (2), of this section, appear and controvert the facts alleged in the petition, the judge shall determine, as soon as may be, the issues presented by the pleadings, without the intervention of a jury, and unless the material allegations of the petition are sustained by the proofs shall dismiss the petition. Any creditor or stockholder shall be heard on the question of the permanent appointment of any trustee or trustees, the proposed recommendation, approval, or confirmation of any reorganization plan, and upon filing a petition for leave to intervene on such other questions arising in the proceeding as the judge shall determine. The debtor, or the trustees if appointed, shall within 15 days or, upon cause shown, such other time as may be directed by the judge, prepare (1) a list of all known bondholders and creditors of, or claimants against, a debtor or its property, and the amounts and character of their debts, claims, and securities, and the last known post-office address or place of business of each creditor or claimant, and (2) a list of the stockholders of the debtor, or the last known post-office address or place of business of each. The contents of such lists shall not constitute admissions by the debtor or the trustees in a proceeding under this section or otherwise. Such lists shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or stockholder of, or claimant against, the debtor, during reasonable business hours, upon application to the debtor or trustees, as the cause may be.

"'(d) Before creditors and stockholders over existing mortgages if a receiver in equity of the property of the debtor had been appointed by a Federal court at the date of the filing of the petition hereunder shall be entitled to such report stating the reasons for such modification. Thereafter the plan of reorganization recommended by the commission shall be submitted in such manner as the commission may direct to the creditors and stockholders of the debtor for acceptance or rejection, together with the report or reports of the commission thereon; and the commission may at the same time afford an opportunity to accept or reject any other plan of reorganization filed as in this subdivision (d) provided.

"'(e) A plan of reorganization shall not be finally approved by the commission until it has been accepted in writing and such "'(e) A plan of reorganization shall not be finally approved by the commission until it has been accepted in writing and such acceptance has been filed in the proceeding by or on behalf of creditors helding two-thirds in amount of the claims of each class whose claims or interests would be affected by the plan, and by or on behalf of stockholders of the debtor holding two-thirds of the stock of each class: Provided, however, That if adequate provision is made in the plan for the protection of the interests, claims, and liens of any class of creditors or stockholders in the manner provided in clauses (5) and (6) of subdivision (g) of this section, then the acceptance of the plan by such class of creditor or stockholders shall not be requisite to the approval of the plan: And provided further, That the acceptance of stockholders shall not be requisite to the confirmation of the plan if (1) the judge shall have determined (a) that the corporation is insolvent, or (b) that the interests of stockholders will not be adversely affected by the plan, or (c) that the debtor has pursuant to authorized corporate action accepted the plan, and its stockholders are bound by such acceptance. For the purposes of this section acceptance by a creditor or stockholder shall include acceptance in writing executed by him; or acceptance by his duly authorized attorney or committee acting under authority executed by him subsequent to the recommendation of the plan by the commission. Upon acceptance of the plan in accordance with the provisions of this subdivision (e) the commission may, without further proceedings, grant authority for the issue of any securities, assumption of obligations, transfer of any property, or consolidation or merger of properties, to the extent contemplated by the plan consistent with the purposes of the interstate commerce act, as amended. If the United States of America is directly a creditor or stockholder, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to accept or reject a plan in respect of the inter to accept or reject a plan in respect of the interests or claims of the United States.

"'(f) If the plan recommended by the commission is accepted as provided in subdivision (e), the commission shall thereupon certify the plan to the court, together with its approval thereof and that the same has been so accepted, together with a report of the proceedings before it and its conclusions thereon. If the plan accepted as provided in subdivision (e) differs from the plan recommended by the commission, it shall, upon acceptance, be submitted to the commission, which shall hear all interested parties upon such notice and subject to such rules and regulations as it shall prescribe. If after such hearing the commission determines that the accepted plan in its opinion is equitable and will mines that the accepted plan in its opinion is equitable and will not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders; will be financially advisable; will meet the requirements of subdivision (g) of this section; and will be compatible with the public interest; the commission shall thereupon certify the plan to the court, together with its approval thereof and that the same has been duly accepted, and together with a report of the proceedings before it and its findings and conclusions thereon. The commission shall also, after hearing if necessary, fix the maxinum compensation and reimbursement which may be allowed by the court pursuant to clause (8) of subdivision (c) of this section: Provided, That unless good and sufficient reasons appear therefor no allowance for fees or compensation shall be made to officers of corporations who have acted as managers or in any capacity in corporations who have acted as managers or in any capacity in connection with the reorganization when such corporation had an interest in the matter. No plan of reorganization shall be confirmed in any proceeding under this section except upon the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission certified to the court. If the commission shall decline to issue such a certificate, it shall file in the proceeding its decision, specifying the particular grounds upon which it bases its disapproval of the plan.

(g) Upon such approval by the commission, and after hear (g) Opon such approval by the commission, and after near-ing such objections as may be made to the approved plan, the judge shall confirm the plan if satisfied that (1) the approved plan complies with the provisions of subdivision (b) of this section, is equitable and does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders; (2) all amounts to be section, is equitable and does not discriminate unfairly in favor of any class of creditors or stockholders; (2) all amounts to be paid by the debtor or by any corporation or corporations acquiring the debtor's assets, for services or expenses incident to the reorganization and cost of financing, have been fully disclosed and are reasonable, or are to be subject to the approval of the judge; (3) the offer of the plan and its acceptance are in good faith and have not been made or procured by any means or promises forbidden by this act; (4) the approved plan provides for the payment of all costs of administration and other allowances made by the court, except that compensation or reimbursement provided for in subdivision (c), clause (8), of this section may be paid in securities provided for in the plan if those entitled thereto will accept such payment and the court finds such compensation reasonable; (5) the approved plan provides, with respect to stockholders of any class the acceptance of which is requisite to the confirmation of the plan, and who would not become bound by the plan under the provision of subdivision (h) of this section, adequate protection for the realization by them of the value of their equity, if any, in the property of the debtor dealt with by the plan either by a sale of the property at not less than a fair upset price, or by appraisal and payment in cash either of the value of their stock or, at the objecting stockholder's election, of the value of the securities, if any, allotted to such stock under the plan; (6) the plan provides with respect to any class of creditors the acceptance of which is requisite to the confirmation of the plan, and who would not become bound by the plan under the provisions of subdivision (h) of this section, adequate protection for the realization by them of the value of their securition of the plan, and who would not become bound by the plan under the provisions of subdivision (h) of this section, adequate protection for the realization by them of the value of their securities, liens, and claims, either (a) by the sale of such property subject to their liens, if any, or (b) by the sale free of such liens at not less than a fair upset price, and the transfer of such liens to the proceeds of such sale, or (c) by appraisal and payment in cash of either the value of such liens and claims or, at the objecting creditors' election, the value of the securities allotted to such liens and claims under the plan. Section 57, clause (h), of this act shall be applicable to the appraisal of securities under this section, and the value of the unpaid balance shall be apof this act shall be applicable to the appraisal of securities under this section, and the value of the unpaid balance shall be appraised as an unsecured claim; and (7) the debtor, and every other corporation issuing securities or acquiring property under the plan, is authorized by its charter or by applicable State or Federal laws, upon confirmation of the plan, to carry out the plan. In the case of a sale or appraisal under clause (5) or (6) of this subdivision (g) the court shall refer to the commission for its consideration and determination the amount to be fixed as the unset price and the appraisal of any securities.

for its consideration and determination the amount to be fixed as the upset price and the appraisal of any securities.

"'(h) Upon such confirmation the provisions of the plan shall be binding upon (1) the corporation, (2) all stockholders if the judge shall have determined (a) that the corporation is insolvent, or (b) that the interests of stockholders will not be adversely affected by the plan, or (c) that the debtor has pursuant to authorized corporate action accepted the plan and its stockholders are bound by such acceptance, (3) all stockholders of each class of which two-thirds in amount shall have accepted the plan, (4) all creditors whose claims are payable in cash in full under the plan, (5) all creditors entitled to priority under subdivision (c) of this section, whose claims are not payable in cash in full under the plan, provided two-thirds in amount of such creditors shall have accepted the plan in writing filed in the proceeding, (6) all other unsecured creditors, provided two-thirds in amount of such creditors shall have accepted the plan in writing filed in the proceeding, and (7) all secured creditors of each class of which two-thirds in amount shall have accepted the plan. The confirmation of the plan shall discharge the debtor from its debts except as provided in the plan. Upon confirmation of the plan by the judge, the debtor and other corporations affected by the plan, or organized or to be organized for the purpose of carrying out the plan between the plan is the commission have organized or to be organized for the purpose of carrying out the plan, shall, subject to the jurisdiction of the commission, have full power and authority to put into effect and carry out the plan and the orders of the judge relative thereto, the laws of any State or the decision or order of any State authority to the contrary notwithstanding. In the event that the judge should disaprove the plan he shall file an opinion stating his reasons therefor.

"'(1) The provisions of sections 721, 722, 723, 724, and 725 of the revenue act of 1932 shall not apply to the issuance, transfers, or exchange of securities or filing of conveyances to make effective any plan of reorganization confirmed under the provisions of this section.

'(j) Upon the confirmation of the plan the property dealt with by the plan, when transferred and conveyed to the debtor or other corporation or corporations provided for by the plan, or if no by the plan, when transferred and conveyed to the debtor or other corporation or corporations provided for by the plan, or if no trustee or trustees have been appointed when held by the debtor pursuant to the plan, shall, as the court may direct, be free and clear of all claims of the debtor, its stockholders and creditors, except such as may consistently with the provisions of the plan be reserved in the order confirming the plan or directing such transfer and conveyance, and the court may direct the trustee or trustees, or if there be no trustee or trustees the debtor, to make any such transfer and conveyance, and may direct the debtor to join in any such transfer or conveyance made by the trustee or trustees. Upon the termination of the proceeding a final decree shall be entered discharging the trustee or trustees, if any, making such provisions as may be equitable, and closing the case.

"'(k) If a receiver of all or any part of the property of a corporation has been appointed by a Federal or State court, whether before or after this amendatory act takes effect, the railroad corporation may nevertheless file a petition or answer under this section at any time thereafter, but if it does so and the petition is approved the trustee or trustees appointed under the provisions of this section shall be entitled forthwith to possession of such property, and the judge shall make such orders as he may deem equitable for the protection of obligations incurred by the receiver and for the payment of such reasonable administrative expenses and all calmans.

equitable for the protection of obligations incurred by the receiver and for the payment of such reasonable administrative expenses and allowances in the prior proceeding as may be fixed by the court appointing said receiver within maximum limits approved by the commission. If a receiver has been appointed by a Federal or State court prior to the dismissal under subdivision (c), clause (7), of a proceeding under this section, the judge may include in the order of dismissal appropriate provisions directing the trustee to transfer possession of the debtor's property within the territorial jurisdiction of such court to the receiver so appointed, upon such terms as the judge may deem equitable for the protection of obligations incurred by the trustee and for the payment of administrative expenses and allowances in the proceeding hereunder. For the purposes of this section the words "Federal court" shall include the district courts of the United States and of the Terri For the purposes of this section the words "Federal court" shall include the district courts of the United States and of the Territories and possessions to which this act is or may hereafter be applicable, the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and the United States Court of Alaska.

"'(1) In addition to the provisions of section 11 of this act for the staying of pending suits against the debtor, such suits shall be further stayed until after final decree the judge may, upon notice and for cause shown, enjoin or stay the commencement or continuance of any judicial proceeding to enforce any lien upon the estate until after final decree.

"'(m) A certified copy of an order confirming a plan of reor-

"'(m) A certified copy of an order confirming a plan of reorganization shall be evidence of the jurisdiction of the court, the regularity of the proceedings, and the fact that the order was made. A certified copy of an order directing the transfer and conveyance of the property dealt with by the plan as provided in subdivision of the property dealt with by the plan as provided in subdivision (j) of this section shall be evidence of the transfer and conveyance of title accordingly, and if recorded shall impart the same notice that a deed if recorded would impart.

that a deed if recorded would impart.

"'(n) In proceedings under this section 76 and consistent with the provisions thereof, the jurisdiction and powers of the court, the duties of the debtor and the rights and liabilities of creditors, and of all persons with respect to the debtor and his property, shall be the same as if a voluntary petition for adjudication had been filed and a decree of adjudication had been entered on the day when the debtor's petition was filed.

"'(o) No judge or trustee acting under this act shall change the wages or working conditions of railroad employees, except in the manner prescribed in the railroad labor act, or as set forth in the memorandum of agreement entered into in Chicago, Ill., on January 31, 1932, between the executives of 21 standard labor organizations and the committee of nine authorized to represent class 1 railroads. railroads

"'(p) No judge or trustee acting under this act shall deny or in any way question the right of employees on the property under his jurisdiction to join the labor organization of their choice, and it shall be unlawful for any judge, trustee, or receiver to interfere in any way with the organizations of employees, or to use the funds of the railroad under his jurisdiction, in maintaining so-called company unions, or to influence or coerce employees in an effort to induce them to join or remain members of such company unions.

"'(q) No judge, trustee, or receiver acting under this act shall require any person seeking employment on the property under his jurisdiction to sign any contract or agreement promising to join or to refuse to join a labor organization; and if such contract has been enforced on the property prior to the property coming under the jurisdiction of said judge, trustee, or receiver, then the said judge, trustee, or receiver, as soon as the matter is called to his attention, shall notify the employees by an appropriate order that said contract has been discarded and is no longer binding on them in any way.

"'(r) The term "railroad corporation" as used in this act means
"the railroad engaged in the transportation of any common carrier by railroad engaged in the transportation of persons or property in interstate commerce, except a street, suburban, or interurban electric railway which is not operated as a part of a general railroad system of transportation or which does not derive more than 50 per cent of its operating revenues from the transportation of freight in standard steam railroad freight equipment. Railroad or railway corporations excluded from the provisions of this section shall be subject to the provisions of section 75 of this act.

"'(s) In proceedings under this section, claims for personal injuries to employees of a railroad corporation, and claims of personal representatives of deceased employees of a railroad corporation arising under State or Federal laws, shall be preferred claims against the assets of such railroad corporation, in receivership or in reorganization as herein provided, such claims to be subordinate only to costs of administration of such receivership or reorganization.

ganization.

"SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the date of its approval, and shall apply as fully to debtors, their stockholders and creditors, whose interest or debts, whether secured or unsecured, have been acquired or incurred prior to such date, as to debtors, their stockholders and creditors, whose interest or debts have been acquired or incurred after such date. Proceedings under section 1 of this act may be taken in proceedings in bankruptcy which are pending on the effective date of this act.

"SEC. 3. In all bankruptcy proceedings the officers and agents in charge of the bankrupt funds are authorized to deposit the same without limit as to amount in the postal savings depositories at the prescribed interest rate in all cases where local banks are unable or unwilling to give the required security. Such deosit or any portion thereof may be withdrawn as required in the bankruptcy proceedings.'

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, this is the situation with regard to this bill: As everyone knows, there are only two days remaining in this session of Congress. This bill has been amended in the Senate. The most important change has been the elimination of the section dealing with corporations.

You all remember that when it passed the House the bill contained three main divisions: The provision of the bill dealing with individuals, the provisions of the bill dealing with corporations, and the provision of the bill dealing specifically with railroads.

The central purpose of this proposed legislation is to make it possible for reorganizations and readjustments to be effected and to bring about the suspension of the operation of the laws dealing with the enforcement of collections, particularly during the period of negotiation and attempted settlement.

In the Senate the provisions of the bill dealing with corporations were stricken out. I believe that the provisions of the bill dealing with individuals have not been materially changed, except as to the provisions of the bill dealing with farmers. There has been a very considerable change there.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. In a moment. The provision of the bill dealing with railroads has been changed in its mechanics to some degree, but that change I believe will not be regarded by any student of the bill as being important.

One Senate amendment has caused considerable discussion. It is an amendment with regard to which there is a definite difference of opinion, and that is the amendment dealing with railroad employees. The bill as it comes to you now undertakes to hold in effect and operative the general law now governing the relationship between the railroads and their employees, and keeps effective the machinery under which railroads in their ordinary operations change their wage scale, and so forth, as between themselves and their employees.

The bill with regard to farmers has been changed. I do not know how many Members here are familiar with the original proposition dealing with agricultural adjustment, as the matter was presented to the Committee on the Judiciary for consideration. The original suggestion was, there should be appointed in each one of the counties a special referee or adjuster, whatever you may want to call him, whose business it was to assist everybody in interest to try and bring about an adjustment of the indebtedness of the farmer as between the farmer and his creditors. The House did not include that in its bill. That plan modified has been incorporated in the Senate amendment.

I yield now to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, I may have misunderstood the gentleman, but I understood him to state that no substantial changes had been made in the bill relative to the portion of it dealing with the individual debtor. Was I correct in my understanding of the gentleman's statement?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I am not sure about my statement, but will the gentleman please direct an inquiry to me?

Mr. TARVER. In the bill as it passed the House originally on page 4, subsection (e), second division, there was contained a provision by which the court might grant an extension of time to the individual debtor irrespective of whether he was able to secure the consent of a majority in number and amount of his creditors or not.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes.

Mr. TARVER. That provision has been stricken from the bill, and even under the conciliation plan effective as to farmers, an approval of a majority in number and amount of creditors is required.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes.

Mr. TARVER. Does the gentleman not recognize the fact that the major portion of the indebtedness of practically every farmer in this country is represented by one mortgage? If he could get the consent of the mortgagee, he would not have to go into bankruptcy and take the benefits of this bill, and if he can not get the consent of the mortgagee, it would do him no good under its provisions. Are you not proposing to consent to eliminate the only provision in the bill that could possibly help the American farmer?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. The gentleman is correct in his statement that under the Senate amendment a majority in amount of the creditors must be obtained.

Mr. TARVER. Does the gentleman think that any benefit could flow to the American farmer under the provisions of this bill, which has been heralded as a great farm-relief measure? I want to know what part of the bill is going to help the distressed American farmer. It looks to me like a railroad bill as at present drawn.

Mr. BALDRIGE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes.

Mr. BALDRIGE. I want to know whether or not there was any discussion concerning one sentence in the bill, which I will read, on page 45.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman from Texas to answer my question, if it may be permitted.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I considered the gentleman's question more in the light of a statement of his own interpretation of the bill.

Mr. TARVER. No; I asked the gentleman what portion of the bill could possibly help the American farmer. That,

I think, is a definite, concrete question.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I say candidly to my colleague that that provision of the bill is no more acceptable to me than it is to the gentleman from Georgia. I would not go so far as to say that the farmers may not get some benefit under the bill. I believe that states my view about it. I am very candid with the House about the bill. There are many things in it that I do not like. I think it is not as good a bill as it was when it left the House. Gentlemen can offer objections to the bill just the same as I can, or anybody else, because they are in the bill. The sole question before the House to-day is, Will we take the bill, with its objections, or take no bill? That is all there is to it.

Mr. BALDRIGE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes.

Mr. BALDRIGE. On page 45, subsection (h), I read the following:

The terms of an extension * * * may provide for priority of payments to be made during the period of extension as between ecured and unsecured creditors.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. That is the old bill.

Mr. BALDRIGE. That means he must pay the unsecured creditors before he can pay the secured creditors?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. No; I do not think so.

Mr. BALDRIGE. Now, what does that clause mean?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. If the gentleman will read a little further in the bill, he will find, under specific language, that the relationship between the secured and unsecured creditors, first and second liens, and so forth, may not be disturbed.

Mr. BALDRIGE. So this will not change the contractual relations between the secured and the unsecured?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. No, sir.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. But right there let the RECORD show that the purpose here is that the bill specifically gives the judge the power to defer payments to secured creditors. Let me repeat that so that there will be no misunderstanding about it. It specifically gives the judge the power to defer payments to secured creditors.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. That is on the same philosophy that the certificates of receivers of a going concern are allowed to be paid in preference.

Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I yield. Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. There are many Members who feel it was a great mistake to pass that part of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act which helped the railroads; who feel the country would be much better off if the railroads were now operating under receiverships. While I and other Members want to go along, if this is a railroad bill it will cause a great deal of hesitation. If it is a bill to keep the railroads running that are obviously insolvent, then I do not think we ought to pass it. I would like the gentleman to comment on that.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. May I make this suggestion to the gentleman? I suppose no harm could be done by the statement being made on the floor of the House that there are a number of railroads in very acute distress. I believe it is recognized that those railroads will have to be reorganized in effect. They will have to be reorganized under some such plan as is provided in this bill, or reorganized under the plan that is now in operation. Gentlemen who are advised know that under the plan now in operation there is in this country a thing that amounts almost to a reorganization racket, and it is hoped, also, that under this plan it will very much expedite reorganization. Now, speaking of this being a railroad bill-

Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. I want to say that I was simply asking for information.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes. I understand. To be candid about it, this is the situation: If those railroads begin to go into the hands of receivers now nobody knows what will happen to the insurance companies. Nobody knows how far that thing is going. The situation is regarded by the present administration, by Mr. Roosevelt and his associates, and I believe I may say it is regarded by members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the committee dealing with railroads, as being a very serious situation.

Mr. BLANTON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I yield.

Mr. BLANTON. My colleague knows that the Senate has added subdivision "(o)" on page 78 of this bill, which is a very important item. Can we not eliminate that from the gentleman's motion to recede and concur?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Speaking generally, there are several amendments with regard to which the members of the Committee on the Judiciary do not agree with the

Mr. BLANTON. The gentleman will yield me five minutes on that a little later?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Yes. I will yield very shortly. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Dyer], the ranking minority member on the Committee on the Judiciary, and I may say nearly everybody interested in this proposed bill, on yesterday had conversation with Members of the Senate with regard to the situation. I know a great many of us were especially anxious to reinstate the provision dealing with corporations; but, when we had concluded our conversation with Members of the Senate, we were convinced and they were convinced that to send this bill back to the Senate now, this near the conclusion of the session, would mean that we would have no bill at this session. Those who are best advised with regard to the condition that confronts the country—and that does not mean only people connected with the railroads, but it means those who are connected with this administration and those who will be connected in great responsibility with the incoming administration-all insist that under the circumstances these objections should be waived and we should permit the Senate bill to become a law. Everyone we come in contact with who is in a position to speak advisedly, those who had most serious objection to some of the provisions in the bill and those who have special objection to the provision to which the gentleman from Texas has referred, insist that this Senate bill should become

Mr. DYER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I yield.

Mr. DYER. I was going to ask the gentleman when he concluded if he would yield me some time. There are several gentlemen here who desire to be heard.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. I will be glad to yield time to the gentlemen.

Now, I promised to yield to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton] five minutes. I want to be protected, Mr. Speaker, in not losing the floor. I yield to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BLANTON].

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I want to call the attention of the House to subdivision (o), on page 78, which the Senate has added to this bill, and which reads as follows:

(o) No judge or trustee acting under this act shall change the wages or working conditions of railroad employees, except in the manner prescribed in the railroad labor act, or as set forth in the memorandum of agreement entered into in Chicago, Ill., on January 31, 1932, between the executives of 21 standard labor organizations and the committee of nine authorized to represent class 1 railroads.

If you put this provision in the bill there is not going to be any sane reorganization of railroads. The railroads now are busted because they can not pay expenses. They can not pay the wages that are provided for in those agreements and in the present act. Many of the railroads now, instead of charging 4 cents per mile passenger fare, are petitioning for the right to reduce their fare to 2 cents per mile so that they may compete with busses. The Texas & Pacific Railway Co., which runs 900 miles from El Paso to Texarkana and connects there with the Missouri Pacific that goes on to St. Louis, now has a petition before the railway commission asking permission to reduce its rate to 2 cents per mile: Why? So they can get passengers to ride their empty trains.

If you put this provision in this bill to prevent receivers and trustees under the court from exercising business judgment in this matter you are absolutely shutting the door to any sane reorganization of the railroads.

We are cutting down expenses in every line of business and endeavor. Salaries and wages are being cut in every line of business in the United States. There must be cuts in the railroad business. There must be cuts from the top downward of the officials of the railroads. There must be decided cuts along all the lines of expenditure by railroads, including salaries of employees, if you please, if the railroads continue to exist. Why, they have been forced to lay off thousands of railroad employees all over the United States. Is it not better to cut the wages of all of them than to lay off half or two-thirds of them, without jobs, without salaries, without any income whatever? I submit that to you as a proper inquiry.

I hope the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Sumners] will so amend his motion as to eliminate subdivision (o). He says he is not in favor of all the provisions of this Senate bill. He says he does not like this Senate bill. There is not a man on this floor to-day who will get up here and say that he likes this Senate bill in toto. He will say he does not like this provision or he does not like that provision. Has not the time come when on the floor of this House we shall quit voting for bills we do not like?

I am not going to vote any more for bills I do not like. We are not here just to pass bills, but to pass good bills only. I do not like provisions in this bill. I am not going to vote to recede and concur, and thereby adopt the Senate bill, just to get the passage of a bad bill. I am not going to vote for any more conference reports when they embrace unwise legislation. We ought to stop that. That is what the people are demanding of us. We have been passing too many bills that we do not like and that the people do not like, and I am going to vote against the motion to recede and concur, for in doing so we will pass the Senate bill.

Mr. McKEOWN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma. Mr. McKEOWN. That simply provides that during the time they are undergoing reorganization they shall not change the present law.

Mr. BLANTON. Which may continue for two years, and the gentleman knows that. The gentleman ought to be as frank about it as he was when he wrote that long report on the California judge.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield seven minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Tarver].

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton], who has just addressed the House, spoke of voting for or against the conference report. I am sure the membership of the House understands the parliamentary Membership of the House understands the parliamentary situation. There is no conference report here. No conference has been had. The motion is to concur in a Senate amendment of 41 pages which has never received the consideration of the Committee on the Judiciary.

My position is that a conference should be had and that in view of the vital differences existing between the measure as it passed the House and as it passed the Senate some effort ought to be made to reconcile those differences and to improve the legislation before the House is asked, without an opportunity even to read it, much less consider it, to adopt in toto the 41-page amendment passed by the Senate and which substitutes certain language for the entire House bill.

Mr. Speaker, they got this bill through the Committee on the Judiciary, and in my judgment they got the necessary two-thirds to suspend the rules in the House by representing to the committee and to the House that this was a bill in the interests of our farmers and would constitute, in a measure, farm relief. They never could have gotten this bill reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, in my judgment, had they not incorporated in the bill a provision by which courts where they felt justified in so doing, and felt it would be in the interests of all parties concerned, might grant extensions of time to individual debtors, although a majority in number and amount of the creditors did not consent thereto. That was the only provision of this bill which could be of any benefit to the distressed American farmer. Why? Simply because in ninety-nine cases out of one hundred the major portion of his indebtedness is represented by one mortgage. If he could get the consent of that mortgagee it would not be necessary for him to go into bankruptcy as is proposed here in effect. They do not call it bankruptcy, but it is nothing more nor less than that. A rose by another name smells as sweet. It would not be necessary for him to invoke the aid of this proposed legislation if he could get the approval of that mortgagee who owns the majority of his indebtedness; and if he can not get that approval it will not be worth while for him to go into bankruptcy, because in the first portion of this bill dealing with the ordinary individual debtor and in that portion dealing with conciliation commissioners he is required to obtain the approval of the majority in number and amount of his creditors.

Something was said by the gentleman from New York [Mr. LaGuardia] with reference to the authority of the court to extend the due dates of secured indebtedness. This authority does not exist except where there is secured the approval of a majority in number and amount of the creditors, secured and unsecured.

There is a plethora of language here intended to create the impression that this bill is going to do something for the farmer. The major portion of the bill proposed contains language which refers to him and to this conciliation business, whatever that may be, but, Mr. Speaker, this is a railroad bill. The impetus behind this bill from its inception has been the interests of the railroads; and the only reason anything was tacked on it for the benefit of the farmer, or for his apparent benefit, was to get the votes of the Members of this House necessary in the opinion of the proponents of the measure to secure the passage of the bill. After it passed the House in that way, and without consideration except for 40 minutes, without discussion, without opportunity for amendment, over in the Senate that sole provision for the benefit of the American farmer is inconspicuously slipped out of the bill and you have before you now a measure intended solely, in my judgment, in the interests of the railroads of this country.

I am not opposed to the enactment of legislation which may be necessary for railroad reorganization, sound legislation, wise legislation. We have not had an opportunity to consider whether this legislation is of that character or not, but if it is of that character then I insist we ought not permit it to be rushed through this Congress and nothing done for another class of people, the American farmer, who certainly is much more in need of help, if it can be legislatively given, than the American railroad, and who can be helped in this bill, if the railroads can be helped.

Let us vote down this motion to concur in the Senate amendment. Let conferees be appointed on the part of the House in regular course and let them endeavor to bring back to us for consideration some measure which may afford relief to that class of our people who are to-day losing their homes by the hundreds of thousands.

Are we going to legislate solely in the interest of American railroads? Why, the chairman of the committee says that unless you pass this you will not pass anything. I do not know about that. My observation is that those in charge of the machinery can give you an opportunity to pass something at any time they see fit; but it is no argument in favor of the passage of a 41-page bill that most of you have not read to say that if you do not pass it you will never have an opportunity to pass anything.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I desire to yield 20 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Dyer] to be controlled by him in its distribution on the other side.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has that right.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 20 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Dyer].

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, if I may be permitted, may I submit a unanimous-consent request that the time be extended one-half hour, 15 minutes of such time to be controlled by the gentleman from Texas and 15 minutes by myself. There is great demand for discussion of this bill, and as it is a very important matter, I think 30 minutes of additional time could well be used.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, we came in at this particular time under a promise to certain other gentlemen.

Mr. OLIVER of New York. Mr. Speaker, I object to the request.

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield six minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. LaGuardia].

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I am quite in sympathy with the statement made by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Tarver], but there is no misrepresentation about this bill. Nobody said that anything contained in this bill is going to entirely relieve the farmer in his present plight. There is legislation pending for that; there are resolutions pending for that.

We all know that the farmer's as well as the home owner's mortgages must be refunded. He can not continue to pay 6, 8, and 10 per cent interest. I was in the hope that something along such lines could be done in this Congress. If it is not done within the next few hours, just as sure as we are sitting here it will have to be done in the early days of the next Congress. It is hardly fair, however, to say that the bill has no relief provisions for the farmer or the individual. It has many. I am confident that any judge knowing the economic conditions of the country will have no difficulty in understanding the intent of Congress. Once the petition is filed the judge has the power to stay all creditors. We have gone so far as to empower the judge to defer payments to secured creditors. We have provided machinery for conciliation between debtors and creditors. Surely creditors will have sense to realize that they must enter such conferences in a spirit of conciliation or else have extensions of payments granted against them. I will admit that the bill, of course, is not the piece of legislation that can bring about economic readjustment. It is not intended for that. It will, I hope, grant some relief, some breathing time until the necessary legislation for permanent relief is enacted by this or the next Congress.

This bill goes as far as the consensus of the lawyers in this and the other body would permit us to go to bring relief to the farmer. I do not entirely agree with the conclusions of my colleagues—I was in a minority.

It is quite true that the main proposition as the bill now stands is railroad reorganization. There are not any of the so-called managers of the railroads that are in favor of this bill. There is very little to choose here, Mr. Speaker. Within the next few days several railroads—it is now no secret—will be in the hands of receivers. This is your choice. Are you going to leave the management of the reorganization and receivership of these railroads in the hands of the gang that has ruined the railroads, or are you going to take it out of the hands of that gang—and I am going to name them in a few minutes—and put such control and supervision in the hands of a Government agency, the Interstate Commerce Commission?

Up to date, Mr. Speaker, the reorganization of these railroads has been under the absolute control of J. P. Morgan and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and their henchmen, Mitchell, Whitney, Swayne, and Sutherland, and like ilk.

Look at the reports of the Supreme Court and observe the lawyers that have appeared in these cases and you will see the gang that has controlled these railroads.

Some of the railroad managers are against this measure. The lobbyist of the Pennsylvania Railroad was out in the lobby yesterday talking to some Members against the labor provision.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what does the labor provision do? All that it does, Mr. Speaker, is to make the existing law applicable to the trustees; that is all. The same law that exists now for operating railroads is made applicable to trustees. Why? For the same reason that it was necessary to pass the yellow dog contract law to curb some Federal judges.

This makes it impossible for a two-by-four partial, unfair Federal judge to evade the law. Mr. Speaker, the same provision, in general terms, was contained in the House bill. We had a proviso there that existing law, as contained in the labor railway act, was applicable, but the Senate put that provision in such plain language that a Federal judge could understand it and could not misconstrue it. This is all there is to the labor provision.

Lest there be any misunderstanding or any attempt to distort or misconstrue the purpose and intent of the bill in certain sections, I want to take this opportunity to make clear the intent of Congress in one or two minor provisions. As to the panels of trustees, personally I prefer the House provision. There is, however, very little difference, more in the wording than in effect. The bill now provides that trustees must be appointed from a panel of trustees selected by the Interstate Commerce Commission. This does not mean that the Interstate Commerce Commission must necessarily publish a long panel of trustees. It simply means that the Interstate Commerce Commission may look around and may have certain individuals who they believe are qualified on their own list, and as the occasion arises and as cases come in court they will make from this panel recommendations to the court of a few names from which the court may select.

I want to make it clear that the Interstate Commerce Commission retains all the control, all the supervision, all the powers, and all the duties over trustees appointed under the provisions of this bill that it now has over operating railroads. The mere fact that we refer to certain provisions of the labor law and to certain provisions of the transportation act in no way can be construed as relieving trustees of all the duties and supervision now provided in the law as I have just stated.

I also want to point out that the consent of creditors as provided in section E must be in writing.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Sumners], who is extremely conservative, safe, and sound, made reference to the holding of railroad securities. Unless we put the reorganization of railroads under strict supervision and under honest management, we do not know to what extent these securities may be impaired. If some of the stock manipulators are against the bill, I am sure the savings banks of the country are in favor of it.

Of course, the law does not go as far as I would like to see it go. I would like to see the entire reorganization taken from the courts and placed in the Interstate Commerce Commission. There is a division of opinion whether we can legally and constitutionally do this. I believe we can and that eventually Congress will. We had to submit to the majority views on this question, but we did put the absolute power and the final word-let there be no mistake about this-in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and have so tied it that the court can not amend, can not alter, can not modify a reorganization plan. The approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the plan is essential and indispensable. We have taken the views in the minority opinion in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad case, even to the extent that all incidental and indirect costs, expenses, and fees are subject to the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and have written that into the law.

In this case, you will remember over $7,000,000 was spent in reorganization. The same gang that is now seeking to defeat this bill appeared as attorneys or counsels or managers in that case and received over $1,600,000 in fees. There you had a plan approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and another modified plan approved by the court. This would be impossible under this bill.

So, all that the House has to decide at this late hour, Mr. Speaker, is whether or not, receiverships being inevitable, under present conditions, we can, as far as the law permits, control these reorganizations, prevent the abuses of the past, prevent the mulcting of these railroads, and in the public interest put this under the proper and honest supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. [Applause.]

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. COOPER].

Mr. COOPER of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, it was not my intention to say anything on this measure at this time, but after the speech of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton], whose stock in trade seems to be to stand on this floor and make an attack on labor, and especially organized labor, I desire to say a few words regarding his objections to the measure before the House at this time.

What was it that he complained of in this bill? Six or eight years ago Congress passed the railroad labor act, which provided that the railroad management and the employees, acting together in conference, must agree by contract to a settlement relating to wages, working conditions, and so forth.

Last year the railway employees and the managers met in Chicago. They signed a contract relating to wages and working conditions, which lasts until that contract is changed by both parties concerned. The only thing this bill does is to say that the contract which was signed by the railroad employees and the railroad managers last year in Chicago, and which is binding on both parties, shall not be changed by the judge who has charge of the bankruptcy proceeding.

The railroad workers have been loyal; they have accepted a reduction of 10 per cent in wages, and not more than 50 per cent of them are employed to-day. They have been conservative and patriotic through this depression. There has been no strikes or serious labor trouble in their ranks for many years. At all times have they kept the arteries of commerce open.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. Parker].

Mr. PARKER of New York. Mr. Speaker, the controversial part of this bill, according to the gentleman from Texas, is the labor provision. I had something to do with drawing the so-called railroad labor act, as I happened to be chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce when it was drawn. I do not claim any credit for the bill personally. The bill was an agreement between the executives of the railroads on the one hand and the brotherhoods on the other. That is the way the bill was drawn, and we have had no railroad strikes since.

Now, this amendment simply reenacts the law that was passed six or eight years ago. That is all that it does.

There are some provisions in this amendment put on by the Senate that I personally do not like, but nevertheless there is a tremendous amount of good in the bill. If we do not agree to the Senate amendments, you lose every bit of benefit there is in the bill.

The gentleman from Georgia spoke about the farmers. You and I know that no farmer whose books are clean, who does not owe a lot of store bills, is going to have his mortgage foreclosed. It is the outside bills that bring about foreclosure of mortgages in nine cases out of ten.

Mr. GARBER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PARKER of New York. Yes.

Mr. GARBER. The Government has loaned to the railroads $350,000,000 or more. What protection does this bill give the Government?

Mr. PARKER of New York. It protects the Government just as much as the Government is protected now, no more and no less. But, as the gentleman from New York wisely said, your reorganizations, your receiverships have been tremendously expensive. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid out which can be saved if this bill is passed as it is.

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Michener].

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, like all the other speakers, I do not agree with many of the provisions in the bill, and, be it understood, this is not the bill that left the House. It is said that there is some good in this bill. Undoubtedly there is. But the real purpose of the bill in the beginning was the reorganization of corporations generally. That is the way the matter started. Then Mr. LaGuardia proposed a reorganization of the railroads, and Mr. McKeown took care of the farmer. Now the thing has been modified so that this really is a reorganization of the railroads. I do not know just what will be accomplished under the provisions of the bill in the reorganization of railroads, but I know that you can not reorganize railroads and keep the railroads operating as a paying business unless you cut the expenses of the railroads. There is no question about that. However, there are some good features in the bill. I was going to oppose it, but after talking with men on both sides of the question, I do not feel that I want to assume the responsibility of doing a single thing which might in any way withhold aid in the reorganization, the rehabilitation, yes, in even permitting the railroads to continue to operate. The Government does not want the railroads. The people do not want governmental operation of railroads. We had our experience in that. It looks as though it might be coming, and if this will do a single thing to prevent that which I believe would be a catastrophe in the long run, I am going along with it. I am not going to oppose the Senate amendments, but I am not in favor of many of these provisions. There is much of good in the bill as amended. There is a possibility of needed relief; much of the expense of reorganization is lessened, a shorter route is provided. I am not prepared to say that the unwholesome part of the bill outweighs its benefits. It is at least a step in the right direction. Enough is liable to happen to the railroads under any conditions, and I am not prepared to assume any responsibility of what might happen if this bill does not become a law at this session.

Mr. DYER. Mr. Speaker, as stated by the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. MICHENER], this legislation does not meet the unanimous support of the committee which in the first instance brought it upon the floor of the House. There is great difficulty even in the consideration of legislation of this character. A great many Members of the House even now do not appreciate, in my judgment, the far-reaching situation which confronts us in the enactment of this legislation into law. We have been considering emergency legislation during this session of Congress. We have been striving to find some way by which we can help relieve the serious situation that confronts business, generally speaking. In this bill we have endeavored to be helpful to the farmers, and it does help the farmer. It does not, of course, give to them an absolute moratorium, and I have never favored that. I do not favor it for any business or for any individual. The Senate, in its wisdom or unwisdom, took out of the bill that part referring to corporations. So we have it now dealing with individuals and with railroad corporations.

I do not agree with those who would say that this is a railroad bill. I do not know whether the railroads want this bill or not. There may be some opposed to it; but, Mr. Speaker, we are legislating here in the interest of the American people, and not in the interest of any individual or any business or any corporation. We must consider it from the standpoint of the whole people. Railroad properties have depreciated and their securities have depreciated and their income has depreciated, and as a result many of them have already in a large measure been confronted with great difficulties. We have a bill here that the Senate has agreed to. We have a bill here that we think the President will approve, and therefore we have the opportunity to-day to enact legislation that will be, in my opinion, very helpful under conditions that may arise. I do not agree with my friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. LaGuardia], that we should take away from the courts the entire jurisdiction of matters affecting the reorganization of railroads. I have great regard and great respect for our great Federal judiciary. I realize that the Interstate Commerce Commission should be given much authority to assist and to help in the work that must be done.

Mr. BRIGGS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. DYER. Yes.

Mr. BRIGGS. I understand that much of this proposal for bankruptcy of railroads is to avoid receiverships and the expense incident thereto. Is there any safeguard to avoid the accumulation or allowance of huge fees by the Federal courts?

Mr. DYER. Yes; that is one of the things that alone is worthy of the careful consideration of this House. There have been outrageous expenses involved in receiverships and in the reorganization of railroads. There is no doubt about that. This, in my opinion, will lessen the expense to a great extent, and these railroads, if they must be reorganized, can be reorganized without putting the stockholders and others to the great expense involved in previous cases.

Mr. Speaker, notwithstanding the imperfections of the legislation, notwithstanding the objections which have been urged against some of the things that have been put in in the Senate, I urge the passage of this legislation. It is our duty to-day to agree to the motion made by the gentleman from Texas, accept the Senate amendments, and send the bill to the White House, so that it may become a law before the adjournment of this Congress, and that whatever good there is in this may accrue to the people of this country and the business that it seeks to help.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. Celler].

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, I shall vote for this bill. However, there was eliminated from it a provision which we in New York are particularly interested in, and which naturally affects the jurisdiction in the district courts throughout the country. There was eliminated from the House bill a provision which was aimed directly at the Irving Trust Co. in New York, which, by virtue of the cowardly surrender on the part of the district judges in New York, has been set up as a monopoly, as the sole receiver in all bankruptcy-receivership cases, so that the Irving Trust Co. at this moment is receiver in over 5,000 cases. This bill will greatly augment that number of receiverships.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CELLER. I yield.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. It was not in opposition to the gentleman's provision. It went out with the whole section.

Mr. CELLER. I should say that we put it in the House bill, and the Senate Judiciary Committee had a provision in their bill striking at the Irving Trust Co.; but by virtue of the corporation section being eliminated, this provision was also eliminated.

I serve notice, after conference with some Senators and some Members of the House interested in this proposition, that I will demand in the new session a provision similar to the one we put in the bankruptcy bill to prevent the Irving Trust Co. from extending its monopoly to cover every case of a receivership nature in New York. The Irving Trust Co. now operates theaters, hotels, match factories, textile mills, haberdashery shops, drug stores, and so forth. It runs all kinds and manners of business, and it has no right to do it. It should stick to its own knitting—banking.

Practically all the bar associations in New York are opposing the practice. This bank, to give you an idea of its activities, operates the United Cigar Stores, Lerner Dress Shops, Owl Drug Stores, Whelan Drug Co., Wallach Bros. haberdashery shops, Kreuger & Toll match factories, movie houses—in fact, every line of industry and business.

I solemnly remind these judges appointing the Irving Trust that we have impeached judges who have persistently appointed the same receiver in a multiplicity of cases. The House of Representatives frowns upon the practice. The Judiciary Committee frowns upon the practice. That committee initiates all impeachment and disciplinary proceedings. These remarks shall serve as a warning.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired. All time has expired.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is, Shall the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment?

The question was taken, and the Speaker announced the yeas seemed to have it.

Mr. TARVER. Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were refused.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a division. The House divided, and there were—yeas 207, nays 26.

So the motion to recede and concur was agreed to.

On motion by Mr. DYER, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to was laid on the table.

NAVY DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments, disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the before any branch-banking provision was incorporated in it. gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Ayres]? [After a pause.] The provision finally adopted by the Senate only provides

The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. Ayres, Oliver of Alabama, Douglas of Arizona, French, and Taber.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. STEAGALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 15 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. STEAGALL]?

There was no objection.

Mr. STEAGALL. Mr. Speaker, on day before yesterday the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. Johnson] was interrupted on the floor by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton], who inquired if the gentleman from South Dakota did not think that if we could get the Senate to pass the bank deposit guarantee bill passed by the House we would be able to stop wholesale bank failures.

The gentleman from South Dakota replied that if the House had brought out the Glass bill and passed the Glass bill sent to us by the Senate and now pending in the Banking and Currency Committee, we would not have banks breaking all over the United States. I interrupted the gentleman from South Dakota, but his time expired before I was permitted to conclude my inquiries.

The gentleman from South Dakota evidently shares the opinion expressed by the President of the United States in a recent message to this House in which he stated in substance that the only constructive measure looking toward the restoration of confidence in the banks of the country was embodied in the so-called Glass bill. That was rather a remarkable statement to come from the President of the United States—the head of the administration and the leader of his party. As a Democrat I appreciate the implied compliment to the great leader from Virginia, Senator Glass, who enjoys to such high degree the admiration and confidence of the people of the country. I gladly join the President in any compliment to the illustrious Senator from Virginia.

I imagine the people of the United States were somewhat surprised at the confession of a President that he and his administration and the great leaders of the party now in power must give credit to a Democrat for the only constructive piece of banking legislation offered in this time of national depression and distress. But let us see. I wanted to ask the gentleman from South Dakota what there was in the Glass bill that he thought would relieve the existing emergency. I did not have the time. I wanted to call to his attention the fact that with two possible exceptions there is not in that measure anything that is regarded even by its author as emergency legislation. Certain it is that the provision for separating affiliates from national banks five years from now would not relieve the anxiety that exists in the Nation to-day. I am in favor of that provision of the bill, I am in favor substantially of every provision in that bill except one, and I think this is true of the entire membership of the Committee on Banking and Currency of the

We do not regard that bill as emergency legislation or as adequate relief legislation under existing conditions.

There is one provision in the bill that is in the nature of emergency legislation. The provision to which I refer is the one which establishes a liquidating plan for closed banks, but surely no one would contend that we can relieve our present distress by anything that may be done with closed banks. The Congress incorporated in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act a provision authorizing loans upon the assets of closed banks and allocating $200,000,000 for such loans. This was done over the protest and opposition of the present administration, and the corporation has on hand $150,000,000 available for such loans.

The only other provision in the bill which could be considered as emergency legislation is its branch-banking provision. Just here I want to say that that measure was introduced twice in the Senate and reported for consideration before any branch-banking provision was incorporated in it. The provision finally adopted by the Senate only provides branch-banking relief in nine States of the Union, and | every one of those nine States permits the establishment of branch banks under State law.

Where is there logic, where is there reason, where is there any relief in extending branch banking in the United States to 9 States that already have it and denying it to the 39 States that do not have such relief? If branch banking is good for the emergency, why limit it to nine States-and to States that already have it? If branch banking is a good thing for the country, why not adopt it and make it applicable to every State in the Union?

The truth is branch banking is the greatest evil in our banking system and the worst problems that confront us at this hour are presented in connection with branch banking. That is what is the matter with Michigan. Michigan was ramified by branch banks, group banks, and chain banks, so that we found ourselves in a situation where one bank failure, one bank's embarrassment, one quarrel over monopoly control of banking in Michigan, we are advised, precipitated the crash that came in that State and the unfortunate results that have followed.

Branch banking brought us trouble in Georgia; it brought us trouble in South Carolina; it brought us trouble in Kentucky; it brought trouble in New York; it brought trouble in Michigan; it has brought it everywhere. The records will show that in Canada, where they have only 10 banks, with several thousand branches, their losses in proportion to assets have been greater than the losses in the United States. Branch banking is monopoly banking. If it is extended in this country it will ultimately undermine and destroy the Federal reserve system.

Now, what is the situation? I hold in my hand and I am going to ask permission to incorporate in the RECORD a list of 20 measures which have passed the House during the present Congress and have been finally enacted-all save 2 that are still pending in the Senate.

BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS REPORTED BY BANKING AND CURRENCY COM-MITTEE OF THE HOUSE, SEVENTY-SECOND CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

H. R. 6172. Federal land banks, additional capital. Reported from Banking and Currency. December 18, 1931; Report No. 11. Union Calendar. Passed House December 19, 1931. Reported in Senate, amended, January 7, 1932. Banking and Currency Report No. 37. Passed Senate, amended, January 13, 1932. Sent to conference January 15, 1932. House agrees to conference report January 21, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report January 21, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report January 21, 1932. Approved January 23, 1932. Public Law No. 3.

H. R. 7360 (H. Res. 99) (S. 1). Reconstruction Finance Corporation, establish. Reported from Banking and Currency. January 9, 1932; Report No. 36. Union Calendar. Passed House January 15, 1932. Reported in Senate January 16, 1932. Passed Senate, amended, January 18, 1932. Sent to conference January 19, 1932. House agrees to conference report January 22, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report January 22, 1932. Public Law No. 2. H. R. 6172. Federal land banks, additional capital. Reported

Public Law No. 2

Public Law No. 2.

H. R. 9203 (S. 3616). Federal reserve system, "free gold." Reported from Banking and Currency. February 13, 1932; Report No. 475. Union Calendar. Passed House February 15, 1932. Passed Senate, amended, February 19, 1932. Sent to conference February 20, 1932. House agrees to conference report February 26, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report February 26, 1932. Approved February 27, 1932. Public Law No. 44.

H. R. 8694 (S. 4851). National banks, borrow from National Credit Corporations. Reported from Banking and Currency. March 9, 1932; Report No. 756. Union Calendar. Passed House June 27, 1932. Passed Senate June 30, 1932. Approved July 2, 1932. Public 1932 Passed Senate June 30, 1932. Approved July 2, 1932. Public Law No. 245.

H. R. 11362 (H. Res. 221). Banks, guaranty fund. Banking and Currency. April 19, 1932; Report M. Calendar. Passed House May 27, 1932. 1932; Report No. 1085. Union

Calendar. Passed House May 27, 1932. Report No. 1085. Union Calendar. Passed House May 27, 1932.

H. R. 11499. Federal reserve system, dollar purchasing power. Reported from Banking and Currency. April 22, 1932; Report No. 1103. Union Calendar. Passed House May 2, 1932. Reported in Senate, amended, June 1, 1932. Banking and Currency; Report No. 757.

H. R. 8931 (S. 2409). Federal intermediate-credit banks, money. Reported from Banking and Currency. April 25, 1932; Report No. 1125. Union Calendar. Laid on table May 16, 1932. S. 2408 passed in lieu.

H. R. 12280 (H. Res. 253) (S. 2959) (H. J. Res. 479) (H. R. 12768) H. R. 1220 (H. Res. 255) (B. 2505) (H. J. Res. 476) (H. R. 12708). Federal home-loan banks, create. Reported from Banking and Currency, May 25, 1932; Report No 1418. Union Calendar. Passed House June 15, 1932. Reported in Senate, amended, June 20, 1932. Banking and Currency. Passed Senate, amended, July 12, 1932. Sent to conference July 13, 1932. House agrees to conference report July 15, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report July 16, 1932. House agrees to conference report July 16, 1932. House agrees to Senate amendments July 16, 1932. Approved July 22, 1932. Public Law No. 304.

S. 2409 (H. R. 8931). Federal intermediate-credit banks, money. Reported in Senate April 18, 1932. Banking and Currency; Report No. 570. Passed Senate April 25, 1932. Referred to Banking and Currency April 27, 1932. Passed House May 16, 1932. Approved May 19, 1932. Public Law No. 138.
H. R. 10673 (S. 4780). Reconstruction Finance Corporation, crop planting. Reported from Banking and Currency, June 7, 1932; Report No. 1553. Union Calendar (Union 336).
H. R. 8167. Farmers, farm-loan mortgages, pay. Reported from Banking and Currency, June 8, 1932; Report No. 1555. House Calendar (House 251).

endar (House 251).

endar (House 251).

H. R. 10824. Federal farm loan act, amend to provide mineral rights. Reported from Banking and Currency, June 9, 1932; Report No. 1574. House Calendar. Passed House February 20, 1933.

S. 4574. Virgin Islands, bank act. Reported in Senate May 18, 1932. Banking and Currency; Report No. 705. Passed Senate June 8, 1932. Referred to Insular Affairs, June 10, 1932. Reported June 15, 1932; Report No. 1630. Union Calendar. Passed House, amended, July 14, 1932. Senate agrees to House amendment July 15, 1932. Approved July 19, 1932. Public Law No. 293.

S. 4780 (H. Res. 263) (H. R. 10673). Reconstruction Finance Corporation, crop planting. Reported in Senate June 2, 1932. Bankporation, crop planting. Reported in Senate June 2, 1932. Banking and Currency; Report No. 761. Passed Senate June 2, 1932. Referred to Banking and Currency June 3, 1932. Reported June 7, 1932; Report No. 1554. Union Calendar. Passed House, amended, June 18, 1932. Sent to conference July 5, 1932. House agrees to conference report July 15, 1932. Senate agrees to conference report July 15, 1932. (Pocket veto.)

Second session

H. Res. 335. Reconstruction Finance Corporation, report. Reported from Banking and Currency, January 6, 1933; Report No. 1820. Passed House January 6, 1933.

H. R. 14252 (S. 5484). Federal reserve system, "free gold," extend. Reported from Banking and Currency, January 27, 1933; Report No. 1928. House Calendar. Laid on table January 30, 1933. S. 5484 passed in lieu.

S. 5484 (H. R. 14252). Federal reserve system, "free gold," extend. Passed Senate January 21, 1933. Referred to Banking and tend. Passed Senate January 21, 1933. Referred to Banking and Currency, January 23, 1933. Passed House January 30, 1933. Approved February 3, 1933. Public Law No. 326.

H. R. 13855 (S. 4291). National banks, taxation. Reported from Banking and Currency, January 30, 1933; Report No. 1941. House House 317.

Calendar. House 317.

H. R. 14689 (H. Res. 392) (S. 5337). Federal land banks, reamortization. Reported from Banking and Currency, February 18, 1933; Report No. 2069. Union Calendar. Laid on table February 27, 1933. S. 5337 passed in lieu.

H. R. 14618. Federal farm loan act, borrowers. Reported from Banking and Currency, February 22, 1933; Report No. 2089. Union Calendar. Theor 522.

Calendar. Union 522.

Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. And all reported from the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Mr. STEAGALL. All of them reported by the Committee on Banking and Currency. Many of those measures embody intricate and technical legislation of stupendous importance to the economic and business life of the people of the United

This is our answer to any implication that the Committee on Banking and Currency of the House has not been about

I venture to say that, with the exception of the Committee on Military Affairs of the House during the war, there is not to be found a duplicate of this record. I doubt that any other such showing has been made by any committee of this House within the memory of any Member of this body to-day.

What is the situation? The measure to which the gentleman from South Dakota referred was passed in the Senate of the United States on the 25th day of January. It was considered in the Senate of the United States two years. If it requires two years under the able leadership in that body to give proper consideration to that measure to justify its final passage, is the Committee on Banking and Currency of this House dilatory or negligent when it asks at least a few days' opportunity in which to study the provisions of that bill? I dare say the membership of this House will agree with me that such a measure should receive the fullest and freest and most thorough consideration of your committee before we present it to you for approval, and that is what we have undertaken to do.

Mr. SHALLENBERGER. I would suggest that the gentleman make a trade with those fellows over on the other side. If they will pass the gentleman's deposit guaranty bill we will pass the Glass bill, and we would have the whole thing taken care of.

Mr. STEAGALL. I thank the gentleman from Nebraska. I appreciate the position he holds in the confidence of this House.

Mr. SHALLENBERGER. The bills are not in conflict whatever.

Mr. STEAGALL. I do not quite agree that legislation should be worked out as the result of trades or compromises. Each House should give fullest possible consideration to important measures. I want to say that I think the Members of the House, out of due regard for its own labors and the work of its committees, should not forget that we have passed two measures that are to-day the outstanding subjects of interest and consideration by all the thoughtful people of the United States-two bills now pending and awaiting action in the Senate. One of them is the Goldsborough currency expansion bill sent there in June of last year, a conservative measure, a bill which provided no arbitrary inflation of the currency, but simply directed the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal reserve banks, and the Treasury of the United States to use their powers within the scope and limitations of the authority conferred by the Federal reserve act toward restoring a normal price level and thereby a normal condition of business in the United States. These policies were to be worked out and controlled by the conservative membership of the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal reserve banks, and the Treasury of the United States. The bill was supported by many leading bankers and business men, by farm organizations, and by many expert economists.

That measure, instead of being a scheme for wild and reckless inflation of the currency, provides a conservatively controlled method to prevent radical and unwise inflation of the currency and likewise to undertake to arrest and end the destructive results of the deflationary developments that have taken place and are now under way in the United States. The bill sleeps at the other end of the Capitol, where it has been since June of last year.

This House sent another measure to the Senate, a bill which I had the honor to introduce in this House, similar to other measures that I have introduced for 10 or 12 years during each consecutive session of Congress. It would apply a principle to our banking system that is approved and accepted universally in every field of business activity. It is the principle of insurance. I think it should be applied for the protection of bank deposits. I think it should be applied for reasons of fair dealing and common honesty. But beyond all other considerations it should be applied for reasons of public policy. I do not know whether the bill measures up to the requirements of more scientific minds. It was approved by your Committee on Banking and Currency and passed overwhelmingly by the House after several days of debate and consideration. No doubt it could be improved. I think I could improve it. No doubt the Senate could improve it. In any event it embodies the same principles and methods provided in the measure passed by the Senate, which establishes a plan for handling closed banks. So its principle must be sound.

This bill has been pending in the Senate for nearly a year. I make this statement to the House. I have been a Member here a good many years, and never in my experience have I known a bill to be considered in this body that commanded the commendation and support of the people of the United States in all walks of life that has been voiced in favor of this measure. The people of the Nation demand it. They have urged its passage. At last in this hour many of the big bankers of the country recognize the necessity for it and are sending us their appeal for its passage. At one time they thought they did not need it; they thought the failure of small banks an inconsequential thing; they thought that deposit insurance was not necessary to protect big banks. They felt as they did when we were writing the Federal reserve act-they said they did not need it; that it would impose burdens and hardships upon them that they should not be made to bear simply to protect the small banks scattered throughout the land. But in spite of this protest we wrote the Federal reserve law. Without it these banks could not operate to-day; the Government could not conduct its financial operations without it; without it we could not have financed the war. These banks now favor the passage of legislation for the protection of bank deposits, and I dare say that the sentiment of the people of the United States is at last making itself felt in the Senate of the United States. The people of the Nation are demanding the enactment of the bank deposit guaranty bill, which I had the honor to introduce and which was passed by this House nearly a year ago. [Applause.]

Listen, my friends, we can not conduct the business of this country without change of bank credit. Bank credit rests upon bank deposits. Deposits depend upon the confidence of the public. Without it they will not deposit their money in the banks and without confidence the banks can not employ their deposits to supply bank credit for business. Bank credit is being destroyed. We can not revive trade and commerce without the use of bank credit. We do 90 per cent of our business with bank credit. Only 5 or 10 per cent is done with currency. Suppose the picture were reversed and 90 per cent of our business were done with currency and only 5 or 10 per cent with bank credit and we destroyed the same proportion of currency or money as has been destroyed in bank credit in the United States.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. STEAGALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes more.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. STEAGALL. There would not be anybody left to object to some constructive action to relieve the situation.

Bank credit supports values. This is what is the matter with prices in the United States. Bank credit is not available. This is where our chief trouble is. We can not work out of our difficulties without the use of bank credit. Not only is this true of trade and commerce and the general business of the United States, it is true of the Government, Mr. Speaker. The credit of the Government is linked with bank credit. The Treasury of the United States is dependent upon bank credit to market its bonds and to sustain their value.

If this process of destruction is continued until the Government finds that the support of bank credit which the Treasury enjoys has been removed. I dare not express the fears I have for the embarrassments that will overtake the Treasury of the United States in conducting its financial program. The Treasury can not operate without bank credits. I remind Members who fear inflation that it can not be avoided, if bank credit is completely destroyed. I am opposed to radical inflation, amounting to repudiation. The way to avoid it is to strengthen the credit of the country. This includes bank credit. For these reasons the Government ought to lend its aid and support to a constructive plan for the protection of bank deposits. The losses should be borne ultimately without the use of the Treasury, but the Treasury should supply temporary aid. I am opposed to a Government guaranty of deposits. The bill that we passed provides a plan by which the banks bear the burden of the guaranty, with only temporary aid supplied by the Government, to be reimbursed by funds accumulated by assessments upon the banks over a period of years, which is an easy thing to do under normal conditions.

The Government can not continue to pay off all deposits, as is being done by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. We could take the losses that confront the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, if present tendencies are to continue, and use it to supplement an assessment against the banks and establish a plan that would stop the wholesale failure of banks and revive bank credit and business in the United States. [Applause.]

One billion dollars tied up in postal savings would be released, and a billion and a half dollars in hoarding would be freed for use in trade and commerce. The foolish policy of inviting and inducing the public to place deposits in postal savings banks has tied up $1,000,000,000 just as if it were hoarded. Banks can not get funds from the postal savings banks without substituting liquid securities, which count the same as currency. If bank deposits were protected, postal funds would drift into use for trade and commerce. I can cite instances in splendid towns where there are more deposits in postal savings than in the commercial banks. The policy is destructive. But it will continue until we provide a method for protecting the deposits of the people in the banks. This is the first step in the way out of the darkness of this hour. [Applause.]

Mr. BEEDY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that I may be allowed to address the House for 10 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. Before the gentleman from Maine proceeds, let the Chair make this statement. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Snell], the minority leader, asked to have two gentlemen recognized for the purpose of asking unanimous consent to address the House, one the gentleman from Maine [Mr. Beedy] and the other the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Darrow]. The Chair intends to recognize these gentlemen to ask unanimous consent to address the House for 10 minutes each and then no one else. The gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Byrns] and other members of the Committee on Appropriations will then undertake to pass some supply bills.

Mr. BEEDY. Mr. Speaker, I desire at the outset to say that there is no member of the Banking and Currency Committee that is fonder of the chairman of our committee than I. I want to make it clear that whatever I now say savors in no way of personalities. It has been a rule of my life, and I have tried to exemplify it, that while I may differ with men, I never permit personalities to enter into my differences in opinion. [Applause.]

There has been an air of mystery surrounding the failure of our committee to assemble for the purpose of having any hearings whatever on the so-called Glass bill which recently passed the Senate. I must say that my individual curiosity has been aroused by the apparent indifference which those in control of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House have manifested toward such an important banking measure as the so-called Glass bill.

I am at an utter loss to understand why our committee has not been called even to make some move toward hearings on this bill. It was passed by the Senate on the 25th of last January. It was referred to the House Committee on Banking and Currency on the 30th of last January. Since that time our committee has been called into session many times to consider bills of far less importance. The chairman of the committee, however, has not even made a gesture toward consideration of the Glass bill.

To-day the chairman of our committee (the gentleman from Alabama) takes the floor to explain why the committee has done nothing in the way of considering the Glass bill. As I understand him his defense is that we are in an emergency; that the Glass bill is not emergency legislation with the possible exception of the so-called liquidation of failed-banks provision, and that, therefore, he did not deem it necessary to take any action respecting it.

In his attempted defense, I submit that the gentleman from Alabama fails to recognize the principal difficulty in the present emergency. It is apparent to many of us that the chief difficulty of the moment is a continuing lack of confidence in the banking world. Certainly any well-considered banking legislation which aims to correct existing abuses would be a powerful agent in the restoration of the needed confidence.

The Glass bill is the product of the best minds in the banking field of the United States. Not only was much thought given to its preparation, not only were the best experts consulted, but it was given a prolonged and careful hearing before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. It only passed the Senate after thorough discussion and the most careful consideration. It is now the consensus of banking opinion in this country that although the Glass bill is not perfect, yet its provisions are such as would assist in correcting many of the evils revealed in recent banking transactions and would go far toward establishing sound banking policies and general confidence. Few have been heard to say that the passage of the Glass bill would do any harm, while the great majority clamor for its enactment.

Why the persistent and mysterious inaction of the chairman of our Banking and Currency Committee? Why has not the party in control of this House taken some steps to make possible this legislation which, it is generally conceded, would go far toward rehabilitating the country at the present moment?

The main purpose of the Glass bill is to correct abuses and bring about a closer supervision of banking practices to the end that credits may be wisely administered and the speculative use of bank funds be reduced to a minimum.

Do our Democratic friends object to the main purpose of this legislation? I fail to see how they can hope to justify any such objection. If they do not object to the purpose of the legislation, why have they not employed some of the four weeks which have passed since the Glass bill was referred to the Banking and Currency Committee of the House in hearings for the purpose of reporting the bill to the House and recommending its passage?

Do the party in control of this House object to the gradual separation of investment banking from commercial banking? Do they object to the separation of security affiliates from national banks? The Glass bill would accomplish both these purposes. In the light of the scandalous testimony given by the resigned president of the National City Bank of New York before the Senate committee a few days since, I do not see how anybody could justify a failure to pass the legislation which is aimed at a correction of such evils.

Does the chairman of our committee and his associates in control object to the provisions of the Glass bill which would subject security affiliates and holding companies to examination and supervision by the Comptroller of the Currency? Do they object to the provisions limiting hans to security affiliates?

Mr. STEAGALL arose.

Mr. BEEDY. I have only 10 minutes and I hope the gentleman will not interrupt me. I desire to ask him some questions which he can answer in his own time if he sees fit, but, for lack of time, I must now refuse to yield.

Does the chairman of our committee and the party which he represents object to those provisions of the Glass bill which require Federal reserve banks to keep an eye on the loaning policies of member banks, so that they will not encourage undue speculation? Do they object to that section of the bill which prohibits a bank from making loans to its executive officers? Do they object to the provisions of the bill which give the Comptroller of the Currency authority to remove—after a hearing before the Federal Reserve Board—any bank officer or director who continues to violate banking laws or uses unsound banking practices?

I do not believe that any man or any party can justify a failure to make even an attempt to give to the country, in this hour of its distress, a law which seeks to correct these evils, all too evident, alas, in recent times. I maintain that all these provisions which are written in the Glass bill as it passed the Senate are much needed in this hour of the Nation's travail.

Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman vield?

Mr. BEEDY. I have only 10 minutes, and I must ask to be excused

The SPEAKER. The gentleman declines to yield.

Mr. BEEDY. If the gentleman could get me five more minutes, I shall be glad to yield.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has declined to yield.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has declined to yield.

Mr. BEEDY. Mr. Speaker, surely there can be no objection on the part of my Democratic colleagues to that provision of the Glass bill which provides for the organization of a liquidating corporation to assist in a more speedy and economical liquidation of suspended banks, resulting in a fuller measure of relief to depositors.

The gentleman in his speech this afternoon admits that this particular feature of the bill partakes of emergency legislation. If he believes in it, why has he not reported some measure to this House providing for fuller relief to depositors in suspended banks?

In January, 1932, I introduced in this House a bill which would have set up permanent machinery for the effective relief of depositors in failed banks through a speedy and economical liquidation of their assets. I was unable even to secure a hearing on the proposed legislation. The party in control of this House has assumed full responsibility for depriving the country of this much-needed legislation from January, 1932, to this very moment.

Recently, when the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Luce] made some reference to this much-needed legislation, gentlemen on the right side of this aisle arose to say that this need had been met by authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to assist in the liquidation of suspended banks. But, my friends, that answer will not suffice. The provision of law by which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to assist suspended banks was a mere temporary expedient. No thoughtful man will be heard to say that it in any way meets the needs as they would have been met by the bill which I introduced or as they might be met if the liquidating corporation were set up as provided in the Glass bill.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation can only loan money to banks that are "closed, or in process of liquidation, to aid in the reorganization or liquidation of such banks, upon application of the receiver," and so forth. Upon making such a loan the Reconstruction Finance Corporation takes over the best assets of the suspended or failed bank as collateral for the loan and leaves the receiver holding the bag with the poorest assets of the institution. The receiver thereupon faces the necessity of dumping these remaining assets upon a falling market, all to the very great detriment and losses of depositors in such banks. This situation has been continuing for more than a year. Yet the party now in control of this House has failed to pass any legislation relieving the situation; this in the face of an open declaration in its 1932 platform which advocates "quicker methods of realizing on assets for the relief of depositors of suspended banks."

Again I ask, why this failure to take some action on the Glass bill? It provides for organizing a liquidating corporation with power not merely to make a loan on the assets of a failed bank but to purchase the assets of the bank. Such a corporation would then have an opportunity to dispose of the assets in a manner best calculated to serve the interests of the depositors. The best assets could be sold at once. The poorer assets could be pooled with the assets of other failed banks. There would be no necessity of immediate dumping of assets upon the market. The assets could be wisely conserved and disposed of under the most advantageous terms. Surely, a law making possible such a liquidation of the assets of failed banks would go to the very heart of the situation which now obtains. Again I inquire, why this inaction on the part of our Banking and Currency Committee?

Surely, it can not be any objection to the provisions of the Glass bill to which I have called attention. The Democratic platform of 1932, in addition to declaring for further legislation to assist in the liquidation of suspended banks, goes on to advocate—

A more rigid supervision of national banks for the protection of depositors and the prevention of the use of their moneys in speculation to the detriment of local credits.

As I have already pointed out, the Glass bill provides these precise remedies. Yet the chairman of our committee has maintained a most unusual silence and the most astounding inaction, while the Glass bill has languished in the innocuous desuetude of some undiscovered corner in the files of the Banking and Currency Committee.

In his speech of this afternoon the gentleman from Alabama, while he did not say so in as many words, yet left the inference that so long as the Steagall bank guaranty bill slumbers in the inactive files of the Banking and Currency Committee of the Senate, so long shall the Glass bill continue to be scorned and unrecognized by the Banking and Currency Committee of the House.

It seems to me that no such excuse will justify the chairman of our committee in his failure to give its members even an opportunity to vote upon the question of reporting the Glass bill at this session.

I believe that at any time within the past three weeks a majority of the members of the Banking and Currency Committee of this House would have voted to take some action on the Glass bill.

I do not envy our chairman or those who are in control of the legislative program of this House the responsibility which they have taken upon themselves to deprive the country of legislative proposals embodied in the Glass bill, the most of which are in absolute conformity with the Democratic platform declarations of 1932.

What is the real reason for this policy of delay and inaction which is in direct opposition to solemn declarations? Again, I say that my curiosity is aroused. I confess my inability to understand why our committee under the direction of its distinguished chairman the gentleman from Alabama IMr. Steagall has continued in its failure, ever since January 30, last, to take action upon the Glass bill.

If ever there was a time when the country needed legislation providing for a closer supervision of banking by Federal authorities, it is now. If ever there was a time when permanent legislation for the relief of depositors in failed banks was needed, it is now. The party in control owes it to this House and the country to explain its gross failure to meet the trust which has been reposed in it by the American people.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Maine has expired.

Mr. DARROW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 10 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. DARROW. Mr. Speaker, it is my desire to call attention to what I consider to have been a serious mistake in giving publicity to loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It has done untold harm and caused all sorts of difficulties, especially in the case of banks.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation act provided for the publishing of a quarterly report stating the aggregate loans to each class of borrowers provided for and the number of borrowers by States in each case. Such statements were to show the assets and liabilities of the corporation.

This provision was, however, supplemented by a section in the emergency relief and construction act of 1932 for the submission of monthly statements to the President, the Senate, and the House of Representatives—or to the Secretary of the Senate or Clerk of the House of Representatives, if those bodies are not in session—of its activities and expenditures, together with a statement showing the names of the borrowers to whom loans and advances were made and the amount and rate of interest involved in each case.

Under this latter provision the Clerk of the House decided to make these details public.

The publication of loans made during the first month or two of the corporation's operations clearly seems to have been a distinct breach of faith.

The original act imposed severe penalties for the violation of any of its provisions, and a disclosure of the names of the borrowers and the amounts of their loans would have been subject to a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. It is evident, therefore, that banks and other institutions who made application for loans prior to the enactment of the emergency relief and construction act of 1932 had every assurance that the confidence that has always existed in banking between borrowers and lenders was recognized and would be maintained. The subsequent publication of such loans has involved many of them in more or less trouble.

It should be borne in mind that while banks, and other institutions, make application for loans, it does not follow that they are not entirely sound. Many of them are in need of ready cash because of the frozen condition of their assets, and the purpose of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was to aid them with ready cash so that they could serve their depositors and borrowers.

The publication of these detailed reports caused serious embarrassment to a number of borrowers. It was the cause of much unjust criticism, inasmuch as in many localities reports were circulated that institutions borrowing were not in good financial condition, when they were perfectly sound. In cases which have come to my attention following the publication of such loans, there resulted the withdrawal of deposits of a greater amount than the loan. I am informed, through a reliable source, that it has caused several hundred banks to close, and that such action could have been avoided had it not been for the publicity given. As a result many banks are not now applying for loans for fear it might be understood by depositors as an element of weakness, whereas on the contrary, such loans show financial soundness. While they would like to make loans, on perfectly sound securities, they do not feel justified in taking the risk; for, as many of them express it, "If we borrow a few hundred thousand from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it will cost us many times that amount in deposits." So, it will be seen, Mr. Speaker, that this is destroying the utility of the corporation as far as loans to banks are concerned.

In my opinion the publication of loans made to banks seriously handicaps them in serving their depositors and borrowers, and especially in making loans to business concerns who desire to provide work for their employees.

The entire banking situation is critical; and if these Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans could be made without publicity, the corporation would be able to render a very valuable public service.

I have received scores of protests regarding the great harm this provision has caused, and urgent appeals for the repeal or amendment of this publicity section, a great number of them coming from northern New Jersey.

Being deeply impressed with the urgent need of relief from such restrictions, on February 17 last I introduced a bill, H. R. 14699, to amend the publicity section of the emergency relief and construction act of 1932, as follows:

Such statements and all data contained therein shall be for the confidential information of the President and the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives only and shall not be made public, nor be open to public inspection.

Since the introduction of this bill I have been besieged with telegrams, letters, and resolutions urging its immediate consideration and adoption, not only from banking institutions, but from business organizations as well.

For example, the Philadelphia Board of Trade, in an urgent appeal for such action, states that publicity given loans to banks has frightened depositors, has consequently caused runs on those banks and closed their doors, and that such legislation as I have proposed would materially assist in stabilizing the public mind, would relieve banks of undue pressure, and would afford them the necessary support to assist general business by easing credit to depositors.

From a certain section in Pennsylvania, in an appeal for immediate action, the president of a national bank states:

In this district every bank which had its name published in the last list had difficulty. Three have closed, one has asked a moratorium of its depositors, and the others have had withdrawals. This is concrete evidence of the destructiveness of the publicity.

I could, of course, quote at considerable length from protests which have reached me, which would clearly show that publishing names of banks borrowing from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation serves no good purpose, but that in these abnormal times creates public feeling to the detriment of the banks concerned, as well as creating distrust in local communities.

From President Hoover's message to Congress on February 20 I quote what I consider a clear and concise portrayal of the effect of such publicity:

This publication is destroying the usefulness and effectiveness of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is exaggerating fears, and is introducing new elements of grave danger. It is drying up the very sources of credit. The effect of such publication is forcing payment by distressed debtors to replenish bank funds. It is causing the hoarding of money.

A continuation of this publicity will destroy the confidence we have tried so carefully to build up. The discontinuance of this practice would encourage deserving banks to make greater use of the service offered by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Let us, therefore, recognize the great harm already caused by such publicity and join in the immediate enactment of legislation of the character I have outlined. [Applause.]

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate had ordered that the House be requested to return to the Senate the bill (H. R. 14500) to extend the time for completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Kansas City, Kans.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill H. R. 14724, entitled "An act making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes," disagreed to by the House; agrees to the conference asked by the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. Shortridge, Mr. Hale, Mr. Keyes, Mr. Glass, and Mr. Broussard to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed without amendment a bill of the House of the following title:

H. R. 12047. An act to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had agreed to the amendments of the House to bills and a joint resolution of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 4491. An act amending the shipping act, 1916, as amended, for the purpose of further regulating common carriers by water in interstate commerce of the United States engaged in transportation by way of the Panama Canal;

S. 5122. An act to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture: and

S. J. Res. 235. Joint resolution amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed a bill of the following title, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 5639. An act providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing the postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years, and for other purposes.

TREASURY-POST OFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL, FISCAL YEAR 1934

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I present a conference report upon the bill (H. R. 13520) making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tennessee presents a conference report upon the Treasury-Post Office appropriread in lieu of the report. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on amendments numbered 1 to 16, inclusive, of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 13520) making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 3, 4, 7, 8, and 9.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 2, 5, 6, 10, 11, and 13, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 12: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 12. and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by such amendment, amended to insert in lieu of the sum "$19,000,000" named in such amendment the sum "$15,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the

"Sec. 4. (a) The provisions of the following sections of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, are hereby continued in full force and effect during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, namely, sections 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107 (except paragraph (5) of subsection (a) thereof), 108, 109, 112, 201, 203, 205, 206 (except subsection (a) thereof), 211, 214, 215, 304, 315, 317, 318 and 323, and, for the purpose of continuing such sections, in the application of such sections with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, the figures '1933' shall be read as '1934'; the figures '1934' as '1935'; and the figures '1935' as '1936'; and, in the case of sections 102 and 203, the figures '1932' shall be read as '1933'; except that in the application of such sections with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934 (but not with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933), the following amendments shall apply:

"(1) Section 104(a) is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting a semicolon and the following: 'and (12) special delivery messengers in the Postal Service'; and section 105(d) (2) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: 'special delivery messengers in the Postal Service, but in the case of such messengers, the sum of $400 shall not be included in the calculation of the rate of their compensation for the purposes of this title;'.

"(2) Section 106 is amended by striking out 'except judges whose compensation may not, under the Constitution, be diminished during their continuance in office' and inserting in lieu thereof 'except judges, whose compensation, prior to retirement or resignation, could not, under the Constitution, have been diminished.'

"(3) Section 216 is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a colon and the following: 'Provided further, That no employee under the classified civil service shall be furloughed under the provisions of this section for a total of more than 90 days during the fiscal year 1934, except after full and complete compliance with all the provisions of the civil service laws and regulations relating to reductions in personnel.'

"(4) Section 317 is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a colon and (a) of this act, at the rate of 8% per cent per month reation bill and asks unanimous consent that the statement be the following: 'Provided further, That no part of any appropriation for "public works," nor any part of any allotment or portion available for "public works" under any appropriation, shall be transferred pursuant to the authority of this section to any appropriation for expenditure for personnel unless such personnel is required upon or in connection with "public works." "Public works" as used in this section shall comprise all projects falling in the general classes enumerated in Budget Statement No. 9, pages A177 to A182, inclusive, of the Budget for the fiscal year 1934, and shall also include the procurement of new airplanes and the construction of vessels under appropriations for "Increase of the Navy." The interpretation by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, or by the President in the cases of the War Department and the Navy Department, of "public works," as defined and designated herein, shall be conclusive.'

"(5) Section 104 (b) and section 106 are amended by striking out '(except enlisted'; section 104 (b) is amended by striking out 'does not include the active or retired pay of the enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard; and '; and section 105 (d) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"'(8) The enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.'

"(b) All acts or parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions of such sections, as amended, are hereby suspended during the period in which such sections, as amended, are in effect.

"(c) No court of the United States shall have jurisdiction of any suit against the United States or (unless brought by the United States) against any officer, agency, or instrumentality of the United States arising out of the application, as provided in this section, of such sections 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, or 112, as amended, unless such suit involves the Constitution of the United States.

"(d) The appropriations or portions of appropriations unexpended by reason of the operation of the amendments made in subsection (a) of this section shall not be used for any purpose, but shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury.

"(e) Each permanent specific annual appropriation available during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, is hereby reduced for that fiscal year by such estimated amount as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget may determine will be equivalent to the savings that will be effected in such appropriation by reason of the application of this section and section 7.

"SEC. 5. Effective the 1st day of the month next following the passage of this act, in the application of Title I of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, and section 4 of this act, in any case where the annual rate of compensation of any position is in excess of $1,000, the provisions reducing compensation shall not operate to reduce the total amount paid for any month to any incumbent of any such position unless the total amount earned by such incumbent in such month exceeds $83.33: Provided, That any such reduction made in any case where the total amount earned by any such incumbent in any month exceeds $83.33 shall not operate to reduce the total amount to be paid to such incumbent for such month to less than $83.33.

"SEC. 6. (a) Sections 103 and 215 of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, shall be held applicable to the officers and employees of the Panama Canal and Panama Railroad Co. on the Isthmus of Panama, and to officers and employees of the United States (including enlisted personnel) holding official station outside the continental United States, only to the extent of depriving each of them of one month's leave of absence with pay during each of the fiscal years ending June 30, 1933, and June 30, 1934.

"(b) During the fiscal year 1934, deductions on account of legislative furlough shall be made each month from the compensation of each officer or employee subject to the furlough provisions of Title I of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, as continued by section 4 gardless of the number of days of such furlough actually taken by any such officer or employee in any month.

SEC. 7. No administrative promotions in the civil branch of the United States Government or the government of the District of Columbia shall be made during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934: Provided, That the filling of a vacancy, when authorized by the President, by the appointment of an employee of a lower grade, shall not be construed as an administrative promotion, but no such appointment shall increase the compensation of such employee to a rate in excess of the minimum rate of the grade to which such employee is appointed, unless such minimum rate would require an actual reduction in compensation: Provided further. That the restoration of employees to their former grades or their advancement to intermediate grades following reductions of compensation for disciplinary reasons shall not be construed to be administrative promotions for the purposes of this section. The provisions of this section shall not apply to commissioned, commissioned warrant, warrant, and enlisted personnel, and cadets, of the Coast Guard.

"SEC. 8. All officers and employees of the United States Government or of the government of the District of Columbia who had reached the retirement age prescribed for automatic separation from the service on or before July 1, 1932, and who were continued in active service for a period of less than 30 days after June 30, 1932, pursuant to an Executive order issued under authority of section 204 of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, shall be regarded as having been retired and entitled to annuity beginning with the day following the date of separation from active service, instead of from August 1, 1932, and the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs is hereby authorized and directed to make payments accordingly from the civil-service retirement and disability fund.

"SEC. 9. The allowance provided for in the act entitled "An act to permit payments for the operation of motor cycles and automobiles used for necessary travel on official business, on a mileage basis in lieu of actual operating expenses," approved February 14, 1931 (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 5, sec. 73a), for travel ordered after the date of enactment of this act shall not exceed 2 cents per mile in the case of travel by motor cycle or 5 cents per mile in the case of travel by automobile.

"SEC. 10. Whenever by or under authority of law actual expenses for travel may be allowed to officers or employees of the United States, such allowances, in the case of travel ordered after the date of enactment of this act, shall not exceed the lowest first-class rate by the transportation facility used in such travel.

"SEC. 11. From and after the date of enactment of this act, the provisions of the act of March 3, 1931 (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 5, sec. 26a), shall not apply to any employees of the Veterans' Administration homes, hospitals, or combined facilities where, in the discretion of the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, the public interest requires that such employees should be excepted from the provisions thereof. As to those employees excepted from the provisions of the act of March 3, 1931, seven hours shall constitute a workday on Saturday and labor in excess of four hours on Saturdays shall not entitle such employees to an equal shortening of the workday on some other day or to additional compensation therefor.

"Sec. 12. Assignments of officers of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps to permanent duty in the Philippines, on the Asiatic station, or in China, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Panama Canal Zone shall be for not less than three years. No such officer shall be transferred to duty in the continental United States before the expiration of such period unless the health of such officer or the public interest requires such transfer, and the reason for the transfer shall be stated in the order directing such transfer.

"SEC. 13. The act entitled 'An act to provide for deducting any debt due the United States from any judgment recovered against the United States by such debtor,' approved March 3, 1875 (U. S. C., title 31, sec. 227), is hereby amended to read as follows:

"'That when any final judgment recovered against the United States duly allowed by legal authority shall be presented to the Comptroller General of the United States for payment, and the plaintiff therein shall be indebted to the United States in any manner, whether as principal or surety, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller General of the United States to withhold payment of an amount of such judgment equal to the debt thus due to the United States; and if such plaintiff assents to such set-off, and discharges his judgment or an amount thereof equal to said debt, the Comptroller General of the United States shall execute a discharge of the debt due from the plaintiff to the United States. But if such plaintiff denies his indebtedness to the United States, or refuses to consent to the set-off, then the Comptroller General of the United States shall withhold payment of such further amount of such judgment, as in his opinion will be sufficient to cover all legal charges and costs in prosecuting the debt of the United States to final judgment. And if such debt is not already in suit, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller General of the United States to cause legal proceedings to be immediately commenced to enforce the same, and to cause the same to be prosecuted to final judgment with all reasonable dispatch. And if in such action judgment shall be rendered against the United States, or the amount recovered for debt and costs shall be less than the amount so withheld as before provided, the balance shall then be paid over to such plaintiff by such Comptroller General of the United States with 6 per cent interest thereon for the time it has been withheld from the plaintiff.'

"SEC. 14. Section 319 of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is repealed as of June 30, 1932; and the rate of interest to be allowed upon judgments against the United States and overpayments in respect of internal-revenue taxes shall be the rate applicable thereto prior to the enactment of section 319 of such act.

"SEC. 15. Section 322 of Part II, of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is amended by adding at the end of the section the following proviso: 'Provided further, That the provisions of this section as applicable to rentals, shall apply only where the rental to be paid shall exceed $2,000 per annum."

"SEC. 16. Title IV of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is amended to read as follows:

"'TITLE IV-REORGANIZATION OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS " DECLARATION OF STANDARD

"'SEC. 401. The Congress hereby declares that a serious emergency exists by reason of the general economic depression: that it is imperative to reduce drastically governmental expenditures; and that such reduction may be accomplished in great measure by proceeding immediately under the provisions of this title.

"'Accordingly, the President shall investigate the present organization of all executive and administrative agencies of the Government and shall determine what changes therein are necessary to accomplish the following purposes:

"'(a) To reduce expenditures to the fullest extent consistent with the efficient operation of the Government;

"'(b) To increase the efficiency of the operations of the Government to the fullest extent practicable within the

"'(c) To group, coordinate, and consolidate executive and administrative agencies of the Government, as nearly as may be, according to major purposes;

"'(d) To reduce the number of such agencies by consolidating those having similar functions under a single head. and by abolishing such agencies and/or such functions thereof as may not be necessary for the efficient conduct of the Government:

"'(e) To eliminate overlapping and duplication of effort:

"'(f) To segregate regulatory agencies and functions from those of an administrative and executive character.

" ' DEFINITION OF EXECUTIVE AGENCY

"'SEC. 402. When used in this title, the term "executive agency" means any commission, independent establishment, board, bureau, division, service, or office in the executive branch of the Government and, except as provided in section 403, includes the executive departments.

" ' POWER OF PRESIDENT

"'SEC. 403. Whenever the President, after investigation, shall find and declare that any regrouping, consolidation, transfer, or abolition of any executive agency or agencies and/or the functions thereof is necessary to accomplish any of the purposes set forth in section 401 of this title, he may by Executive order—

"'(a) Transfer the whole or any part of any executive agency and/or the functions thereof to the jurisdiction and control of any other executive agency;

"'(b) Consolidate the functions vested in any executive agency; or

"'(c) Abolish the whole or any part of any executive agency and/or the functions thereof; and

"'(d) Designate and fix the name and functions of any consolidated activity or executive agency and the title, powers, and duties of its executive head; except that the President shall not have authority under this title to abolish or transfer an executive department and/or all the functions

"'SEC. 404. The President's order directing any transfer, consolidation, or elimination under the provisions of this title shall also make provision for the transfer or other disposition of the records, property (including office equipment), and personnel, affected by such transfer, consolidation, or elimination. In any case of a transfer or consolidation under the provisions of this title, the President's order shall also make provision for the transfer of such unexpended balances of appropriations available for use in connection with the function or agency transferred or consolidated, as he deems necessary by reason of the transfer or consolidated function or for the use of the agency to which the transfer is made or of the agency resulting from such consolidation.

" SAVING PROVISIONS

"'SEC. 405. (a) All orders, rules, regulations, permits, or other privileges made, issued, or granted by or in respect of any executive agency or function transferred or consolidated with any other executive agency or function under the provisions of this title, and in effect at the time of the transfer or consolidation, shall continue in effect to the same extent as if such transfer or consolidation had not occurred, until modified, superseded, or repealed.

"'(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding lawfully commenced by or against the head of any executive agency or other officer of the United States, in his official capacity or in relation to the discharge of his official duties, shall abate by reason of any transfer of authority, power, and duties from one officer or executive agency of the Government to another under the provisions of this title, but the court, on motion or supplemental petition filed at any time within 12 months after such transfer takes effect, showing a necessity for a survival of such suit, action, or other proceeding to obtain a settlement of the questions involved, may allow the same to be maintained by or against the head of the executive agency or other officer of the United States to whom the authority, powers, and duties are transferred.

"'(c) All laws relating to any executive agency or function transferred or consolidated with any other executive agency or function under the provisions of this title, shall, in so far as such laws are not inapplicable, remain in full force and effect, and shall be administered by the head of the executive agency to which the transfer is made or with which the consolidation is effected.

" ' WINDING UP AFFAIRS OF AGENCIES

"'SEC. 406. In the case of the elimination of any executive agency or function, the President's order providing for such elimination shall make provision for winding up the affairs of the executive agency eliminated or the affairs of the executive agency with respect to the functions eliminated, as the case may be.

" * EFFECTIVE DATE OF EXECUTIVE ORDER

"'Sec. 407. Whenever the President makes an Executive order under the provisions of this title, such Executive order shall be submitted to the Congress while in session and shall not become effective until after the expiration of 60 calendar days after such transmission, unless Congress shall by law provide for an earlier effective date of such Executive order or orders: Provided, That if Congress shall adjourn before the expiration of 60 calendar days from the date of such transmission such Executive order shall not become effective until after the expiration of 60 calendar days from the opening day of the next succeeding regular or special session.

" APPROPRIATIONS IMPOUNDED

"'SEC. 408. The appropriations or portions of appropriations unexpended by reason of the operation of this title shall not be used for any purpose but shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury.

" 'TERMINATION OF POWER

"'Sec. 409. The authority granted to the President under section 403 shall terminate upon the expiration of two years after the date of enactment of this act unless otherwise provided by Congress.'

"Sec. 17. The Bureau of Efficiency and the office of chief of such bureau are hereby abolished; and the President is authorized to designate another officer to serve in place of the Chief of the Bureau of Efficiency on any board, commission, or other agency of which the Chief of the Bureau of Efficiency is now a member. All records and property, including office furniture and equipment of the bureau, shall be transferred to the Bureau of the Budget. Appropriations and unexpended balances of appropriations available for expenditure by the Bureau of Efficiency shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury. This section shall take effect at the beginning of the third calendar month after the passage of this act."

And the House agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 15: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 15, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert "18"; and the House agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 16: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 16, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the first of the House amendments insert "19"; and the House agree to the same.

JOSEPH W. BYRNS, WILLIAM W. ARNOLD, LOUIS LUDLOW, WILL R. WOOD

(Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

M. H. THATCHER

(Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

Managers on the part of the House.

Tasker L. Oddie,
Reed Smoot,
Hiram Bingham,
L. J. Dickinson,
Henry W. Keyes,
Geo. H. Moses,
Carter Glass,
Kenneth McKellar,
Sam G. Bratton,
James F. Byrnes,
Elmer Thomas,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate (Nos. 1 to 16, inclusive) to the bill (H. R. 13520) making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

On No. 1: The House, by a separate vote on this amendment, adopted the Senate provision concerning the fostering of competition and the splitting of awards in the purchase of distinctive paper but provided a limit on price of 32¼ cents per pound in lieu of 35 cents, provided by the Senate. The Senate has receded from the 35-cent limitation and accepted the House figure.

On Nos. 2 and 3, relating to the Customs Service: Makes a technical correction in the text of the appropriation and appropriates $19,900,000, as proposed by the House, instead of $17,500,000, as proposed by the Senate, for collecting the revenue from customs.

On No. 4: Appropriates $30,800,000, as proposed by the House, instead of $29,800,000, as proposed by the Senate, for expenses of collecting internal revenue.

On No. 5: Makes a technical correction in the text of the appropriation for the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

On No. 6: Makes a technical correction in the appropriation for freight, etc., under the Public Health Service.

On Nos. 7, 8, and 9, relating to mints and assay offices: Appropriates $1,250,000, as proposed by the House, instead of $1,275,000, as proposed by the Senate, and omits, as proposed by the House, the assay offices at Carson City, Nev.; Boise, Idaho; Helena, Mont.; and Salt Lake City, Utah.

On No. 10: Strikes out, as proposed by the Senate, the authority in the House bill for "acquisition of sites or of additional land" in connection with the appropriation for public-building construction.

On No. 11: Provides, as proposed by the Senate, that the American National Red Cross Building may be served with heat from the Government central-heating plant if the Red Cross agrees to bear the expense of connecting the building with Government mains and to pay for heat furnished at rates to be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury at not less than cost.

On No. 12: The House bill appropriated $19,000,000 for domestic air mail. The Senate struck out the entire paragraph. The conference agreement provides $15,000,000.

On No. 13: Exempts, as proposed by the Senate, the use of automobiles by the President from the general restriction on the use of Government automobiles.

On amendment No. 14: This amendment contains the provisions relating to the economy act of 1932, and the additional economy provisions contained in the Senate amendment.

TITLE I OF ECONOMY ACT—FURLOUGH PROVISIONS AND COMPENSA-TION REDUCTIONS

Title I of the economy act is continued by the House bill, the Senate amendment, the House amendment to the Senate amendment, and the conference agreement. The House bill added special-delivery messengers to the classes exempted from the definition of officers and employees in section 104 of the economy act. The Senate amendment continues this exemption but includes such messengers within the pay-cut provision and provides that $400 of their compensation shall be excluded in determining whether their compensation is at a rate in excess of $1,000 and in determining the amount upon which the 8½ per cent reduction is to be based. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision.

The House bill exempts from deduction the compensation of employees who do not earn $83.33 per month. The Senate amendment continues this provision, makes it applicable during the remainder of the fiscal year 1933, and provides that there shall be no carry-over from month to month in calculating the amount earned. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement contain the Senate provision.

The following provisions contained in the Senate amendment are not contained in the House bill:

ENLISTED PERSONNEL

The Senate amendment reduces by 8½ per cent the active and retired pay of the enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, if at a rate of more than $1,000. The House amendment to the Senate amendment does not contain such a provision. The conference agreement retains the Senate provision.

ANNUAL LEAVE

The Senate amendment permits officers and employees otherwise entitled to less than 24 days' annual leave with pay, whose compensation is reduced, to be granted not exceeding 24 days' leave with pay when no additional expense is entailed. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and conference agreement do not contain this provision.

The Senate amendment provides that officers and employees of the Panama Canal and Panama Railroad on the Isthmus and officers and employees (including enlisted personnel) holding official station outside the continental United States shall be deprived of only one month's leave with pay during 1933 and 1934 under the economy act. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision.

DEDUCTIONS FROM FURLOUGH

The Senate amendment provides that deductions on account of legislative furlough shall be made during 1934 at the rate of 8½ per cent per month regardless of the number of days of such furlough actually taken by the employee in the month. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision.

JUDGES

The Senate amendment does not continue for the fiscal year 1934 the provisions of the economy act reducing to $10,000 the salaries and retired pay of judges of legislative courts if at a rate exceeding $10,000 per annum. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt this provision.

The Senate amendment also provides that the retired pay of constitutional judges shall not be reduced during 1934. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt this provision.

TITLE II OF ECONOMY ACT—PROVISIONS AFFECTING PERSONNEL AUTOMATIC INCREASES IN COMPENSATION

The House bill continued for 1934 section 201, which prohibits automatic increases in compensation. The Senate amendment omitted section 201 from the continued sections. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement continue section 201.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROMOTIONS

The House bill rewrote section 202 of the economy act, which prohibits administrative promotions. The House provision provided that a promotion made without authorization of the President to fill a vacancy should not be considered an administrative promotion, and omitted the requirement that the President report to Congress such promotions.

The Senate amendment continued section 202 without the House changes, provided that the restoration of employees to grades formerly held or to intermediate grades following reductions for disciplinary reasons should not be considered prohibited promotions, and provided that the promotion of apprentices should not be considered prohibited promotions.

The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision, except that they omit the part of it which requires the President to report to Congress and the part which permits the promotion of apprentices.

FILLING OF VACANCIES

The House bill did not continue for 1934 section 203 of the economy act, which prohibits the filling of vacancies. The Senate amendment did continue this section. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision.

NIGHT DIFFERENTIAL

The House bill continued without change the provisions of section 211 (a) (2) of the economy act which reduces the differential for night work by one-half. The Senate amendment provides that the differential shall be reduced only by one-third instead of one-half. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the House provision.

ADMINISTRATIVE FURLOUGH

The House bill rewrote section 216 of the economy act, which authorizes administrative furloughs. The Senate amendment continued section 216 and added a provision which provides that an administrative furlough of a civil-service employee for more than 60 days shall not be ordered during 1934 without compliance with the civil-service laws and regulations relating to dismissals. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement contain the substance of the Senate provision except that the period is changed to 90 days and provision is made that the laws relating to "reductions in personnel" must be complied with in lieu of the laws relating to "dismissals from the civil service."

LIMITATIONS ON AMOUNT OF RETIRED PAY

The Senate amendment contained a provision—added to section 212 of the economy act—to the effect that no retired officer of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard who in private life receives salary or compensation of $10,000 or over shall receive any retired pay from the Government of the United States; and that no officer on the active list shall receive from any Government corporation or from any department of the United States Government or from the municipal government of the District of Columbia any compensation in excess of his salary and allowances as an active officer. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement omit the Senate provision.

The Senate amendment contained a further amendment to section 212 of the economy act providing that the limitations on retired pay shall not apply to officers retired for disability incurred in service and directly connected and not by legal presumption with such service, in lieu of the provision now contained in the laws exempting officers retired for disability incurred in combat with an enemy. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement omit the Senate provision.

RETIREMENT ANNUITIES

The Senate amendment inserted a provision which authorizes, in the case of officers and employees of the United States who were retired after July 1, 1932, and whose annuities started August 1, 1932, the payment of retirement annuities from the date of their separation from the service rather than August 1. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision, but add officers and employees of the District of Columbia to the benefited class.

MILITARY TRAVEL

The House bill continued without change section 206 of the economy act (relating to reductions in travel allowance). The Senate amendment struck out subsection (a) of section 206 which provided that actual travel expenses of officers of the services mentioned in the pay adjustment act of 1922 shall be the same as civilian employees. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision.

TRAVEL ALLOWANCES

The Senate amendment inserted a provision that travel allowances of Government officers on vehicles owned by them shall be reduced from 3 to 2 cents per mile in the case of travel by motor cycle and from 7 to 5 cents per mile if such travel is by automobile. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt this provision.

The Senate amendment inserted a provision that travel allowances shall not exceed the lowest first-class rate by the transportation facility used. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt this provision.

SATURDAY HALF HOLIDAYS IN VETERANS' HOMES

The Senate amendment contained a provision authorizing the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs to require employees of the Veterans' Administration homes, hospitals, and combined facilities to work a full 7-hour day on Saturday where the public interest requires, despite the provision of the Saturday half holiday law; but provided that labor in excess of four hours on Saturday should entitle the employees to an equal shortening of the work day on some other day. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement retain the Senate provision modified to provide that labor in excess of four hours should not entitle the employee to an equal shortening of the work day on some other day or to additional compensation therefor.

ASSIGNMENTS TO PERMANENT DUTY

The Senate amendment contained a provision requiring that assignments of officers of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps to permanent duty in Hawaii shall be for not less than four years, unless the health of the officer or the public interest requires a transfer. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement retain the Senate provision, but reduce the 4-year period to three years and extend its application to assignments to permanent duty in the Philippines, the Asiatic Station, China, Puerto Rico, and the Panama Canal Zone as well as Hawaii.

SET-OFFS AGAINST CLAIMANTS OTHER THAN JUDGMENT CREDITORS

The Senate amendment amended the act of March 3, 1875, relating to the procedure for set-offs against creditors of the United States, by omitting therefrom language with respect to claims, as distinguished from judgments, that might be construed to deny the Government the right to apply toward liquidation of debts due a debtor, other than a judgment debtor, the amount due the United States, unless the Government reduces its claim to judgment. The effect of the amendment is to limit the application of the statute to judgment creditors. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement retain the Senate provision.

BUREAU OF EFFICIENCY

The Senate amendment abolished the Bureau of Efficiency. The House amendment to the Senate amendment does not contain this provision. The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision.

INTEREST ON JUDGMENTS AND REFUNDS

The Senate amendment repealed section 319 of the economy act of June 30, 1932, relating to interest on judgments and refunds. The House amendment to the Senate amendment omitted this provision. The conference agreement adopts the Senate provision.

APPROVAL OF REFUNDS

The Senate amendment contained a provision which prohibited the Commissioner of Internal Revenue from paying a refund in excess of $20,000 of internal-revenue taxes until such refund had been approved by the Board of Tax Appeals. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement omit this provision.

PERMANENT ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS

The Senate amendment provided that after June 30, 1934, permanent specific and indefinite appropriations should be modified so that Congress would appropriate annually for the purposes of these appropriations. The Senate amendment excepted sinking fund and debt service appropriations, certain appropriations for the Soldiers' Home, appropriations of funds derived from assessments on banks, and appropriations for vocational education, for colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts, and for agricultural extension. There was no such provision in the House bill.

The House amendment to the Senate amendment contained the Senate provision except that indefinite appropriations were excluded and the exceptions to the Senate amendment were omitted.

The conference agreement omits the entire section.

RENTALS

The Senate amendment excepts from the provisions of section 322 of the economy act (which requires that premises shall not be rented for an annual rent of more than 15 per cent of the fair market value of the property) cases where the rent to be paid is $2,000 per annum or less. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement contain the Senate provision.

5 PER CENT REDUCTION

The Senate amendment contains a provision authorizing and directing the heads of departments and establishments to make such reductions in the expenditures of their organizations as will in the aggregate equal at least 5 per cent of the total amount appropriated for them, respectively, in the regular annual appropriation acts. Exception was made in the case of public building construction. In making the reductions no wage cuts, other reduced compensation, or furloughs were to be ordered. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement omit this provision.

REORGANIZATION OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

The Senate amendment amends in several particulars Title IV of the economy act relating to the reorganization of executive departments. The principal changes are:

- (1) The President is given the power to "abolish the whole or any part of any executive agency and/or the functions thereof," but he is to have no authority to "abolish or transfer an executive department and/or all the functions thereof."
- (2) The power of each House of Congress to veto the President's Executive order is removed.
- (3) The power of the President is to terminate two years from the enactment of the act.

The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement adopt the Senate provision with several amendments designed to perfect the text of the Senate amendment from the standpoint of constitutionality and effective administration. They make no changes in the provisions of the Senate amendment referred to in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3), above.

INVESTIGATION OF WAGE-ADJUSTMENT SYSTEM

The Senate amendment provided for an investigation and report as to the feasibility of establishing a system for adjusting and determining the compensation of civil-service employees on the basis of retail prices and rents. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement omit this provision.

On amendment No. 15: This amendment makes a change in a section number.

On amendment No. 16: The Senate amendment inserted a new section authorizing the Court of Claims to charge fees. The House amendment to the Senate amendment and the conference agreement contain this provision making a change in the section number, requiring the charging of such fees, and making a technical correction in the provision.

JOSEPH W. BYRNS
(5) amendment 14 (economy

(Except as to secs. 4 (A) (5) amendment 14 (economy amendment)),

WILLIAM W. ARNOLD, LOUIS LUDLOW, WILL R. WOOD

(Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

M. H. THATCHER

(Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the report.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. BYRNS. Yes.

Mr. STAFFORD. I think it would be illuminative if the gentleman would kindly indicate wherein the present conference agreement differs from that which the House agreed to when the conference report was last under consideration in the House

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman give us the main high points of the conference report?

Mr. STAFFORD. I do not think the House is interested in any of the amendments except the amendment that the House voted on the other day.

Mr. BYRNS. While, of course, everything in the bill was in conference, there were really only six propositions remaining in dispute after the previous action of the conferees and the recent action of the House. I shall endeavor to tell the House just what the conferees finally have done. It is unnecessary to say to Members, most of whom have served on conference committees, that a conference frequently means a compromise. We found that to be essentially so with reference to the "economy" amendment (No. 14) and some of the other provisions of the bill.

We were about nine days, including a Sunday, considering this matter, and for the past three days we have been making a final effort to get together. We are now at the end of a session. The conferees felt that if we were to put this bill through, it was important that the conference report be made to-day in order to give the House and the Senate an opportunity to agree to it. Otherwise the bill might and possibly would fail, and as the result of this the reorganization plan which has been provided, and which we hope will give the President the right to make his consolidations and eliminations, might be seriously delayed.

The first matter of difference was the assay offices. You will remember the House the other day voted 218 to 0 to sustain the House conferees in insisting on elimination of the assay offices. The older Members of this House will recall that for many years the House and the Appropriations Committee, under the leadership, I think, first, of Mr. Good, then Mr. Madden, and later Mr. Wood of Indiana, have been endeavoring to eliminate those assay offices, feeling that they were a useless and unnecessary expense. We have eliminated them in the House in the past without difficulty, but each time a few of the Senators have insisted they should be restored, and it was never possible to bring about favorable action. The Senate conferees have yielded upon that, and, as a result, the assay offices will not be continued after July 1. [Applause.]

The next proposition was the subject of air mail. The House appropriated $19,000,000 for the purpose of carrying air mail during 1934. The Senate, for some reason, cut out the whole amount.

That has been a bone of contention between the conferees of the Senate and the House. I do not mean that all of the Senate conferees favored that action, but we found quite a number who insisted upon it and who were adamant. We have been discussing that matter for two or three days, but finally this morning, when we came to an agreement upon everything else, in order to get this bill through, the House conferees finally yielded to an appropriation of $15,000,000, which represents a decrease of $4,000,000 under the amount that the House felt was necessary to carry out the air mail contracts.

Two of the members of the House committee, Messrs. Wood of Indiana and Thatcher, disagreed, but the majority of your conferees with reference to this appropriation felt that the reduction should be made in the interest of putting this bill through and having it become law by next Saturday. Of course, if it should develop later on in the extra session, for instance, that this $15,000,000 is not sufficient to comply with the contracts which have been made, and if the committee investigating it in the House, headed by the gentleman from New York [Mr. Mead], the special committee in the Senate, and the Postmaster General all agree that there should be more money in order to take care of the contracts. I take it the Congress will be willing to make the appropriation. But personally, while I favor the $19,000,000, because that was the amount necessary to cover the contracts. I am not so sure but what they may be able to get along on $15,000,000, because the Postmaster General has the right now to reduce the compensation paid to these carriers, and I hope he will be able to work out something along that line.

Mr. RAGON. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BYRNS. I yield.

Mr. RAGON. What was the excuse on the part of the Senate conferees for the elimination of the entire $19,000,000?

Mr. BYRNS. I can not speak for the other body. I understand they cut out the whole thing, believing such action would insure a complete investigation of all phases of air mail contracts from the beginning to the end. I can not see why we will not get that anyhow from the special investigation by the committees of the two Houses.

Mr. RAGON. As I understand, there has been a contract let for a line from New York to Dallas for air mail. There has also been a contract let for a line from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., and across to Habana. If I understand it correctly, if the $19,000,000 were eliminated we might impair that contract to the point where it could not be carried out. It seems to me that in the appropriation of $19,000,000, with the power we have given the President to make investigations with reference to cutting down expenses and consolidating, we have made all the safeguards necessary to protect the Tresaury against the useless expenditure of this money, and I can not understand the reasons why the conferees even agreed to the $4,000,000 reduction.

Mr. BYRNS. I am in thorough accord with the gentleman, but I say to him in all seriousness that a majority of the House conferees felt that unless they made this reduction the bill would fail. I wish the gentleman could have seen the efforts made to get the Senate to agree. The gentleman understands they granted $15,000,000 and we reduced the House amount only $4,000,000. I think the gentleman would have come to the same conclusion that we did, that unless we agreed to the $15,000,000 this bill would fail. We felt there was too much involved in the reorganization provisions of this bill to let it fail for $4,000,000.

As I said a moment ago, we will be here in session again shortly. If the Postmaster General and the different committees feel they can not bring about the reductions to come within the $15,000,000, and comply with the contracts made by the Government, there will no trouble about getting the extra money.

Mr. McMILLAN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS. I yield.

Mr. McMILLAN. It is obvious, as the result of this reduction, there will be some reduction in the present activities in the operation of the air mail?

Mr. BYRNS. If there is no additional appropriation made and if there is no reduction in compensation, some will have to be cut out.

Mr. McMILLAN. Has the gentleman any idea or is there any estimate before his committee as to what will be done in that regard?

Mr. BYRNS. No; I can not tell the gentleman. I do not know just what policy the Postmaster General would pursue if such a condition is brought about, but I take it he would apply it to those lines that bring in the least revenue.

Mr. McMILLAN. I take it from the gentleman's statement this reduction was simply an arbitrary reduction without any expression from the department as to what it would do as a result of it.

Mr. BYRNS. That is true. The Budget asked $20,000,000. The House cut it to $19,000,000. I have never been able to find where any governmental authority or agency recommended any less sum.

Mr. McMILLAN. In the event the committee finds that there is a contract involved, as suggested by the gentleman from Arkansas, it would find itself in the position of having to ask the special session for a deficiency appropriation to provide for it.

Mr. BYRNS. I do not want to be misunderstood as to that. I said that if the Postmaster General and these two committees should decide that the $15,000,000 is not sufficient to comply with the contracts made by the Government, I felt sure that Congress would make the appropriation necessary to comply with the Government contracts.

Mr. LOZIER. Answering the inquiry of the gentleman from Arkansas as to the reasons actuating the other body, is it not true that the action of the other body was in recognition of a rapidly rising public sentiment and protest against the unconscionable contracts that are being made by the Post Office Department not only with reference to air mail but with reference to ocean mail? To-day the Postmaster General is preparing to make a contract which would cost the United States Government in the next 10 years more than $10,000,000 on an ocean mail contract, and I want to say to the gentleman that the action of the Senate is in recognition of a public sentiment which condemns the present policy of the Postmaster General, and in recognition of that protest this body should well consider before they grant any more unconscionable subsidies such as the present bill carries.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS. I yield.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Lozier] brought out what I desired to advance. At the present time there are some Senators who want to pass a resolution asking the Postmaster General to hold in abeyance the contracts my colleague talks about. A certain Senator has objected.

I think the House should pass the resolution of the gentleman from New York [Mr. MEAD] and add to it not only air mail but ocean mail and prevent further contracts.

The position developed in the conference is that air mail will get $15,000,000 or nothing. Is this right?

Mr. BYRNS. Yes. I hope the gentleman will not confuse the two propositions. This conference report has nothing in the world to do with ocean mail contracts. I agree with the gentleman so far as the resolution is concerned. This does not provide for a single new additional contract. The $19,000,000 was provided only to carry out existing contracts and not for anything that is new.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. The gentleman is in the position of either getting $15,000,000 or nothing, is he not?

Mr. LAGUARDIA. No.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. The conferees had to yield to $15,000,000.

Mr. BYRNS. That was the outcome; and I may say to the gentleman that we did not yield, and no conclusion was reached until a majority of the conferees on the part of the House came to the firm opinion that unless we finally agreed on this bill this morning, brought the report back to the House so the House could act, and then permit the Senate to pass upon it, this bill perhaps would fail and all the reorganization power given to the President with reference to consolidation and elimination of useless agencies and bureaus would be lost and possibly too long delayed before they could be given to him.

Mr. RAGON. Answering the inquiry of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Lozier], it seems to me the power given to the President to consolidate will take care of any new contract that might be let touching the air mail service. Therefore, the thing he condemns is well taken care of in this bill. This appropriation, as I understand, is to take care of contracts already in existence?

Mr. BYRNS. It is. Mr. RAGON. These contracts have to be paid, somewhere, somehow, some time.

Mr. BYRNS. It has nothing to do with new contracts.

Mr. MEAD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS. I yield.

Mr. MEAD. Mr. Speaker, I believe the gentleman from Missouri is correct when he makes the statement that this action on the part of the Senate is a protest against the activities of the present Postmaster General.

The Postmaster General has been intensely concerned with the issuance of all the air mail extensions and certificates that he possibly can issue before the 4th of March. The Postmaster General is also letting all the ocean mail contracts that he can before the end of his term. The Postmaster General has jeopardized the air mail and the ocean mail appropriations so that in all probability the new administration will be embarrassed, and a deficit will result which will make subsequent appropriations necessary.

The Director of the Bureau of the Budget recommended $20,000,000 for the air mail service for the next fiscal year. The chairman and the Members of the House Committee on Appropriations very wisely, after a thorough and careful investigation, reduced that amount to $19,000,000.

Such a reduction the service can stand under existing conditions.

The reduction applied by the Senate was reached, in my judgment, after no similar investigation. It is clearly an arbitrary figure, and it will, of course, necessitate the elimination of a number of the services pow being given to many sections of the country.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. BYRNS. I yield.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. I do not agree with the gentleman that it will necessitate the elimination of the service. The service will continue and the liability of the Government will stand. The weakness of the Senate's action is that it simply fails to appropriate while the liability of the Government continues.

Mr. HASTINGS. It will necessitate a deficiency appropriation later to make up the difference needed to pay existing contracts.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Oh, absolutely.

Mr. MEAD. Mr. Speaker, no; for under the Watres law the Postmaster General has certain powers. He can arrange with the air mail operators to eliminate certain lines and bring about a reduction. But it will be difficult for him to keep within the appropriations contained in this bill.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Would not that be covered in the million-dollar saving?

Mr. MEAD. No; I believe more than a million may be saved. And the operators will agree without litigation. It will be done voluntarily, but this reduction, in my judgment, is too much to absorb and will cause trouble and embarrassment later on.

Mr. BYRNS. I think myself it will require a deficiency appropriation possibly later on, certainly unless the Postmaster General finds he can make reductions in the amount of compensation paid air carriers.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. What does the gentleman recommend to the House and what is the gentleman's attitude going to be? Is it going to be $15,000,000 or no appropriation?

Mr. BYRNS. Fifteen million dollars is in the report that is now pending.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Is the gentleman going to stand by it? Mr. BYRNS. We have submitted a unanimous report of the House and Senate conferees.

The next difference between the conferees had to do with reduction in the pay of enlisted men. As the bill passed the House there was no reduction in pay of enlisted men. The Senate included in the "economy" amendment (No. 14) a provision placing an $8\frac{1}{3}$ per cent cut upon the salaries of all enlisted men where the salaries amounted to \$1,000 or more. In other words, this $8\frac{1}{3}$ per cent cut applies only to those who receive more than \$1,000, but none of them are to be cut so as to receive less than \$1,000.

The House conferees were unwilling to agree to that and reported it back here in disagreement, as you will recall. The Senate was adamant, however, insisting it should be adopted; and, for the same reason which I have given with reference to air mail, the House conferees finally yielded.

Personally, I was opposed to it, and I have so indicated. We have taken away the reenlistment bonus from the enlisted men, and this adds an 8½ per cent more, which means altogether about 13 per cent. If we had reduced our own salaries 13 per cent, or even 25 per cent, as was proposed, I would have felt more inclined to favor this.

The next is the so-called Gore interest amendment, which you will recall relates to the rate of interest being paid by the United States upon judgments and tax refunds. The Senate was adamant as to this section. It stood for it like a stone wall.

You will recall that the House conferees in the previous action on amendment No. 14 recommended that the House recede from its disagreement with reference to the interest rate, feeling that it was fair if the Government was receiving 6 per cent on sums being collected from taxpayers who had not paid the full amount of taxes due the Government that the Government should pay those to whom refunds are made the same rate of interest; but the House by a considerable vote rejected this portion of the committee's recommendation, and we went back into conference. I want to say that every member of the House conference committee made an earnest effort to carry out the wishes of the House, but the Senate conferees were as adamant this time as they were before, and in order to bring about a report your conferees finally yielded with reference to this matter.

The next relates to the Bureau of Efficiency. I have had occasion heretofore to express myself with reference to this bureau. Personally I am sorry to see the bureau abolished, because I have felt that it performed a certain service with reference to investigations and particularly for service to the committees of Congress, but the Senate for some reason—and the bureau seemed to have very few friends over there—determined it should be eliminated, and finally your conferees yielded in order to get a complete agreement.

Mr. HASTINGS. But, of course, this action does not eliminate it until after July 1 next.

Mr. BYRNS. That is true. I think it is the third month after the passage of the bill.

Mr. HASTINGS. At any rate, it is not eliminated immediately.

Mr. BYRNS. Not before three months, anyway.

The next item is with reference to the permanent appropriations. The conferees of both the Senate and House agreed, as you will recall, in their former agreement to confine the repeal of these permanent appropriations to those which are specific in amount. The House adopted that agreement, but since that time some of those on the outside favoring the land-grant colleges and vocational education have been quite busy and when we got back in conference with the Senate considerable opposition arose to the previous agreement, and the Senate finally yielded with reference to the entire section. So the present law on permanents will continue, so far as this bill is concerned. want to remind you that there is a subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations, of which the gentleman from New York [Mr. GRIFFIN] is chairman, which is now considering the subject of all permanent appropriations-specific and indefinite—and doubtless some recommendation will come from the committee which can be considered at the next session, when we have more time and will not be subjected to the necessity of passing the bill within a few

So far as automatic promotions are concerned, the Senate yielded to the House provision and there will be no automatic increases during the next year.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Wood] and reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, as one of the conferees, I signed this report, but in signing I reserved an exception to the reduction made in the appropriation for air mail and also to the abolishment of the Bureau of Efficiency.

When, as chairman of the Appropriations Committee and as a member of it since, I have constantly opposed the increasing of appropriations for air mail, feeling that we were going a little too fast, but in spite of this opposition we have been increasing from time to time the appropriations for this service. We thereby committed ourselves to a policy, and in doing this we caused many people throughout the United States to believe that it was to be a permanent policy. As a consequence of this millions and millions of dollars were invested in the air mail service. Many of the cities throughout the United States, for the purpose of having the benefit of air mail service, have issued bonds in large amounts for the purpose of preparing landing fields.

After these contracts were signed, creating almost all of the airways that are now in existence, we passed the Watres bill, and under this bill those who were holding contracts were induced to surrender their contracts and receive certain route agreements. To now change this policy and reduce this appropriation, I say, in itself, is a repudiation; and while I have been opposed to such increases, yet I say that inasmuch as we have made them we ought to stand by them.

Under the law the Postmaster General has the right, from time to time, to call in the gentlemen who have these routes and, after conference and after the facts are determined, to reduce the carrying charge.

There is another thing I wish to call to your attention. We have pending in this House to-day a bill known as the Mead-Kelly bill, which I think is practicable and workable, and which, if carried out, will eventually reduce the carrying charge to zero; but this should be done systematically.

If this amendment prevails, this is what is going to happen. It has been stated, and it was stated in conference, that various injustices have been practiced by the operation of the law in the making of the contracts. Perhaps that is true, but in trying to correct it in this way we are going to do an injustice to those who have practiced no injustice on the Government of the United States. We are going to destroy some who are without offense, and we will cripple others who should be protected.

The present Postmaster General, and the one who is to succeed him, has a perfect right to take every one of these contracts if there is any injustice to anyone—if anyone is getting more than is right, and reduce it. I say it is an administrative matter, and it should be confined entirely to the administration of it.

To my mind we have placed ourselves in the position of saying to a man who has a contract, "You surrender your contract that is binding, and we will give you a certificate route so that you will be protected." We are not doing it.

To my mind, anyone who has one of these contracts could go into the court to-morrow, produce the contract, and say that he has been damaged by the Government without examination and hearing of the facts, that the Government has taken his rights away from him, and recover judgment against the United States. No doubt that will be done. So I say that the right thing would be to appropriate the $19,000,000 and let the Postmaster General administer it through the administration of his office, and at the same time protect the Treasury of the United States. This is simply an arbitrary proposition, actuated by some who have been disappointed in not getting routes, and actuated on the other hand by those who believe that we should never have had air mail routes in the United States.

I am amazed to learn that there are Members of another body—not in this House, I hope—who declare that the whole business is a nuisance and ought never to have been established.

I understand that the carrying of the air mail in the way of preparedness is worth all it is costing. If to-morrow we were thrown into war or threatened with war, we would spend many times this amount of money in educating young men for the Air Service for the defense of our country.

When they are prepared through the air mail service, you get them better educated than you do in any school of that character. There are various estimates made of how much it costs to educate a young man to be a flier—all the way from ten to twenty thousand dollars. If you strike a medium, all we are paying in the way of preparation is justly expended.

So I say that we are doing an injustice here concerning these men holding the contracts and who have invested their money in the faith of the Government, and whenever the faith of the Government is gone, what is there left?

Mr. RAGON. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. WOOD of Indiana. I yield. Mr. RAGON. I am much interested in the subject the gentleman is talking about, but I would like to ask him if he does not find in this case, in the investigation of the air lines, that the commercial side of it and the Government mail side of it are more or less interdependent; that unless you had the air mail you would not have the development that you have now?

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. Absolutely. Directly through the creation of the air mail in the United States we have been already repaid tenfold by the expansion of our commercial activities to South and Central America.

Mr. RAGON. And I might suggest that the mistakes that have been made with reference to these contracts are the mistakes you would naturally find in any pioneering enterprise of this proportion.

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. That is true. We have made mistakes, and it is now almost tragic to read the mistakes that were made in the grants and the different grants that were made for the purpose of building our Pacific railroads. There have not been as many made in this as were made at that time. There has not been as much talk about graft and fraud in this as there was in that. It is one of the peculiarities of the introduction of great enterprises like this that mistakes may be made and that some designing people perhaps may get advantage through them.

Mr. FOSS. Did we not spend about a billion dollars during the World War in aircraft and air services and never get a machine in the air?

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. Yes; to the chagrin and humiliation of our Government, that is true. If we want to see that right is done here and leave it so that no injustice may be done, we should vote down this conference report.

This report abolishes the Bureau of Efficiency. I do not understand why either the membership of the House or the membership of the Senate should subscribe to such a proposition. We have just two agencies that are peculiarly advantageous to the Congress of the United States. One is the Bureau of Efficiency, established under a Democratic administration. The other is the Comptroller General's office.

Both of them are answerable to the bidding of this House and the Senate. Each of them in my opinion has been doing splendid service. That they have created animosity, that they have created bitterness on the part of those upon whose offices they have encroached is perfectly natural; and, because of that, poison has been dropped in the minds of Members of this House and Members of the other House. possibly against the Chief of the Bureau of Efficiency more than anything else. He is an individual. We should not destroy this agency if it is a good one-and it is-because we do not like the man at the head of it. Get rid of him and put some one else in if you do not like him. There has not been a Chairman of the Appropriations Committee since the creation of this Bureau of Efficiency but will subscribe to the fact that it has been of the utmost advantage to the Committee on Appropriations in saving millions of dollars to the United States Treasury. If time permitted I could recite many of these incidents that are beyond dispute. Martin Madden-peace to his memory-said that without the Bureau of Efficiency he did not know how we could conduct the appropriation bills and present them as they should be presented to this House. I know by reason of my experience as chairman, and Mr. Byrns knows by reason of his experience as chairman, that that bureau has been of the greatest aid to us, as it had been to Mr. Madden.

Mr. OLIVER of Alabama. But it should be said, however, that under the powers granted to the President by this bill, if it becomes a law, he would have the right to continue all of the powers of the Bureau of Efficiency by transferring the same to some other agency, and if Congress did not set aside any action taken by him in this regard, it would become law.

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. That is the very thing that I contended for, and I contend for now, that you are giving all power to the President of the United States. He has a right to abolish this Bureau of Efficiency if he finds it is not a good thing, but suppose we abolish it, then we are taking from the President a part of the power that you undertake to give him. Suppose we destroy this Bureau of Efficiency, what would the President say? Naturally he would not want to incur the opposition of the House and the Senate by reestablishing something that he would like to have established and would have continued if he had had his way about it. The orderly thing would be to let this Bureau of Efficiency stand, and if the President in his consolidation plan finds that it can be consolidated with some other, he can remove the machinery into the department to which he desires to transfer it.

Mr. MEAD. And if we vote down the conference report as the gentleman suggests—and I am in accord with him so far as the air mail appropriation is concerned—are we apt to jeopardize the chances of getting the bill through at this session?

Mr. WOOD of Indiana. Of course, I can only express my individual opinion. I believe if the House rejects this conference report that the Senate will recede. They have more at stake than the air mail. They have more at stake than the Bureau of Efficiency, and to my mind they would put themselves in a very unenviable light if they should stand in the way of the passage of this bill with all that is involved in it. If we wish to save ourselves, however, from repudiation, if we wish to preserve one of the best agencies this House has ever had in helping it save money to the Treasury, then this report should be defeated. [Applause.]

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Arnold].

Mr. ARNOLD. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, your conferees have had a most difficult time in ironing out the differences between the House and the Senate on this bill. We were in conference practically every day last week, and this week two days. We finally got to the point where there was a meeting of the minds, brought about naturally by concessions by both sides. This conference report is not as I or the other House conferees would have it if we had my way about it, and it is not as those at the other end of the Capitol would have it if they had their way about it.

There were some very, very controversial matters in issue. We did the very best we could, and I believe we have brought to the House a report that upholds the position of the House just as far as possible. There has been quite a lot of controversy about the air mail matter; that perhaps was the most difficult thing we had to meet. The House carried an appropriation of $19,000,000. The other body cut that appropriation out entirely, and some of them were at first adamant against appropriating a single dollar for air mail. Finally, after giving and taking, and cutting and fitting, we did arrive at the conclusions presented in this report. The House receded to the extent of $4,000,000 on the appropriation for air mail. I think perhaps if the air mail is carried on in 1934 as it has been in 1933 there will not be enough money in this $15,000,000 to carry out that service, but we have great hope of reform measures being put into use by the new Postmaster General, and I believe the new Postmaster General can work this matter out in such way that we can get along with the $15,000,000. If it is impossible, we are not barred. The Congress will be in session within a short time, and if it is found that the $15,000,000 which is carried in this bill will not carry out existing contracts as they may be modified, as it may be found necessary to be carried on by the new Postmaster General, then a supplementary or deficiency appropriation may be provided.

I am satisfied in my own mind that we have gone the limit as far as getting concessions from the conferees at the other end of the Capitol is concerned, and I do not think we are seriously handicapping the service. There are other matters of prime importance in this report, and we can not afford to let this Congress adjourn without passing this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Arnold] has expired.

Mr. BYRNS. I yield the gentleman two additional minutes.

Mr. ARNOLD. It is absolutely necessary, Mr. Speaker, in my opinion, for us to approve this conference report, and

I do not think there is any question but what it will be approved at the other end of the Capitol and go to the President and get this reorganization plan into effect so that when the incoming President takes office he can go to work at once on the reorganization of the various boards and bureaus and executive agencies, and eliminate and abolish and bring about millions and millions of dollars in Government economy, that we are all so much interested in. So I assure the Members that your conferees did the very best they could under the circumstances, and I believe we are presenting to you a report that upholds the views of the House on these matters just as far as we are able to do under the present situation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has again expired.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Thatcher].

Mr. THATCHER. Mr. Speaker, as one of the dissenting conferees on these two items, the air mail and the abolishment of the Efficiency Bureau, I feel that in justice to myself and in justice to the situation I ought to make some statement.

The air mail appropriations have been made agreeably to the authorizations of Congress. The Congress enacted laws which conferred upon the Postmaster General the power and duty to make contracts for the transportation of mail. He has made contracts under that authority. If there has been fraud anywhere, upon a showing of the fraud, of course, any contract will be vitiated and destroyed, but until fraud is shown, the presumption must be and should be in favor of the sanctity of the contract.

Our subcommittee, upon careful hearings, reduced the Budget estimates by $1,000,000. We did not shut our eyes and cut. We opened our eyes and cut. We felt justified in making that reduction. This arbitrary reduction of $4,000,000 is a blind cut, not based upon any hearings, not based upon any facts submitted, and I fear it will amount to a substantial crippling of the Air Service of this country, an Air Service which has been set up agreeably to the authorization and direction of Congress itself. I felt that the sum of $19,000,000 was and is necessary under the showing made before our committee, upon estimates of the department called upon to administer the law and upon the recommendation of the Budget. Therefore I do not feel justified, even for the purpose of compromise, to make a cut of that character.

Now, in common with the distinguished gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Wood], touching that item, I signed a report indicating an exception as to it. I am perfectly willing to give to the incoming Postmaster General the power to go into this situation, to handle it administratively as he has a right to handle it, and if legitimately he can make reductions in service, reductions in cost, then the appropriation of this amount of $19,000,000 would not prevent him from making those reductions of service and reductions of cost, and the balance would remain in the Treasury. I am unwilling to hamstring him at the beginning of his term of office concerning these matters. I feel that he ought to have full opportunity to canvass the whole situation, and then to do justice within the law, but we should not act above the law. I am unwilling to repudiate contracts if they are valid contracts and if they are just contracts. If they are not just contracts, then they can be invalidated. These contractors have entered into the picture at great cost to themselves. All over this country cities and municipalities have expended millions of dollars to establish their airports in order to make ready for this air mail and air passenger development. I believe it is unjust to them, because I believe many of them will suffer by reason of this reduction in appropriation. I feel that there is an element of bad faith involved to those cities and communities, and, of course, an element of bad faith, if I am correct in my judgment of the needs involved, concerning the contractors who are pioneering this work.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Kentucky has expired.

Mr. BYRNS. I yield the gentleman two additional min-

Mr. THATCHER. Mr. Speaker, I think the protective value of the Air Service is beyond calculation. We see to-day in the Far East a great portion of that region wrapped in the flames of war. We are standing upon the edge of a volcano; and, if we are unprepared, we invite offense and, mayhap, invite attack. No finer service is being rendered in the matter of national defense than that which is being rendered in the development of aircraft in this country, in the development of the most skilled pilots that have ever voyaged beneath the sun and stars. Our record of safety in this country in the air is beyond that of any other country of the world. Great and splendid work is being performed along protective and defensive lines. If we are ready to spend $22,000,000 or $100,000,000 to bring boys into camps under questionable conditions of training, why are we not willing at much less cost to maintain a service that is worth infinitely more to the country than that sort of whimsical undertaking?

Mr. MEAD. The gentleman is correct in his statement that some of this service will have to be discontinued. In other words, if we reduce the appropriation from $19,000,000 to $15,000,000, the Postmaster General will have to call in the air mail operators and by a voluntary agreement with the operators eliminate a great deal of the service, $4,000,000 worth of the service, which will affect many sections of the country.

Mr. THATCHER. There is no doubt about it.

Are we without hindsight, foresight, or vision? Are we unable to profit by the lessons of the past—the past with its sad and bitter experience? After our entry into the World War, in feverish haste we spent more than a billion dollars for fighting planes; yet the great conflict closed without any fit American planes arriving overseas in time for use by our air forces. In the meantime our brave and skilled soldiers of the air had to fly and fight and go to their inevitable doom in "flying coffins," the culls of the air forces of our allies.

This experience was similar to that which obtained as regards American merchant ships during that dark period. When we went into that conflict we were without merchant vessels to carry our great armies across the seas. Again, in desperate haste and with prodigal expenditure, we undertook to create what we had so long lacked-a merchant marine. We expended more than $3,000,000,000 in the effort to create a merchant marine. Yet the war went on its cruel way to the end, and despite all of our vast outlay and maddened endeavors we were unable to build any ships in time to transport American troops to the shores of Europe. Wooden ships by the hundred were fabricated, and then after the close of the war they were anchored in the estuarial waters of the Nation and there left as rotting derelicts; as mute but eloquent evidences of the dereliction-if I may use the term-of the Nation in dealing with the subject of an American merchant marine.

Because of the lessons thus learned we have sought since the war to create a merchant marine and a system of mail and commercial aviation. But, unfortunately, almost as soon as we set up these great agencies we begin the attempt of tearing them down. Too often it is that the Congress, not content with the exercise of its prescribed legislative functions, undertakes to assume those of an executive character. Manifestly it can not with success assume the administrative rôle.

The gap between the cost of our air mail operations and the postal revenues derived therefrom is gradually closing. In a reasonable time it will substantially close if we may follow a wise and sustained policy. To-day we lead the world in aviation, but we will lose that leadership if we face in the reverse direction. Speaking generally, aviation has come to stay as an agency of progress and civilization. It has come to stay both in peace and war; but in this country, as in all others, during these pioneering years of the industry, a certain amount of governmental aid has been required. In every quarter of the enlightened globe commercial aviation is justifying itself, and everywhere, so far as I am advised, governmental aid is granted. Everywhere it is proving itself to be a great agency of trade and commerce, with vast potential military benefits involved. Only backward nations have failed to keep pace—or "flight"—in this regard. We can not advance by retrogression. Let us not, by any reactionary policy, destroy the great agencies of commerce and trade by air and by sea which we, in recent years, have done so much to create. Let us, instead, address ourselves to the better task of perfecting these systems, of reducing costs by wise and constructive processes. Let us be not guilty of repudiating solemn contractual obligations, created under our own authority and direction. Let us not be guilty of confiscatory practices.

Japan to-day, with her fleets of the air, and without opposing air forces to check her, is able to scatter, as chaff before the wind, the Chinese armies. The Dutch brought to immediate surrender a few days ago, the mutinous crew on one of the Netherlands battleships, by the simplest of attacks from the air. Does not all this argue the wisdom of continuing the policy which has been ours for the building up and the maintenance of our systems of transportation by air and by sea? In the light of our tragic experience of the recent past, we would be justified in continuing these expenditures, even if the protective and defensive features were the only ones involved. But there are, of course, other elements in the situation—those of trade and commerce, which are of a wholly justifying character.

A number of congressional investigations have already been conducted touching these subjects, and much has been expended therefor. House committees have done excellent work in this connection, and constructive suggestions, in consequence have been formulated. It is believed that in due time legislation may be enacted which will have for its purpose and effect the lowering of air mail costs, without injury to those engaged in the business of transporting the mails. But it takes a little time for such matters to work out; and I believe that we should not do violence to the situation by withholding necessary appropriations to meet the air mail needs and the contractual obligations involved.

To-day the hundreds of greatly skilled pilots of our domestic and foreign air mail services constitute one of the greatest forces of protection that we have. In time of war they would prove themselves of priceless value to country and to flag. Destroy our air mail activities and you destroy this invaluable, potential fighting force. If we had to train these men for air military purposes the cost would be many times more than the net cost of our present air mail operations. In addition, the many features of progress continually being evolved in the country's commercial aviation are, of course, utilized in the aviation work of our Army and Navy.

In conference I opposed, also, the abolishing of the Bureau of Efficiency. During my 10 years of service as a member of the Appropriations Committee I know that this agency has performed most excellent work for the committee. I have every reason to believe that it has rendered important service in many other lines of effort. Why should it, alone, of all the agencies of the Government, be singled out for slaughter? What is behind the effort? We are giving the incoming President the fullest power to curtail and eliminate governmental activities. Why can not he be trusted to deal with this particular agency? Why not let him deal with the subject as he is expected to deal with the many others confided to his discretion? Why make fish of one and fowl of all the others? I regard the proposed action as unjust and unjustifiable, and I am unwilling to give it my approval. Hence, in signing the conference report on the Treasury-Post Office Departments appropriation bill, I excepted from my approval the item abolishing the Bureau of Efficiency, and that cutting the domestic air mail appropriation for the ensuing fiscal year by $4,000,000. No one is more eager than I am to effect every possible governmental economy, but I do wish to deal with the subject in the spirit of fair play and justice.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Luplow].

Mr. LUDLOW. Mr. Speaker, before this matter proceeds to a vote I should like to leave with the House just this one thought, and I speak as one who is as much in favor of the maintenance of air mail as any man in this House. We are faced with a condition and not a theory. The issue is very simple: We will either adopt this report or we will defeat the Treasury-Post Office appropriation bill with its very vital and important provisions, among which is the plan to reorganize the Government of the United States and to abolish bureaucracy with its attendant waste.

The issue is too vital, it is too important to leave any doubt in my mind as to what the action of the House will be. The Senate conferees have made it perfectly plain to the conferees representing the House that the Senate will not accept the full amount which the House voted for air mail. The Senate will not vote one single dollar for air mail more than the $15,000,000 carried in this conference report. Therefore, unless we are willing to see our wellmeant plans to reorganize the Government go up in smoke, we must adopt this conference report. There is no other alternative. If more money is absolutely necessary for the air mail it can be taken care of by a deficiency appropriation. The sensible and patriotic thing to do is to adopt this conference agreement and give President-elect Roosevelt the legal machinery he needs to reorganize the Government.

Mr. BYRNS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The conference report was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. Byrns, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was agreed to was laid on the table.

AMENDMENT OF FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

Mr. STEAGALL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 5337, to amend the Federal farm loan act, as amended, to permit loans for additional purposes, to extend the powers of Federal land banks in the making of direct loans, to authorize upon certain terms the reamortization of loans by Federal and joint-stock land banks, and for other purposes, insist on the House amendment, and consent to the conference asked by the Senate.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messis. Steagall, Stevenson, Goldsborough, McFadden, and Strong of Kansas.

WAR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL, FISCAL YEAR 1934

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement may be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 14, 25, 26, 34, and 42.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 2, 3, 4, 13, 17, 19, 20, 28, 38, 39, 44, and 45, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$144,750"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 10: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 10, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended by inserting in lieu of the word "Government," in lines 4 and 5, page 12, of the engrossed bill, the following: "War Department"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 15: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 15, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$5,444,045"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 21: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 21, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert the following: "trucks, including station wagon types and trucks purchased in complete units for experimental purposes: Provided further, That, in addition to the foregoing, completely assembled and equipped motor-propelled trucks, including station wagon types, may be purchased out of this appropriation, and other appropriations for the fiscal year 1934 under the Quartermaster Corps, which may be available for or on account of the maintenance of animals, or for or on account of the purchase, maintenance, and operation of animal-drawn equipment, or for or on account of rail transportation of persons and materials, the cost of any such vehicle so procured not to exceed $750, including the value of any vehicle exchanged"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 24: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 24, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$2,401,870"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 35: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 35, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$3,466,531"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 43: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 43, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: ": Provided further, That hereafter the provisions of section 5 of the Act of July 16, 1914 (U. S. C., title 5, sec. 78), shall be construed as applying to the Corps of Engineers as to the purchase of motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles"; and the Senate agree to the same.

The committee of conference report in disagreement amendments numbered 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 16, 18, 22, 23, 27, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 36, 37, 40, and 41.

Ross A. Collins,
W. C. Wright,
Tilman B. Parks,
Henry E. Barbour,
Frank Clague,
Managers on the part of the House,
David A. Reed,
Hiram Bingham,

Frederick Steiwer,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

DUNCAN U. FLETCHER,

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

On No. 1, relating to contingent expenses of the War Department: Appropriates $144,750, instead of $125,000, as proposed by the House, and $148,000, as proposed by the

On No. 2, relating to the Military Intelligence Division, General Staff Corps: Appropriates $39,990, as proposed by the Senate, instead of $19,990, as proposed by the House.

On No. 3, in connection with the appropriation for the Army War College: Strikes out, as proposed by the Senate, the restriction proposed by the House upon increasing appropriations by transfer.

On No. 4, in connection with the appropriation for welfare of enlisted men: Excepts unobligated balances, as proposed by the Senate, of balances to the credit of certain funds on January 12, 1933, proposed by the House to be deposited in the Treasury as a war-time recreation fund for enlisted men of the Army.

On No. 10: Restores the provision proposed by the House with respect to Army personnel on the active list engaging with publications carrying paid advertising, amended to apply to paid advertising of firms doing business with the War Department instead of with the Government.

On Nos. 13, 14, and 15, relating to clothing and equipage: Provides for the operation of a laundry under construction, as proposed by the Senate, instead of existing laundries only, as proposed by the House; provides for the equipment and repair of equipment of existing dry-cleaning plants, as proposed by the House, instead of such plants existing or under construction, as proposed by the Senate, and appropriates $5,444,045 instead of $5,194,045, as proposed by the House, and $5,694,045, as proposed by the Senate.

On Nos. 17 and 19 to 21, both inclusive, relating to Army transportation: Makes a textual correction, as proposed by the Senate; provides for the purchase of motor cycles, as proposed by the Senate; increases the limitation on the purchase of motor-propelled nonpassenger-carrying vehicles from $150,000, as proposed by the House, to $250,000, as proposed by the Senate, including within such limitation such types of vehicles purchased for experimental purposes, instead of excepting experimental types from such limitation, as proposed by the Senate, and restores the authorization proposed by the House to purchase or exchange trucks, at a cost not to exceed $750 per vehicle, out of savings accruing from the displacement of animals and animal-drawn equipment and from the transportation of persons and materials.

On No. 24: Appropriates for the Signal Service of the Army $2,401,870, instead of $2,381,870, as proposed by the House, and $2,421,517, as proposed by the Senate.

On Nos. 25 and 26, relating to the Air Corps: Appropriates $23,324,185, as proposed by the House, instead of $23,329,185, as proposed by the Senate, and strikes out the specific authorization proposed by the Senate for an expenditure of not exceeding $5,000 for the production of lighter-than-air equipment.

On No. 28, relating to the appropriation Ordnance service and supplies, Army: Strikes out, as proposed by the Senate, the limitation of $750 proposed by the House upon the purchase price of trucks.

On No. 34, relating to the appropriation Arms, uniforms, equipment, etc., for field service, National Guard: Restores the limitation of $750 proposed by the House upon the purchase price of trucks.

On No. 35: Appropriates $3,466,531 for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, instead of $3,354,211, as proposed by the House, and $3,840,211, as proposed by the Senate.

On No. 38: Continues the restriction against depleting reserve supplies or equipment held by the War Department for two field armies or 1,000,000 men, as proposed by the Senate.

On No. 39: Appropriates $125,000 for ordnance equipment for rifle ranges for civilian instruction, as proposed by the Senate, instead of $150,000, as proposed by the House.

On No. 42: Strikes out the appropriation of $5,000 proposed by the Senate for the protection, preservation, repair, and maintenance of historical fortifications at San Juan, Puerto Rico.

On No. 43: Restores the provision proposed by the House requiring the Corps of Engineers to estimate specifically for proposed purchases of motor boats and motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles, amended by exempting motor boats.

On No. 44: Appropriates $30,000 for dredging the channel of Fort Pierce Harbor, Fla., as proposed by the Senate.

On No. 45: Provides that such sum or sums as may be deposited in the Treasury of the United States by the Panama Railroad Co. in augmentation of the appropriation for the maintenance and operation of the Panama Canal shall not be in addition to a dividend of 10 per cent of the capital stock of such company, as proposed by the Senate.

The committee of conference report in disagreement the following amendments:

On No. 5: Impliedly making interest accruals to the new "Recreation fund, Army," subject to withdrawal from the Treasury

On Nos. 6, 7, and 8: Providing for the employment of an additional retired officer on active duty.

On No. 9: Relating to the pay of an officer of the Army who has been convicted of a felony.

On No. 11: Denying retired pay to retired officers having independent incomes in excess of $3,000.

On No. 12: Appropriating $250,000 more than proposed by the House for "Regular supplies of the Army."

On No. 16: Limiting expenditures for the transportation of persons.

On No. 18: Appropriating $525,000 more than proposed by the House for "Army transportation."

On No. 22: Denying the use of any appropriation for any expense incident to the operation of the Fort Benning rail-

On No. 23: Appropriating $83,673 for the purchase of horses and mules.

On No. 27: Appropriating $175,495 more than proposed by the House for "medical and hospital department."

On No. 29: Striking out the limitation proposed by the House on traveling expenses under the appropriation "Ordnance service and supplies, Army."

On No. 30: Striking out the limitation proposed by the House on traveling expenses under the appropriation "Seacoast defenses."

On No. 31: Providing for the employment as a librarian at the Military Academy of a retired officer in an active-duty capacity.

On Nos. 32 and 33: Excepting officers and enlisted men of the National Guard and the adjutants general of the several States, who relinquish any pension, disability allowance, disability compensation, or retired pay they may be receiving, from the prohibition against participating in National Guard appropriations while drawing such emoluments, in lieu of the exemption proposed by the House confined to beneficiaries of the Veterans' Administration having a disability rated 10 per cent or less.

On No. 36: Excluding from participation in the appropriation for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps students not members of Medical Corps, Dental Corps, and Veterinary Corps units on May 5, 1932.

On No. 37: Appropriating $22,000,000 for increasing civilian military training camp activities to include provision for training at least 12 months unemployed boys between 15 and 21 years of age.

On No. 40: Denying credit for other than active commissioned service in the computation of the pay of officers of the Army on the active and retired lists.

On No. 41: Appropriating $27,148 more than proposed by the House for "cemeterial expenses."

ROSS A. COLLINS, W. C. WRIGHT, TILMAN B. PARKS, HENRY E. BARBOUR, FRANK CLAGUE,

Managers on the part of the House.

The conference report was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 5: On page 9, line 2, strike out the words "such funds, including interest accruals" and insert in lieu thereof "the principal sum of such fund."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 5 and concur in the same with an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 5: Mr. Collins moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and concur therein, with the following amendment: On page 8 of the engrossed bill strike out, in lines 21, 22, and 23, the matter reading "which shall draw interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, and such funds, including interest accruals, and insert in lieu thereof."

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will read the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 6: Page 9, line 22, strike out "$2,143" and insert in lieu thereof "$3,810, and the appropriation for pay of the Army, fiscal year 1933, shall be available for the increased pay and allowances of one retired officer on active duty in addition to the two retired officers specified in the War Department act for that fiscal year."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 7: Page 10, line 20, strike out "$128,450,827" and insert in lieu thereof "$128,452,494."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment. The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 8: Page 10, line 24, strike out "$128,165,827" and insert in lieu thereof "$128,167,494."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist upon its disagreement to the Senate amendment. The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 9: Page 11, line 18, strike out "conviction has been confirmed by an appellate court" and insert in lieu thereof "sentence has been finally affirmed."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 9, and concur in the same with the following amendment: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert the following: "conviction has been affirmed by an appellate court, unless approved by the Secretary of War."

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 11: On page 12, strike out the paragraph ending in line 21.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist upon its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a statement to the House. This is the so-called Connery amendment. If the motion that has just been made is adopted, I believe I can say that the House conferees will recede. I think that will be the position of the committee. I have talked to several of them and that seems to be the view of all of those with whom I have talked, and I have talked with a majority of them.

Mr. STAFFORD. Does the gentleman desire to offer a preferential motion to recede and concur?

Mr. COLLINS. No; I do not wish to do that, because the House has already voted on this particular amendment, and in view of that vote the amendment has been brought back here in disagreement; but I may say to the gentleman that if the motion I have just made is voted down, there will be no disposition on the part of the House conferees to further insist upon this amendment.

Mr. STAFFORD. If the gentleman will yield further, the gentleman will remember the conditions attending the adoption which made even the author of the amendment so ashamed that after it was adopted he wanted to raise it to $5,000.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. McSwain].

Mr. McSWAIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to very briefly submit a few considerations to the House in support of the proposition that the three controversial amendments in this bill ought to be voted down and our conferees instructed to insist that the Connery amendment, the Taber amendment, and the so-called Couzens amendment be eliminated from this bill and the bill brought back and passed without these amendments. Now, why? Just because these three amendments invade the legislative functions of the regularly established committees and deal with questions of policy and with nothing but policy.

We need not discuss the Connery amendment in view of what has already been said. We need not take one-half minute in considering that amendment.

Now, with respect to the Taber amendment, when, in 1920, the official personnel of the Army was approximately doubled and recruited from the emergency forces, the National Guard, and the reserve officers, who had helped fight the World War, it was thereafter promised them by the joint pay act of 1922 that they would be paid for the service they had rendered the cause of national defense, even though it was not under a commission in the Regular Army, and men came into our Army in 1920 with this expectation. Although the measure was not enacted into law until 1922, a study of the question was then in progress.

To deny at this late day captains, 50 and 55 years of age, who had been in the service of their country in the National Guard up until 1920, some of them serving in the Spanish-American War and also in the World War, the pay due for their length of service, and now reduce them to pay based merely on rank, and thereby reducing them to pay subordinate to that of younger officers who graduated at the Military Academy at the expense of the Government, who are even 12 or 15 years younger and who have less family obligations, is not fair or right.

I think I can speak for the nearly 6,000 emergency officers who came into the Regular Army on July 1, 1920, in saying that the Taber amendment is not fair and is not just.

Mr. TABER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McSWAIN. I will yield, very briefly, for a question, but not for an argument. I have only five minutes and I have to go on to the Couzens amendment. I hope the gentleman will please excuse me. The gentleman will have his own time.

Mr. TABER. It is more than a question.

Mr. McSWAIN. I was perfectly willing to yield for a question, but not for an argument.

Now, as to the Couzens amendment. I realize that this amendment originates in a sentiment of humanity, predicated upon the idea of doing something for these poor, wandering, homeless boys, but I think it is a mistaken and an unwise measure, and will not result in the benefit that is contemplated, and in many cases will be demoralizing. Why? Because these camps are neither military nor civilian. If you want to inspire a man with the ideals of a soldier, put him under the obligations of a soldier under an enlistment, where he will understand what the duty of a soldier is under his contract of enlistment. Under this amendment you bring him in here under a sort of molly-coddle arrangement where he is just a sort of halfway soldier and can walk out at any time he wants to. He can, at any time, just pack up his clothes and get out from under such discipline. Do you suppose this will inspire discipline? I do not think so, and I do not think any man who has had the experiences of a soldier will believe that this will accomplish the aim that is sought.

So, we are asking the friends of national defense on both sides of the aisle to join in the proposal to wipe all three of these misguided propositions out of this bill. Not a one of them has been studied by the appropriate legislative committee.

Why, last year, I introduced a joint resolution, which would have had the force of law, to do what? To give every honorably discharged soldier who was out of a job, who did not have breakfast or dinner or supper or a place to lay his head at night, the right to go to an Army post and line up with the boys at the post and eat, and then when it came to lying down and sleeping, to lie down in the barracks, if there was room; if there was no room in the barracks, to lie down in the hall; if the hall was filled, to lie down in the warehouse; and if the warehouse was filled, to lie down in the stable. I put in the stable, and do you know what the War Department did? It came forward with a most vigorous and emphatic denial of any such proposition and they said:

The general purport of this bill is to utilize the War Department and its equipment for the care of indigent citizens who were at one time connected with the military service. The basic question of just how far the Government desires to commit itself on such a measure is beyond the scope of our comment or suggestion, but the War Department is opposed to accepting this responsibility.

[Herè the gavel fell.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman one more minute.

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon and Mr. HARLAN rose.

Mr. McSWAIN. Let me finish the reading of this letter. The War Department says it is opposed to accepting obligations other than those now delegated by law and "the proposals of this bill do not fall within the basic mission of the Army."

I yield first to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. I want to ask the gentleman this question: Why does the gentleman hook up the Connery amendment, the Taber amendment, and the Couzens amendment?

Mr. McSWAIN. Because I have a chance to speak only once, and I am speaking against all three of them at one time. I am opposed to all of them.

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Why not let the Members have an opportunity to vote on each proposition?

Mr. McSWAIN. The Members will have an opportunity to vote on each proposition, and I am just expressing myself in advance on all three of them. I do not propose to talk but once. I talk very little, but I try to mean what I say when I do talk.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER].

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, in view of the statement that the gentleman from South Carolina, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, has made with reference to the amendment I introduced, I want to make two or three statements of facts in reference to it.

It is true, that notwithstanding the fact that this proposition was advanced on the floor a year ago, neither the Military Affairs Committee nor the Naval Affairs Committee have had any hearings on it or gone into the question.

The amendment I offered wipes out discriminations in the pay of officers. It does not create discrimination in pay.

There are two types of discrimination as to pay of officers in the Army and the Navy. The first type are those who entered the Military Academy prior to June 1, 1912, who now count the four years they were in the academy toward their longevity pay, and it is computed on that basis. Those who entered after July 1, 1912, are not treated in that way, and are not allowed to count their academy service toward their longevity pay.

The other discrimination is that those who served in the National Guard are permitted to count toward their longevity pay the time they served in the National Guard. Those who served as enlisted men are entitled to count toward their longevity pay the time they served as enlisted men.

As the result of this provision captains are receiving more pay than majors, more pay than lieutenant colonels. Lieutenants are in the same boat. The major in command of captains or lieutenants is receiving less than the captain or the lieutenant under him. Under these circumstances we are in the situation where the office boy is receiving more than the boss.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. Goss].

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, the Taber amendment was advanced as an economy measure, and if the retaining in the Treasury of moneys earned by officers of the Army under a right granted them practically since the establishment of the Government is to be classed as economy, then the amendment will accomplish its purpose. However, is it fair, just, or conscionable, and is it not class legislation to make 5,000 out of a total of 12,000 officers bear the burden of this economy? The amendment will not affect the pay of a single general officer. It will affect only a few colonels and lieutenant colonels, but practically the entire amount must be borne by the majors, captains, and first lieutenants. Some of these officers so affected will lose as much as $160 a month of their pay. The loss, in some cases, including some officers on the retired list, will be 45 per cent of the total compensation now received by them.

Mr. TABER states that his amendment is to discontinue the counting of constructive service for pay purposes, which term is a misnomer. Officers do not draw pay for constructive service. They draw pay for actual service. Some of such service is actual enlisted service on the basis of the actual years served on active duty. Other parts of it are for National Guard service actually served in the National Guard, but inasmuch as it was not Federal service only 75 per cent of such service is counted for pay purposes. Another part of this so-called constructive service is for service in the organized reserves, of which only 50 per cent is counted for pay purposes, and the remainder is for service as cadets at West Point prior to 1916. It is, therefore, apparent that the Taber amendment does not affect constructive service, for none exists, but does affect actual service, for which proper credit is granted. Those officers who entered the service since 1922 may only count actual commissioned service, and they knew when they entered the service that such would be the case. On the other hand, the officers affected by the Taber amendment knew when they accepted their commissions in the Army that the service now in dispute would be allowed them as part of their contract. The Taber amendment is, therefore, a repudiation of that contract and, in effect, is retroactive in that it deprives officers of service acquired as a right prior to 1922.

All National Guard and reserve officers who are giving so freely of their time and intelligent patriotic effort to-day to perfect themselves for their military duties in time of war will, under this amendment, when called to active duty, lose all credit for their intensive peace-time effort and be forced to begin at the lowest pay provided for their grade.

Mr. Taber, in his discussion of this amendment, stated that an officer three and four grades below another officer might draw more than the first officer under existing pay laws, and draws from this statement the conclusion that the cause of this inequality in pay is brought about by the counting of so-called constructive service which his amendment will hereafter prohibit. His real fight is not against the counting of this service, which has been part of the pay of officers for years, but against the pay law of 1922. The differences of which he speaks are not entirely due to the base and longevity pay of officers, but in part to combined pay and allowances. These allowances-rental and subsistence-differ when one officer is married and another officer is single. That is, an officer of high rank, who is single, may draw less pay than a married officer of lower rank, mainly because of the fact that the allowances for a married officer are greater than those for a single officer. This condition is the result of the pay act of 1922, and if that act is wrong, then proper hearings should be held with a view to enacting a new pay act.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Hill].

Mr. HILL of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, there has been some discussion of the Connery amendment, the Taber amendment, and the Couzens amendment. What the House ought to have really in mind is that the amendment we are going to vote on next is the so-called Connery amendment.

Mr. CONNERY. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HILL of Alabama. I yield.

Mr. CONNERY. I hope the House will vote down that amendment. [Applause.]

Mr. HILL of Alabama. I hope the House will vote it down.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Mississippi that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment.

The question was taken, and the motion was rejected.

Mr. STAFFORD. If the chairman is not going to make the motion to recede and concur, I will make it.

Mr. COLLINS. I have stated to the House that whether we voted up the motion to recede and concur or not the House conferees would do that. However, I move, Mr. Speaker, that the House recede and concur, although I think it is unnecessary.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 12: Page 18, line 7, strike out "$2,671,465" and insert "$2,921,465."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist on the disagreement.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 16: Page 21, line 10, strike out the following language: "Provided further, That not to exceed $2,522,880 shall be available for expenditure for or on account of the transportation of persons pursuant to the provisions of this appropriation."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to recede and concur with an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Collins moves that the House recede from its disagreement to amendment No. 16 and concur therein with the following amendment:

Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended by inserting in lieu of the amount named therein the following: "$2,700,000."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Mississippi to recede and concur with an amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 18: Page 22, line 9, strike out "$11,106,745" and insert in lieu thereof "$11,631,745."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that amendment No. 22 be considered before amendment No. 18, because No. 18 carries only money and is tied up with No. 22. Whatever action the House takes on No. 22 controls its action on No. 18.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report amedment No. 22.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 22: Page 23, in line 23, after the word "transfer," strike out "Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this act shall be available for any expense incident to the operation of the Fort Benning Railroad."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, on amendment numbered 18, I move to recede and concur with an amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Collins moves that the House recede from its disagreement to amendment No. 18 and concur in the same with the following amendment: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$11,383,865."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Mississippi.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 23: Page 24, beginning in line 10, strike out the language "for encouragement in the breeding of riding horses suitable for the Army, in cooperation with the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, including the purchase of animals for breeding purposes and their maintenance, $118,827"

"For the purchase of draft and pack animals and horses within limits as to age, sex, and size to be prescribed by the Secretary of War for remounts for officers entitled to public mounts, for the United States Military Academy, and for such organizations and members of the military service as may be required to be mounted, and for all expenses incident to such purchases (including $120,000 for encouragement of the breeding of riding horses suitable for the Army, in cooperation with the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, including the purchase of animals for breeding purposes and their maintenance), $202,500."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 27: Page 38, line 6, strike out "$1,095,976" and insert "$1,271,471."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist on the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 29: Page 40, line 25, strike out "expenses not to exceed $26,981" and insert in lieu thereof the word "expenses."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 30: Page 45, line 4, after the words "in all," strike out "including not to exceed $3,320 in the aggregate for traveling expenses."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 31: Page 45, line 12, after the word "Academy," insert a colon and the following: "Provided, That the duties of librarian of the United States Military Academy may be performed by an officer of the Regular Army retired from active service under the provisions of section 1251, Revised Statutes, and detailed on active duty for the purpose." active duty for that purpose."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 32: Page 48, line 20, after the word "States," insert "Provided, That nothing in this provision shall be so construed as to prevent the application of funds herein contained to the pay, allowances, or traveling expenses of any officer or enlisted man of the National Guard who may surrender said pension, disability allowance, disability compensation, or retired pay for the period of his service in the National Guard: Provided further, That present adjutants general who may be drawing such emoluments may be continued in a federally recognized status without pay under this act."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to recede and concur. Mr. HILL of Alabama. What is the effect of this Senate amendment so far as the adjutants general are concerned?

Mr. COLLINS. It is to deny them any pay whatever which they have been receiving from the Federal Government.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. They would then get their pay from the several States?

Mr. COLLINS. They would then get their pay from the several States.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. And would get none under this act?

Mr. COLLINS. Would get none whatever from the Federal Government.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Mississippi.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 33: On page 49, in line 4, strike out "for a disability rated by the Veterans' Administration in excess of 10 per cent.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to recede and concur in the Senate amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 36: On page 57, in line 19, after the word "Air," strike out the words "Corps, Medical Corps, Dental Corps, or Veterinary" and insert in lieu thereof the words "Corps."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 37: On page 59, in line 22, strike out "$2,500,000" and insert "$24,500,000, of which $22,000,000 (of which $5,000,000 shall be immediately available) shall be available only for camps of at least 12 months' duration in which applicants are accepted only if over 15 years and under 21 years of age and if unemployed at the time of application and for six months previous thereto."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move to further insist upon the disagreement of the House.

Mr. BARBOUR. Mr. Speaker, I move to recede and concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment, which I have sent to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Barbour moves that the House recede from its disagreement to Senate amendment No. 37 and concur therein with the following amendment:

Strike out "$24,500,000" and insert "$12,500,000"; and strike out "$22,000,000" and insert "$10,000,000"; and, on page 59, line 25, strike out "15" and insert "17."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. BARBOUR].

Mr. BARBOUR. Mr. Speaker, as was suggested by the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. Parks], this is perhaps one of the most important, if not the most important amendment in this bill. Perhaps everyone here is familiar with the provisions of the amendment. It is known as the Couzens amendment and was offered in the Senate. You will perhaps recall that when this bill was before the House I offered an amendment to incorporate in the bill an appropriation of $2,500,000 for citizens' military training camps, and to give preference in the selection of trainees for those camps to young men who were unemployed, or the heads of whose families were unemployed. It was an attempt to do something in this bill for a large number of unemployed young men who are homeless and wandering about the country, hitch-hiking on the highways, riding on freight trains, and wandering from place to place, with nothing to occupy their attention, who are to-day perhaps one of the most serious problems that confront the people of this

It has been said that this is a military bill and that this amendment proposes to grant relief to a certain number of the people in this country who are destitute and in need of relief, and it should not be done in this bill, but that it should be done in a relief bill. I want to say in reply to that that this is the first concrete, definite proposal that has come before this session of Congress to grant direct relief to the people of this country who need relief, and as far as I am concerned, I do not care whether it is on a military bill or on a post office bill or an agriculture bill, if it grants relief that is needed I am for granting that relief. [Applause.]

My amendment proposes, first, to reduce the amount that was incorporated in the bill by the Senate from $24,500,000 to $12,500,000. I do that for this reason: It is not known how much money will be required to maintain these camps for young men who are out of employment, and that matter can perhaps be better determined after the camps get into operation. This estimate, I believe, is rather large in the Senate amendment. Therefore, I am proposing the reduction, having in mind that Congress will be in session after the 15th day of April, if not before that time, and if more money is needed to carry on this relief, the Congress will be here and can make provision for any necessary sum that may be required.

Mr. BLANTON. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BARBOUR. I yield.

Mr. BLANTON. In other words, the amendment offered by the gentleman from California will add $10,000,000 to the bill, more than it contained when it passed the House?

Mr. BARBOUR. The amendment of the gentleman from California will add $10,000,000 to the bill, but for the purpose-

Mr. BLANTON. Then, with his other amendments for which the gentleman secured passage, adding nearly $3,000,000, the gentleman from California alone would be adding about $13,000,000 to this bill?

Mr. BARBOUR. Well, the gentleman has gone back into ancient history. We did add $2,500,000 for the citizens' military training camps by a large vote of the House, but this $10,000,000 is not for military purposes. This is for direct relief to a portion of the needy of this country and it is the only direct relief that this session of Congress will grant, if it grants it.

Mr. BLANTON. I am afraid it will ruin about eighty thousand 15-year-old boys.

Mr. BARBOUR. The gentleman should not worry about that. Let me say that the Army will be in charge of these young men. They will be brought in. They will be given a certain amount of military training.

Mr. BLANTON. In my judgment this Couzens amendment put on this bill in the Senate appropriating an additional $22,000,000 will not only waste this $22,000,000 of money out of the people's Treasury, but through bad habits picked up around an Army camp will demoralize every one of the 88,000 boys from 15 years to 21 years of age taken from their home influence.

Mr. BARBOUR. I can not yield further.

Mr. BLANTON. They will be taught to shoot craps all They will become adepts at all kinds of gambling.

Mr. BARBOUR. Well, if they do, they will not be the only young men in the country who know how to shoot craps. They will be given a certain amount of military training. Their time will be occupied. They will be taught citizenship and they will be taught, to the extent that the Army can do it and that is to a considerable extent, vocational training.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. BARBOUR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield me five additional minutes.

Mr. COLLINS. I yield the gentleman five additional minutes.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. BARBOUR. I first desire to yield to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. McGugin].

Mr. McGUGIN. What will be the status of these young men? Will they be in the Army or not?

Mr. BARBOUR. They will not be in the Army any more than those attending citizens' military training camps are in the Army.

Mr. McGUGIN. Will they be subject to military disci-

Mr. BARBOUR. They will be subject to military discipline

Mr. McGUGIN. This bill does not say so, does it? Mr. BARBOUR. That can be worked out under regulations of the War Department, because the national defense act gives the Secretary of War the authority to regulate and control these citizens' military training camps.

Mr. BLANTON. Suppose they get hurt or sick, will they

Mr. BARBOUR. They will not draw pensions. Mr. BLANTON. Suppose they get hurt. Does not the gentleman know that the Government will be called upon to pay for it. When the Government takes 15-year-old boys away from home, it becomes the guardian of such boys and becomes responsible for them. And if they contract some disease from which they suffer complications later on in life, they will demand pensions, and the Congress will allow same. We must save this $22,000,000. And we must save these 15year-old boys and keep them clean.

Mr. BEEDY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARBOUR. I yield.

Mr. BEEDY. These men will not be in the Army and they will be under no obligation to bear arms even in the event of war.

Mr. BARBOUR. Absolutely none.

Mr. BEEDY. They will be subject to the requirements now necessary to obtain admission to citizens' military training camps. Tramps can not get in; the rabble can not get in.

Mr. BARBOUR. This plan offers these young men something to keep them occupied during this abnormal condition of the country.

Mr. ANDREW of Massachusetts. What reason is there to believe that young fellows will not be lured from homes and schools by the possibility of adventure in a camp of this kind?

Mr. BARBOUR. I may say to the gentleman from Massachusetts that a lot of objections or possible objections might be conjured up here, but I am relying on the War Department to handle this and handle it right and properly in the interests of the Government just as much as they will in the interest of the young men.

Mr. ANDREW of Massachusetts. I am not caring so much about the interests of the Government, but the call of adventure is strong in boys, and it is natural to suppose they will be lured by the opportunity of attending these camps.

Mr. BARBOUR. I believe that can be left to the discretion and control of the War Department, or if this goes back to conference special provisions can then be written in.

My amendment goes only to the high points of the socalled Couzens amendment. The conferees can work out additional regulations or control provisions.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARBOUR. I yield.

Mr. STAFFORD. My objection to the amendment of the gentleman is that it leaves to any boy the opportunity to leave the camp when he will. I would like to see these young men unemployed to-day given the opportunity to receive military instruction for at least six months. The gentleman's amendment does not provide for that. It would allow any young man to take a trip at Government expense, stay a week or two, and then leave.

Mr. BARBOUR. That can all be controlled by regulations of the War Department when these camps are put into operation. Or when this amendment goes back to conference the conferees can write in those minor provisions to develop the plan more in detail. My purpose is to get before the House the main question involved in the principle of the Couzens amendment and let the House adopt it if it will. These minor matters can be easily taken care of.

Mr. STAFFORD. If the gentleman would give us assurance that these boys would be there for not less than six months, I would subscribe to it.

Mr. BARBOUR. I may say to the gentleman that 6 months may be too long, that 5 months, or 4 months, or even some other period might be sufficient. That can be provided for by regulations.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARBOUR. I yield.

Mr. BANKHEAD. How many of these rambling young gentlemen will this appropriation suggested by the gentleman provide for?

Mr. BARBOUR. It was stated in the Senate that the Couzens amendment-

Mr. BANKHEAD. I mean in its present form.

Mr. BARBOUR. I am trying to answer the gentleman. It was stated in the Senate that the Couzens amendment would provide for something like 88,000 boys. The statement was made in the Senate that the Couzens amendment of $22,500,000 would take care of 88,000 young men. My amendment is about half that. Therefore, I would estimate that it would take care of half of the number; but the estimate of the amount necessary was rather hurriedly drawn. There was nothing to base it on and, as I stated a few moments ago, Congress will be in session after the 15th of April, and if this plan works out as it is expected it will work out and it proves to be a good thing and Congress wishes to appropriate more money, Congress will be here to Mr. BANKHEAD. Will the gentleman yield for a further question?

Mr. BARBOUR. Certainly.

Mr. BANKHEAD. I understand it is estimated there are 250,000 or 300,000 of these youngsters rambling all over the country. What does the gentleman intend to do as to the large number of other boys not provided for in this bill?

Mr. BARBOUR. I may say to the gentleman from Alabama that that, of course, is entirely a matter of conjecture. I do not believe any count has ever been made.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Can you conscript these boys, or do they have to volunteer?

Mr. BARBOUR. They have to volunteer.

Mr. BANKHEAD. How can you keep them in camp when they volunteer and after you equip them with a uniform?

Mr. BARBOUR. When they enter the camps they will be subject to discipline.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Not under this amendment. There is no law to require it.

Mr. BARBOUR. As I said a moment ago, the national defense act gives to the Secretary of War full power to prescribe rules and regulations.

Mr. McSWAIN. It does not give them any power to enlist them for less than one year.

Mr. BARBOUR. How about the citizens' military training camps that are carried on for 30 days? These camps would be similar to those.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. O'CONNOR].

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, I claim to know very little about the Military Establishment of this Government and have paid very little attention to the appropriations for the military or naval branch of the Government, but I believe this proposal which I have been observing for some time is one of the most dangerous propositions ever advanced in the history of our country.

I believe that in the establishment of these camps we are embarking on something that, to a lot of people, means war, that is all. In great times of depression other countries have endeavored to find a job as a soldier for their unemployed. Why does not this House adopt a public building program and give civilian jobs to the unemployed as far as we can? Why do we not, before the fall of the gavel on next Saturday, pass the Wagner bill for relief to the cities and the communities dealing with their people.

I now want to read you what the major general of the National Guard in New York, that distinguished soldier, William N. Haskell, has to say about this proposition:

From experience with refugee, destitute, and migrating populations, as allied high commissioner in Armenia, director of American relief in Russia and Rumania, and as Red Cross commissioner in Greece, handling Smyrna refugees, also as recent chairman of mayor's committee for relief in New York, I urge defeat of the Couzens amendment to the Army bill. Such a method of attemptcouzens amendment to the Army oill. Such a method of attempting to solve the problem of vagrant boys is positively wrong, a foolish waste of money, and will aggravate the situation by inviting more boys to leave home communities where they should be encouraged to stay or return. The proposition is full of dynamite in 100 ways for the present and the future. If only the Members of Congress had had my experience on this very problem I am sure the amendment would be overwhelmingly beaten.

[Applause.]

Let me now say this. I can picture these camps, and I can imagine that the boys there will not be singing Over There and they will not be singing Tipperary; their favorite tune will be Hallelujah, I'm a Bum Again. [Laughter and applause.1

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Connery].

Mr. CONNERY. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the Couzens amendment, and I do not agree with my friend from New York [Mr. O'CONNOR] that these young men ought to stay at home in their home towns-stay home and starve! Is that what you want them to do?

Reference has been made to the Wagner bill. Why, we all know we are not going to get a chance to vote for the Wagner bill between now and Saturday noon. If we were, I would certainly favor the Wagner bill, and then we might not need this, the Couzens amendment.

If instead of passing out millions to the banks of the United States and then seeing them go broke we would take care of some of the people who are hungry, some of the young citizens of the country, some of the young men between the ages of 15 and 21 who are future citizens of the United States, we would be doing the country a real service.

We send men to jail for breaking the laws, but we feed them and take care of them. They have a good place to sleep and good food; but now we have some 200,000 young men in the United States who are not criminals but American citizens to whom we will not give a job, who have nothing to eat, who are living with their families, who likewise have no jobs, and when it is suggested that we do something for them we hear it said, "Oh, no; we can not give them anything."

The gentleman from New York says they will be singing Hallelujah, I'm a Bum. Well, if we do not look into this situation pretty soon and remedy these conditions the whole Nation, with the exception of a few multimillionaires, will be singing Hallelujah, I'm a Bum, and they will sing truly. These young men who are to be taken care of by the Couzens amendment are not bums. They are young Americans and will be a credit to the Army of the United States.

Mr. BARBOUR. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONNERY. Yes.
Mr. BARBOUR. I may say to the gentleman that while the Army is not advocating this, I understand they will be very glad to undertake this task.

Mr. CONNERY. Yes. They will be giving training to young Americans and in doing this work they should be glad to teach them the lessons of patriotism learned in such camps.

Mr. BARBOUR. Absolutely.

Mr. CONNERY. I hope that the amendment of the gentleman from California will be voted down. I hope the motion of the chairman of the subcommittee will be voted down and the House will accept the Couzens amendment for $22,000,000.

Mrs. ROGERS. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. CONNERY. I yield to my distinguished colleague from Massachusetts.

Mrs. ROGERS. Does not the gentleman think it would be a wise plan to have these training camps called emergency citizens' military training camps, rather than just citizens' military training camps, to differentiate between these camps and the summer training camps? These must not be considered of a permanent nature.

Mr. CONNERY. I think that would be a good idea.
Mrs. ROGERS. Because some of these men may be compelled to go home before their time is up, and we do not want any disgrace attached to them in that event, as you know the boys consider it a disgrace to be sent home before their training is up.

Mr. CONNERY. I will say to my distinguished colleague from Massachusetts, I do not care what they call them, as long as they take care of these men, give them a bed to sleep in and something to eat. They can not get work, they can not get food, and to have thousands roaming the country in such a state of mind is not a healthy condition for our country.

If we do not wake up to the need of remedying these evil conditions and realize that something must be done in this emergency, in the next few years we will have real trouble on our hands from within and not without the United States, and it will not come from communists either, but from American citizens, hungry men and women, who are wondering why in this land of the free they can not get work.

Mr. COLLINS and Mr. STAFFORD rose.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. McGugin].

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment to the Barbour amendment, after the word-

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. WOODRUM). The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Collins] has control of the floor.

Mr. COLLINS. I do not yield to the gentleman for that purpose, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, a motion to recede and concur with an amendment is preferential.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is correct.

Mr. STAFFORD. And an amendment to the amendment is in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Not unless the gentleman from Mississippi yields to the gentleman for the purpose of offering the amendment.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. McGugin].

Mr. McGUGIN. Mr. Speaker, as a relief measure, it seems to me this provision is the most impossible of anything that has been presented in either session of the Seventy-second

Mr. Speaker, we can not defend this proposition from the standpoint of relief, or from the standpoint of the Army. In the first place, it will demoralize the Army-taking young men into Army posts with their right to walk out the next minute and come back the next is destructive of Army morale.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McGUGIN. I yield.

Mr. STAFFORD. I may say that this is not a proposition to have the boys go to Army posts but to concentrate them in military training camps.

Mr. McGUGIN. All right. What are we doing?

We are erecting clubs all over the country for young men when men with families and other people are in dire distress.

Let us see what it is going to cost. On the basis of 88,000 men, if we appropriate $24,500,000—the Couzens amount—that is $278 per boy. The other day I heard some one take exception to the fact that one Chicago Congressman was supposed to have gone to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and asked for $200 for each and every unemployed man in the United States. Here it is proposed to take $278 for one boy.

Mr. McSWAIN. And $278 would feed a man and his family.

Mr. McGUGIN. Down in my country $5 a week is being used as relief to feed a family. Here you take $278 as a starter for each boy. All there is to this proposition is that it is an obsession of a certain gentleman from Michigan, and I am not willing to waste $24,500,000 to gratify his hobby, although he may be a man of high estate in American political life.

This is not a relief proposition; it is simply Congress going wild. If we pass this Couzens amendment or the Barbour amendment, it will not be relief or national defense or anything else, except merely clubhouses over the country for boys. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Stokes].

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Speaker, I have been interested in boys' clubs for a long time in the city of Philadelphia, but I do not believe that this is a matter for the Federal Government to start in with. We have now trouble enough without going into the establishment of boys' clubs.

Another thing, we have not got the money; look at the Federal Treasury. Is it fair to promise to give money when we have not got it? I am strongly opposed to this amendment, and I hope that the House will vote it down. I do not think we should vote one penny more than we are obliged to, taking into account the condition of the Federal Treasury.

I believe this is a matter for the States to attend to and not the Federal Government. [Applause.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HOLADAY].

Mr. HOLADAY. Mr. Speaker, I consider this purely a relief question without any military bearing. This is a proposition attempting to help young unemployed men. I believe it is an unwise move. Let me give you a personal experience.

A day or two ago I received a letter signed by a young man, saying that he read in the paper that they were going to establish these camps, and he wished I would use my influence to get him and three other boys into a camp, because, having no job, next summer they thought it would be a fine thing to be in a camp. The young man writing that letter was my own son. Such a proposal is an open invitation to all the young boys in this country who have homes and who can stay at home to leave home and go out and get in one of the camps. Further, my boy put a postcript to the letter in which he asks me to have them locate the camp close to water because he likes to swim. [Laughter.] Even if you put those boys in camps and gave them the best training and discipline possible, it is much better for 95 per cent of the boys to be at home than in camp even under those conditions. think it is a mistake. As I say, it is simply an open invitation to entice young men and boys from all over the country into these camps, away from home, and will simply add to the number of boys who are leaving home and wandering around the country. The whole proposition should be taken out of the bill.

Mr. KLEBERG. Does not the gentleman feel sure that the floating class of boys going around the country to-day are not willing to give up the liberty they already have and go to these camps? It would simply make other boys anxious to get away from home and to go into them.

Mr. HOLADAY. I think the gentleman is right. I believe the boys floating around, the ones that are the greatest menace to the country, will not want to go into these camps, especially if you have discipline, and you must have discipline. They can leave any time they wish; and if they undertake to enforce discipline, these young men will pull out and leave. You are not doing anything for the boys that are homeless, and you will simply be adding thousands to the boys who will leave home and wander about the country.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. MARTIN].

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I suppose some of the rest of you have been approached as I have, with the idea that all three amendments, the Connery amendment, the Taber amendment, and the Couzens amendment, should go out. Well, we have the Taber amendment and the Couzens amendment already out. It is not necessary for any trade. We have them killed anyway; we had them killed before this thing came up. Let us decide each amendment on its merits.

Mr. CONNERY. The Taber amendment is not out yet.
Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Oh, yes, it is. It is dead as a doornail. You need not worry about that. That amendment died when the Navy bill came up. You can not make flesh of one and fish of another. Mr. Taber gave it up with reference to the Navy officers, and he can not insist upon it with Army officers.

Mr. TABER. The gentleman knows that some members of the Military and Naval Affairs Committees are going to meet their responsibilities and not dodge them.

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Well, that kills it, anyway, so there is no use of hooking up the three as the Three Musketeers. Let us vote on each one, on its merits. So far as the Couzens amendment is concerned, we have had these citizens' military training camps in this country for 10 years, and I am astounded at my distinguished friend from Texas [Mr. Blanton] making the remark he did, that they are just creating crap-shooting camps.

Mr. BLANTON. Why, is there never any crap-shooting in the Army?

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Those camps are the greatest nationalistic movement that has been going on in this country for the last 10 years. We do more for the youth of this land in those camps than in any other way. We are trying to put some discipline into the youth of the land that they no longer get at home. I can not think of a finer thing that can be done to young men in the adolescent age than to give them a bath and have their hair cut and make them stand up and click their heels together and have some respect for authority and some respect for the flag.

And possibly if you could get some respect in that way, you would have some respect for yourselves. When these training camps were started, the program then was for 100,000 boys a year in them.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Oregon has expired.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Huddleston].

Mr. HUDDLESTON. Mr. Speaker, I was the first in the House to advocate Federal relief for the needy and distressed. My efforts were defeated by the cry of dole. Yet now it is proposed to grant a dole to a particular group.

This proposal is utterly unworkable and indefensible from the standpoint of practicability. I prefer, however, to oppose it from the standpoint of fairness and justice.

It selects for relief young men between 15 and 21 years of age, a class with the least responsibility, the smallest needs, and with the greatest capacity to care for themselves. It proposes to give them the benefit of direct Federal relief.

to the exclusion of the old, the crippled, the helpless, the incompetent, and the women and the children. Who will dare to defend a vote to care for at a Federal institution only young, the strong, and the able-bodied, and to ignore the sufferings of the helpless women and the little children. If we are to care for any group, then let the women and children and the helpless come first. [Applause.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. Goss].

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think there is a Member on the floor of the House within the hearing of my voice who does not know where I stand on national defense. I can not vote for this amendment. To my mind, it is not a question of national defense. Last year I went down to the War Department and studied the Curry bill. I wanted to see some legislation come out after due deliberation and hearings in connection with this very subject.

I found at that time we could take 220,000 ex-service men in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, and still be within the limits of the national defense act, costing about $100,-000,000. This bill, I understand, would encamp around 88,000 boys, yet it will not train them. There is nothing in the bill that puts it in the classification as citizens' military training camps. This is merely a relief question. The other day when the chairman of the Military Affairs Committee [Mr. McSwain] and other Members were appealed to, we as a body went before the Committee on Rules, asking that the rule not be granted making in order the new legislation with regard to flying pay. I have spoken many times on the floor about this matter of the Committee on Appropriations usurping the powers of our legislative committees. Now the committee has taken a stand on this matter, and it will continue from this time on, and we will fight every matter of legislation coming from the Committee on Appropriations to see that that committee does not usurp the powers of the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Speaker, this amendment has been put in on the floor of the Senate, with no hearings, no time to discuss or debate the matter. It has never been referred to a legislative committee, and I join with those who would like to see our national defense act lived up to. We are shy perhaps 200,000 men in the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps; but we can not go about it in this way. This is purely a relief matter and nothing else. [Applause.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. Goss] has expired.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. WRIGHT].

Mr. WRIGHT. Mr. Speaker, in common with all Members, I have great sympathy for boys between the ages of 15 and 21 who are out of employment, who are penniless, who have no means of support and have no parents to take care of them; but the trouble about this provision is that while it is offered as a relief measure, under the wording of the Couzens amendment it could include the richest boy in the United States. He would be eligible for these 12 months' camps

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WRIGHT. Yes. I yield.

Mr. STAFFORD. He has to be out of work before he can go to the camp. He has to be out of work for six months.

Mr. WRIGHT. Yes; but he could have a pocketful of money. All the requirements are that the boy shall be as much as 15 years and not over 21 years old and must have been out of employment for six months. That could embrace the richest boys in the United States. They would be eligible for this.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield further?

Mr. WRIGHT. Certainly.

Mr. STAFFORD. It would not do the rich boys any harm to have some military training.

Mr. WRIGHT. But they do not get it under the provisions of this amendment. The trouble is there is no discipline authorized here for the citizens' military training camps.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Georgia has expired.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. French].

Mr. FRENCH. Mr. Speaker, the Barbour amendment provides for appropriating $10,000,000. The Couzens amendment provides for $22,000,000, and I am opposed to either or both of them. They provide for setting up military training camps that will accommodate for 12 months some 85,000 boys between the ages of 15 and 21 years, and who have been out of employment for a period of six months. The proposed program would mean about $250 per boy. I honor the humanitarian spirit of the distinguished Senator and of our colleague [Mr. Barbour] who sponsor the amendments, but it is my sound judgment that they would not accomplish that for which they are designed.

I am opposed to the program because I am interested in the highest welfare of the young boys of the United States. Those of you who a few minutes ago looked up into the gallery of this Chamber at my right saw it filled with fine girls and boys. The group has just gone, but it is the type of youth that is representative of every section of the United States and upon whom and others like them our civilization depends.

Under the terms of the amendment these 85,000 boys would be gathered into training camps. Fine physicial exercises and certain helpful discipline would be had. The spirit of love of country would be instilled. All these are good; but unless something other than is set forth were accomplished—something that camps are not able to provide these young men, clothed, fed would not have been given those courses and that experience that at the end of 12 months would make them better able to fit into the problems of life, in all likelihood, than they were at the time they entered. They would not have had the hard and fine experience of self-reliance which rugged youth in other times of crises went through and which made them strong and rugged men. They would go away from camps improved in many ways no doubt, and more sophisticated than when they entered, but I do not believe they would better fit into the problems of life. They would not more easily find a place. They would want something more to be done for them.

But, Mr. Speaker, I am thinking of another million or two million boys throughout the United States who would not be permitted to enter, boys who would want to follow in the steps of the first 85,000. Boys love adventure. There is hardly a boy in the United States who would not freely give up one year in high school or sign away several years of life for an opportunity of being in a camp with Army officers about. There is something magic about it. These boys will ask for the same treatment. There is in the United States to-day an organization laboring for these boys. It is under the management of a devoted committee known as the National Committee on Care of the Transient and Homeless.

This committee is opposed to the program brought forward here and is quoted in the press as having said but recently:

The number of boys now in communities who might become transients must not be increased by any alluring national-camp plans.

This question is one that must be approached from the standpoint of the local community.

Ladies and gentlemen, I am thinking of this question from the standpoint of preparing the boys of our land for the problems that are in front of them; and in that respect I want to tell you the plan proposed does not meet the situation. Even though times be hard and disturbed in our country, the best place for boys of this age, the best community, is the home community. The best roof that boys can have is the home roof. The amendments ought to fail. [Applause.]

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the pending motion.

The previous question was ordered.

motion of the gentleman from California to recede and concur with an amendment.

The motion to recede and concur with an amendment was

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question recurs on the motion of the gentleman from Mississippi that the House insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Stafford) there were-ayes 165, noes 31.

So the motion to further insist on its disagreement to the Senate amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 40: Page 63, after line 3, strike out lines 4 to

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and concur in the same.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 41: Page 65, line 1, strike out "$820,795" and insert in lieu thereof "$847,943."

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist upon its disagreement to the Senate amendment. The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House insist upon its disagreement to the Senate amendments and ask for a further conference.

The motion was agreed to.

The Chair appointed the following conferees: Messrs. COLLINS, WRIGHT, PARKS, BARBOUR, and CLAGUE.

INDEPENDENT OFFICES APPROPRIATION BILL, FISCAL YEAR 1934

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 14458) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14458) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendment numbered 4. That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, and 10, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 7: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 7. and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment insert the following: "$780,000, of which $280,000 shall be available for the completion of the public utilities investigations undertaken pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 83, Seventieth Congress"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 9: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 9. and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$800,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 11: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered | the Federal Trade Commission.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the | 11, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$1,003,159,779"; and the Senate agree to the same.

C. A. WOODRUM, JOHN J. BOYLAN, JOHN W. SUMMERS, Managers on the part of the House. REED SMOOT. FREDERICK HALE, HENRY W. KEYES, CARTER GLASS.

ROYAL S. COPELAND, Managers on the part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14458) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

AMENDMENTS ADJUSTING TOTALS AND CORRECTING CITATIONS AND TRANSPOSITIONS OF LANGUAGE

Recommendations in the accompanying report as to the following amendments are for the purpose of adjusting totals to conform to the action of the conferees on the controlling amendments and correcting citations and transpositions of language: 3, 5, 6, 9, 10, and 11.

SECRETARIES TO THE PRESIDENT

On Nos. 1 and 2: Appropriates $114,665, as provided by the Senate, instead of $115,665, as provided by the House, for personal services in the office of the President, and provides for two assistant secretaries to the President, at $9,500 each, as proposed by the Senate, instead of two additional secretaries to the President at $10,000 each, as proposed by the House.

BUREAU OF EFFICIENCY

On No. 4: Restores the language, stricken out by the Senate, providing appropriations totaling $146,298 for the Bureau of Efficiency.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

On No. 7: Appropriates $780,000, instead of $500,000 as proposed by the House and $1,081,500 as proposed by the Senate, for the general expenses of the Federal Trade Commission and retains the Senate language which provides that $280,000 of the appropriation shall be available for the completion of the public-utilities investigations undertaken pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 83, Seventieth Congress.

On No. 8: Appropriates $20,000, as proposed by the Scnate, instead of $10,000, as proposed by the House, for printing and binding for the Federal Trade Commission.

C. A. WOODRUM, JOHN J. BOYLAN. JOHN W. SUMMERS, Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 10 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, this is the independent offices appropriation bill conference report, and I should like to make a brief statement as to its status in order that the House may understand it before I make a motion to dispose of the matter.

There is practically only one proposition in disagreement between the two bodies, and that is the appropriation for

The Senate amendments, several of them in number, consist largely of typographical corrections and the corrections of totals, and one amendment withdrawing the appropriation from the Bureau of Efficiency. The conference report rejected a Senate amendment, withdrawing the appropriation for the Bureau of Efficiency, but since that time the House to-day has adopted the conference report on the Post Office-Treasury bill which disposes of the Bureau of Efficiency. So that is no longer an item in disagreement on this matter, and the House can now eliminate the appropriation for that bureau.

The only item in disagreement is the appropriation by the Federal Trade Commission. The Senate unanimously refused to accept the conference report on that and the bill now is at a deadlock on this item. This, briefly, is the situation on this item: The Bureau of the Budget recommended $1,089,550, plus $20,000 for printing and binding, for the Federal Trade Commission for 1934. The Committee on Appropriations cut that to $510,000. Personally I felt the cut was too much. It will be remembered that the House endeavored to adopt the Bankhead amendment raising that to $780,000, for which I voted; but on a record vote that failed. So the bill went to the Senate with the $510,000 for the Federal Trade Commission.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations raised this amount to $780,000, which was the amount recommended in the Bankhead amendment, which, however, failed of passage in the House.

The conferees agreed to accept the $780,000 and the bill went to the Senate in that form. The Senate adopted an amendment raising the amount to $1,081,500, practically the original Budget estimate; and when the conferees refused to accept this increase of nearly $600,000, the Senate yesterday unanimously rejected the conference report and sent it back to conference, however, I think, under an entire misapprehension as to the actual facts involved.

It was stated on the floor of the other body that the purpose of putting into the bill this additional $280,000 above what the conferees had agreed on was to allow the completion of the public-utilities investigation ordered by Senate Resolution 83.

Now, Mr. Speaker, you will find by examining the hearings before the Subcommittee on Appropirations that the commission stated, page 247-and I read verbatim from the

The estimates for 1934 do not include any funds for the continuation of the current special investigations regarding power and gas utilities, chain stores, cottonseed industry, cement or building material industry, as these investigations will be ended June 30, 1933.

So there was nothing in those estimates for 1934 for the utilities investigation. They are going to complete that by July 1, 1933, and the money is provided. That is not all. We asked them the specific question before my committee. Question by Mr. Woodrum, page 273:

How much of your 1934 estimate is allocated to these new investigations?

Answer:

A total of $333.134-

And so forth.

That is the four new investigations that the Federal Trade Commission wanted to initiate on their own motion and that the committee did not think they ought to initiate unless Congress or the Senate or the incoming administration instructed them so to do.

So that the bill as it stands according to the conference agreement gives the Federal Trade Commission exactly what the Budget estimated they should have, with the exception of the amount of money that it wanted to put in there for four new investigations they wanted to initiate on their own motion.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOODRUM. Yes.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. The gentleman has made a very strong statement from his point of view. In the first place, every time this appropriation has come before the House of Representatives there has been an effort made to cripple the Federal Trade Commission. There is no appropriation I know of that has suffered any more at the hands of the Appropriations Committee than the appropriation for the Federal Trade Commission, because it was reduced to $500,000 when the Bureau of the Budget requested over $1,000,000. It is true that some of these investigations are going to end July 1 next, but how about the reports? What is the gentleman going to do about the reports? Does the gentleman want the economic division to make the reports to Congress or not? Do you want the work wasted?

Mr. WOODRUM. All we have done is to take out the money for these four new investigations; and let me call the gentleman's attention to the statement of Commissioner March on page 279 of the hearings:

There is one more thought I would like to leave with you, Mr. Chairman, before we adjourn, and that is that these publicutilities investigations—this particular investigation, of course, will be closed, but under section 6 we can continue at any time, if we have the money, to investigate any particular company we wish to investigate. wish to investigate.

And so forth. The committee thought that the way to save money is not going to be so much by reorganization of departments, and so forth, as it is going to be by stopping useless functions and cutting out certain functions of government. That is where you save money; and our committee thought that the time had come when if they were to begin four new investigations, this ought to be done only after the new Federal Trade Commission is organized and a new administration has said that such investigations ought to be initiated.

There is no attempt here to cripple the Federal Trade Commission in any legitimate function they have to perform under the law, but there is an attempt to save $300,000 for the taxpayers of the country. [Applause.]
Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Will the gentleman from Virginia again yield?

Mr. WOODRUM. Yes.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. If you give them this money and permit them to start the new investigations and look into some of the practices of the great corporations, the final result will be you are going to save the taxpayers and the people who are buying the worthless stock floated by some corporations not $300,000 but $300,000,000 and more.

Mr. WOODRUM. Well, I shall not debate with the gentleman whether the investigations ought to be made. Maybe they ought to be made, and they have the money now to carry them to July 1 next, and if the incoming administration and the reorganized Federal Trade Commission think there ought to be certain investigations I believe Congress will give them the authority to make the investigations and the money to make them with after we are convinced they ought to be made; but we do not think a lame duck Federal Trade Commission ought to start out on four new investigations and spend about $300,000 and come back next year and say, "You have got to give us some more money, because we have started on the work and we can not lay it down." [Applause.]

Now, Mr. Speaker, I want to submit a unanimous-consent request with regard to this conference report.

I ask unanimous consent that the Senate amendments, aside from the Federal Trade Commission amendments, Nos. 7, 8, 9, and 11, be considered en bloc and that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Virginia asks unanimous consent to consider en bloc the Senate amendments, except the amendments referred to, and that the House concur in the Senate amendments. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, I now move that the House further insist on its disagreement to Senate amendments Nos. 7 and 8, which are the Federal Trade Commission amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 7: Page 22, line 8, strike out "$500,000" and insert "$1,081,500, of which $280,000 shall be available for the completion of the public utilities investigations undertaken pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 83, Seventieth Congress."

Amendment No. 8: Page 22, line 13, strike out "$10,000" and insert "$20,000."

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Virginia moves that the House further insist upon its disagreement to the Senate

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a division.

The House divided; and there were-ayes 89, noes 6.

So the motion was agreed to.

Mr. WOODRUM. Mr. Speaker, there are one or two other amendments involving totals, and I ask unanimous consent that they may be included in my request.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints the following conferees: Messrs. Woodrum, Boylan, and Summers of Wash-

AUTHORIZING NATIONAL RED CROSS AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS TO EXCHANGE COTTON FOR WOOL

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Senate Joint Resolution 228.

The Clerk read the joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the American National Red Cross or any other organization to which Government-owned cotton has been or shall hereafter be delivered pursuant to law is hereby authorfixed, if it shall be deemed advisable, to exchange any such cotton for cloth or wearing apparel or other articles of clothing containing wool.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, in connection with this resolution-Senate Joint Resolution 228-some of the Members inform me that in the colder climates it is very desirable in some instances to use a small amount of wool as a part of the cotton garment.

They assure me that it will only be necessary to use a relatively small amount of wool as a part of the cotton article to make it more effective.

It is intended that in most sections the exchange shall continue to be made for all cotton articles, and that the resolution shall only apply in the colder climates when in the discretion of the Red Cross it is desirable to have it do so, and that even in such instances the major portion of the article will continue to be made of cotton, and only a small percentage of any article be composed of wool.

The Senate joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SELECTION OF CERTAIN LANDS IN CALIFORNIA FOR A STATE PARK SYSTEM

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of S. 5612, to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of California for the use of the California State park system.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection. Mr. BLANTON. I object.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (S. 5612) to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of California, and for the use of the California State park system.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That subject to valid rights existing on the date of this act, the State of California may within five years select for State park purposes by legal subdivisions all or any portion of the public land not reserved for public purposes in the following townships:

Township 9, south, range 4 east; township 9 south, range 5 east; township 9 south, range 6 east; township 9 south, range 7 east; township 9 south, range 8 east; township 10 south, range 5 east; township 10 south, range 6 east; township 10 south, range 7 east; township 10 south, range 8 east; township 11 south, range 5 east; township 11 south, range 6 east; township 11 south, range 7 east; township 12 south, range 8 east; township 12 south, range 5 east; township 12 south, range 6 east; township 12 south, range 7 east; township 12 south, range 8 east; San Bernardino meridian.

Upon the submission of satisfactory proof that the land selected contains characteristic desert growth and scenic or other natural contains characteristic desert growth and scenic or other natural features which it is desirable to preserve as a part of the California State park system, the Secretary of the Interior shall cause patents to issue therefor: Provided, That there shall be reserved to the United States all coal, oil, gas, or other mineral contained in such lands, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same at such times and under such conditions as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe; Provided in the. That any Secretary of the Interior may prescribe: Provided jurther, That any patent so issued shall contain a provision for reversion of title to the United States upon a finding by the Secretary of the Interior that for a period of more than one year the land has not been used by the State for park purposes. used by the State for park purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that a second be considered as ordered.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill passed by the Senate, and a companion bill has been unanimously reported by the House Committee on the Public Lands.

The bill proposes to permit the State of California to create a State park out of some typical desert lands, about half of which is public land and about half of which is private land owned by railroads under the Federal grant system. The latter will have to be acquired by the State at its own expense.

Actually, according to the General Land Office field survey report, the land contains no mineral, no commercial timber, and only a very small part of it has any possible present or future agricultural value. It is in an area where the rainfall is only about 1 or 2 inches, and the land is mostly mountainous and worthless, except for its unusual desert flora, including some fine growth of Washingtonian palms, commonly called fan palms. There are also some fine specimens of cacti, ocotilla, and other desert shrubs and flowers.

The State of California offers to preserve these specimens that have been declared by scientists and experts to be of great value. It will undertake at its own expense to preserve them and develop roads and make the area accessible.

The bill provides that if at any time the State should neglect or fail to use it for a park, the lands granted shall revert to the United States Government.

In addition to that, the bill reserves to the United States Government all oil and mineral rights, and the right to go on the land and prospect and develop and take them out. It seems to me that the United States Government is not giving away anything that is worth anything. Here is an opportunity to have preserved for future generations at the expense of the State of California this rather exceptional area of desert fauna and flora. To-day vandals are going in and digging up these specimens and carrying them off to the loss of the area and to the loss of the next generation.

Mr. SNELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SWING. Yes.

Mr. SNELL. How many acres are there involved in this? Mr. SWING. In the exterior limits about 189,000 acres. Mr. SNELL. This actually is of no use to the Federal Government?

Mr. SWING. I can assure the gentleman and Members of the House that I am acquainted with the area, and that the public lands would not support one family. Whatever land there is of value has already been entered, and the rights of the entryman are fully protected under this bill.

Mr. SNELL. What is the State going to do with it? Mr. SWING. It is going to make a desert park out of it and preserve the fauna and flora. Mr. SNELL. A desert park is a new kind of park, is it not?

Mr. SWING. Yes. Mr. SNELL. I think we ought to have one.

Mr. SWING. So do I.

Mr. KETCHAM. Have any steps been taken by the State of California toward the acquisition of this land?

Mr. SWING. The State of California has already taken steps and by popular subscription raised funds from which 5,000 acres of privately owned lands have already been many more acres.

Mr. KETCHAM. Has the gentleman the figures that have been paid for those lands?

Mr. SWING. I do not know; but it is not of very high

Mr. CULKIN. There are no reclamation features in this, are there?

Mr. SWING. None at all; and there can not be, because there is no possible water supply that could be developed to irrigate any portion of this land.

Mr. STAFFORD. This land is to be used for a public park and so will be removed from the possibility of reclamation.

Mr. SWING. Yes; under the bill it can not be used for anything except park purposes. I reserve the remainder of Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, this is a most ridiculous bill to be called up at this hour and passed under suspension of all rules in the closing hours of this Congress. The gentleman from New York [Mr. SNELL], who is always earnestly inquiring around, and who at this time is particularly inquiring, saw fit to ask a very pertinent question as to how much public land this bill involves. My friend from California said 189,000 acres. I am going to tell the gentleman the exact number. It is 189,940 acres of public land. We are the custodians of that land. We are the people's representatives who are looking after these 189,940 acres of public land that belongs to them. Are we going to take it out of entry? Are we going to fix it so that the soldier boys of the country can not enter it if they want to take it up? I am thinking of them. I am getting applications from them every day, and I am writing letters to the land commissioner and asking him to send them information so that they can take up these public lands, and I am not going to vote for a single bill that takes this land away from them when they are entitled to it.

Mr. SNELL. If this is absolutely barren, sand desert, what soldier boy would ever want to go and enter it?

Mr. BLANTON. I wish my friend from New York knew as much about barren sandy desert land as I do.

Mr. SNELL. And this might take it out of the possibility of those people out there coming to the Government and wanting us to reclaim it.

Mr. BLANTON. There is in the district of my friend, THOMASON, of El Paso, a county called Winkler. When I first came here 17 years ago representing the old Jumbo district of 59 counties, that county was in my district. That was the one county seat, Kermit, that I had not visited. I tried to go there one day in a Ford automobile, and it can travel sand as well as any car that is made. I went through sand hub deep in that car. It took me four hours to go a mile and a half. I burned out the bearings and had to leave the car when I was within 3 miles of the county seat. There were only 29 voters in the county at that time. Time has passed, and since then some of the greatest oil wells in the United States were discovered in Winkler County. Valuable oil was under that sand. I wish you could now see the boulevards that traverse that county-great fine boulevards over which you can drive at the rate of 80 miles an hour. I wish you could see the railroad tank loading platforms that are now in that vicinity since they have those big oil wells there.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. Just one minute.

I was telling my friend from New York what can happen to barren sand where no rainfall occurs.

I remember back in the early days of Texas when the 254 counties of Texas owned their school lands. When our Republic became a State the school system was given certain school lands, large acreage of it in each county for the school children of Texas.

That was called the county school lands of each county. It was controlled by the commissioners' court of the county. They were the custodians for the people of that public land, just as we are custodians for the people of the public land purchased and options taken upon private lands to that of the United States. Those commissioners let most of that school land, the valuable heritage of the school children of Texas, be frittered away. They considered a great big acreage of it out in the northwestern portion of Texas as worthless; that there was no rainfall. Some of it was sand deserts, and they sold some of it for 50 cents an acre. Now, some of it is worth $50 and $100 an acre. Texas gave 3,000,000 acres of that land for our State capitol, at $1 an acre. The capitol was supposed to have cost $3,000,000. They gave 3,000,000 acres for the State capitol, and the syndicate which got that 3,000,000 acres has made millions of dollars off of the school children of Texas. Some of that land is now worth $50 or $60 or $70 an acre. I am not willing to say that this Government land is not going to be valuable in the years to come. I know there are 4,000,000 American men who wore the uniform in the recent war who have a special right to take up those public lands of the United States. I know that some of them are applying to me every day to help them take it up.

Here is my friend from California, who is going to leave us, and I am sorry we are to lose him. I am one of his friends. I have backed him up. I am sorry he is going home, but just as a favor to him, I am not willing to pass his bill which takes 189,940 acres of public lands away from entry on the part of the soldiery of this country, who fought the World War and saved the civilization of the world. I am not willing to take it way from them for some desert park for California.

If there is no rainfall there, if it is a desert and if it is worthless, why does my friend think California will be so interested that they will build highways to permit people to go see a desert park? The gentleman spoke of gorges. Every man who has lived in a country where water means everything knows the value of gorges. Whenever you find a gorge you have a possibility for water. My friend knows that, too. You can dam up a gorge, little or big, and sooner or later you will get water in it. You will get some water in it when you dam it up. You will get the rainfall, whatever it is. There was a time when there was not much rainfall in Oklahoma and Kansas to speak of. There was a time when they thought it was worthless, and that is one reason they gave Oklahoma to the Indians. Now it is the finest agricultural garden spot on God's earth. The seasons have changed both in Kansas and Oklahoma. There is plenty of rainfall there now.

A change could come out there as to this western land.

Mr. GLOVER. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. Certainly, because the gentleman from Arkansas always has good ideas, and I think he is a most valuable man here.

Mr. GLOVER. The statement has been made that this land is without value. If the gentleman will read the report, he will see it is stated that the State has already purchased, with funds subscribed by public-spirited citizens, approximately 6,000 acres of private holdings within the interior limits of the proposed park. Now, if the Government land is of no value, why was it that the public-spirited citizens had to get together and buy 6,000 acres?

Mr. BLANTON. Just the reading of that report answers the question. Do you know why they write plays like "Of "? Do you know why "Of Thee I Sing" has Thee I Sing' been going all over the country? Do you know why it was so interesting that the minority leader [Mr. SNELL] and the Speaker [Mr. Garner] had to have a special box down there? It is just because we pass such ridiculous bills as this here in the House of Representatives. [Laughter and applause.]

I want to say to you the time has come for us to stop it. We ought to stop passing bills of this kind. One hundred and eighty-nine thousand nine hundred and forty acres of public land are involved in this bill; and if you pass it for PHIL SWING, some day they will write another story about you "Of Thee I Sing," and it will be going all over the United States.

Mr. CONNERY. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. BLANTON. I yield to the greatest actor in the House.

Mr. CONNERY. I call attention to the fact that in "Of Thee I Sing" no reference is made to the House. It was to the other body.

Mr. BLANTON. Oh, inferentially, it applied to the House just as it did to the Senate. It applied to the Congress of the United States. This is the big end of the Congress. This is the end that looks after the rights of the people. You are the representatives who are nearest to the people back home. They do expect something of you and they are looking for you to protect their rights in 189,940 acres of public land.

Now, are you just going to pass this because you are a friend of Phil Swing, and let these Californians out there, who know the value of this property and who have already spent their good money to buy 5,000 acres of land adjoining it, as shown by the gentleman from Arkansas when he read the report, have this land? If they are interested in it, I take it that we, as representatives of the people of this country, ought to be interested in this great body of land—189.940 acres.

I hope the gentleman from New York [Mr. Snell], after he has been continued at the caucus last night as the great leader of the Republican Party of this country, will lead his forces against this bill. I hope my Democratic colleagues here will help us stop this bill and protect the rights of the people.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Nevada [Mr. Arentz].

Mr. ARENTZ. Mr. Speaker, it is always very interesting and instructive to listen to the gentleman from Texas. I wish I could get excited about this bill. I have spent 10 years in this House, and for 10 years I have been a member of the Committee on Public Lands. In all my experience with bills advocated by the western men on this floor—and I am talking about the gentleman from Montana [Mr. Leavitt], the gentleman from California [Mr. Swing], and other members of the Committee on Public Lands—there is not one single solitary bill that will not stand the full light of day or of which I am ashamed, not one solitary bill during that period of time.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. ARENTZ. I yield.

Mr. BLANTON. How about the famous million-dollar mountain top bill that once overnight was traded for the free garden seed proposal here one time? Does the gentleman remember the million-dollar mountain top bill?

Mr. ARENTZ. Scattered over this vast area of 189,940 acres will be found a little spring here and a little seep there, a little acreage that has been taken up by supposed ranchers, by people who had hopes that in some way they could get enough water on the soil to raise a few crops. This does not amount to more than 5,000 acres out of 189,000, and the State of California has gone in here to acquire these little seeps, to these little canyons where there is a little trickling stream of water, where water has been developed and applied to a little spot of ground, where there are a few flowers, where some desert worshiper has built a little wikiup or pitched a tent or built a little small cabin and lives for certain months.

The people of the United States are beginning to realize that there is something besides city life. They are beginning to appreciate that off in the desert they find a place where they can contemplate, where they can think, where they can philosophize. They can go off where very few people go. They can look at the bright stars and the deep blue sky by night and go out under the blazing sun by day.

California wants to perpetuate this area for all time, wants to keep the plants from being uprooted, wants to develop these little seeps, wants to buy these small fractions of acreage from the people who have located on it. The people of the State are willing to spend their money on this development, want to develop the little seeps and the little water holes so they can be used by prospectors or others who find themselves in that desert country.

All the mineral under the ground has been reserved to the United States. If in the future they find oil it will belong to the people of the United States; and I hope that at some future time, as the gentleman from Texas has stated, this area, like that area down in Texas, will blossom like the rose, and we will have concrete, or rather oil, highways going through it; and not only 75,000-barrel wells but 1,000,000-barrel wells gushing out of the ground. I will be willing then that this herbage, this grass, these little seep holes, this development, instead of being a thing of beauty shall be turned into a thing of commercial benefit to all.

Mr. KETCHAM. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. ARENTZ. I yield.

Mr. KETCHAM. Can the gentleman state how far this land is from a Federal highway?

Mr. ARENTZ. The gentleman from California can answer that question.

Mr. SWING. At the present time it is quite distant, removed, but the State itself expects to build a road to develop this area.

Mr. KETCHAM. The gentleman better state that there will be in the future no requests for Federal aid to build a system of park roads and trails involving tremendous expenditures.

Mr. SWING. I can absolutely assure the House of that. The State of California has already voted its own bond issue and is prepared to spend its own money to make this a park for the benefit not only of the present generation but of future generations as well.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield one minute to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Patterson].

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to say that I have looked into the merits of this bill as best I could from the information that has been given me through the office of our distinguished leader and by that efficient clerk, Mr. Price. I have given consideration to other sources of information, and in a small way I know something of this section of the country.

I believe this is a good bill. I believe it should be passed, and that the State of California should be given the right to preserve this part of our national domain as a desert park. I hope the Members on this side of the aisle will support this meritorious measure. I believe it was reported unanimously by the Committee on Public Lands. It costs the Government nothing; it reserves to the Government all mineral and oil rights. I hope the bill will be passed by a large vote.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. SWING. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Stafford].

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, this bill is on the Consent Calendar. I examined the report quite carefully before it was called on Consent Calendar day. The thought that came to my mind, as I read the report, was whether it was not better to have the State take over jurisdiction of this area and create a State park rather than have the burden thrown upon the National Government of using it as a national park.

We have national parks distributed throughout the West maintained by the Government at the expense of thousands upon thousands of dollars. The character of the surface of this soil is particularly suited for park purposes. If it is the desire of the State of California to take the public land comprised in these exterior bounds and maintain it for park purposes, even though the lands are worth 50 cents up to $7 an acre, why should we hesitate about granting this privilege to the State? No further burden will be entailed upon the National Government, and the ground is particularly suitable for park purposes.

The question largely is one of whether the National Government should maintain it or the State. I take the position that when the State has signified its willingness to assume the burden to the extent of purchasing 6,000 acres within the confines of the proposed park, we should gra-

SI

SI

Si

Beam

Blanton

Brunner

Burch

Drewry Fiesinger

Fulmer

Gavagan

ciously extend the land to the State, as we have done as to | areas along the Atlantic coast, in the Northwest, in the Southwest, and on the Pacific coast.

Mr. SNELL. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. STAFFORD. I yield.

Mr. SNELL. After reading the report my reaction is exactly the same as the gentleman from Wisconsin. Unless we give this to California now, within the next few years, the entire California delegation will come to Congress and want us to make this a national park, and then we will have to take care of it.

Mr. STAFFORD. Under the national park law this could be created a national monument, because of its peculiar topographic condition, but even though the land is worth a considerable sum, why not give it for this highly commendatory purpose of recreation, on the condition that if it is not used for public-park purposes it reverts to the United States.

Mr. SWING. It can be used for park purposes only, and if it is not used for that purpose continuously, it all reverts to the United States.

I ask for a vote, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from California to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Blanton) there were-ayes 107, noes 4.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order there is not a quorum present and object to the vote on that ground.

The SPEAKER. Evidently there is not a quorum present. The Doorkeeper will close the doors, the Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members, and the Clerk will call the roll.

The question was taken; and there were-yeas 264, nays 29, not voting 133, as follows:

[Roll No YEAS-

	- 11
Adkins	Condon
Allgood	Connery
Almon	Connolly
Amlie	Cooper, Tenn.
Andresen	Corning
Andrew, Mass.	Cox
Andrews, N. Y.	Coyle
Arentz	Crail
Arnold	Cross
Auf der Heide	Crowther
Ayres	Culkin
Bachmann	Cullen
Bacon	Darrow
Baldrige	Davenport
Barton	Davis, Pa.
Beedy	Delaney
Biddle	De Priest
Black	Dies
Bland	Doughton
Bloom	Dowell
Boehne	Doxey
Bohn	Drane
Boileau	Driver
Boland	Eagle
Bolton	Eaton, Colo.
Boylan	Eaton, N. J.
Briggs	Ellzey
Britten	Englebright
Browning	Erk
Buchanan	Eslick
Buckbee	Estep
Bulwinkle	Evans, Calif.
Burtness	Fernandez
Busby	Finley
Canfield	Fish
Cannon	Fitzpatrick
Carden	Flannagan
Carley	Flood
Carter, Calif.	Foss
Carter, Wyo.	Frear
Cary	Free
Castellow	French
Cavicchia	Fuller
Celler	Garber
Chavez	Gasque
Christgau	Gibson
Christopherson	Gilchrist
Clancy	Goss
Clark, N. C.	Green
Cochran, Mo.	Gregory
Cochran, Pa.	Griffin
Cole, Md.	Griswold
Collier	Guyer
Colton	Hadley

0. 175]
-264
Haines	McClintocl
Hall, N. Dak.	McCormac
Hancock, N. Y.	McGugin
Hare	McKeown
Harlan	McLeod
Hastings	McReynold
Hess	Major
Hill, Ala. Hill, Wash.	Manlove
	Mansfield
Hoch Hogg, W. Va.	Mapes Martin, Ma
Hollister	Martin, Or
Holmes	May May
Hooper	Mead
Hope	Michener
Horr	Millard
Houston, Del.	Milligan
Hull, Morton D.	Mitchell
Jacobsen	Moore, Ohi
Jeffers	Nelson, Me
Jenkins	Nelson, Mo
Johnson, Okla.	Nolan
Johnson, Tex.	Norton, Ne
Kahn	Norton, N.
Keller	Oliver, Ala
Kelly, Pa. Kerr	Oliver, N. 3
Ketcham	Overton
	Parker, Ga Parker, N.
Kinzer Kleberg	Parsons
Kniffin	Patman
Kopp	Patterson
Kunz	Peavey
Kurtz	Person
LaGuardia	Pittenger
Lambertson	Polk
Lambeth	Pratt, Hard
Lanham	Purnell
Lankford, Ga.	Ragon
Lankford, Va.	Rainey
Larrabee	Ramspeck
Larsen	Rankin
Lea Leavitt	Ransley Reed, N. Y.
Lehlbach	Reilly
Lichtenwalner	Rich
Lindsay	Rogers, Ma
Lonergan	Rogers, N.
Loofbourow	Rudd
Lovette	Sanders, N
Lozier	Sandlin
Luce	Schafer
Ludlow	Schneider
McClintic, Okla.	Schuetz
McClintic, Okla.	Schuetz

McClintock, Ohio
McCormack
McCormack McGugin
McKeown
McLeod
McReynolds
Major
Manlove
Mansfield
Mapes Martin, Mass.
Martin, Oreg.
May Mead Michener
Millard
Milligan
Mitchell
Moore, Ohio
Nelson, Me.
Neison, Mo.
Nolan
Norton, Nebr. Norton, N. J.
Norton, N. J.
Oliver, Ala.
Oliver, N. Y. Overton
Parker, Ga.
Parker, N. Y.
Parsons
Patman
Patterson
Peavey Person
Pittenger
Polk
Pratt, Harcourt J
Purnell
Ragon Rainey
Ramspeck
Rankin
Ransley
Reed, N. Y.
Reilly
Rich
Rogers, Mass. Rogers, N. H.
Rogers, N. H.
Rudd
Sanders, N. Y. Sandlin
Schafer
Schneider
Schuetz

Spence
Stafford Stalker
Strong, Pa.
Stull
Summers, Wash.
Sutphin
Swank
Swanson
Sweeney
Swick
Swing
NAT

Gilbert

Glover

Howard

Jones

Granfield

Huddleston

Hancock, N. C.

Johnson, Mo.

	Taber Taylor, Tenn
	Thatcher
	Thurston Turpin
h.	Underwood
	Vinson, Ga.
	Vinson, Ky.
	Wason
	Watson
	Weaver
	Welch
AY	S-29
	Kading

West White Whittington Wigglesworth Williamson Wilson Wolfenden Wolverton Woodruff Woodrum

Pettengill Snow Kelly, Ill. Kennedy, N. Y. Lamneck McSwain Somers, N. Y. Wood, Ga. Miller Morehead enn.

Palmisano

Abernethy	Dick
Aldrich	Diet
Allen	Dist
Bacharach	Don
Bankhead	Dou
Barbour	Dou
Beck	Dou
Bowman	Dye
Brand, Ga.	Eval
Brand, Ohio	Fish
Brumm	Free
Burdick	Full
Byrns	Gan
Cable	Giff
Campbell, Iowa	Gill
Campbell, Pa.	Gold
Cartwright	Gold
Chapman	Gree
Chase	Hall
Chindblom	Hall
Chiperfield	Har
Clague	Har
Clarke, N. Y.	Har
Cole, Iowa	Hau
Collins	Haw
Cooke Cooper, Ohio	Hola
Crosser	Hop
Crowe	Hor
CIOWE	1101

Curry Davis, Tenn. Dickinson

NOT VOI
Dickstein Dickstein Dieterich Disney Dominick Douglass, Ariz. Douglass, Mass. Doutrich Dyer Evans, Mont. Fishburne Freeman Fulbright Gambrill Gifford Gillen Golder Goldsborough Greenwood Hall, Ill. Hall, Miss. Hardy Hart Hartley Haufey Haugen Hawley Hogg, Ind. Holaday Hopkins Hornor Hull, William E. Igoe James Johnson, Ill.
Hopkins Hornor
Hull, William E. Igoe James
Johnson, Ill. Johnson, S. Dak. ds having voted
The same of the same

TING—133
Johnson, Was Kemp Kennedy, Md. Knutson Kvale Lewis McDuffle McFadden McMillan Maas Magrady Maloney Montague Montet Moore, Ky. Mouser Murphy Nelson, Wis. Niedringhaus O'Connor Owen Parks Partridge Perkins Pou Prall Pratt, Ruth Ramseyer Rayburn Reid, Ill. Robinson Romjue Sabath	Selvi Shree Smit Steag Steve Stew Stoke Stron Sulli Sulli Sulli Sulli Sulli Fem Taylo Tem Thon Tier Tink Tread Unde Warr Weels Whit Willi Willi Willi Willi Willi Willi Wing With Wood Wrig Wyar Yate
ed in favor	thereof)

ers. Tex. h, Idaho zall enson art es ng, Kans. lvan, N. Y. lvan, Pa. ners, Tex. or, Colo. ple nason ney perlake iway rhill en ams, Mo. 0 row d. Ind. ht nt.

So (two-thir the rules were suspended, and the bill was passed.

The following pairs were announced:

Until further notice:

Mr. Douglas of Arizona with Mr. Treadway.
Mr. Byrns with Mr. Brumm.
Mr. Lewis with Mr. Knutson.
Mr. Bankhead with Mr. Bacharach.
Mr. McDuffle with Mr. Beck.
Mr. Abernethy with Mr. Niedringhaus.
Mr. Crosser with Mr. Barbour.
Mr. Dickstein with Mrs. Pratt.
Mr. Fishburne with Mr. Cooper of Ohio.
Mr. Gillen with Mr. Doutrich.

Mr. Dickstein with Mr. Cooper of Ohio.
Mr. Fishburne with Mr. Cooper of Ohio.
Mr. Gillen with Mr. Doutrich.
Mr. Rayburn with Mr. Shreve.
Mr. Prall with Mr. Dyer.
Mr. Montague with Mr. Stokes.
Mr. O'Connor with Mr. Gifford.
Mr. Davis of Tennessee with Mr. Temple.
Mr. Sanders of Texas with Mr. Hartley.
Mr. Gambrill with Mr. Tinkham.
Mr. Steagall with Mr. Holaday.
Mr. Greenwood with Mr. Whitley.
Mr. Tierney with Mr. Withrow.
Mr. Hornor with Mr. Withrow.
Mr. Hornor with Mr. Hopkins.
Mr. Wingo with Mr. Kvale.
Mr. Hart with Mr. Murphy.
Mr. Sumners of Texas with Mr. Aldrich.
Mr. Evans of Montana and Mr. Johnson of Washington.
Mr. Romjue with Mr. Reid of Illinois.
Mr. Parks with Mr. Smith of Idaho.
Mr. Parks with Mr. Smith of Idaho.
Mr. Brand of Georgia with Mr. Magrady.
Mr. McMillan with Mr. Campbell of Iowa.
Mr. McMillan with Mr. Campbell of Iowa.
Mr. Kennedy of Maryland with Mr. Campbell of Pennsylvania.
Mr. Maloney with Mr. Chindblom.
Mr. Campana with Mr. Partridge.

Mr. Kennedy of Maryland with Mr. C Mr. Maloney with Mr. Chindblom. Mr. Chapman with Mr. Partridge. Mr. Mobley with Mr. Chiperfield. Mr. Collins with Mr. Selvig. Mr. Montet with Mr. Clague. Mr. Crowe with Mr. Timberlake. Mrs. Owen with Mr. Wood of Indiana. Mr. Crump with Mr. James.

Mr. Moore of Kentucky with Mr. Wyant.
Mr. DeRouen with Mr. Hogg of Indiana.
Mr. Pou with Mr. Golder.
Mr. Dickinson with Mr. Curry.
Mr. Stevenson with Mr. Clarke of New York.
Mr. Dieterich with Mr. Cable.
Mr. Douglass of Massachusetts with Mr. Hawley.
Mr. Sabath with Mr. Hall of Illinois.
Mr. Fulbright with Mr. Gates.
Mr. Stewart with Mr. Gates.
Mr. Goldsborough with Mr. Robinson.
Mr. Taylor of Colorado with Mr. Cole of Iowa.
Mr. Hall of Mississippi with Mr. William E. Hull,
Mr. Thomason with Mr. Allen.
Mr. Warren with Mr. Bowman.
Mr. Williams of Missouri with Mr. Mouser.
Mr. Igoe with Mr. Cooke.
Mr. Wright with Mr. Freeman.
Mr. Williams of Texas with Mr. Hardy.

GRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER AT OR NE

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSOURI RIVER AT OR NEAR KANSAS CITY,

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication from the Senate.

The Clerk read as follows:

Ordered, That the House of Representatives be requested to return to the Senate the bill (H. R. 14500) to extend the time for completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Kansas City, Kans.

The order was agreed to.

SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE FOR THE EVENING SESSION

The SPEAKER designated Mr. RAINEY to preside as Speaker pro tempore at the evening session.

MODIFICATION OF CONTRACTS FOR SALE OF TIMBER ON INDIAN

Mr. LEAVITT. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Indian Affairs, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill S. 6684 and agree to the Senate amendments with an amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows, which were agreed to:

Page 1, line 4, strike out "tribal" and insert "general."
Page 1, line 5, strike out "may" and insert "is hereby authorized and directed to."

Page 1, line 5, strike out "any."
Page 1, line 6, strike out "contract" and insert "contracts."
Page 1, line 7, strike out all after "timber" down to and including "so" in line 8.
Page 2, line 6, after "Interior," insert "with the consent of the said general council." Page 2, line 6, after "authorized" insert "and directed."

The Clerk read the following Senate amendment:

Page 2, line 9, strike out all after "contract" down to and cluding "modification" in line 11 and insert ": And provided further, That hereafter no contract of sale of Indian timber shall be entered into without the consent of the said general council."

Mr. LEAVITT. I move to amend the amendment by inserting after the word "timber" the words "on the Klamath Indian Reservation in Oregon."

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read the following Senate amendment, which was agreed to:

Page 2, line 21, strike out all cluding "on," in line 4, page 3. strike out all after "labor," down to and in-

Mr. LEAVITT. Mr. Speaker, in compliance with the further instruction of the Committee on Indian Affairs, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill H. R. 12651 and agree to the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 8, strike out "192" and insert "1092."

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Mr. MEAD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the table the bill (H. R. 11270) to amend section 2 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes," with a Senate amendment thereto, and agree to the same.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the Senate amend-

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 2, line 3, strike out "July" and insert "October."

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, what is the purpose of this?

Mr. MEAD. The amendment adopted by the Senate merely changes the recording date from July to October.

The SPEAKER. The question is on concurring in the Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment was concurred in.

GUST J. SCHWEITZER

Mr. BLACK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Claims I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4910) for the relief of Gust J. Schweitzer, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 1, line 5, strike out "$400" and insert "$100."
Page 2, line 10, strike out all after "each" down to and including "each" in line 12.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

FREE IMPORTATION OF CERTAIN ARTICLES FOR SCIENTIFIC PURPOSES

Mr. COLLIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 14579) to provide for the free importation of certain articles exported temporarily for scientific or educational purposes, and ask that it be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the right to object. When we had under consideration the bill amending the Chicago Exposition Act, which contained a provision granting a similar privilege, there was a limitation fixed of six months. Is it purposed by this provision that you will grant them the right at any time to have them returned without payment of duty?

Mr. COLLIER. The committee discussed that, and decided not to put any limitation upon it. This bill is in the interest of the suppression of crime. The police departments of large cities like Chicago and New York are engaged in these ballistic experiments with the police of other cities; and in order to do that they have to send these weapons back and forth.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That Title II of the tariff act of 1930 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"PAR. 1815. Articles, when returned after having been and exported for use temporarily abroad solely for exhibition, examination, or experimentation, for scientific or educational purposes, if imported by or for the account of the person who exported them from the United States, and not for sale, subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe."

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to make a statement in respect to the bill just passed. The Chair recognized the gentleman from Mississippi to pass the bill because he was told that it came with the unanimous report from the Committee on Ways and Means, and the Chair has a great deal of respect for the Committee on Ways and Means.

INVESTIGATION OF CERTAIN PUBLIC UTILITY CORPORATIONS

Mr. MEAD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of House Joint Resolution 612, to provide for further investigation of certain public-utility corporations engaged in interstate commerce, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, etc., That for the purpose of obtaining information necessary as a basis for legislation, those members of the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads of the Seventy-second Congress who are Members elect to the Seventy-third Congress, or a majority of them, after March 4, 1933, and until the organization of the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads of the House of the Seventy-third Congress, are authorized, as a committee, by subcommittee or otherwise, to continue the investigation begun under authority of House Resolution 226 of the Seventy-second Congress. And the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $5,000 under House Resolution 273 of the Seventysecond Congress is hereby continued for such purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

APPOINTMENT OF POSTMASTERS-EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. LANKFORD of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. LANKFORD of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I wish to make a few observations concerning the appointment of postmasters in my district. When I came to Congress 14 years ago I found every post office in the district supplied with appointees of my predecessor. I knew that probably every one of them had supported my predecessor and voted against me. I also knew that if they did vote for my predecessor they had the absolute right to do so; that in so doing they were only loyal to their friend and had voted for a most capable, honorable, and worthy man. I admired the spirit of real gratitude that had prompted such men to be loyal to those that had been loyal to them and knew that men of this type could be trusted in the public

After I was elected I told these men that I did not blame them for being loyal to my predecessor, the Hon. J. Randall Walker, and that I would not fight or seek the removal of any postmaster because he had not voted for me. In every case where the service had been satisfactory to the public and to the Post Office Department I asked for the reappointment of the incumbent postmaster, and several of these good men appointed by President Woodrow Wilson upon the recommendation of Congressman Walker are still in office.

I admit that in a contest between my friend and my enemy I am glad to support my friend to the limit, but I have never thought that because some one voted against me and supported some one who had shown him a special favor I should feel he was showing any evidence of ill will for me, but only doing the part of a man with a heart full of gratitude.

I was glad that when the Republicans gained control of the patronage in my district I found no evidence of any desire on their part to displace a postmaster simply because he was a Democrat or had been appointed by President Wilson. I also appreciate the fact that when the Republicans decided to not reappoint any particular postmaster they always called an examination and gave everybody a chance to take the examination, without their appointing an acting postmaster and thus giving the acting postmaster a very valuable advantage over all other applicants. They never at any time appointed an acting postmaster, except in case of an actual vacancy caused by death or removal for criminal misconduct or where an eligible list had been made up and the appointment of a postmaster made but not confirmed by the Senate before adjournment. They always were most fair in letting all take examinations and giving everybody this privilege without the Republicans making a fight for any particular candidate until all were given a chance before the Civil Service Commission.

I remember very distinctly one instance where an examination had been actually ordered to fill a vacancy actually caused by a most splendid postmaster actually resigning to become effective at once because his hearing had become impaired as the result of age, and yet the Republican Party, upon the request of young Theodore Roosevelt and myself. allowed this resignation to be withdrawn by this postmaster and permitted him to stay in office until he later voluntarily resigned. I knew that this particular postmaster, although a Confederate veteran and a lifelong Democrat, had been appointed by President Roosevelt because of his service with President Roosevelt in Cuba during the Spanish-American War, and therefore I sought the assistance of young Theodore Roosevelt in behalf of this good man. I shall always appreciate the service of this splendid young Republican statesman in this matter. He promptly informed me that he would help me to the limit and did so.

WHY RECOGNIZE SOVIET RUSSIA?

Mr. FISH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend by remarks by including an address delivered by myself. The SPEAKER. Is there objection.

There was no objection.

Mr. FISH. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address delivered by myself at the National Republican Club, New York, February 25, 1933:

The question of granting diplomatic recognition to the Soviet Government of Russia is one of the most important and far-reaching issues before the United States and is entitled to the most careful consideration by the American people and by our own Government officials. President-elect Roosevelt stated just own Government officials. President-elect Roosevelt stated just prior to election that he had an open mind on the recognition of Soviet Russia, and he desired to study the problem and ascertain the facts. As Chief Executive, it is but natural and right that he should make a thorough survey of all the facts and approach the entire issue with an open mind, as it is a tremendous problem, and largely a new one to the incoming President. It is to be hoped that he will make haste slowly in reaching a decision, and will listen to the various antagonistic groups on this complicated and controversial issue.

listen to the various antagonistic groups on this complicated and controversial issue.

Before presenting the arguments against recognition, it is well to review briefly the facts relative to the establishment of the Soviet régime in Russia. I know of no great world event upon which the American people are so badly informed. Unquestionably, most Americans still believe that Lenin, Trotzky, and Stalin led the Bolshevists in ousting the Czar. The fact is that Comrade Leon Trotzky was living in the Bronx in the city of New York in March, 1917, when Nicholas II, Czar of all the Russias, was forced to abdicate by the representatives of the Duma, elected by the people, who immediately set up the Provisional Government of Russia. The United States, under President Woodrow Wilson, was the first nation to recognize that government. At that time Lenin was in Switzerland and Stalin was in exile in Siberia.

It was not until a month after the forced abdication of the Czar

It was not until a month after the forced abdication of the Czar exile in Siberia.

It was not until a month after the forced abdication of the Czar that the high German military command sent Lenin and a score or more of his communist followers, in a closed railway car, from Switzerland through Germany back into Russia, in order to help create chaos and overthrow the Provisional Government of Russia. The Germans, with whom we were then at war, had only one motive—to weaken or destroy the Provisional Government, which was opposing a separate peace and preparing to continue the war by launching another offensive.

Lenin, together with Trotzky and Stalin, both of whom had returned from exile, joined forces with a handful of communist leaders, backed by German gold and war-weary soldiers and deserters from the front, and overthrew the Provisional Government under Kerensky, the first democratic government that Russia had ever known, which was struggling against the chaotic conditions resulting from the war and trying to keep faith with the Allies in continuing the war. The communist slogan of land for the peasants, bread and homes for the workers, and a separate peace was popular with the war-weary Russian people, so that in October, 1917, the communists did not have much difficulty in seizing power, through violence and a revolution based on bullets and not ballots, from the newly established and democratic government of Russia.

Whereupon the communists immediately established an autoof Russia.

Whereupon the communists immediately established an autowhereupon the communists immediately established an autocratic dictatorship more despotic than any government the world has known for many centuries and utterly destructive of the rights of the people to freedom of speech, of the press, of assembly, or of popular expression through the ballot or of any kind. All opposition was suppressed by the dreaded and powerful secret police—G P U—which arrested secretly (generally in the middle of the night), tried secretly, and executed secretly. Right of habeas corpus, like all other rights, and the liberties of the people ceased to exist. The communist dictatorship became a government of terror by force and violence.

habeas corpus, like all other rights, and the liberties of the people ceased to exist. The communist dictatorship became a government of terror by force and violence.

I hold no brief for the old régime of the Czar. A dozen revolutions were justifiable against the stupidities, misrule, and cruelties under that autocratic government, but I want to emphasize that it was not the communists but the Russian people themselves, represented by the Duma, that put an end to czarism. On the other hand, it was the communists that destroyed the liberal government of Kerensky.

It is incomprehensible to me how liberals always excepting

It is incomprehensible to me how liberals, always excepting socialists and followers of Karl Marx, can condone or tolerate a communist dictatorship, the very antithesis of liberalism, which is the right of the people to govern themselves. Communism, as practiced in Russia, is treason to liberalism, and to all human rights, both political and economic, and to individual freedom. When it comes to czarism, communism, or fascism, or any other form of foreign dictatorship. I say a plague on all your houses; our republican form of government, controlled by the consent of a free people, is still the best form of government ever devised by the mind of man

No competent person questions the stability of the soviet dictatorship, or that it is a de facto government. Personally, I am willing to concede that it is not our business what kind of govtorship, or that it is a de facto government. Personally, I am willing to concede that it is not our business what kind of government exists in Russia, or any other nation, unless it be Cuba, in view of our obligations under the Platt amendment. I would gladly support recognition of Soviet Russia to-morrow if it had a socialist government, or any kind of a government that did not insist on interfering and meddling with our domestic and internal institutions by urging, through the Communist Internationale with headquarters at Moscow, strikes, riots, sabotage, and industrial unrest, and the overthrow of our republican form of government by force and violence.

The recognition of the Soviet Government, controlled by the Russian Communist Party, which seeks to sow seeds of class hatred, atheism, and world revolution in every noncommunist country, would be a lie to international law and to official diplomatic relations. Former Secretary of State Elihu Root summed up the American position in the following able and concise statement: "The recognition of one government by another is not a mere courtesy. It is an act having a definite and specific meaning, and it involves an acceptance by the recognizing government of the principles, purposes, and avowed intentions of the recognized government as being in conformity with the rules which govern the conduct of civilized nations toward each other. For the United States to recognize Russia would be to publicly activated the avoved nursose of the present Russian Government as the conduct of the govern the conduct of civilized nations toward each other. For the United States to recognize Russia would be to publicly ac-knowledge that the avowed purpose of the present Russian Gov-ernment to overthrow our system of government is consistent with international friendship. Of course, that would be a lie."

I agree with Mr. Root that recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States presupposes a friendly government and triendly

I agree with Mr. Root that recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States presupposes a friendly government and friendly relationship which do not and can not exist.

There is no crumb of comfort to the advocates of recognition in the clear-cut statements made by our various Secretaries of State, beginning with Hon. Bainbridge Colby, when he said: "The existing regime in Russia is based on the negation of every principle of honor and good faith, and every usage and convention underlying the whole structure of international law, the negation in short of every principle upon which it is possible to base harmonious and trustful relations, whether of nations or of individuals." Charles Evans Hughes stated in 1923, when Secretary of State: "The American Government, as the President said in his message to Congress, is not proposing to barter away its principles. Most serious is the continued propaganda to overthrow the institutions of this country. This Government can enter no negotiations until these efforts directed from Moscow are abandoned."

It seems to me that there is no room for argument. The Amer-

It seems to me that there is no room for argument. The American people will not compromise with any attempt of a foreign government to interfere with our domestic institutions, and, of course, will not tolerate the revolutionary activities and vicious and diseased propaganda of the Communist Internationale directed at our civil liberties, our free institutions, and our form of government. I decline to argue whether the Soviet Government. ment is strictly responsible for the acts of the Communist Internationale, further than to quote Zinovieff, formerly head of the Communist Internationale, regarding its relations to the Soviet Government: "It is the foundation and roof of the same build-ing; one belongs to the other." The Russian Communist Party, ing; one belongs to the other." The Russian Communist Party, the Soviet Government, and Red Internationale have interlocking directorates, and all three take their orders from the political bureau headed by Stalin and Molitov. Its fundamental aim is world revolution and the establishment of a soviet dictatorship throughout the world by force and violence.

Under the Declaration of Independence the American people have the acknowledged right to revolution whenever there are sufficient evils, abuses, and injustices under our form of government to warrant such a course. Happily we have no need to consider such a possibility. But we have the right to put on our own little revolution any time we want, and the American people do not propose to have a revolution made to order for them by any foreign power, and particularly by Stalin and the Communist Internationale at Moscow.

We do not intend to recognize Soviet Russia, because propose to have the soviet consulates established in all our industrial cities, North and South, to become nests of communist propaganda and class hatred, as they have done in Germany, China, and elsewhere. We are not afraid of such revolutionary China, and elsewhere. We are not arrand or such that the propaganda in our midst, but we do not propose to admit it any more than we would such dread diseases as leprosy, bubonic plague, or typhus. We have plenty of preventive hygiene in more than we would such dread diseases as leprosy, bubonic plague, or typhus. We have plenty of preventive hygiene in the United States and many wonderful modern hospitals and able surgeons, and could segregate and take care of such contagious diseases; but, naturally, we don't admit them. It is a libel against the American people to say that they are afraid of communist propaganda. Why, the Regular Army, National Guard, American Legion, and Veterans of Foreign Wars could—using a Russian word—"liquidate" all the communists in the United States in a few weeks' time, in case of any attempt at a communist revolution. But, in the midst of our present economic crisis, it would be foolhardy to recognize Soviet Russia and thereby permit the Communist Internationale, under diplomatic Immunity, to become established in our industrial cities, in the farm belt, and among the negroes of the South to provide organized leadership to revolutionary activities in the United States.

Just because other nations have recognized Soviet Russia, for Just because other nations have recognized Soviet Russia, for selfish and ulterior motives, is no reason why we should, and besides, most of these nations are already sorry. France recognized Soviet Russia, hoping to settle or adjust vast pre-war loans made by the French people to Russia; Italy because she wants to buy wheat, coal, lumber, and oil cheaply. England did so because of the platform pledges of the Socialist Labor Party recently repudiated by the English people. Germany recognized Russia, because prior to the World War she did $500,000,000 worth of export trade with Russia, which is her natural market and was in dire cause prior to the World War she did $500,000,000 worth of export trade with Russia, which is her natural market and was in dire need to restore such a near-by market for her goods. No nation has paid so dearly for recognition as Germany; she has been overrun with Russian communists and to-day communism is a serious menace to the very existence of the German Republic. At the last election there were over 5,000,000 communist votes cast, and a few days ago the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the transport of the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the transport of the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the transport of the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the transport of the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists held a protest parade in Bertin the communists and the communists and and a few days ago the communists held a protest parade in Berlin that numbered in excess of 100,000 persons.

The history and experience of German trade relations with Soviet Russia, particularly in the last few years, has not been at all happy or profitable. The German Government underwrote a certain percentage of the contracts made between private concerns and the Soviet Government, but has been practically forced to abandon further loans as bad risks. The soviets owe the German Government and private companies in excess of $400,000,000, and at the present time Eussian credit is almost population. at the present time Russian credit is almost nonexistent. Its notes are discounted at 50 per cent, if one is fortunate enough to find a bank that will loan any money to Russia, at the present

No nation has been harder hit by the so-called world or capital-istic depression than has Russia. Its exports, mainly wheat, oil, and lumber, receive a wretchedly low price in the world markets, hardly more than the cost, even with forced labor paid 15 cents a day on a gold basis, plus transportation. The biggest and most-used argument advanced in the United States for recognition of Russia is that such recognition would create a market for our surplus goods. Governor Pinchot issued a typical statement a few days ago that he favored recognition, because he holds it stupid few days ago that he favored recognition, because he holds it stupid to let others get the Russian market. Like many others who hold such views, it is evident he has made no study of the problem. The fact is, the United States, which has declined to recognize Soviet Russia, has done four times as much export trade with Russia since the armistice, right up to the beginning of world depression in 1930, than she did prior to the World War with Czar's régime, and all the other big nations that have recognized Soviet Russia are doing many times less trade with her.

A dispatch from Rome, dated January 18, 1933, states that the

A dispatch from Rome, dated January 18, 1933, states that the Italian Government will revoke its trade treaty with Moscow within a few weeks, because Italian purchases in Soviet Russia have been exceeding Russian purchases in Italy. The balance of trade was two to one against Italy in 1931. The Italians were also dissatisfied with an agreement by which Russia paid with credit for Italian goods and Italy paid with cash for its purchases. One of the requests made by the Soviet trade delegation was for One of the requests made by the Soviet trade delegation was for a longer period of credit than 52 months, which had been allowed. The Italians wanted a shorter period. The Italian situation is typical of the difficulties of trading with Soviet Russia, except on a long-term credit basis, which would be the height of folly and stupidity, in view of our experiences with European nations within the last few years, whose credit is 100 per cent better than Soviet Russia under present economic conditions.

The gigantic industrial program of Soviet Russia, which has

The gigantic industrial program of Soviet Russia, which has for its acknowledged ultimate purpose world revolution, is near collapse for want, humorously enough, of capital. Unless American capitalists provide funds and extend loans and credit, the famous 5 or 10 year program will come to a sudden and startling end, and with it all its plans for world revolution.

Lenin was right when he said that capitalists will commit suicide for temporary profit, and that is exactly what selfish and short-sighted American capitalists have been doing for sake of greed and 30 pieces of silver, to help build up Soviet Russia and bring its forced labor, paid 15 cents a day, into competition with free American labor, paid $3 a day and upward. I predict, and I free American labor, paid $3 a day and upward. I predict, and I know how dangerous it is for a politician to venture any prediction, that, if the Soviet Government survives with its industrial program supported by forced labor, we in America will lose within the next few years a billion dollars annually in our export trade to foreign markets in four commodities alone—wheat, oil, lumber, and cotton—which will affect the standard of wages and living of all the American people.

living of all the American people.

Sovict Russia is intensely anxious for recognition from the United States at the present time, not only to reestablish her waning prestige at home, due to crop failures and the discontent and misery of her people, but because all sources of credit are drying up, and she needs to float loans, without which her gigantic program of world economic competition, capitalistic ruin, and world revolution will collapse and sink into oblivion.

There is, and always will be, an irrepressible conflict between our republican form of government and communism. The American Federation of Labor has never ceased to expose the autocracy and despotic tyranny of the Soviet Government and to oppose recognition. In their annual convention in 1927 the following declaration of policy was adopted and has been consistently adhered to:
"We regard the soviet régime in Russia as the most unscrupulous, most antisocial, most menacing institution in the world to-day.

Between it and our form of political and social organization there can be no compromise of any kind. We repeat the call to American trade-unionists to stand true to their faith, to be militant in their defense of the principles of freedom and justice for which our movement stands and upon which our democracy rests its foundation walls." At its 1932 convention the American Federation of Labor restated its "unalterable opposition to recognition."

I have refrained from mentioning war debts, seizure of private property, and possible debt settlements, as they sink into insignificance compared to the all-important issue—that the American people will never recognize the Soviet Government as long as it encourages the Communist Internationale to spread vicious revolutionary propaganda and conduct seditious activities to undermine and destroy our own free institutions and republican form of government. We will never recognize a foreign nation that seeks to interfere with our domestic institutions. On this issue practically all the most powerful fraternal, patriotic, religious, and veteran organizations have taken a determined stand and present a united front.

The American Legion, at its last national convention, made the question of nonrecognition one of its main objectives, and its able national commander, Louis A. Johnson, has publicly stated that he considers the Legion resolution against recognition as a mandate to be vigorously prosecuted and that the full force of the American Legion will be invoked on this issue.

The position of the Roman Catholic Church is expressed, both in

The position of the Roman Catholic Church is expressed, both in action and words. The Vatican has refused flatly to establish relations with the Soviet Government. Pope Pius XI, according to the Osservatore Romano, the official Vatican paper, of February 8, 1930, stated: "We are deeply moved by the horrible and sacrilegious crimes repeated daily and daily becoming more grievous against God and the souls of the great Russian population." I do not claim that religious beliefs or lack of them is a proper basis for refusing recognition, but there are unquestionably in the United States great numbers of Americans, both Protestant and Catholic, who are opposed to diplomatic recognition, or in any way placing, directly or Indirectly, their stamp of approval upon the Godless Soviet Government as long as she continues a relentless campaign to persecute and destroy Christian and all other faiths in Russia and teaches hatred of God and of all religious belief.

There is one argument advanced by some Americans in favor of recognition that, much against my inclination, I feel compelled to touch upon, and that is that it would be to our advantage to recognize Russia in view of possible difficulties with Japan. I can not too strongly denounce such an inflammatory proposal. The American people do not want war with Japan and are opposed to going out of our way to antagonize Japan by recognizing Soviet Russia. The sooner we stop trying to police Manchuria, in view of our own Monroe doctrine, the better for the peace of the world. There is nothing to be gained and everything to lose by war with Japan, and I do not favor further antagonizing her by a continuation of the stupid note-writing policy of our State Department, threats of embargoes, or by recognition of Soviet

In conclusion, I want, above all, to disabuse the mind of any American who still thinks that the recognition of Soviet Russia would develop a new market and to stress the fact that actually it would not mean a dollar's worth more of goods, and particularly to point out to many gullible Southerners that it would not mean the sale of a single additional pound of cotton. There are no Government regulations or any other hindrance to prevent trading with the Soviet Government except the collapse of Russian credit. For a number of years, when we were willing and able to extend loans before our own economic difficulties, our exports to Russia amounted to in excess of $100,000,000 a year. That has ceased, not because of fallure to recognize but because of the precarious condition of Russian finances. It is doubtful if the Soviet Government will be able to purchase much over $200,000,000 worth of imports from all nations combined during this year. Of course, she is required, by treaty, to give preference to those countries, such as Germany, England, and Italy, that buy largely from her.

We have the same natural resources as has Russia, and never have bought or needed her exportable commodities, such as wheat, oil, and lumber. It is different with European nations. When it comes to cotton, former Representative Eslick, who made a study of the cotton situation, stated that Russia would export cotton in 1932 and become a serious menace to southern cotton exporters thereafter. The pithy statement of former President Calvin Coolidge is the last word on the question of recognition of Soviet Russia, when he said, "I do not propose to barter away for the privilege of trade any of the cherished rights of humanity; I do not propose to make merchandise of any American principles. These rights and principles must go wherever the sanction of our Government go."

I am confident that President-elect Roosevelt will listen to the spokesmen of such organizations as the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and of almost every fraternal and patriotic organization, including representatives of the great religious faiths in America, before reaching a decision on the question of recognition of Soviet Russia, which is of such momentous and farreaching importance.

In opposition to the organizations mentioned above are the communists, socialists, pink intellectuals, and some misguided Americans who have been deceived by promises of increased trade, when, on the contrary, recognition would reestablish communist prestige and develop increased competition against our wheat and cotton farmers, oil producers, and lumbermen in the foreign or world markets and not bring a dollar's worth of trade to America.

GUARANTY OF BANK DEPOSITS

Mr. PETTENGILL. I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PETTENGILL. Mr. Speaker, we can not stop an avalanche by riding on its tail. That is what we are doing and have been doing. The record may be summed up in three words—timid, late, futile. We have been second guessers. We have had the moratorium, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Glass-Steagall bill, the home-loan bank, the Borah national-bank-note issue, the open-market transactions, Pollyannaism, and prosperity by presidential proclamation. Previous to the crash and contributing to it, we had the tariff bill and the Farm Board. This is the clinical record. Look at the patient!

Our program, if it is worthy of that name, has been that a pound of cure is better than an ounce of prevention. So we have chased the avalanche of falling values down hill with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is perfectly manifest that we have done nothing effectual to stop the decline. How much longer can we exhaust the credit of the Nation with piecemeal measures? How long can we continue to pour the taxpayers' resources into the rat hole before we plug the leak? We can not borrow ourselves out of the depression, nor cure our malady by exchanging creditors.

Nine-tenths of wisdom consists in being right at the right time.

The Steagall bank guaranty bill passed the House on May 27, 1932. I voted for it. The big bankers of New York opposed it. In their infinite wisdom they preferred a guaranty with the English reversed. In other words they thought that with a pipe line to the Treasury—plenty of Reconstruction Finance Corporation money—they could hide in the cyclone cellar of high liquidity until the storm blew over. They threw the debtors to the lions to save the creditors. They thought when the feast was over and deflation had run its course that they could emerge from their dugouts and buy America on the auction block. It was a scheme worthy of the Napoleons of finance. Only one thing went wrong. The lions have finally turned on them.

The rank and file of the bankers of the Nation are honest and honorable men. But a few of the moguls at the top have now been proved to be what many of us have suspected for a long time—financial buzzards and moral lepers.

It is time for the honest bankers to join hands with the merchants, the manufacturers, the railroad men, and the farmers and free America from that leadership. We must not permit our bitterness against the men who have sold America down the river to color our judgment about the bankers of the Nation as a whole. There is one simple truth we must not overlook and that is that by far the overwhelming majority of bank failures has not been due to dishonest bank management, but to the melting away of the value of bank assets-their liens on farm lands, on city homes, on business properties, on leaseholds, on stocks, on bonds, on merchants' inventories, and on warehouse receipts for wheat and cotton and other commodities. These values have disappeared like snow in the spring. For example, the value of the farm land of Indiana shrank more than 50 per cent from 1920 to 1930. A 50 per cent loan in 1920 became a 100 per cent loan a few years later. Charged with faithfulness to their stewardship of the money of other people entrusted to their keeping, the average banker has felt it necessary to build up liquid reserves against a ruthless deflation of the values which were behind the deposits. This has caused restrictions on credits. We have blamed them at times, but recent events have somewhat justified their caution. In the main they have been the helpless victims of the avalanche of falling values the same as the rest of us.

The immediate objective that is fundamental in this war against depression is to stop the further decline of values by any means in our power. The second is to make people feel that their savings are safe. These two should go together. Each will assist the other. It is apparent that the psychological poultices and timid tonics we have applied have not checked the course of the disease. We must stop being medical Micawbers—waiting for something to turn up—and stake the brains, the courage, and the resources of the Nation in two grand offensives—the insurance of the savings of helpless people and the restoration of values. When we have laid these foundations we can build upon them the superstructure of a new America.

The outstanding liberal and economic prophet of this age is Justice Brandeis. He is one great man who has come through this testing time unscathed in reputation. He foresaw present conditions a decade ago, and he now says, "If we would guide by the light of reason, we must let our minds be bold."

It is men like him and not the giants of greed whom we should follow now.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. Chindblom, indefinitely, on account of illness.

SENATE BILL REFERRED

A bill of the Senate of the following title was taken from the Speaker's table and, under the rule, referred as follows:

S. 5623. An act referring the claims of the Turtle Mountain Band or Bands of Chippewa Indians of North Dakota to the Court of Claims for adjudication and settlement; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H. R. 792. An act for the relief of William Joseph Vigneault;

H. R. 1936. An act for the relief of Sydney Thayer, jr.;

H.R. 2599. An act for the relief of Henry Dixon Line-barger;

H. R. 4039. An act for the relief of Herman H. Bradford; H. R. 5150. An act for the relief of Annie M. Eopolucci;

H. R. 5548. An act for the relief of George Brackett Cargill, deceased;

H. R. 5989. An act for the relief of John O'Neil;

H. R. 6409. An act for the relief of William Joseph LaCarte;

H. R. 8120. An act for the relief of Jack C. Richardson;

H. R. 9272. An act to correct the rating of John Huntz Roloff, Fleet Naval Reserve;

H.R. 9326. An act for the relief of John E. Davidson;

H. R. 9473. An act for the relief of Olen H. Parker;

H.R. 9877. An act to repeal obsolete sections of the Revised Statutes omitted from the United States Code;

H. R. 13378. An act to amend sections 416 and 417 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia; and

H.R. 13872. An act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER announced his signature to enrolled bills and joint resolutions of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 4491. An act amending the shipping act, 1916, as amended, for the purpose of further regulating common carriers by water in interstate commerce of the United States engaged in transportation by way of the Panama Canal:

S.5469. An act to provide for the creation of the Morristown National Historical Park in the State of New Jersey, and for other purposes:

S. 5525. An act to extend temporary relief to water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes;

S. 5622. An act providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935;

S. 5675. An act to effect needed changes in the Navy ration:

S. J. Res. 235. Joint resolution amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements; and

S. J. Res. 259. Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933.

BILLS PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee did on this day present to the President, for his approval, bills and a joint resolution of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 792. An act for the relief of William Joseph Vigneault;

H.R. 1936. An act for the relief of Sydney Thayer, jr.;

H. R. 2599. An act for the relief of Henry Dixon Line-barger;

H. R. 2844. An act for the relief of Elmo K. Gordon;

H. R. 4039. An act for the relief of Herman H. Bradford;

H.R. 5150. An act for the relief of Annie M. Eopolucci;

H. R. 5548. An act for the relief of George Brackett Cargill, deceased;

H. R. 5989. An act for the relief of John O'Neil;

H. R. 7716. An act to amend the radio act of 1927, approved February 23, 1927, as amended (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 47, ch. 4), and for other purposes:

H. R. 8120. An act for the relief of Jack C. Richardson;

H. R. 9272. An act to correct the rating of John Huntz Roloff, Fleet Naval Reserve;

H. R. 9326. An act for the relief of John E. Davidson;

H. R. 9473. An act for the relief of Olen H. Parker;

H.R. 9877. An act to repeal obsolete sections of the Revised Statutes omitted from the United States Code;

H. R. 13378. An act to amend sections 416 and 417 of the Revised Statutes relating to the District of Columbia;

H. R. 13872. An act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes; and

H. J. Res. 138. Joint resolution for the relief of the State of Idaho.

RECESS

Mr. RAINEY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House now stand in recess until 8 o'clock p. m.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 5 o'clock and 37 minutes p. m.) the House stood in recess until 8 o'clock p. m.

EVENING SESSION

The recess having expired, the House was called to order at 8 o'clock p. m. by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. RAINEY].

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RAINEY). The House is

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. RAINEY). The House is in session until 10.30 p.m., for the purpose of considering Senate bills on the Private Calendar.

NAVY DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL

Mr. AYRES, from the Committee on Appropriations, submitted a conference report on the bill (H. R. 14724, Rept. No. 2190) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, for printing under the rule.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

TITLE TO CERTAIN LAND IN THE CITY OF CORPUS CHRISTI, TEX.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will call the first bill on the Private Calendar.

The Clerk called the first bill on the Private Calendar, S. 3830, to remove a cloud on the title of certain land in the city of Corpus Christi, Tex.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the Member who is in charge of the bill to give a little more explanation than is contained in the report.

Mr. KLEBERG. I will be glad to do that. In the first place, in the city of Corpus Christi there are what are known as two different chains of title. One chain of title comes down through the old Spanish grant known as E. Villareal grant: the other chain of title comes down through what is known as the State title, under State patents that were laid over a portion of the Mexican grant. There was considerable litigation over the question as to which was the superior title, all of which took place in the Federal court in Galveston. In every case the State title was held to be superior.

The United States Government has a deed to lot No. 1 in block 6, bluff portion to the city of Corpus Christi. This deed comes down through the Mexican chain of title. Mrs. Morris's title is derived through the State title, and her deed is dated August 20, 1894. The Mexican title referred to above was dated March 30, 1857. I have here inclosed two affidavits, one of Peter Benson, who was one of the oldest citizens in Corpus Christi when he executed this affidavit about a year ago. Peter Benson is now dead. You will note that he was acquainted with the property for many years and this property under discussion has been in the possession of Mrs. Morris and those under whom she claimed title since about 1879.

The situation now discloses that the Government had a lighthouse on this property at one time. It is down close to the coast. This was apparently prior to the Civil War. The sum of $200 was paid at that time for this title, but it was never used. Now, investigation through the Patent Office discloses there is no means to clear the title for this property now owned by a very old lady.

The property in question is described as lot 1, block 6, in the bluff portion of the city of Corpus Christi, Tex. On March 30, 1857, John Burnside & Co. executed a warranty deed to the United States, purporting to convey the land therein described for consideration of $200. The title to this property was approved by the Attorney General on March 29, 1858, and jurisdiction was ceded by the Governor of the State of Texas on May 11, 1857. In response to questionnaires sent to the various superintendents of lighthouses, the bureau learned that title to the property in question was being claimed by certain grantees of James Temple Doswell.

The matter was submitted to the Attorney General by the department on July 13, 1930, with the request that the case be submitted to the United States attorney of the proper judiciary district for consideration and investigation, with the view to determining what title, if any, the United States had to the property. By letter of March 6, 1931, the Attorney General reported that the paramount record owner of the fee in the site was Mrs. Caroline Morris, and that eminent-domain proceedings appeared to be necessary to gain title to the land if it is desired for use by the Govern-

The property in question was not required for lighthouse purposes, and it is recommended that the department report favorably on S. 3830 if there is no objection. The file of the bureau concerning this parcel of land is attached with request that it be returned when its purpose shall have been served.

Mr. HOPE. What claim for title has the Government to this property?

Mr. KLEBERG. The only claim the Government has is this claim dating back several years. I do not have the date, but it was prior to the Civil War. The Government's interest in this particular piece of property was for use as a lighthouse, and they paid $200 for the purpose of placing a lighthouse upon this piece of property. The right was never exercised.

Mr. HOPE. Do I understand that the present owner of the property has a record chain of title; something more than squatter rights on the property?

Mr. KLEBERG. Oh, yes. She lives on it. It is her home. Mr. HOPE. And it has been occupied by her?

Mr. KLEBERG. Occupied by her continuously and her family since 1879.

Mr. STAFFORD. Reserving the right to object, though prescription does not run against the Government. In this case she bases her right upon prescription, but she has been in possession so long I believe that the Government should waive any claim, in view of the fact that she has made very substantial improvements to the property.

Mr. KLEBERG. Yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of Commerce is authorized and directed to convey by quitclaim deed to Caroline Morris, her heirs and assigns, all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to all that parcel of land in the Bluff Portion of the city of Corpus Christi, Tex., described as lot 1, block 6, acquired through the Spanish grant known as the E. Villareal grant, by virtue of a deed dated March 30, 1857.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair desires to make a statement. The Chair is anxious to finish this calendar to-night, and reservations of objection will delay proceedings. This will be the last call. The Chair will follow the precedent set by the Speaker and demand the regular order himself.

The Clerk will call the next bill.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, there are some bills which may be passed with just a few minutes' interrogation, and some of these bills we can rush along, but there are others that can not be rushed and they are being handled so fast, Mr. Speaker, that I doubt whether the official reporters can keep up with the Clerk reading the numbers, much less those of us who watch them.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has a great deal of respect for the gentleman from Texas and will permit a few interrogations, provided he does not make them too

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I would like to propound another inquiry. There are certain bills like compensation bills and pension bills that have been passed in a particular form that seemed to be satisfactory to both Houses. For instance, the next bill is a compensation bill. Would the Speaker like to have us address the Chair and state that we are going to offer certain amendments.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Yes.

Mr. BLACK. Can we not have an understanding, Mr. Speaker, that the gentlemen who are objecting will not object, having an understanding with the committee that the form approved by the gentleman will be accepted by amendment?

Mr. STAFFORD. Well, we will make headway under the old rule, Mr. Speaker.

DAISY ANDERSON

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1978, for the relief of Daisy Anderson.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I shall not object to this bill if the author, or the gentleman in charge of the bill, will accept the usual form of bill approved by the House in such cases.

Mr. KLEBERG. I shall be glad to.

Mr. BLACK. If we do that the bill will have to go back to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. BLANTON. That will not hurt. Mr. KLEBERG. It will never get through at this late

Mr. BLANTON. It ought to come here in proper form. Mr. BLACK. We are taking up the Senate form.

Mr. BLANTON. They rewrite many bills we send over to them. Let us rewrite a few of theirs. They rewrote practically every one of the bills the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. VINSON] called up yesterday; every one of

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the United States Employees' Compensation Commission shall be, and it is hereby, authorized and directed to waive the statute of limitations in the application filed by Daisy Anderson, a former nurse in the Government service, the provision of an act entitled "An act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes," approved September 7, 1916, in order that she may receive the same consideration as though she had applied within the specified time required by law: Provided, That no benefit shall accrue prior to the enactment of this act.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Earon of Colorado: Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

"That the United States Employees Compensation Commission is hereby authorized to consider and determine, in the same manner and to the same extent as if application for the benefit of the smployees' compensation act had been made within the 1-year period required by sections 17 and 20 thereof, the claim of Daisy Anderson on account of disability due to tuberculosis contracted while employed in the service of the United States as a nurse in the United States marine hospital: Provided, That no benefit shall accrue prior to the enactment of this act."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 8207) was laid on the table.

CORNELIA CLAIBORNE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1088, for the relief of Cornelia Claiborne.

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, there are several bills of this character on the calendar, and I do not think, at this particular time, in view of the present condition of the Treasury, any of these bills should pass. Therefore, I object.

ANNA B. SLOCUM

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3191, for the relief of Anna B. Slocum.

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

GEORGE B. GATES

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4937, conferring jurisdiction in the Court of Claims to hear and determine the claim of George B. Gates.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

HAMILTON GROUNDS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 660, for the relief of Hamilton Grounds.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I shall have to object unless an amendment reducing the amount to $2,500 is accepted. This idea of paying $40 a month for a lifetime is too much altogether. I have some other amendments. If they are accepted, I shall have no objection.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Hamilton Grounds, a Walapai Indian residing on the Walapai Indian Reservation in Mohave County, residing on the Walapai Indian Reservation in Mohave County, near Valentine, Ariz., the sum of $40 per month for the remainder of his life, in full satisfaction of his claim against the United States for injuries caused by the explosion of a dynamite cap left by an employee of the United States on the grounds of the Truxton Canon Indian Boarding School at Valentine, Ariz.: Provided, That so long as the said Hamilton Grounds remains a minor such monthly payments shall be made to his guardian for the benefit of the said Hamilton Grounds. Such monthly payments shall date from the approval of this act. shall date from the approval of this act.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Page 1, line 7, strike out "$40 per month for the remainder of his life" and insert the figures "$2,500."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer a further amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: Page 2, line 2, after the ord "the," insert the following: "reservation adjoining the."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer a further amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafforn: Page 1, line 5, after the word "to," insert the following: "be held by the Bureau of Indian Affairs as a trust fund to be administered for the benefit and support of."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MAGGIE KIRKLAND

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3344, for the relief of Maggie Kirkland.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to credit the account of Maggie Kirkland, former postmaster at Chicago, Ky., with the sum of $93.50, covering a shortage in her accounts believed to be due to the destruction of paid money orders in a fire in the post office on March 25, 1924.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JOHN E. CLICK

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4372, for the relief of John E. Click.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

EXCHANGE OF CERTAIN PATENTED LANDS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4390, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to cancel patent in fee issued to Henry J. Kirn and Louise H. Kirn.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, and upon application of Henry J. Kirn and Louise H. Kirn, to cancel fee simple patent issued to them for the southwest quarter of northeast quarter section 12, township 30 north, range 50 east, principal meridian, Montana, containing 40 acres, and to cause a new trust patent to be issued to them covering the same land, of the form and legal effect as provided by the act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. 388), and amendments thereto, such patent to be effective from the date of the original trust patent, and the land shall be subject to extensions of the trust made by Executive order on other allotments of members of the same tribe: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to affect in any way the vested interests of anyone other than the persons named herein.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 11659) was laid on the table.

SAC AND FOX INDIANS OF OKLAHOMA

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4557, to authorize the addition of certain names to the final roll of the Sac and Fox Indians of Oklahoma.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to add to the final roll of the Sac and Fox Indians of Oklahoma, approved October 10, 1923, under the acts of May 25, 1918 (40 Stat. L. 591), and June 30, 1919 (41 Stat. L. 9), the names of Stella Mae Wood, Ethelyn Gladys Wood, and Vernon Pequano, recognized members of the tribe living on the effective date of the roll, but whose names were omitted therefrom through error. from through error.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 11798) was laid on the table.

HARRY E. BLOMGREN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2680, for the relief of Harry E. Blomgren.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to allow and credit in the accounts of Harry E. Blomgren, postmaster at Fort Dodge, Iowa, the sum of $26, being the amount expended by him for vehicle hire, said sum having been disallowed by the General Accounting Office.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on

A similar House bill (H. R. 6825) was laid on the table. PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2571, authorizing adjustment of the claim of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I wish to reduce this amount to $219.03. I think the claim that the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. makes for the use of the wrecking crew for eight and a half hours is rather out of the ordinary and should not be in this bill. There is a similar bill relating to the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. STAFFORD. Yes.
Mr. GRISWOLD. I intend to object to this bill.

I object, Mr. Speaker.

LESLIE JENSEN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5085, for the relief of Leslie Jensen.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, directed to allow credit in the accounts of Leslie Jensen, special disbursing agent at Aberdeen, S. Dak., for payments aggregating $66.50 made to Gerald E. Evans, a temporary employee in the Custodial Service, Treasury Department, at Fargo, N. Dak., and disallowed on certificate No. G-1781-T, dated October 3, 1931, for the reason that the appointment was not approved by the Secretary of the Treasury until June 4, 1930, which was subsequent to the date for which payment was made.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 10498) was laid on the table.

NATIONAL SURETY CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4441, authorizing adjustment of the claim of the National Surety Co.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of the National Surety Co. for refund of $500 on account of collections from the said National Surety Co. as surety on a bond dated March 12, 1917, of Ovide Robin, former postmaster at Leonville, La., in excess of the principal amount of said bond, and to allow not to exceed $500 in full and final settlement of the claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $500, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of the claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H. R. 11904) was laid on the table.

ALBERT GONZALES

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1594, for the relief of Albert Gonzales.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York and Mr. STAFFORD objected.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, in connection with this bill, I just want to call the attention of the gentleman from Wisconsin and the gentleman from New York to the fact that this boy was training at a citizens' military training camp and was diving in a swimming pool and received this injury. The Government is now asked to pay damages, and this is what I called attention to this afternoon when the House was considering the matter of appropriating $22,000,000 to place 15-year-old boys into semimilitary camps.

Mr. STAFFORD. If I slipped on a banana peel and injured my leg, would I have a claim on the Government for the rest of my life?

Mr. BLANTON. No; but if we had appropriated that $22,000,000 to-day and put eighty-eight thousand 15-yearold boys into camps, we would soon have thousands of such claims here to pay them for all sorts of disabilities.

JAMES L. PATE.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 207, for the relief of James L. Pate.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That in the administration of the pension laws James L. Pate shall hereafter be held and considered to have been honorably discharged from the military service of the United States as a private in Company A, Twelfth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, on the 20th day of September, 1862: Provided, That no pension, back pay, or bounty shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

ROBERT J. SMITH

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 1730, a bill for the relief of Robert J. Smith.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. I am going to object to this, and I ask unanimous consent to put my findings in the RECORD.

There was no objection.

FOUR-MASTED AUXILIARY BARK "QUEVILLY"

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 486, conferring jurisdiction upon certain courts of the United States to hear and determine the claim by the owner of the four-masted auxiliary bark Quevilly against the United States, and for other purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

STEAMSHIP "W. I. RADCLIFFE"

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4591, to amend the act of March 2, 1929, conferring jurisdiction upon certain courts of the United States to hear and determine the claim by the owner of the steamship W. I. Radcliffe against the United States, and for other purposes.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

MARY E. STEBBINS

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 361, an act for the relief of Mary E. Stebbins.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Mary E. Stebbins the sum of $50 per month, in an amount not to exceed $1,500, in full settlement of all claims against the Government for injuries sustained by falling over a bag of mail in the entrance of the post office at Ava, Ill.

The bill was ordered to be read the third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table, and a similar House bill was laid on the table.

ANTON W. FISCHER

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 2960, for the relief of the estate of Anton W. Fischer. Mr. STAFFORD and Mr. BACHMANN objected.

YVONNE HALE

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4379, for the relief of Yvonne Hale.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object; but I will reserve the objection.

Mr. GIBSON. May I ask the gentleman from Wisconsin the reason for his objection?

Mr. STAFFORD. There are 50 bills on the calendar similar to this one to which objection has been made for the reason that since the Rogers Act was passed, granting to the Foreign Service high salaries with retirement pay, there is no reason why we should single out the widows of certain deceased officers for a gratuity of a year's pay.

Mr. GIBSON. But that is what has been done.

Mr. STAFFORD. Prior to the Rogers Act.

Mr. GIBSON. The report shows that the State Department advises that this is in line with bills of a similar

Mr. STAFFORD. Oh, yes; the department is very generous. I object.

SAINT JOHNS BLUFF MILITARY RESERVATION, FLA.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3602, authorizing the termination of a certain contract for the sale and purchase of Saint Johns Bluff Military Reservation in Florida, and for other purposes.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, this bill was passed at the last session by being put onto a Senate bill as an amendment, which was agreed to by the House. therefore move that the bill be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

FRANCIS R. SANCHEZ

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3592, confirming the claim of Francis R. Sanchez, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the claim of Francis R. Sanchez for lands described as sections 33 and 34, township 6 south, range 18 east, and as section 5, township 1 south, range 18 east, Tallahassee meridian, Florida, embracing 4,000 acres as shown on plats of survey approved May 27, 1841, contained in report No. 2 as claim No. 25, of the commissioners of the district of east Florida (American State Papers, Duff Green edition, vol. 3, p. 643), communicated to Congress by the Treasury Department May 20, 1824, be, and the same is hereby, approved and confirmed to the equitable owners of the equitable title thereto and to their respective heirs and assigns forever: Provided, That this act shall amount only to a relinquishment of any title that the United States has, or is supposed to have, or is supposed to have had, in and to any of said lands, and shall not be construed to abridge, and to any of said lands, and shall not be construed to abridge, impair, injure, prejudice, divert, or affect in any manner whatso-ever any valid right, title, or interest of any person or body cororate whatever heretofore acquired based on a patent issued by the United States.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafford: Page 2, beginning in line 5, strike out the words "or is supposed to have had."

The amendment was agreed to, and the bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

ROBERT EMIL TAYLOR

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3543, for the relief of Robert Emil Taylor.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. HORR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman reserve his

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Yes. Mr. HORR. I would like to know what the objection is. The gentleman will find from the War Department report-

Mr. BLANTON. Oh, several of us are going to object to this, so why go on with it?

Mr. HORR. Then, I will talk to all at once. I do not suppose it will do any good.

Mr. BLANTON. The War Department says that the bill ought not to be passed.

Mr. HORR. It does not. If it does, I will not press it. The War Department says that the department in deference to that office, which is the Veterans' Bureau, ventures to make a recommendation as to the advisability of the enactment of the law.

Mr. BLANTON. Here is what Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, says:

Within the period of the World War, furloughs of indefinite duration without pay or allowances were granted to a very large number of soldiers, and the War Department is not aware of any special or peculiar merit in the case of Robert E. Taylor that would single him out for relief that is not extended to all others in the same category.

Mr. HORR. That is true. There may be that there are others who are entitled to the same thing as Mr. Taylor.

Mr. BLANTON. But we are not going to single him out from thousands of others in the same class and give him preferred treatment.

Mr. HORR. We are expected to extend relief here to anybody entitled to it. This is a court of equity.

Mr. BLANTON. Yes; and from now on it is going to be a people's court of equity, run in behalf of the people.

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. I object.

NELSON KING

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 402, for the relief of Nelson King.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in the administration of any laws con-Be it enacted, etc., That in the administration of any laws conferring rights, privileges, and benefits upon honorably discharged soldiers Nelson King, who was a member of Company A, Fifth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, shall hereafter be held and considered to have been honorably discharged from the military service of the United States as a private of that organization on the 13th day of September, 1864: Provided, That no bounty, back pay, pension, or allowance shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

MADRIGAL & CO., MANILA, P. I.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 256, authorizing adjustment of the claim of Madrigal & Co., Manila, P. I.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to allow Madrigal & Co., Manila, P. I., the sum of $420 in full and final settlement of their claim for refundment of wharfage charges collected by the Navy Department on the U. S. Buffalo, purchased by said company under the provisions of catalogue 318-b, issued by the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $420 for payment of said claim.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word. Inasmuch as this is the last night on which we will have the Private Calendar call, I think it is proper to call to the attention of the gentlemen who attend these calls the condition of the Private Calendar and make a short report as to the activity of the Committee on Claims. There were referred to the Committee on Claims 1,820 House bills and 150 Senate bills. The number of bills passed by the House up until this evening is 294. The number of bills favorably reported, 724; number of bills adversely reported, 65; number of bills still pending in committee, 1,676; number of bills in the committee's deferred list, 10.

Mr. BACHMANN. About one-third of the bills that came on the floor have been passed under this system.

Mr. BLACK. Yes.

Mr. PITTENGER. And a lot of bills were considered by the committee which the committee did not feel had any merit in them and no action was taken upon them.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLACK. Yes.

Mr. BLANTON. And the gentleman knows that we have been operating not under the new rule in vogue but under the old rule, which the House cast aside. If we had been operating under the new rule, there would not have been nearly so many passed.

Mr. BLACK. I agree that the old rule is far more workable than the new rule.

Mr. BACHMANN. And does not the gentleman think then that in the next Congress there would be a good chance to pass another rule, a workable rule, such as we are working under here, and discard the rule that we now have?

Mr. PATTERSON. Will the gentleman yield to me? Mr. BLACK. I yield.

Mr. PATTERSON. I want to say since the gentleman from New York made this report showing the extent of the work of this Committee on Claims, I think every Member, especially those Members who have attended the Private Calendar, recognize and appreciate the splendid work done by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Claims, the gentleman from New York [Mr. Black], and his efficient helpers on both sides of the House. In my humble way I want to pay my tribute to the splendid, faithful, and diligent work this committee has done during the Seventysecond Congress.

Mr. BACHMANN. And I want to add my indorsement along the same line.

Mr. PATTERSON. I am sure that is the sentiment on both sides.

The pro forma amendment was withdrawn.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JOHN T. LENNON AND GEORGE T. FLORA

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 261, authorizing adjustment of the claims of John T. Lennon and George T. Flora. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

HOLY FAMILY HOSPITAL, ST. IGNATIUS, MONT.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2941, for the relief of the Holy Family Hospital, St. Ignatius, Mont.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the sponsor of the bill if he will consent to the usual attorney's fee clause being added?

Mr. EVANS of Montana. I have no objection at all. It is a Senate bill, but I have no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

There being no objection, the Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay to the Holy Family Hospital, St. Ignatius, Mont., out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropri-ated, the sum of $8,825.66, in full satisfaction of all claims against the United States for compensation for the care by such hospital of persons admitted thereto under authority of the Flathead Indian Agency, State of Montana, prior to and including November 30, 1931.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. I offer the usual attorney's fee amendment, Mr. Speaker.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Earon of Colorado: At the end of the bill insert the following: "Provided, That no part of the amount appropriated in this act in excess of 10 per cent thereof shall be paid or delivered to or received by any agent or agents, attorney or attorneys, on account of services rendered in connection with said claim. It shall be unlawful for any agent or agents, attorney or attorneys, to exact, collect, withhold, or receive any sum of the amount appropriated in this act in excess of 10 per cent thereof on account of services rendered in connection with said claim, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $1,000."

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word.

Saturday afternoon there will leave this Congress one of the hardest working and one of the most conscientious Members of this House. I refer to our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. STAFFORD]. [Applause.]

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, a point of order. I fully agree with anything that the gentleman may say about Mr. Stafford, but what has Mr. Stafford got to do with 1931?

Mr. BLANTON. He has a lot to do with everything that goes on in this Congress.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Anything good the gentleman can say about Stafford, I second the motion. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. BLANTON. I am able to say many good things about the gentleman. Probably Mr. STAFFORD has made every man in this House mad at times. He has objected to bills that some of you may have thought he ought not object to, but he has done it conscientiously. He has served on some of the most important committees in Congress, from the Committee on Appropriations on to others, and in every bit of his work here, partisan sometimes as it may have been, he is true blue in his service to the people. I want to take my hat off to him when he goes back to Wisconsin. [Applause.]

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, in keeping with what I said, I second the motion. [Laughter and applause.]

The pro forma amendment was withdrawn.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GEORGE H. HANSEN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4440, authorizing adjustment of the claim of George H. Hansen.

There being no objection, the Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of George H. Hansen for $1,000 deposited with the former United States Commissioner Fisk as ball for Guillaume Peyran and which amount the said United States commissioner reconverted to his own use, and to allow said claim in an amount not exceeding $1,000. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $1,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of such claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

WALTER THOMAS FOREMAN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4513, for the relief of Walter Thomas Foreman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection? Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

NANNIE SWEARINGEN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 363, for the relief of Nannie Swearingen.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. PITTENGER. Will the gentleman reserve his objection for a moment?

Mr. BACHMANN. Yes; I will reserve the objection. Mr. PITTENGER. I am willing to consent to an amendment, but here is an old woman 71 years old. There is liability on the part of the Government for the death of her husband, and something ought to be paid.

Mr. BACHMANN. I wish the gentleman would point out where the liability of the Government is in this case. I have been unable to find any liability on the part of the Government. The driver of the truck was not negligent.

Mr. PITTENGER. I disagree with the gentleman's statement there.

Mr. BACHMANN. I wish the gentleman would point it out if it is there.

Mr. PITTENGER. It was pointed out before the Senate Committee on Claims.

Mr. BACHMANN. If the gentleman can show me how the Government is liable in this case I am willing that compensation should be paid, but I may say to the gentleman from Minnesota that I have read this report two or three times and I can not find where there is any negligence on the part of this driver.

Mr. PITTENGER. In this instance the truck driver ran over a pedestrian on the street.

Mr. BACHMANN. Suppose he did. Was the pedestrian to blame or was the driver to blame?

Mr. PITTENGER. I assume that the driver was to blame or the Senate committee would not have allowed damages.

Mr. BACHMANN. They may have found him responsible but there is nothing in this report upon which we can base it.

Mr. PITTENGER. If the gentleman will read page 1, he will see that, in this case, the deceased was crossing the street at a regular crosswalk. He was knocked down by a mail truck.

Mr. BACHMANN. There was no failure on the part of the truck driver. He was not driving on the left-hand side of the road. His brakes were not in bad condition.

Mr. PITTENGER. The gentleman is reading a lot of things into the report that are not there, because the gentleman will observe that the report says the truck driver failed to see the pedestrian until he collided with him. I submit to the gentleman that the Senate Claims Committee must have given consideration to that question.

Mr. BACHMANN. If the truck driver failed to see the pedestrian, there is nothing in the report to show that the pedestrian failed to see the truck coming.

Mr. PITTENGER. I was not before the Senate Committee. Let me read a little more from this report. Former Postmaster General New said:

In consideration of the result of the investigation of this case I am of the opinion that favorable consideration should be accorded the bill.

The department would not say that unless there were absolute negligence on the part of their employee. They do not do it. I have read too many of their reports.

I do not know this case; I do not know this woman, but I think it is a meritorious case and that some payment ought to be made.

Mr. BACHMANN. I am not going to permit a bill to go through contemplating payments to the extent of $5,000 unless there is some evidence of negligence on the part of the Government.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

CORINNE BLACKBURN GALE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4949, for the relief of Corinne Blackburn Gale.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

WIENER BANK VEREIN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3375, for the relief of Wiener Bank Verein.

Mr. BLANTON and Mr. BACHMANN objected.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman withhold his objection so I may incorporate in the RECORD some facts I have obtained with reference to this claim?

Mr. BLANTON. Certainly, I withhold objection to enable the gentleman to proceed.

Mr. STAFFORD. Under reservation of objection, Mr. Speaker, I ask permission to proceed for two minutes.

Mr. Speaker, a claim for a similar instance for the same claimant was included in an omnibus act passed by the Congress some years back at which time the claimant received \$10,392, being \$5,000 more than the claimant asked for interest. The claimant at that time only asked interest at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent, but the Congress voted $4\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.

Certainly we should not now recognize this claim in the full amount. I suppose this claimant is nothing more than some attorney in New York who is going to get maybe 50 per cent or 75 per cent of the amount allowed. I would be willing to pay him $10,000 after deducting these various amounts, but certainly this claimant is not entitled to $30,000. There is no showing why this claimant did not present this claim at the time he presented the original claim.

Mr. BLANTON. But now he wants $30,208.67 more. And we ought not to allow that sum to be taken out of the Treasury. We must save this $30,208.67; therefore, Mr. Speaker, I object.

EARL A. ROSS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4806, for the relief of Earl A. Ross.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I object.

FRANK P. ROSS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4807, for the relief of Frank P. Ross.

Mr. HOPE and Mr. GRISWOLD objected.

LXXVI-341

ALAMEDA BELT LINE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3443, to authorize the Secretary of War to grant a right of way to the Alameda Belt Line across the Benton Field Military Reservation, Alameda, Calif.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I have an amendment which should have been carried as a committee amendment, but through clerical error it was not. I wish to offer it at the end of the bill.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman read the amendment?

Mr. BACHMANN. The amendment reads:

Provided further, That the right to compel the removal of said railroad tracks and appurtenances is hereby reserved in the Secretary of War, whenever he may determine the interests of the Government require, and which said removal is to be without expense to the Government, as a condition of this grant.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. This should have been carried as a committee amendment.

Mr. BLANTON. And it is a good amendment.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to grant to the Alameda Belt Line, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, its successors and assigns, a permanent right of way, in such location and under such terms and conditions as may be approved by the Secretary of War, over and across the Benton Field Military Reservation, Alameda, Calif., for railroad purposes, with full power to locate, construct, and operate railroad tracks, together with necessary spurs and sidings and other railroad appurtenances, appendages, and adjuncts: Provided, That the land shall not be used for other than railroad purposes, and when the property shall cease to be so used it shall revert to the United States.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I offer a committee amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hn.L of Alabama: Page 2, line 6, strike out the period and add the following: "Provided further, That the right to compel the removal of said railroad tracks and appurtenances is hereby reserved in the Secretary of War, whenever he may determine the interests of the Government require, and which said removal is to be without expense to the Government, as a condition of this grant."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CATTERINA POLLINO

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1738, for the relief of Catterina Pollino.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Catterina Pollino the sum of $500, representing the amount deposited by her on account of an immigration bond executed by the Aetna Casualty Co., of San Francisco, Calif., conditioned upon her leaving the United States within six months after admission as a tourist, and subsequently forfeited, although said Catterina Pollino departed from the United States within the period fixed in the said bond, as extended by the immigration authorities.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

C. O. MEYER

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2990, for the relief of C. O. Meyer.

Mr. BLANTON and Mr. EATON of Colorado objected.

ELIZABETH MILLICENT TRAMMELL

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4553, for the relief of Elizabeth Millicent Trammell.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Will the gentleman reserve his objection for a moment?

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the objection for a minute.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I know it has been the gentleman's rule to object to bills of this character. Nevertheless, exceptions have been made, and if ever an exception was justified by the circumstances, I believe this is such a case.

I would like to ask the gentleman if he knows the record of the deceased and the facts of the case.

Mr. STAFFORD. I have taken the position that these bills that seek to grant a gratuity of a year's pay to the surviving relatives of those who were formerly connected with the Foreign Service, should not be enacted because there should be some legislation limiting the grant to those who are dependent and limiting the amount also to a period of six months. When Congress was considering the so-called Rogers Foreign Service reorganization bill, which passed the Congress in 1924 after it had been before it since 1920, there was no suggestion on the part of the State Department, at that time, Chief Justice Hughes being Secretary of State, to provide retirement pay annuity to widows of persons who died after they left the service.

We did provide retirement pay and we increased the pay. If it was the purpose of the State Department to grant to the widows an honorarium of six months' or one year's pay, they would have presented that on the floor when the bill was under consideration, but they did not do that.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Does not the gentleman feel that under special circumstances bills of this character are justifiable?

Mr. STAFFORD. No. Even in the last Congress I was berated most savagely by my colleague the gentleman from the fourth district of Wisconsin, when I objected to a similar bill relating to a widow in my home city, only to find out last summer that this widow had an estate of $30,000.

There should be some general legislation along this line. Let us relieve this calendar by having the Committee on Foreign Affairs bring in some general legislation.

Mr. BLANTON. And we have got to pursue the same policy here with respect to these bills.

Mr. STAFFORD. Yes; and not play favorites because some claimants have an energetic Representative.

I object, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point by inserting a brief statement with reference to this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Bill No. 1002, passed by the Senate, provides for the payment of this year's salary to the widow of H. Eric Trammell, deceased. The circumstances are as follows:

Mr. Trammell served in the American expeditionary forces and following the war was four years in numerous Government hospitals undergoing a series of operations on his hip which had been severely injured during his service in the Army. He was subsequently able to use his leg and could walk with the aid of a cane.

He entered the diplomatic service as a career man, spending two years at Guatemala as vice consul; then about one year at Caracas, Venezuela, as an assistant secretary of embassy; then finally going to Rio de Janeiro in the same capacity.

While on duty at Rio de Janeiro he was taken with appendicitis and operated on. The appendix operation was successful, but an infection later developed which resulted in his death. The infection was not unusual and the normal healthy body throws it off. We are informed by medical opinion that in Mr. Trammell's case the probability is that his physical condition was not strong enough for the reason that, even following his years in hospital beds, his injury was such that he could not build up his strength, as he was unable to take the exercise of a normal man.

He is survived by his widow and two children, boys, aged 7 and 4 years, who are now living at Cazenovia, N. Y.

SCHUTTE & KOERTING CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 215, authorizing adjustment of the claim of Schutte & Koerting Co.
Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I object.

WILLIAM RAY TAPLIN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 855, for the relief of William Ray Taplin.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. WIGGLESWORTH. Will the gentleman withhold his objection a moment?

Mr. STAFFORD. Yes; I will reserve the objection for a moment.

Mr. WIGGLESWORTH. Would the gentleman be good enough to state the basis of his objection to this bill? It seems to me these are very exceptional circumstances, and the bill has the blessing not only of the Senate but of the House Committee on Claims and the Secretary of War, who states specifically in a letter addressed to Senator Reed, "While the War Department ordinarily opposes relief legislation for the benefit of individuals as a class, the instant case is considered meritorious," and recommends the enactment of the proposed legislation.

Mr. STAFFORD. As I recall this case, the claimant seeks pay for the grade that he occupied after he had received his first hospitalization. After an interim elapsed he received a second hospitalization. The law does not accord to any person in the service, reserve officer and the like, pay of the grade after they have been dismissed from their first hospitalization. If this is going to be the policy, let us enact it in a general law, and not single out an officer who has an alert Representative who can get the ear of the committee to report these cases. We have not recognized this principle, and we should not at this late hour.

I object, Mr. Speaker.

FIRST CAMDEN NATIONAL BANK & TRUST CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2349, for the relief of the First Camden National Bank & Trust Co., of Camden, N. J. Mr. BLANTON and Mr. BACHMANN objected.

NEWPORT CONTRACTING & ENGINEERING CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4738, for the relief of the Newport Contracting & Engineering Co.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the Newport Contracting & Engineering Co., of Lee Hall, Va., out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $2,490 in full settlement for penalty imposed for delay in completing contract Noy-673 dated October 25, 1929, with the Navy Department for submarine escape practice tank.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

VICTORIA ARCONGE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4024, authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Interior to cancel patent in fee issued to Victoria Arconge.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection a moment?

Mr. GRISWOLD. Yes.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. May I inquire if the gentleman is acquainted with the facts set forth in the memorandum of the department?

Mr. GRISWOLD. Yes.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. And still feels disposed to Mr. GRISWOLD. Yes, on the ground that I feel the same way as the Secretary of the Department of the Interior about the matter.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Does the gentleman realize that this patent was issued when she held a restricted patent which would not have expired until 1930, and that as soon as the act of 1927 was passed she applied for a cancellation of that patent and she is strictly within her rights?

Mr. GRISWOLD. That is not what the Secretary of the Interior says about it.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Yes: it is stated in the Rhoads memorandum, which is dated June 17, 1932, that the patent was issued in 1916, upon the recommendation of the competency commission and she never accepted the patent and in 1927, when this act was enacted which authorized cancellation of these patents, she asked for a cancellation.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Does the gentleman mean to say that she never accepted the patent issued in 1916?

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Never; it was never put on

Mr. GRISWOLD. I withdraw my objection.

Mr. HOPE. I object, Mr. Speaker.

CITY OF SAN DIEGO, CALIF.

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 5555, to authorize an exchange of lands between the city of San Diego and the United States.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. Considering that the gentleman from California has already gotten for San Diego to-day 189,940 acres of public land, I object.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. BLANTON. I will.

Mr. WOODRUFF. May I say that the relation of the Navy Department with the city of San Diego has been the most unusual of any relation between any department of this Government and any city in this country. The city of San Diego has in the past given the Navy very much more than has been given to the Navy or any other department by the other great cities.

Mr. BLANTON. And what has she received in return?

Mr. WOODRUFF. The thanks of the Navy and, I hope, of the Nation.

Mr. BLANTON. Is that all?

Mr. WOODRUFF. No; of course it is not all. I want to show some things that the city has done for the Navy. She not only has given the Navy half of her entire water-

Mr. BLANTON. And the Government has made San Diego, by spending public money there.

Mr. WOODRUFF. No; the climate has made San Diego. She has given the Navy one-half of her entire waterfront, and now she wants in return some lands which are necessary to complete her municipal flying field. She wants to turn over to the Government 242 acres of precisely the same kind of land. Further, she wants to give to the Navy nearly a whole city block in the business section of the city, all in return for 67 acres of tidewater land that she wants for her field.

Mr. BLANTON. And this afternoon, at the request of the gentleman from California [Mr. Swing], this House gave her 189,960 acres of public land—but not with my vote.

Mr. WOODRUFF. This Congress gave that land to the State of California to be used for a State park, land that was not suitable for any other purpose.

Mr. BLANTON. So that the soldier boys could not enter it and take it up. It had enough value to make California

Mr. WOODRUFF. That land was not worth 50 cents an acre for agricultural purposes, but that has nothing to do with this bill.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOODRUFF. Yes.
Mr. STAFFORD. As I read the letter from the Secretary of the Navy, I was under the impression that the land that was to be given in exchange was of more value than the marsh lands that the city wants.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Infinitely more. Mr. BLANTON. Whenever you find anybody that is going to give anything of value to the Government more than they receive, you had better look out.

Mr. WOODRUFF. I want to remind my friend that San Diego has treated the Navy personnel better than any other city. Her treatment of the enlisted personnel should be an example for other cities to follow.

Mr. BLANTON. The gentleman is on the Naval Affairs Committee?

Mr. WOODRUFF. I am.

Mr. BLANTON. And the gentleman has traveled extensively?

Mr. WOODRUFF. I have traveled some.

Mr. BLANTON. Has he been to all the navy yards and naval stations?

Mr. WOODRUFF. Not to all, but I hope to see them all in the future.

Mr. BLANTON. Has the gentleman been to San Diego? Mr. WOODRUFF. Yes; and during the time I was there I worked harder than I ever worked in any other city. I was there to inspect the naval activities, and I became thoroughly acquainted with them.

Mr. BLANTON. Oh, I am sure of that, because the gengentleman works hard here, and is most valuable, but his ideas about just a few things like this bill all of the time are not sound.

Mr. WOODRUFF. The gentleman may think they are not, but in this instance I think he will agree that they are. We want to transfer to the city of San Diego 67 acres of tidewater land, land that is covered with water when the tide is in. They want to fill that in and round out their air

Mr. BLANTON. I will agree to give them the tidewater and keep the land.

Mr. WOODRUFF. Let me say that the city of San Diego in turn gives four times as much of the same kind of land and in addition to that nearly a whole city block of very valuable land.

Mr. RAMSPECK. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT PROPERTY IN ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5660, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell certain Government property in St. Louis, Mo.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of 'the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered, in his discretion, to sell to the city of St. Louis, Mo., the appraisers' stores site and building, at Third and Olive Streets, in the said city, at fair market value, at such time and upon such terms and conditions as he may deem to be to the best interests of the United States, and to convey such property to the city of St. Louis by usual quitclaim deed: Provided, That the site and building shall remain in the custody and control of the United States and shall be occupied by the United States without payment of rent until such time as the new Federal building at St. Louis, in which the present Government activities in the appraisers' stores building are to be housed, is completed and occupied and the present appraisers' stores site and building are no longer required for any of the activities of the United States Government: And provided further, That the proceeds of such sale shall be deposited in the Treesury as miscellaneous receipts in accordance with the provisions of section 5 of the act entitled "An act to provide for the construction of certain public buildings, and for other purposes," approved May 25, 1926.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time was read the

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

WILLIAM H. HOLMES

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 465, for the relief of William H. Holmes.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed, in the settlement of the accounts of William H. Holmes, former disbursing clerk, United States Veterans' Bureau (now Veterans' Administration), Washington, D. C., to allow credit in the amount of $3,607.07, said sum representing payments made to guardians or other representatives authorized to receive same on behalf of beneficiaries of the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: At the end of line 10, insert "Provided, That as to any part thereof the payment of which has been secured by surety bond, credit is not to be

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the amendment to say this. I wonder if the gentleman has taken into consideration the fact that in case there is a surety bond, that the surety, if it has to pay, will get right after this fellow who did it, and he will not get any relief to that extent. If you want to give the man relief you can not give him relief even though he has a surety bond. Every time they have to pay, they get right after the officer and make him pay it back.

Mr. STAFFORD. I looked into this matter very carefully, and I think the amendment should be adopted.

The amendment was agreed to; and the bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

PLAYA DE FLOR LAND & IMPROVEMENT CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3477, for the relief of the Playa de Flor Land & Improvement Co.

Mr. BLANTON. I object. This bill involves $224,000.

P. F. GORMLEY CO.

The Clerk called the next business, Senate Joint Resolution 197, conferring jurisdiction on the Court of Claims to render findings of fact in the claim of P. F. Gormley Co.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I must object unless the Member in charge of the bill will agree to accept certain amendments.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I am authorized to say for the gentleman who has charge of the bill, who stepped out for a moment, that he will accept any reasonable amendment.

Mr. HOPE. The amendment I have in mind is to limit the court to a consideration only of a dispute as to the price of the steel and not the other matters that are included.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. I should be glad to accept that amendment and take the responsibility for it.

Mr. STAFFORD. And I have some amendments to offer. In line 1, page 2, strike out the word "fully" and insert the word "equitably," and after the word "stated" in line 13, insert "with the right on the part of the Government to present and legal and equitable set-offs and defenses."

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. That is satisfactory.

Mr. STAFFORD. Then, at the end of the last line, to insert "but without any allowance for interest on the determined amount of damages prior to its rendition."

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Oh, does the gentleman think that that is quite fair?

Mr. STAFFORD. We are not going to allow these old claimants to keep on piling up interest, delaying the submission of their claims after they have been outlawed so that they can not go before the Court of Claims. It puts a premium upon delay.

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. I am sure the gentleman has confidence in the next President of the United States. When he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in his report to Congress he said:

I gave Mr. Gormley a hearing and from the statement made by him I am convinced of the justice and equity of his claim.

Mr. STAFFORD. I do not doubt that. I am trying only to safeguard the interest on these claims. I have been incorporating this character of amendment in many other bills of a similar import, and I think it should be incorporated

Mr. COCHRAN of Missouri. Oh, rather than have the gentleman object to the bill I shall accept the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the Court of Claims of the United States, notwithstanding the lapse of time or any statute of limitations, to hear the claim of P. F. Gormley Co. for payment at the contract price of $106 per ton for structural steel furnished and used in the performance of its contract No. 2304 with the Navy Department, dated March 10, 1917, for construction of structural shop building at the navy yard, Philadelphia, Pa., for such amount as will fully compensate said company for said steel not in excess of the price aforesaid; and also claims for damages or extra costs occasioned by orders of the Navy Department requiring the contractor to pay wages at rates fixed by war-time wage boards; by the commandeering of contractor's labor for use on war-time work considered more urgent; for increased costs due to extend period of performance necessitated by war-time conditions and war orders, including wages at rates higher than when the contract was made, delay in shipments, demurrage, and other extra costs necessarily incurred by the contractor without fault or neglect on its part but due to one or all of the circumstances stated, and to render findings of fact, and to report such findings of fact to Congress.

With the following committee amendment:

With the following committee amendment:

Page 2, line 14, strike out the words "to report" and insert the rord "upon" and strike out the word "Congress" and insert render judgment." word

The committee amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hope: Line 3, page 2, beginning with the word "and," strike out all of lines 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13, down to and including the word "stated."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: Page 2, line 1, strike out the word "fully" and insert the word "equitably."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STAFFORD: Page 2, line 15, after the word "judgment," insert "but without any allowance for interest on the determined amount for damages prior to its rendition."

The amendment was agreed to.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Stafford: Page 2, line 2, after the word "aforesaid," insert "with the right on the part of the Government to present any legal and equitable set-offs and defenses."

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

The title was amended to read: "Joint resolution conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims in the claim of P. F. Gormley Co."

CERTAIN LAND IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5537, to convey certain land in the county of Los Angeles, State of California.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, with the agreement that this money is to be covered into the general fund of the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. I shall not object.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. The House bill carried that provision, or, rather, provided that the money should be paid to the Government, with no special provision that it should be covered into any special fund.

Mr. BLANTON. The War Department never turns loose of a dollar. Whenever it sells a piece of land it always seeks to keep its hold on the money and has it placed in its post military construction fund.

Mr. McSWAIN. The post military construction fund.

Mr. BLANTON. Yes. Now, this money ought to be turned back into the general fund of the United States Treasury. If the gentleman will agree that that amendment may be passed and kept in the bill in the final hours of Congress, I shall not object.

Mr. McSWAIN. The Senate bill does have that provision in it. The last paragraph of the Senate bill contains that provision. I could not keep faith with the gentleman and deny that.

Mr. BLANTON. Oh, this Senate bill provides it shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of a fund known as the military post construction fund.

Mr. McSWAIN. That is what I just told the gentleman. Mr. BLANTON. Then the War Department can spend it whenever it gets ready, and I am tired of the War Department doing things like that. I object to the bill.

Mr. HILL of Alabama. Will the gentleman withhold his objection? The gentleman can move to strike out section 2 of the bill.

Mr. BLANTON. Well, we are going to be tied up, and the chairman of the committee can come in here and ask to adopt the conference report and move the previous question. If the chairman will assure us that he will protect us in keeping that clause out of this bill I shall not object.

Mr. McSWAIN. It will remain out or there will not be any legislation, as far as I am concerned.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection? There was no objection.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the preamble and the whereases, so that they will not have to

The motion was agreed to.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to convey to the county of Los Angeles the hereinafter-described land, exclusive of such structures thereon which may be designated by the Secretary of War for retention by the War Department with a view to their eventual removal from the premises, to be used for public park, playground, and recreation purposes only, on condition that should the land not be used for that purpose it shall revert to the United States:

Provided, however, That the county of Los Angeles, State of California, pay to the United States of America the sum of $55.655, the amount originally paid by the Government on the purchase price of said property, which property is particularly described as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land, together with all buildings thereon, situate, lying, and being in the city of Arcadia, county of Los Angeles, and State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit: Lot 4 of tract numbered 949 ticularly described as follows, to wit: Lot 4 of tract numbered 949 as delineated upon the map of said tract recorded in book 17 of maps, at page 13, records of Los Angeles County, and lots 3, 4, 5, and 6 of tract No. 2409 as delineated upon the map of said tract, recorded in book 23 of maps, at page 23, records of Los Angeles County. The land intended to be conveyed by this deed is bounded on the north by Falling Leaf Avenue, on the east by Santa Anita Avenue, on the south by Huntington Drive and by land now owned by Clara Baldwin Stocker, and on the west by the rights of way of Pacific Electric Railroad Co. and Southern Pacific Railroad Co., and being all of the land claimed or owned by the grantor within the exterior bounds of Arcadia balloon field. Sec. 2. That the amount received from the county of Los

SEC. 2. That the amount received from the county of Los Angeles, State of California, for the land above described shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the fund known as the military post construction fund, to be and remain available until expended for permanent construction at military posts in such amounts as may be authorized by law from time to time by the Congress.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BLANTON: On page 3 of the Senate bill, in line 12, after the word "Treasury," strike out the remainder of the bill and insert "of the United States as miscellaneous

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

COLONIAL REALTY CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5382, providing for an exchange of lands between the Colonial Realty Co. and the United States, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I object.

Mr. HAWLEY. Will the gentleman reserve his objection?

Mr. GRISWOLD. I will.

Mr. HAWLEY. The Colonial Realty Co. purchased of the United States on the Klamath irrigation project certain tracts of land and paid $125,000 in cash for it. The land, according to the showing of the Government plats and surveys, was good land. It had a crop on it. There were between 300 and 400 acres in crop in 1918. That year they added 320 acres more to the cultivable land. Then the Government turned the water in on the project generally. The water overflowed the canals and took out the county bridges.

Mr. BLANTON. And the department recommends the hill?

Mr. HAWLEY. Yes. The water, having been there some years, has raised black and white alkali and devastated the whole area. It is of no value any further. The Secretary of the Interior thoroughly investigated this and suggested this exchange.

They will take new lands in the same project. They have already paid $30 water charge on the lands they have. They will now pay $60 water charge on the lands they get.

Mr. GRISWOLD. The understanding I get is that the Colonial Realty Co. received this land from the Government and that it was good land.

Mr. HAWLEY. It was good, but the Government turned the water on and overflowed it.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Water in an irrigation project?

Mr. HAWLEY. And it is badly flooded at times when they ought to be putting in crops. There are large areas under water, and the rest is covered over with white alkali raised from the ground.

Mr. GRISWOLD. And now they want to trade this unproductive land to the Government in exchange for productive land, and as I understand the bill they will apply the assessments they have already paid on this land to the productive land. Is not that in the bill, too?

Mr. HAWLEY. They will pay $60 for the water on the new land. The Government ruined this land for them.

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. It was the fault of the Government that this land was ruined.

Mr. GRISWOLD. They are applying the amount already paid and which will be realized from that on the other land.

Mr. HAWLEY. They will pay $60 more on the new land. Mr. GRISWOLD. The part I object to is the application of what they have already paid on the new land.

Mr. Speaker, I object.

MARY BYRKETT SINKS

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5208, for the relief of Mary Byrkett Sinks.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of Mary Byrkett Sinks as reimbursement of and settle the claim of Mary Byrkett Sinks as reimbursement of costs to her in raising the grade of her lot in Troy, Ohio, made necessary through the action of the United States in raising the grade of an adjoining post-office building site, and to allow not to exceed $175 in full and final settlement of said claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $175, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for payment of the claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table. A similar bill (H. R. 14347) was laid on the table.

MANOB SURIYA

The Clerk called Senate Joint Resolution 134, authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Manob Suriya, a citizen of Siam.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the Senate joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit Manob Suriya to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point: Provided, That no expense shall be caused to the United States thereby, and that Manob Suriya shall agree to comply with all regulations for the police and discipline of the Academy, to be studious, and to give his utmost efforts to accomplish the courses in the various departments of instruction, and that said Manob Suriya shall not be admitted to the Academy until he shall have passed the mental and physical examinations prescribed for candidates from the United States, and that he shall be immediately withdrawn if deficient in studies or in conduct and so recommended by the academic board: Provided further, That in the case of said Manob Suriya the provisions of sections 1320 and 1321 of the Revised Statutes shall be suspended.

The Senate joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JULIO RODRIGUEZ ARREA

The Clerk called Senate Joint Resolution 178, authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Julio Rodriguez Arrea, a citizen of Costa Rica.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the Senate joint resolution, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit Julio Rodriguez Arrea to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point: Provided, That no expense shall be caused to the United States thereby, and that Julio Rodridguez Arrea shall agree to comply with all regulations for the police and discipline of the academy, to be studious, and to give his utmost efforts to accomplish the courses in the various departments of instruction, and that said Julio Rodriguez Arrea shall not be admitted to the academy until he shall have passed the mental and physical examinations prescribed for candidates from the United States and that he shall be immediately withdrawn if deficient in studies or in conduct and so recommended by the academic board: Provided further, That in the case of said Julio Rodriguez Arrea the provisions of sections 1320 and 1321 of the Revised Statutes shall be suspended.

The Senate joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

TISHENG VEN

The Clerk called Senate Joint Resolution 179, authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Tisheng Yen, a citizen of China.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman from New York [Mr. Bloom] assure us that this young man is a real Chinaman and loyal to China?

Mr. BLOOM. Oh, certainly. This young man is the son of the present Chinese representative of the Chinese Government at Geneva.

Mr. BLANTON. I shall not object to this bill.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the joint resolution as follows:

Senate Joint Resolution 179

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized to permit Tisheng Yen to receive instruction at the United States Military Academy at West Point: Provided, That no expense shall be caused to the United States thereby, and that Tisheng Yen shall agree to comply with all regulations for the police and discipline of the academy, to be studious, and to give his utmost efforts to accomplish the courses in the various departments of instruction, and that said Tisheng Yen shall not be admitted to the academy until he shall have passed the mental and physical examinations prescribed for candidates from the United States, and that he shall be immediately withdrawn if deficient in studies or in conduct and so recommended by the academic board: Provided further, That in the case of said Tisheng Yen the provisions of sections 1320 and 1321 of the Revised Statutes shall be suspended.

The joint resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

NAVAL RADIO STATION AT SAVANNAH, GA.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2374, to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Navy to convey by gift to the city of Savannah, Ga., the naval radio station, the buildings and apparatus, located upon land owned by said city.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I was going to object to this bill, but the sponsor of the bill, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Parker] wanted to make a statement in regard to it. My reason for objecting is that there is nothing appearing in the report as to why the Government should make a donation of this $12,000 worth of property. Perhaps there is some good reason for it that the gentleman from Georgia can explain.

Mr. PARKER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, the Navy Department constructed this naval radio station on land that is owned by the city of Savannah. At the time the radio station was built, the Navy Department entered into a solemn agreement with the city of Savannah that when the property was no longer useful to the Navy for its purposes, title to the property would revert to the city of Savannah.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Does the gentleman refer to the title to the structures that were put upon it?

Mr. PARKER of Georgia. Yes; they constructed the buildings on land owned by the city of Savannah and established this radio station there. Now, they say they have no further use for it, and in view of the contract they entered into with the city, they are attempting to carry out this agreement.

Mr. BACHMANN. How long did the Government use the property?

Mr. PARKER of Georgia. Since 1920.

Mr. BACHMANN. And they have had the use of the property without the payment of any rental?

Mr. PARKER of Georgia. Yes; so far as I know, no rental was paid.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. This being in fulfilment of an agreement, I shall not object.

Mr. PARKER of Georgia. The bill has the approval of the Navy Department and of both legislative committees.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That if and when the naval radio station at Savannah, Ga., is no longer required for naval purposes, the Secretary of the Navy is authorized and directed to convey by gift, to the city of Savannah, State of Georgia, the said naval radio station, which radio station is located on land belonging to the city of Savannah, together with all the buildings and apparatus thereof; but no expense shall be caused the United States hereunder.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

FLATHEAD INDIAN RESERVATION, MONT.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2393, to provide for the addition of the names of certain persons to the final roll of the Indians of the Flathead Indian Reservation, Mont., and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to add to the final roll of the Indians of the Flathead Indian Reservation, Mont., approved January 22, 1920, under the act of May 25, 1918 (40 Stat. L. 591), and the act of June 30, 1919 (41 Stat. L. 9), the names of the following persons, descendants of the confederated Flathead Tribes of Indians: Joseph Russell Bird, Daniel Lawrence Pablo, Valerie Roullier, Henry Roullier, jr., Julia Roullier, Laura Soucie, Blanche Soucie, Joseph Soucie, Julie Soucie, Rose Marie Soucie, and Audra Jane Martin. The Secretary of the Interior is also authorized to pay each of the persons named a sum equal to that heretofore paid per capita to those whose names were upon the approved roll, and to allot each of these persons except Audra Jane Martin the same area of land allotted to children of the Flathead Reservation enrolled upon the final roll, such payments to be made from any tribal funds in the Treasury to the credit of the Flathead Indians, the allotments to be made from any available tribal unallotted lands of the Flathead Reservation.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

COLONIAL REALTY CO.

Mr. HAWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to return to Calendar No. 1051, the bill (S. 5382) providing for an exchange of lands between the Colonial Realty Co. and the United States, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I have some amendments to offer to the bill.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what are the proposed amendments?

Mr. GRISWOLD. To strike out sections 2 and 3. Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say I had some question myself as to whether we should grant to this Colonial Realty Co. credit for construction work on their original allotment.

Mr. HAWLEY. That is to be stricken out.

There being no objection, the clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That upon execution and delivery by the Colonial Realty Co. of a deed conveying to the United States, title in fee, free of incumbrance, to approximately 1,420 acres of seeped and unproductive lands, as determined by the Secretary of the Interior, in sections 20, 21, 22, 25, 27, 28, 31, 32, 33, and 34, township 39 south, and section 3 of township 40 south, range 9 east, ship 39 south, and section 3 of township 40 south, range 9 east, Willamette meridian, Oregon, Klamath project, or to such portion thereof as said company may elect so to convey, the said Secretary is hereby authorized and directed to issue a patent to the Colonial Realty Co., conveying to said company title to approximately an equivalent amount of public lands on the Tule Lake division of the Klamath project in Oregon-California to be selected and designated by said company from available lands in that division: Provided, That in order to avoid the expense of additional surveys, and since many of the tracts to be conveyed to the United States are designated as lots by public-land surveys and for this reason the subdivisions contain areas both less than and in excess of legal subdivision, the areas conveyed to the Government excess of legal subdivision, the areas conveyed to the Government and the areas patented by the Government need be only approximately of the same acreage: Provided further, That should any legal subdivision of the lands herein described consist of more than 50 per cent of unproductive land the whole subdivision may, at the option of said company, be conveyed to the United States, with the right of exchange of an equivalent area as herein authorized.

SEC. 2. That all charges heretofore paid on account of construction and operation and maintenance on the unproductive lands to be conveyed to the United States shall be credited upon the unpaid construction and operation and maintenance charges payable on account of the productive lands, if any, of said Colonial Realty Co. situate within the boundaries of the Klamath irrigation district retained by said company. Should such credits be more than sufficient to pay all construction and operation and maintenance charges accrued and unpaid at the time of conveyance against the productive area retained by said company in the Klamath irrigation district, such excess credits shall be transferred to the irrigable lands in the Tule Lake division patented by the Secretary of the Interior to said company as herein authorized.

SEC. 3. The Klamath irrigration district, upon agreeing to the SEC. 2. That all charges heretofore paid on account of construc-

SEC. 3. The Klamath irrigration district, upon agreeing to the exchange of lands and transfer of credits herein authorized, shall be credited by the United States with all amounts heretofore paid be credited by the United States with all amounts heretofore paid by it on account of the construction and operation and main-tenance charges assessed against unproductive lands in said dis-trict conveyed by the company to the United States under author-ity of this act, and the district shall be relieved of the payment to the United States of any further construction or operation and maintenance charges on account of the land so conveyed.

SEC. 4. The water-right charges payable by said company or its successor on the Tule Lake lands patented pursuant to this act shall be the same as those fixed for similar lands in that district and shall be subject to payment in the same manner, subject to the allowance of credits as herein authorized. Such credits shall be applied in reduction of the construction charge fixed for the Tule Lake division.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I move that sections 2 and 3 be stricken out.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Griswold: On page 2, line 21, strike out all of sections 2 and 3.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. GRISWOLD. Mr. Speaker, I offer a further amendment, after the word "manner" in line 2, page 4, insert a period and strike out the remainder of the section.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Griswold: Page 4, line 2, after the word "manner," strike out the remainder of the paragraph and change the numbering of the sections.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on

A similar House bill (H. R. 14127) was laid on the table. EXCHANGE OF LAND ON THE FORT HALL INDIAN SCHOOL RESERVE. IDAHO

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4510, to authorize exchange of small tribal acreage on the Fort Hall Indian School reserve in Idaho for adjoining land.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized, in his discretion, to arrange and effect an even exchange with the owner of the west half southeast quarter northeast quarter section 2, township 5 south, range 34 east, Boise meridian, in Idaho, former irrigable allotment No. 175 on the Fort Hall Indian Reservation, in Idaho, in which the 175 on the Fort Hall Indian Reservation, in Idaho, in which the United States will require, in trust for the Fort Hall Indians, title to that part of the 20 acres above described lying east of the right of way of the Oregon Short Line Railroad, in consideration for a deed from the said Secretary of the Interior, which he is hereby authorized to execute, for that part of the west half northeast quarter southeast quarter said section 2 lying west of the said Oregon Short Line Railroad right of way, subject to all existing rights of way.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

THOMAS BIRD

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 251, authorizing adjustment of the claim of the estate of Thomas Bird, deceased.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to settle and adjust the claim of the estate of Thomas Bird, deceased, in the adjust the claim of the estate of Thomas Bird, deceased, in the sum of $1,917.39 representing the value of wheat requisitioned and taken by the United States Grain Corporation during the World War, the said amount having been covered into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts, and to allow said claim in the amount not exceeding $1,917.39. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $1,917.39 for the payment of this claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

TRANSFER OF CERTAIN LANDS IN BERNALILLO COUNTY, N. MEX.

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4818, an act to authorize the transfer of certain lands in Bernalillo County, N. Mex., to the city of Albuquerque, N. Mex.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to transfer to the city of Albuquerque, Bernalillo County, State of New Mexico, all the right, title, and interest of the United States in and to certain lands in Bernalillo County, N. Mex. (being a strip of land 30 feet wide on the east, south, and west boundaries of the Veterans' Administration hospital reservation at Albuquerque), described as Beginning at a point located on the western boundary of section 36, township 10 north, range 3 east, New Mexico principal meridan, said point being approximately 136.35 feet south of the northwest corner of said section 36; thence in an easterly direction along a line having a bearing of south 69° 8′ 53′ east to a tion along a line having a bearing of south 69° 8′ 53″ east to a point located on the southern boundary line of Ridgecrest Drive extended, said point being 30 feet east of the western boundary of section 36; thence south along a line parallel to the western boundary of section 36 and having a bearing of south 0° 12′ 54″ west a distance of approximately 5,115.84 feet to a point 30 feet east of the western boundary and 30 feet north of the southern boundary of said section 36; thence east along a line parallel to the southern boundary of section 36 and having a bearing of south 89° 51′ 54″ east a distance of approximately 5,245.11 feet to a point which is located 30 feet north of the southern boundary and 30 feet west of the eastern boundary of said section 36; thence north which is located 30 feet north of the southern boundary and 30 feet west of the eastern boundary of said section 36; thence north along a line parallel to the eastern boundary of section 36 and having a bearing of north 0° 23′ 25′′ west a distance of approximately 3,149.95 feet to a point which is located on the southern boundary of Ridgecrest Drive; thence easterly along the said boundary having a bearing south 69° 8′ 53″ east a distance of approximately 32.19 feet to a point which is located on the eastern boundary of section 36; thence south along the east boundary of section 36 to the southeast corner of said section; thence west along the southern boundary of section 36 to the southwest corner of said section; thence north along the west boundary of section 36 to the point of beginning.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill was laid on the table.

GRANTING FRANKING PRIVILEGE TO GRACE GOODHITE COOLINGE

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 5387, granting a franking privilege to Grace Goodhue

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, being mistress of the White House and the leading lady of the land is honor enough for any woman. I have invariably objected to granting a pension or any special privilege to the widows of deceased Presidents, and I object.

Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. I yield.

Mr. STAFFORD. I want to say-

Mr. BLANTON. Let me say that when the news that President Harding had died came over the wire, at 3 o'clock in the morning, I got up, went down town, and sent Mr. Coolidge a telegram of warm congratulations.

I think he was one of the greatest men the country has produced, but I am thinking of all the other widows in the United States. I do not believe in singling out one widow for special privilege, or widows who are rich getting a pension, and leaving other widows overlooked.

Mr. STAFFORD. I want to call the attention of the gentleman to the fact that every widow of a President since President Garfield's time has been granted the franking privilege.

Mr. BLANTON. Only by pushing it over, not by unanimous consent. For 16 years I have never let one go by on unanimous consent. I am outvoted lots of times. I voted to-day against the giving away of 189,940 acres of public lands to California, and the House voted to give it away, but that does not make it right and proper.

Mr. STAFFORD. It occurs to me that the basic reason for granting the franking privilege to the widows of Presidents is that because of the fact that they are the widows of Presidents their mail is very largely increased.

Mr. BLANTON. Oh, their mail is not increased very much or for very long after they become widows. The gentleman when he goes home will get some mail for about six months and then he will not get any more congressional mail.

Mr. STAFFORD. I hope I do not get any after March 4. Mr. BLANTON. Of course Mrs. Coolidge will have some friends who will write to her, but the little postage that she would save by this would not amount to more than $10 a year, but it is a special privilege other widows do not enjoy. The mistress of the White House is picked out and given this privilege for all of her life, when all other widows do not have it. I am in favor of treating all alike.

Mr. STAFFORD. The gentleman recognizes the fact that Calvin Coolidge's life was shortened by the conscientious service he gave to the Nation, which service is not compensable in money.

Mr. BLANTON. Oh. I just said that the gentleman did not have any greater regard for Mr. Coolidge than I had.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order. Mr. PATTERSON. Since I am the one who looked into this matter originally, I think I ought to be privileged to say something.

Mr. RANKIN. I withdraw the demand for the regular

Mr. PATTERSON. I remember when the same question came up with respect to the widow of the late Mr. Taft. I rose at that time and made some inquiry.

Mr. BLANTON. And I objected also to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson getting either this privilege or a pension?

Mr. MARTIN of Oregon. Did the gentleman object to Martha Washington getting this privilege?

Mr. BLANTON. No; but I am going to object to Martha Washington the third whenever she comes in here.

Mr. PATTERSON. I think it will do no harm to hear what I have to say for a moment. I remember when the privilege for Mrs. Taft came up. I rose and made some inquiry about it. That bill was passed by unanimous consent. When this matter came before the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads it was investigated by the committee, and the committee came to the conclusion that since this had been done with others it seemed only right to do it in this case. The gentleman from Texas says that this is a special privilege when as a matter of fact everyone in the same class has received the same privilege. This comes with a unanimous report from the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

Mr. BLANTON. Does not the gentleman know that lots of things have been going on here that the people want stopped, and that that is the reason a change was made?

Mr. PATTERSON. Oh, I could tell some of them, too, but I am not going to do it now.

Mr. BLANTON. And the gentleman has helped some of them to be greased along.

Mr. PATTERSON. Oh, not any more so than the gentleman from Texas.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

SADIE L. KIRBY

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5325, for the relief of Sadie L. Kirby.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to issue a patent to Sadie I., Kirby, of Silver City, N. Mex., for the east half of section 35, township 15 south, range 18 west, New Mexico principal meridian, embraced in her additional entry (Las Cruces serial 040099) under the stock-raising homestead act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

WILLIAM M. SHERMAN

The Clerk read the next bill, S. 3334, for the relief of William M. Sherman.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc. That in the administration of the pension laws William M. Sherman, who served as a private in the following organizations, shall hereafter be held and considered to have been organizations, shall hereafter be held and considered to have been honorably discharged from the military service of the United States as a member of Troop A, Eighth Regiment United States Cavalry, on the 18th day of May, 1900, and from Company I, Eighth Regiment United States Infantry, on the 7th day of March, 1901: Provided, That no bounty, pension, pay, or other emoluments shall be held to have accrued prior to the passage of this act.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

WILLIAM RAY TAPLIN

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to prefer a unanimous-consent request. Earlier in the evening I objected to the bill (S. 855) for the relief of William Ray Taplin. Since then the gentleman from Massachusetts has shown me a letter written by the claimant which shows that while there was interruption in the hospitalization, it was practically continuous. If it had been continuous he would be entitled to the amount claimed in the bill. I ask unanimous consent to return to the bill to withdraw my objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War is authorized to pay, out of the appropriation "Organized Reserves, 1933," to William Ray Taplin, first lieutenant, United States Air Corps Reserve, the sum of $425.16, in full satisfaction of his claim against the United States for pay and allowances from November 12, 1929, to November 26, 1929, and from January 2, 1930, to February 3, 1930, the periods during which the said William Ray Taplin was receiving further medical treatment at a Government hospital in competion with injuries sustained by him in line of hospital in connection with injuries sustained by him in line of duty on August 16, 1929.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

CHICAGO, NORTH SHORE & MILWAUKEE RAILROAD CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 254, authorizing adjustment of the claim of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad Co.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection?

Mr. GRISWOLD. I object. Mr. STAFFORD. Will the gentleman reserve his objection?

Mr. GRISWOLD. Yes; I will reserve the objection.
Mr. STAFFORD. May I inquire what is the basis of the gentleman's objection?

Mr. GRISWOLD. I may state to the gentleman, from experience, the facts stated in this report could not be true. One of the reasons given for the cause of the accident is because the car slipped, due to an old rail, which would have retarded the car rather than help its speed.

Mr. STAFFORD. Well, the gentleman has not an accurate picture of the situation? Fort Sheridan is located north of Chicago about 25 miles. It is rather hilly territory, especially as it slopes toward the lake. The report shows there was a double track with the line sloping downward.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I might suggest to the gentleman that I know the track, because I have seen it.

Mr. STAFFORD. There was an incline on the track. Are we agreed there?

Mr. GRISWOLD. Yes. Mr. STAFFORD. Either the brakes were not sufficiently taut to hold the car, or for some other reason the car in front of the gondola car began to move and collided with the gondola car which gave sufficient impetus to drive it over the embankment. Now, here is a car that is owned by the railroad company. It is damaged while in the possession of the Government.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I agree with the gentleman. Mr. STAFFORD. Now, wherein is not the Government responsible?

Mr. GRISWOLD. The first car next to the stopper was spotted by employees of the railroad company, as far as I understand. If the brake had been set, it would never have gone over that tie bumper.

Mr. STAFFORD. But after the car is spotted on the sidetrack on Government property, full control and direction is in the Government, and then injury is caused to the car of the railroad company by the acts or default of Government employees, and I think the Government is responsible.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I might suggest to the gentleman there must have been negligence on the part of the railroad company employees who put the car next to the bumper or it would not have gone over.

Mr. STAFFORD. After the car is placed in a stationary position; the Government takes full possession of that car as soon as it goes on the sidetrack.

Mr. BACHMANN. Did not the soldiers move that car? They were in the Government service. Would there not be liability on the part of the Government?

Mr. STAFFORD. It was testified that after the car was spotted the car was under the direction and control of the Government employees.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I might say that a car properly spotted by the employees, next to that bumper, with proper brakes set, would never have gone over that bumper. The collision would have been sufficient to do more than $23 damage to the car.

Mr. STAFFORD. But the gentleman is overlooking the fact that the Government had control of the operation of the cars after they were placed on the sidetracks.

Mr. GRISWOLD. There is no evidence that they ever moved the box car.

Mr. STAFFORD. It is stated that these cars were under the control and direction of Government employees; and if they were, then there is liability on the part of the Gov-

Mr. GRISWOLD. No. The report says the gondolas were moved by Government employees, with a crane.

Mr. STAFFORD. What is the usual practice in those cases, after a car is spotted?

Mr. GRISWOLD. I am telling the gentleman the usual practice.

Mr. STAFFORD. Not to have the railroad move them, but to have Government employees move them. That is the course on all private sidetracks.

Mr. GRISWOLD. The employees never touched this car. I object, Mr. Speaker.

BALTIMORE BRANCH, FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF RICHMOND

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 257, authorizing adjustment of the claim of the Baltimore Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection? There being no objection, the Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to settle and adjust the claim of the Baltimore branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, as the bona fide owner of check No. 10435, dated May Richmond, as the bona fide owner of check No. 10435, dated May 17, 1927, issued by William H. Holmes, disbursing clerk, United States Veterans' Bureau, for $643, to the order of Sara Rawlings in payment of adjusted compensation certificate No. 2575814. which was erroneously issued to Benson Rawlings in the sum of $643, based on an erroneous report of the War Department to the United States Veterans' Bureau of the military service of said Benson Rawlings, and to allow not to exceed $643 in full and final settlement of said claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $643, or so much thereof as may be necessary for payment of said claim. of said claim.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the last word. I do so to call the attention of the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. GRISWOLD] to the report in the case under consideration prior to the present bill. I direct the gentleman's attention to the letter of the Comptroller General on page 2, the third paragraph from the bottom. The language is as follows:

And that cars are delivered on the Government spur tracks by the railroad company free of charge and are removed by the railroad company from the spur to the main-line tracks after being unloaded. Also that usually the railroad spots the cars where wanted for unloading or loading, but when it becomes necessary to move a car after being placed it is done by Government employees and this was the case in the instance covered ment employees, and this was the case in the instance covered by the claim, as the cars were being moved for Government conrenience by men employed by the quartermaster.

From the foregoing outline of the reported facts in the matter, the damage to the gondola car appears to have resulted from an unavoidable accident after it had been unloaded, the cause of which has not been determined, rather than from any negligence on the part of employees of the railroad company in spotting the car.

In face of that statement, unqualified, if the gentleman can object to the previous claim, I leave it to the mercy of his conscience.

Mr. GRISWOLD. If the gentleman is familiar with drawbar pull and striking force, he is familiar with the mathematical fact that the square of the speed multiplied by the weight gives the striking force. With an empty 40-ton gondola car coming down on a box car and doing only $23 damage, if the brake was properly set, I ask the gentleman to explain that.

Mr. STAFFORD. The gentleman thinks the damage is

Mr. GRISWOLD. I think that the car could not have been damaged under the conditions under which they say it was damaged.

Mr. STAFFORD. If it is a question of damage, then I will not dispute the gentleman, but I do question his position as to whether the damage was done by reason of negligence on the part of Government employees or that of railroad employees.

Mr. GRISWOLD. I object to the assertion that this car was damaged in the way they say it was.

The pro forma amendment was withdrawn.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NELLIE E. TRUETHART

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2469, for the relief of Nellie E. Truethart.

Mr. BACHMANN. Mr. Speaker, I object.

ALVA D. M'GUIRE, JR.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3972, for the relief of Alva D. McGuire, jr.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Alva D. McGuire, jr., formerly a seaman, first class, United States Navy, the sum of $31.50, in full satisfaction of his claim against the United States for compensation for personal property destroyed in 1927 by a fire at Camp Lewis, Wash.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ARTHUR R. SAFFRAN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4782, authorizing adjustment of the claim of Arthur R. Saffran.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of Arthur R. Saffran for $560 as the proceeds covered into the Treasury of the United States from a sale not in accordance with law of his automobile, a libel for the forfeiture of which for violation of internal revenue statutes was subsequently dismissed by the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, and to allow not to exceed $560 in full and final settlement of the claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $560, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of the claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

HARVEY CANAL SHIP YARD & MACHINE SHOP

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5203, for the relief of the Harvey Canal Ship Yard & Machine Shop.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of the Harvey Canal Ship Yard & Machine Shop, Harvey, La., for $135, covering storage charges on the gas screw Dawning for the period December 31, 1931, to May 13, 1932, 135 days, at $1 per diem, the rate prescribed in contract No. T-20c-48, dated July 7, 1931, and to allow not to exceed $135 in full and final settlement thereof. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $135, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for payment of the claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

TEXAS POWER & LIGHT CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5204, for the relief of the Texas Power & Light Co.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of the Texas Power & Light Co. for damage to and destruction of transformers loaned to the veterans' hospital at Waco, Tex., in May, 1932, and to allow not to exceed $298.65 in full and final settlement of said claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $298.65, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for payment of this claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GREAT FALLS MEAT CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5205, for the relief of the Great Falls Meat Co., of Great Falls, Mont.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of the Great Falls Meat Co., of Great Falls, Mont., arising out of the purchase by said company from the Department of Agriculture, in November, 1931, of a buffalo, the carcass of which spoiled before delivery, and to allow not to exceed $50

In full and final settlement of the claim. There is hereby appropriated, out of money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $50, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of said claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BOOTH FISHERIES CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 5413, for the relief of the Booth Fisheries Co.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claim of the Booth Fisheries Co. for loss or damage sustained on May 21, 1931, by its steamship Scout in a collision with the United States Army dredge Traverse, in the harbor channel at Warroad, Minn., and to allow in full and final settlement of said claim not to exceed the sum of $63.75. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $63.75, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay said claim.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ANDERSON-TULLEY CO.

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 610, for the relief of the Anderson-Tulley Co.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the Anderson-Tully Co., a Tennessee corporation, the sum of $442.41, in full satisfaction of its claim against the United States for court costs incurred in its suit against the United States (No. 933, in admiralty) in the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Tennessee, western division, in which judgment was rendered on January 22, 1929, in favor of the said Anderson-Tully Co.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

AGNES M. ANGLE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1067, for the relief of Agnes M. Angle.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, this is a compensation bill to which I shall offer an amendment in the usual form. Otherwise I have no objection.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That sections 17 and 20 of the act entitled "An act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes," approved September 7, 1916, as amended, are hereby waived in favor of Agnes M. Angle, a former employee of the United States Veterans' Bureau at Wichita, Kans.

Mr. EATON of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Eaton of Colorado: Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the following: "That the United States Employees' Compensation Commission is hereby authorized to consider and determine in the same manner and to the same extent as if application for the benefit of the employees' compensation act had been made within the 1-year period required by sections 17 and 20 thereof the claim of Agnes M. Angle on account of disability due to tuberculosis contracted at Wichita, Kans., while employed in the service of the United States as stenographer, United States Veterans' Bureau, 1921: Provided, That no benefit shall accrue prior to the enactment of this act."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

WILLIAM POWELL

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 1463, for the relief of William Powell.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $83 to William Powell for damage done his car, caused by a falling flag pole from the Federal Building in Rock Springs, Wyo.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JOHN PEARCE CANN

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2203, for the relief of John Pearce Cann.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc. That the Comptroller General of the United States is authorized and directed to settle and certify for payment to John Pearce Cann, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $664.30 as in full for services rendered as a de facto United States commissioner at Wilmington, Del., for period from November 22, 1927, to February 15, 1929.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

MAJ. O. S. M'CLEARY, UNITED STATES ARMY, RETIRED

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2508, for the relief of Maj. O. S. McCleary, United States Army, retired.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is authorized and directed to allow to Maj. O. S. McCleary, United States Army, retired, the sum of $148.98, being difference between active-duty pay and allowances and retired pay for period from July 2 to 20, 1927, while he was on leave from active duty to which as a retired officer he was assigned.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

W. H. HENDRICKSON

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 2862, for the relief of W. H. Hendrickson.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I shall have to object unless the sponsor of the bill will agree to accept an amendment reducing the amount to $175, which is the amount the Department of Justice recommends.

Mr. LOOFBOUROW. The Department of Justice recommends the entire amount of $250.

Mr. HOPE. If the gentleman will refer to the report and the letter from Director Woodcock, of the Bureau of Prohibition, he will see that the recommendation is that if the application is to be granted, that he be reimbursed to the extent of $175. This is the value of the car. The $250 includes an additional claim for attorneys' fees.

Mr. LOOFBOUROW. For attorneys' fees and costs to which the claimant was put by reason of the mistake on the part of the Government. If he had failed to defend, there would not be any claim here at all. He was forced to do this by the Government.

Mr. HOPE. The Government should not be put to any liability to pay attorneys' fees and costs in a case of this kind, and I shall have to object unless the gentleman will accept the amendment.

Mr. LOOFBOUROW. Of course, if the gentleman is going to object, I shall have to accept the amendment.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to W. H. Hendrickson, of Salt Lake City, Utah, the sum of $250 in full satisfaction of his claim against the United States arising out of the sale of a Ford truck to him by the prohibition administrator on June 7, 1930, at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment: In line 6, strike out "$250," and insert "$175."

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Hope: In line 6, strike out "$250,-" and insert in lieu thereof "$175."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

WILLIAM A. LESTER

The clerk called the next bill, S. 3831, for the relief of William A. Lester.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated and in full settlement against the Government, to William A. Lester the sum of $100, paid in connection with timber and stone application numbered 09583 to the Department of the Interior, on June 18, 1917, which application has been refused due to the fact that the land in question has been withdrawn from homestead entry.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

ZETTA LESTER

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 3832, for the relief of Zetta Lester.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated and in full settlement against the Government, to Zetta Lester the sum of $400, which was paid in connection with timber and stone application numbered 09608 to the Department of the Interior on August 17, 1917, which consider the football of the Control of the Interior on August 17, 1917, which application was refused due to the fact that the land in question was withdrawn from homestead entry.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

BETTY M'BRIDE

The Clerk called the next bill, S. 4230, for the relief of Betty McBride.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay, out of the appropriation "Pay, subsistence, and transportation, Navy, 1931," to Miss Betty McBride, dependent sister of the late William McBride, fireman, first class, United States Navy, who died December 26, 1929, in the naval service, an amount equal to six months' pay at the rate said William McBride was entitled to receive at the date of his death: Provided. That it be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Navy that the said dependent sister was actually dependent on said enlisted man, and the determination of such fact by the Secretary of the Navy shall be final and conclusive on the accounting officers of the Government.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4909, for the relief of A. Y. Martin.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I wish to offer an amendment to strike out the preamble and to strike out everything after the enacting clause and substitute a form approved by the Comptroller General.

The Clerk read the bill as follows:

8, 4909

Whereas the duties incident to the office of United States commissioner for the western district of Kentucky, in the Paducah division thereof, were performed by A. Y. Martin, of Paducah, Ky., from December 8, 1930, to August 5, 1931, and statutory fees for the services so rendered and approved as to the amounts by the Department of Justice are as follows: For account for quarter ending January 31, 1931, covering that portion of said account from December 8, 1930, to January 31, 1931, $180.55; account for quarter ending April 30, 1931, $119.60; account for quarter ending July 31, 1931, $667.25; account for portion of quarter from August 1 to 5, 1931, $12.60; total, $930; and
Whereas by oversight the reappointment of said Martin as such commissioner was not made on December 8, 1930, but was thereafter made and entered of record on August 5, 1931, with the result that he served as de facto commissioner during such interim, and incurred the expenses incident to the maintenance of Whereas the duties incident to the office of United States comterim, and incurred the expenses incident to the maintenance of such office and performed the services thereof for which the statu-tory fees allowable are in the amount hereinabove set forth, the payment of which has been disallowed by the Department of Justice because such order of reappointment was not made or Justice because such order of reappointment was not made or entered of record: Now, therefore Be it enacted, etc., That there is hereby appropriated and set apart the sum of $980, to be applied and paid by the Department of Justice in settlement of and by way of compensation for the services rendered by said de facto commissioner from December 8, 1930, to August 5, 1931, as hereinabove set forth.

SEC. 2. This act shall be effective from and after its due passage and environment.

and approval.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendment: Strike out everything after the enacting clause and insert: "That the Comptroller General of the United States is authorized and directed to settle and certify for payment to A. Y. Martin out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of $980 as in full for services rendered as a de facto United States commissioner at Paducah, Ky., from December 8, 1930, to August 5, 1931."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HANCOCK of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike out the preamble.

The motion was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

AVERY G. CONSTANT

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4830, for the relief of Avery G. Constant.

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General is authorized and directed to cancel the charge, in the amount of $24.38, entered on the accounts of Avery G. Constant, former postmaster at Buhl, Idaho, by reason of his deposit of funds of the United States in the First National Bank of Buhl, Idaho, and the subsequent fallure of such bank.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay to Avery G. Constant, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, in the sum of $129, in full satisfaction of his claim against the United States for a refund of payments made by him on account of any such charge.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

ROSE GILLESPIE. JOSEPH ANTON DIETZ. AND MANUEL M. WISEMAN

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, 8. 5207, for the relief of Rose Gillespie, Joseph Anton Dietz, and Manuel M. Wiseman as trustee of the estate of Louis Wiseman, deceased,

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Comptroller General of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to adjust and settle the claims of Rose Gillespie, Joseph Anton Dietz, and Manuel M. Wiseman, as trustee of the estate of Louis Wiseman, deceased, all Wiseman, as trustee of the estate of Louis Wiseman, deceased, all of Alton, Ill., for damages caused to private property, located in Alton, Ill., due to blasting operations carried on by the United States snag boat H. G. Wright, while engaged in removing an old steamboat wreck from the channel of the Mississippi River near that place, and to allow on said claims not to exceed $3.72, $14.30, and $90.33, respectively, in full and final settlement thereof. There is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $108.35, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for payment of said claims. as may be necessary, for payment of said claims.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

JOINT RESOLUTION GIVING CERTAIN PARTIES THE RIGHT TO AC-CEPT AND WEAR CERTAIN DECORATIONS FROM THE GOVERNMENTS OF ECUADOR, CHILE, AND CUBA

The Clerk called the next business on the Private Calendar, Senate Joint Resolution 195, granting permission to Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the United States Health Service, and Clifford R. Eskey, of the Public Health Service, to accept and wear certain decorations bestowed upon them by the Governments of Ecuador, Chile, and Cuba. Mr. STAFFORD. I object.

R. S. HOWARD & CO. (INC.)

The Clerk read the next bill on the Private Calendar, S. 4326, for the relief of R. S. Howard & Co. (Inc.).

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

MACK COPPER CO.

The Clerk called the next business on the Private Calendar, Senate Joint Resolution 194, conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to render findings of facts in the claim of Mack Copper Co.

Mr. BLANTON. I object.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, I make the point that no quorum is present.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BLACK. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 10 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow, Thursday, March 2, 1933, at 11 o'clock a. m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS. ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

950. A letter from the chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, transmitting a report of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's activities and expenditures for January, 1933, together with a statement of loans authorized during that month, showing the name, amount, and rate of interest in each case (H. Doc. No. 562); to the Committee on Banking and Currency and ordered to be printed.

951. A letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a report of February 24, 1933, by Robert Follanfbee. Federal representative, pursuant to the act (46 Stat. 1039) of January 19, 1931, granting consent of Congress to compacts or agreements between the States of Wyoming and Idaho; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII.

Mr. GREEN: Joint Committee on the Disposition of Useless Executive Papers. A report on the disposition of useless papers in the Treasury Department (Rept. No. 2180). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. MILLIGAN: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. H. R. 14787. A bill to authorize the construction of certain bridges and to extend the times for commencing and/or completing the construction of other bridges over the navigable waters of the United States; without amendment (Rept. No. 2181). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CARTWRIGHT: Committee on Indian Affairs. S. 5427. An act to authorize the acquisition by the United States of the land upon which the Seneca Indian School, Wyandotte, Okla., is located; without amendment (Rept. No. 2183). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. SOMERS of New York: Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures. H. R. 14756. A bill to authorize the acceptance by the Treasury of silver bullion and the issuance therefor of silver certificates for the purpose of correcting the dislocation of exchanges, elevating the price level, and maintaining the gold standard, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2186). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. GREEN: Joint Committee on the Disposition of Useless Executive Papers. A report on the disposition of useless papers in the War Department (Rept. No. 2187). Ordered to be printed.

Mr. DOMINICK: Committee on the Judiciary. 276. A joint resolution consenting that certain States may sue the United States, and providing for trial on the merits in any suit brought hereunder by a State to recover direct taxes alleged to have been illegally collected by the United States during the years 1866, 1867, 1868, and vesting the right in each State to sue in its own name; with amendment (Rept. No. 2188). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. OLIVER of New York: Committee on the Judiciary. H. R. 14789. A bill to amend the act of July 1, 1898, entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," as amended; without amendment (Rept. No. 2191). Referred to the House Calendar.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. CHAVEZ: Committee on Indian Affairs. S. 1438. An act to authorize the sale of land on the Camp McDowell Indian Reservation to the city of Phoenix, Ariz., for use in connection with its water-supply development, and for other purposes; without amendment (Rept. No. 2184). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. BLACK: Committee on Claims. S. 246. An act for the relief of Galen E. Lichty; without amendment (Rept. No. 2185). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

Mr. CARTWRIGHT: Committee on Indian Affairs. S. 5684. An act to authorize the Comptroller General to allow claim of district No. 13, Choctaw County, Okla., for payment of tuition for Indian pupils; without amendment (Rept. No. 2189). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. LANHAM: A bill (H. R. 14790) to provide for placing the Forest Service building site and improvements thereon at Ogden, Utah, under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture; to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. BUCKBEE: A bill (H. R. 14791) to raise revenue, protect American labor, and assist the American farmer, by providing for the use in motor fuels of alcohol manufactured from agricultural products grown upon the farm in the United States; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LaGUARDIA: Resolution (H. Res. 404) to provide for the appointment of a special committee for the remainder of the Seventy-second Congress; to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. KELLY of Pennsylvania: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 615) proposing a method of amending the Constitution of the United States by establishing constitutional majority rule; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. McDUFFIE: Joint resolution (H. J. Res. 616) to continue the Joint Committee on Veterans' Benefits; to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. GILLEN: Concurrent Resolution (H. Con. Res. 52) requiring Joint Committee on Printing to investigate and report feasibility of using paper made from cornstalks for printing Congressional Record and other Federal publications; to the Committee on Rules.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

Memorial of the commissioners of Camden, N. J., requesting Congress to permit a moratorium on municipal bonds; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Arizona, opposing legislation proposed by the National Economy League; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Memorial of the Council of the City of Milwaukee, Wis., memorializing Congress to enact House Joint Resolution 191; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Utah, memorializing Congress to pass H. R. 11816; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, memorializing Congress to not close the United States Mint at Carson City, Nev.; to the Committee on Appropriations.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. HOPKINS: A bill (H. R. 14792) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Smith; to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SHREVE: A bill (H. R. 14793) for the relief of the heirs of John A. Sutter; to the Committee on Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

10750. By Mr. AMLIE: Memorial of the State Legislature of Wisconsin, urging enactment of legislation for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President in a primary election; to the Committee on Election of President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress.

10751. By Mr. ARENTZ: Memorial of Nevada Legislature joint resolution memorializing Congress to not close the United States Mint at Carson City; to the Committee on Appropriations.

10752. Also, memorial of the Senate and Assembly of the State of Nevada, recommending to the President elect that he seriously and favorably consider the appointment of John F. Shaughnessy, chairman of the Nevada Public Service Commission, to the position of interstate commerce commissioner; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10753. Also, memorial of Assembly and Senate of the Nevada Legislature, urging upon all Federal officials concerned the extreme need for continuance, for the grazing season of 1933, of the 50 per cent reduction in national forest grazing fee charges as granted for 1932, based upon the charges in effect for 1931; to the Committee on Agriculture.

10754. By Mr. BURTNESS: Petition of the Senate of the State of North Dakota, urging prompt passage by Congress of legislation to raise and stabilize the commodity price level as embodied in the Burtness bills, H. R. 20 and H. R. 21; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

10755. Also, petition of the Senate of the State of North Dakota, urging the passage by Congress of certain legislation for the relief of agriculture; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

10756. By Mr. COCHRAN of Pennsylvania: Petition of various citizens of Greenville, Pa., urging the passage of the stop-alien-representation amendment to the United States Constitution to cut out the 6,280,000 aliens in this country, and count only American citizens, when making future apportionments for congressional districts; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10757. By Mr. CULLEN: Petition of the Common Council of the City of Schenectady, urging a special series of postage stamps of the denomination of 3 cents, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen and appointment as brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army, of Thaddeus Kosciusko, on October 13, 1783; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10758. By Mr. DELANEY: Petition of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, opposing any legislation which would discourage, nullify, or hamper the control of the operation of steamships by agreements among the operators; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10759. Also, petition of the Common Council of the City of Schenectady, memorializing the Congress to provide legislation carrying out Senate Joint Resolution 105 and House Joint Resolution 191 authorizing a special series of postage stamps commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization of Thaddeus Kosciusko; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10760. Also, petition of the Old Glory Club of Flatbush | (Inc.), opposing House bill 14467, which prevents deportation of aliens if they can establish fear of bodily harm because of religious or political persecution if returned to their native country, and allowing citizenship to these aliens; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10761. Also, petition of the Old Glory Post, No. 48, of the American Legion of Kings County, opposing any curtailment of the naval establishment, and urging appropriations for weekly drills of the Fleet Naval Reserve; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10762. By Mr. KLEBERG: Petition submitted by J. E. Howze et al., including resolutions passed by Nueces County farmers and business men as members of Farmers-Taxpayers Protective Association of Texas, urging immediate relief in the form of legislation by Congress to bring about a reduction in interest rates on farm loans, reduction of principal, and other measures designed to afford permanent relief for those engaged in basic industry of agriculture; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

10763. By Mr. LAMBERTSON: Petition of J. E. Dobson and 86 other citizens of the State of Kansas, requesting legislation for direct loans by the Government to property owners, for a refinancing program for the present indebtedness of real property, and for the establishment of rates of interest and retirement of principal on these loans at the rate of 11/2 per cent annually; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

10764. By Mr. LARRABEE: Petition of Harrison Spencer, patent attorney, of Indianapolis, Ind., urging revision of patent fees; to the Committee on Patents.

10765. By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Brooklyn, N. Y., opposing the enactment of House bill 14077; to the Committee on Merchant Marine, Radio, and Fisheries.

10766. Also, petition of the city of Schenectady, N. Y., urging the issuance of a special series of 3-cent stamps to commemorate the memory of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, a hero of the Revolutionary War; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

10767. By Mr. McFADDEN: Petition of J. W. Learn, Harry Secules, P. L. Crawford, and Glen A. Taylor, representing the Sullivan County Pomona Grange, No. 62, of Dushore, Pa., against any move to abolish the Department of Agriculture; to the Committee on Agriculture.

10768. By Mr. PERSON: Petition of the Council of the City of Dearborn, Mich., recommending that the Postmaster General be authorized and directed to issue a special series of postage stamps, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization and appointment of Thaddeus Kosciusko as brigadier general of the Continental Army; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10769. By Mr. RAINEY: Petition of R. T. Ross and 22 other citizens of Palmyra, Ill.; to the Committee on Agriculture.

10770. By Mr. RUDD: Petition of Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Brooklyn, N. Y., opposing the passage of House bill 14077, introduced by Mr. Johnson of Washington; to the Committee on Merchant Marine, Radio, and Fish-10771. By Mr. SUTPHIN: Petition praying that consideration be given toward curbing the enforcement of law requiring a tax on municipal waterworks; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

10772. By Mr. WATSON: Petition with 158 signatures from citizens of Allentown, and members of the Unemployed Citizen's League of Allentown, Pa., urging relief of unfortunate and unemployed; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

10773. By Mr. WITHROW: Memorial of the Common Council of the City of Milwaukee, memorializing Congress to enact House Joint Resolution 105, commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen in 1783 and appointment as brevet brigadier general of Thaddeus Kosciusko, a hero of the Revolutionary War, by issuing special series of postage stamps in honor of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko's sesquicentennial anniversary; to the Committee on the Judiciary. 10774. Also, memorial of the Common Council of the City of Milwaukee, favoring the passage of the bill (H. R. 12145) to permit municipalities to control canvassers and other transient merchants in interstate commerce; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

SENATE

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1933

(Legislative day of Tuesday, February 28, 1933)

The Senate met at 10 o'clock a. m., on the expiration of the recess.

DEATH OF SENATOR WALSH OF MONTANA

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, Senators have been greatly surprised and shocked to receive information that one of our ablest and most beloved Members has passed away. Senator Walsh of Montana served for more than 20 years in the Senate of the United States. During the period of his service he demonstrated exceptional ability and constant loyalty to duty.

I submit the following resolutions and ask for their immediate consideration.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The resolutions will be read. The resolutions (S. Res. 377) were read, considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow and deep regret the announcement of the death of Hon. Thomas J. Walsh, late a Senator from the State of Montana.

Resolved, That a committee of 12 Senators be appointed by the Vice President to take order for superintending the funeral of the deceased Senator.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Under the second resolution the Vice President appointed as the committee on the part of the Senate the Senator from Montana [Mr. Wheeler], the senior Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Robinson], the senior Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary], the senior Senator from Arizona [Mr. ASHURST], the senior Senator from Idaho [Mr. Borah], the senior Senator from Nevada [Mr. PITTMAN], the senior Senator from Wyoming [Mr. KENDRICK], the junior Senator from Minnesota [Mr. Schall], the junior Senator from Utah [Mr. King], the junior Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY], the senior Senator from Washington [Mr. DILL], and the senior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Walsh].

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased Senator, I move that the Senate adjourn until 9.30 o'clock to-morrow, Friday, March 3.

The motion was unanimously agreed to; and (at 10 o'clock and 3 minutes a. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, March 3, 1933, at 9 o'clock and 30 minutes a. m.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1933

The House met at 11 o'clock a. m. The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Thou who dost inhabit eternity, the Infinite One who transcends all time and space, we wait before Thee in prayer and supplication. Thou dost comprehend the pathos of human experience; speak to all hearts words of cheer, of affection, of approbation, and give sweet refreshment to every mind, soul, and body. Heavenly Father, as Thou art the God of the little child, condescend to come to us. We need Thee; let Thy Holy Spirit evermore cleanse us from all iniquity. As we pass through the sacred paths of human life may we not forget Thee and neglect the Christian law of life and service. O we need to have a vision of the things that outlast the stars. O bless us with that spiritual music that charms away temptation, doubt, and fear, and lift our hearts to the eternal harmonies. O Father of consolations, a strange and sudden affliction has befallen our Nation and souls are bewildered. May they stay themselves upon Thee and find relief and comfort. In this troubled, shaken hour be our rod and staff. Blessed Master and Lord, hear us. O help us to bear one another's burdens.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Craven, its principal clerk, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 11242. An act to relinquish the title of the United States in and to lands in Rapides Parish, State of Louisiana;

H. R. 12328. An act to authorize the assignment of awards entered by the Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany, the Tripartite Claims Commission, and the War Claims Arbiter.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed a joint resolution and a concurrent resolution of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. J. Res. 260. Joint resolution to validate an act of the fourth special session of the Twelfth Legislature of Puerto Rico entitled "An act authorizing the Governor of Puerto Rico to guarantee repayment, in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the agricultural credit corporations of the island of Puerto Rico, and for other purposes," approved October 21, 1932; and

S. Con. Res. 45. Concurrent resolution authorizing the enrollment of H. R. 14359 with certain changes.

The message also announced that the Senate had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) entitled "An act making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate had passed the following resolution:

Senate Resolution 377

Resolved, That the Senate has heard with profound sorrow and Watsh, late a Senator from the State of Montana.

Resolved, That a committee of 12 Senators be appointed by the Vice President to take order for superintending the funeral of the deceased Senator.

Resolved, That the Secretary communicate these resolutions to the House of Representatives and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased.

Resolved, That as a further mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, the Senate adjourn until 9.30 a. m. Friday, the 3d

The message also announced that pursuant to the foregoing resolutions the Vice President had appointed Mr. WHEELER, Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas, Mr. McNary, Mr. ASHURST, Mr. BORAH, Mr. PITTMAN, Mr. KENDRICK, Mr. SCHALL, Mr. KING, Mr. CAREY, Mr. DILL, and Mr. WALSH of Massachusetts members of the committee on the part of the Senate to attend the funeral of the deceased.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. MARTIN of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that there is no quorum present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently there is no quorum present.

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The doors were closed.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names;

[Roll No. 176]

Abernethy Bacharach Douglas, Ariz. Doutrich Johnson, S. Dak. Ramseyer Johnson, Wash. Reid, Ill. Drane Eaton, Colo. Baldrige Kahn Romjue Kemp Boland Kopp Larsen Lehlbach Fishbourne Schuetz Brand, Ga. Brand, Ohio Flood Selvig Shreve Foss Buckbee Campbell, Iowa Freeman Fulbright Lewis Sirovich Lichtenwalner Smith, Idaho Campbell, Pa. Carter, Wyo. Cartwright Chapman Steagall Stevenson Strong, Kans. Golder McDuffie Goldsborough Griffin McLeod Hall, Ill. Millard Sullivan, N. Y. Chase Hardy Montague Sullivan, Pa Clancy Hart Mouser Nelson, Wis. Sumners, Tex. Cooke Haugen Underhill Hawley Vinson, Ga Niedringhaus Curry Davenport Dickstein Norton, N. J. Oliver, Ala. Hornor Williams, Tex. Houston Wingo Hull, William E. Wolcott Owen Johnson, Ill. Johnson, Okla. Prall Dominick Rainey

The SPEAKER. Three hundred and thirty-seven Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

Mr. McCLINTIC of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I move to dispense with further proceedings under the call.

The motion was agreed to.

The doors were opened.

Mrs. ESLICK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for six minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mrs. ESLICK. Mr. Speaker, not far from this Capitol Building is the statue of a man, a poet, who lived in a county in the district I represent. He wrote a very gloomy poem. In it are these words:

> Life is a count of losses Every year; For the weak are heavier crosses Every year.

At the present time this is a farmer's poem.

The Congressional Record of this Congress has carried many pages on the farm situation. Some of the thoughts expressed are much wiser than others, but all are from Members earnestly desiring to improve conditions of those whose work is the foundation of all industry. My great interest in this subject comes from the fact that I represent a district that is largely agricultural. My sympathy for those suffering from agriculture's misfortune is unbounded, and I keenly feel my own personal loss from the collapse of farm prices. I shall try to be brief, for in these times we should endeavor to be economical, even in our printing.

A great preacher once said that when he quit his theological school the last instruction from his old teacher contained a prayer that he would on all possible and suitable occasions speak words of comfort to God's people.

There are a few comforting words that we who represent agricultural districts may give to our people; one is that everybody now recognizes that something should be done for them without delay. They may take small comfort in this sentiment unless some relief is actually forthcoming.

I was a member of the congressional forum to discuss the enactment of relief legislation for the farmers. This forum was composed of Members of the House interested in agricultural problems. We met at night for general discussion and exchange of ideas. Growing out of these conferences, it was determined that the problems should be divided into three general classifications, namely, first, the phase dealing with general farm relief, such as the expansion of markets, the problem of curtailing production, and the general policy that farmers could follow in helping the situation by voluntary action.

The second phase was relief on emergency farm-mortgage foreclosures. Under this heading there was undertaken the formation of a plan to save homes until something could be done to improve general conditions. The forum finally concluded that a bill introduced by Congressman Buchanan, of Texas, was closest to the consensus of opinion of what the Government could do.

The third classification related to currency and credit problems, looking to an increase of commodity prices by cheapening the present value of the dollar to bring commodities back to a more equitable level.

Some 75 Members were divided into three groups to treat with the respective questions and report to the forum. This they did, with the result that very definite recommendations were made to the proper committees of the House embodying the conclusions they reached. I was assigned to the emergency farm-relief division, and we feel that the measure referred to above embodies the position which the Congress should adopt in the forming of legislation to be effective pending some policy that will increase commodity prices compared with the present value of the dollar.

Among those who now advocate succor to the producers of our food products are even included the makers of their machinery and steel tools who are still gouging farmers with war prices. They brazenly ask for more tariffs, so that no one can force a moratorium for their excessive costs. They are the source of much corruption in some parts of the land. The farmer can not continue to buy in a protected market and sell in a free one.

I have voted for every gesture toward farm relief. There is urgent necessity for some action to relieve the distress of the farmers and protect investors. I voted for the allotment plan, an emergency measure, known as the Jones bill. Practically every representative of the great farm organizations of this country was behind this bill. This bill as passed in the House would give the farmer 5 cents a pound for the hogs he markets in this country; 90 cents a bushel for all wheat he markets here; 12 cents a pound for his cotton; and corresponding increases in other staple crops included in the bill.

I voted for the Smith bill on February 28, which is the first plan offered which puts a premium on the reduction of acreage in the growing of cotton. Without expense to the Government it promises an absorption of the surplus that now hangs over our markets like the sword of Damocles.

No plan of relief is sound that with low prices for farm products and high prices for farm supplies plunges the farmer further in debt every year. It seems in this country that whether we call it a sales tax or by some other name, all tax is finally placed upon the man who has no monopoly of any of the necessaries of life. Perhaps the first relief should be a moratorium and money loaned at a low rate of interest to take up loans made at a much higher rate.

For our immediate section of Tennessee much of the gloom has been lifted by the hope which the President elect has given us. He plans to aid in having cheap power come from the great dam at Muscle Shoals, so cheap that it may make cities of all our county towns; so cheap that they can furnish supplies to the farm at a low price and create a profitable market for its products. The people of our section should and will hold anyone to strict account for any failure to uphold the President's hand in carrying out his announced program. All hail these numberless cities of the near future. They may bring again to the farm near by that charmed life that has existed in all ages. To this life successful men have often turned when weary of their struggles in trade, in the law, or in the halls of legislation.

The primary laws of Tennessee made it impossible for me to be a Member of the next Congress. When my husband, Edward E. Eslick, died, the time for qualifying in the primary election had passed. This law gave the Democratic Party no choice as to his successor, unless they were willing to create discord and confusion in their party organization. Not having a chance to become a Member of the next Congress, I am unwilling to allow this Congress to pass without saying something on a matter that deeply affects the lives of the people I represent, as well as the entire Nation. [Applause, the Members rising.]

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 10 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? There was no objection.

Mr. LANHAM. Mr. Speaker, I have asked for this time in order that this day may not pass without some national recognition being given to its significance. July 4 s a day dear to the heart of every American. It brings to mind the stirring scenes and events which marked our national Declaration of Independence. On each recurring anniversary of that day we delight to laud the name of Washington and to honor the galaxy of heroes and statesmen associated with

Since that day our national progress has been so conspicuous that its entrancing history may have obscured somewhat an adequate appreciation of another republic which flourished on the American continent. On the 2d day of March, 1836, a little band of rugged pioneers, hailing from all points of the American compass, gathered at Washington on the Brazos in a rude, unfinished building, and under the most trying circumstances, battling against the most severe hardships, declared as Texans their independence of Mexico. These men were not Texans in the sense that they had been born within the confines of the Lone Star State. They came from all over our great American Commonwealth. But they were men of brave spirit, high purpose, and sound governmental principles. They were sturdy; they were fearless; and they rose in arms against the overwhelming forces of Mexico and won on the battlefield the freedom they craved. They established that independence at the Battle of San Jacinto on the 21st day of April, 1836. They were led in this conflict by Gen. Sam Houston, whose record, civil and military, is perhaps without parallel in the annals of American history. Upon their victory of arms and ideals they founded their infant republic.

Texas is the only State of the American Union which has been in deed and in truth a republic, the only State consequently which really has a flag commemorating its early glory. The others have their emblems and their banners, but Texas has a flag bathed in and bought by the blood of its martyred heroes. For nine years that Republic endured. Four foreign countries sent their representatives to it. The old French Embassy, constructed largely of materials imported from France, still stands in the city of Austin.

In order that you may understand that Texans and their history are in no sense provincial, may I bring it to your attention by way of example that Travis, who was in command at the Alamo, came from North Carolina. The citizens of Cincinnati manifested their interest by sending two cannons, known as the twin sisters, to aid the battling soldiers. The last President of the Republic of Texas was a Massachusetts man, and, in my judgment, was more responsible than any other for the annexation of the Republic to the American Union as a State. With that annexation, our Nation vastly enlarged its territorial domain, for Texas to-day, though stripped of some of its original lands, is larger by one-half than continental Germany, and comprises an area as great as that of the 14 smallest States of the Union. It is six times as large as all the New England States combined. If you will pardon a semipersonal reference, when my father had the honor of serving in this body he represented the old Jumbo district, composed of 97

And so to-day, inasmuch as Texas was freed from Mexican tyranny and oppression by Americans of all climes, we may delight in the glories of Lexington and Concord and also in the glamor of the Alamo and San Jacinto. It is true the fires of patriotism burned in the breasts of Washington and Anthony Wayne and Israel Putman and other illustrious men who labored with them, but the cause of freedom had worthy advocates also in the Austins and Houston and Bowie and Travis and Crockett and Lamar and the scores of others who have made resplendent the pages of Texan and American history. So this land of Texas is one in which we may all take pride. Its pioneers brought to it the culture of the East, the commercial spirit of the North, the hustle and bustle of the West, and the chivalry and hospitality of the South. There, through the natural processes of attrition, they knocked off the rough corners of their

Our Texas history has not been adequately told. It offers a fertile field for song and story. Americans of other States do not realize as they should the heritage they have in its achievement. I honor Massachusetts for the manner in which it has preserved its remarkable history. It has done so by physical tributes and appropriate ceremonies. For instance, it has made the name of Paul Revere a familiar one to us all. In song and in story his praises have been told. I would not detract in the least from that fame. The inspiration of his dashing ride in the night, summoning the farmers and villagers to the defense of their country, belongs to every liberty-loving American. But so, my friends, does the thrilling struggle at the Alamo, where every man within it sacrificed his life for the governmental principles in which he believed. It is but natural, then, that the saying has become proverbial, "Thermopylæ had its messenger of defeat; the Alamo had none."

I think that perhaps the most stirring letter I have ever read is that in which, a few days before the fall of the Alamo, Travis, its commander, addressed the American people concerning his plight. The original is preserved in our State library in the capitol at Austin. It is more than worthy of repetition here, in order that you may catch a glimpse of the brave spirit of those dauntless men who attested with their lives the sincerity of their words.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Lanham] has expired.

Mr. BRIGGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman may proceed for five additional minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRIGGS]?

There was no objection.

Mr. LANHAM. The memorable letter written by Travis on that occasion is as follows:

Fellow citizens and compatriots, I am besieged by a thousand more of the Mexicans under Santa Ana. I have sustained a or more of the Mexicans under Santa Ana. I have sustained a continued bombardment for 24 hours and have not lost a man. The enemy has demanded a surrender at discretion; otherwise the to be put to the sword if the fort is taken. garrison is to be put to the sword if the fort is taken. I have answered the summons with a cannon shot and our flag still waves proudly from the walls. I shall never surrender nor retreat. Then I call upon you, in the name of liberty, of patriotism, and everything dear to the American character, to come to our aid with all dispatch. The enemy is receiving reinforcements daily, which will no doubt increase to three or four thousand in four or five days. Though this call may be neglected, I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible and to die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor and that of his country. Victory or death.

There every one of that little band, less than 200, perished in their own blood before the onslaught of the overpowering Mexican force. But the principles for which they died did not perish. They live and must continue to live if the free institutions of a free people shall survive and control the acts and aspirations of liberty-loving citizens.

I say our story has not been told as it should have been told. Let us not forget to-day the history of this Republic which has contributed so much to this Nation we love. And I rejoice with you that, in these days of stress and strain, it now has the distinction of lending to the service of our Government an able and patriotic and sturdy son of its soil, the honored Speaker of the House of Representatives. [Applause.]

We are much given in these times to a fondness for antiques. While recuperating a few years ago up on Cape Cod, it seemed to me that every second house was an antique shop. I confess that I rather like this fad. The bed of Sam Houston is now in the governor's mansion in Austin, and it has been my pleasure on more than one occasion to sleep in it. It is quite worth while to preserve these material emblems of the greatness of the valient pioneers. But there was something about Houston far better than his bed, something in the spirit of our early heroes far greater than the furniture which beautified their homes. They embodied within themselves and exemplified in their natures and became typical and cosmopolitan American | lives the fundamental principles of sturdy, vigorous, pioneer manhood. Their traits and talents have builded this Nation of ours. They are antiques of the highest order of value. Let us preserve and observe them in grappling with the puzzling problems which now confront us. We ought to bring those graces also into these homes of ours. We ought to bring them into every avenue and channel of business and trade. We ought to bring them into our legislative halls. Those sterling qualities founded our Nation; those sterling qualities will preserve it.

Now, Mr. Speaker, the great State of Texas is planning a centennial celebration in 1936 to commemorate our glorious history of 1836-a history which should be dear to all American hearts. We hope that you will then come down and learn more of our remarkable story-not only of the circumstances of our declaration of independence, of the massacre at Goliad, of the matchless battle of the Alamo, of the wonderful victory at San Jacinto, of the American Republic that flourished for nine years in the great Southwest, but also of our fair land and its boundless resources and of the proud people within its borders who trace their lineage to every section of America.

If there is any State which is not provincial, if there is any State which is thoroughly American, if there is any State which combines the fine qualities of the citizenry of every section of our country, it is this Lone Star State of ours. I felt that this day should not pass without an endeavor to stimulate your interest and your research in order that you may hear and know that from whatever part of the country you may hail, this Republic of Texas, this State of Texas, is your Republic and your State in its history and in its accomplishments, a tribute to American genius. [Applause.]

NAVY DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL, 1934

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement may be read in lieu of the report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendment numbered 2. That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the

Amendment numbered 1: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: "(none of which shall be available for increased pay for making aerial flights by more than eight nonflying officers or observers, to be selected by the Secretary of the Navy)"; and the Senate agree to the

Amendment numbered 3: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3. and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert: ", but nothing herein shall be construed as preventing the voluntary employment in any such capacity of a retired enlisted man or a transferred member of the Fleet Naval Reserve without additional expense to the Government"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 4: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 4, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed, insert: "$744,794"; and the Senate agree to the same.

W. B. OLIVER,
BURTON L. FRENCH,
JOHN TABER,
Managers on the part of the House.
SAMUEL M. SHORTRIDGE,
FREDERICK HALE,
HENRY W. KEYES,
CARTER GLASS,
E. S. BROUSSARD,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

W. A. AYRES,

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

On Nos. 1 to 4, inclusive, relating to the appropriation pay, subsistence, and transportation of naval personnel": Restores the limitation proposed by the House upon the number of nonflying officers or observers who may draw increased pay for making aerial flights, amended by excluding the restriction upon the grade of such officers; restores the language of the House provision with respect to the employment of enlisted men or civilians as household servants in the residences or quarters of officers on shore, amended to except such employment voluntarily, without additional expense to the Government, of retired enlisted men and transferred members of the Fleet Naval Reserve, and provides a limitation of $744,794 upon expenditures for travel by officers, midshipmen, and nurses, instead of $593,-479, as proposed by the House, and $895,499, as proposed by the Senate.

On No. 5: Provides a limitation of $35,000 upon expenditures for transportation of dependents of officers and enlisted men of the Marine Corps, as proposed by the Senate, instead of $26,250, as proposed by the House.

W. A. Ayres,
W. B. Oliver,
Burton L. French,
John Taber,
Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Britten].

Mr. BRITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I desire merely to make an announcement that I think is of importance to every congressional district of the United States. I have not talked with the Navy Department about it, and I do not know anyone connected with either of the big broadcasting stations, in consequence of which I have not talked to anybody connected with the Navy Department or the broadcasting associations, but day before yesterday the Secretary of the Navy issued an order to prevent the broadcasting of national music by the Navy Band and the United States Marine Band. The War Department has not taken this step, so that the Army Band will still broadcast.

These three musical organizations broadcast 14 programs of music per week on national hook-ups that extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Six of their programs are in the forenoon, six are in the afternoon, and two are at nighttime.

The daily programs may be heard in every home in the United States where a receiving set is established, and they are the delight of school children, unfortunate inmates of detention asylums, the bed-ridden in hospitals, hotels, and clubs. In fact, these programs are actually looked forward to by millions of people throughout the United States because of the character of music they include.

Of course, the Star-Spangled Banner concludes the program and patriotic music as well as the finest symphonic themes are always a part of every program.

The Dixie program, which goes into the South, is one of the Marine Band's most popular hours, and millions of youngsters throughout the United States are as familiar with the names of the band leaders of these three musical organizations as they are with such names as Will Rogers, Harold Lloyd, Al Jolson, and Eddie Cantor.

These morning and afternoon concerts are nothing more nor less for our military bands than very, very intensive practice hours, each musician realizing that he has an audience of a million or more and that the reputation of his pet band is at stake. This form of practice is much more valuable to the band itself than a mere hour's practice in the marine or Navy barracks, or in the Washington Navy Yard, playing to no one but themselves.

It is a great incentive to the band leader who undoubtedly hears from thousands who have enjoyed his music, and I am at a loss to understand why my good friend, Charlie Adams, would in the very last days of his executive position issue an order which would take from the people of the country these musical programs for which they are paying through indirect taxation.

I have learned to know and to love Secretary Adams as a very, very dear friend of great executive ability and of undaunted courage. He is one of the few Cabinet officers in the Hoover administration who stands out like a great headlight during these dark and trying days. He has been a great Secretary of the Navy and is loved by his officers and men alike.

I am quite satisfied that labor organizations have thrown no fear into his heart, because he is fearless so long as he believes that he is right.

The discontinuance of Navy and Marine Band broadcasting will mean the discontinuance of these musical programs completely, because neither the Radio Corporation nor the associations of musicians throughout the country will contribute this service or pay for it.

Mr. Speaker, I know it is needless for me to tell the House that no money has been made out of these programs which have been contributed by the Government in the interest of our people. The time on the air has been contributed by the respective broadcasting associations. If charged for, at anything like the usual rate, the broadcasting companies would undoubtedly collect millions of dollars per annum. The entire enterprise of broadcasting these musical programs, if considered from either viewpoint, is one of fine public service and I am sorry that Secretary Adams should have issued this order which means so much to the public at large.

These broadcasting time vacancies will not be filled in by union musicians or by any organized musical associations. The musical numbers will be replaced by a funny talk, by a talk on cooking or foodstuffs, by commercial advertising, or in some other way which will in no sense be national and from which there can be no general benefit.

The principal loser will be the public, and of course the bands themselves will lose this intensive practice hour which has made them what they are. They will continue to play for Washington and nobody else. That is the sad part of it all, and I for one am sorry for those in my district who will miss these musical programs, and who from now on will have to listen to some canned music or some other program of vastly inferior character. It is all too ridiculous that these national bands, which cost the tax-payers in the neighborhood of a million dollars a year, can not be heard outside of the District of Columbia because some one or some organization objects, and that some one will reap no benefits therefrom.

The historic Marine Band is as old as the Government! itself. It has often been referred to as "the national band" or the "band of the President of the United States." Its music is not excelled by that of any musical organization in the United States, and this same compliment may be paid to the Navy and Army Bands. They are great musical organizations which should be enjoyed by the people of the country from New York to San Francisco, just as often as it is possible to broadcast their beautiful strains.

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield two additional minutes to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRITTEN. I yield.

Mr. BLANTON. The reason the Navy ordered these band programs stopped was because the unions commanded them to do it. The Secretary of the Navy was afraid of the Musicians' Union.

Mr. DAVIS of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BRITTEN. I yield.

Mr. DAVIS of Tennessee. Is it not a fact that all of the taxpayers throughout the United States have just as much right to hear these bands as have those who happen to be here in the city of Washington?

Mr. BRITTEN. Why, of course; and that is the very principle behind the broadcasting of the music. The idea is to give the kiddies in Texas or in Arizona or in Washington or in Nevada a chance to hear the same music that the Washingtonian has at his very elbow.

As I have said heretofore, I have the very highest regard for the Secretary of the Navy. I have every regard for him and his judgment, but a great mistake has been made here, and it is going to remain a mistake unless you gentlemen, all of you, indicate to the Navy Department that that mistake should not be continued. The kiddies in your district want this music and the kiddies in my district want it also. I hope you will help me to get it back on the air.

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield three minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. LaGuardia].

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of replying to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois and to point out the necessity of the order issued by the Secretary of the Navy.

There is no question about the artistic and high musical standing of these service bands. They are perhaps the best bands in the country. That is not the question. The gentleman tells the whole story when he says that these bands are on the air 14 hours a week and playing without pay. I want to add that while they are doing so there are thousands and thousands of unemployed musicians walking the street. [Applause.]

It is true that these bands are on the air in the morningquite true. It is true that they are on in the afternoon, but when you examine the radio programs, as I am sure the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Shannon] and the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Stafford] have done, you will find that these concerts are sandwiched in between paid advertisements and that the radio companies derive profit from these concerts. If these bands do not play free of charge, it will be necessary for the radio companies who sell advertising time before and after this music to hire musicians to play.

Mr. BRITTEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LaGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. BRITTEN. It is perfectly natural that these programs must be sandwiched in between other programs. Otherwise they would have to play all day long.

Mr. LAGUARDIA. Correct.

Mr. BRITTEN. They can not help but be sandwiched in between other programs.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. Absolutely. The gentleman strengthens my point. And that is why the advertisements that come before and after these concerts have that position on the program and are charged accordingly. In other words, these concerts go on as a sustaining part of the program, I will admit; but, Mr. Speaker, it is depriving the musicians of this country of just that much work, and we are at that stage of our unemployment where we dare not permit it to increase or to continue. If the Marine and Navy Bands are to broadcast, they can do so from the Naval Radio Station, which is not commercial, sells no time, and sells no advertisement.

I think the Secretary of the Navy ought to be congratulated for responding to the demands made by the report of the Shannon committee, and by the musicians' unions, and by the universal viewpoint in this country that we should do everything that is possible to create employment and not to destroy employment.

Mr. BRITTEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LaGUARDIA. I yield.

Mr. BRITTEN. I agree with practically every word the gentleman has said, but the gentleman knows better than I do, that if this music does not prevail in the forenoons from now on, there will be no music at all.

Mr. LaGUARDIA. There will be music, music that will be paid for. I can assure the gentleman that plenty of good music is available and by American musicians. [Applause.]

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Blanton].

Mr. BLANTON. Mr. Speaker, these fine bands-the Navy and the United States Marine Bands-entertain the entire people of the United States with their splendid programs broadcast by radio. The Secretary of the Navy was forced to discontinue these radio broadcasts because the musicians' union commanded him to do so.

If I had been Secretary of the Navy and the union had selfishly asked me to deprive the entire people of the United States of this splendid entertainment, I would have told them to go-somewhere [applause], and you would too, if you were not afraid of them. If the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Britten] wants to get the right kind of American backbone in the Secretary of the Navy, let him go down there and tell him to rescind his order, and let these band programs continue, and that he will back him up against this unreasonable demand of the musicians' union. How many will stand up here with me and say: "We are going to continue these band programs in the interests of all the people of the United States, whether any selfish group likes it or not "?

Mr. BRITTEN. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. Yes; I yield.

Mr. BRITTEN. I may say to the gentleman that day after to-morrow the gentleman will have a good, stalwart Democrat as Secretary of the Navy, and I know the gentleman will be able to persuade him to do just what he wants.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. BLANTON. Yes; because the gentleman entertains us here free whenever he gets ready and no union can stop him from broadcasting.

Mr. CLARKE of New York. H stands for two places-H is up or down. Will the gentleman tell us which he has in mind so we will know just what he means?

Mr. BLANTON. It depends entirely upon the persons we are telling to go somewhere. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. STAFFORD].

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, the question of the proper functioning of our Government bands was given consideration by your committee investigating Government activities in competition with business. In the report presented a few weeks ago we dissented from the practice of the Army, the Navy, and the Marine Bands touring the country for pay.

We did not object to their giving concerts without pay or at any functions here in the District or throughout the country. Any person who knows the slightest about the present broadcasting monopolies that control the air-the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting Co.—knows they are commercializing every possible activity for their own pecuniary advantage, resulting in earnings of millions and millions of dollars by reason of the commercialization of the broadcasting privilege.

Now, the question before the Secretary of the Navy, as well as before the Secretary of War, reduces itself as to whether a Government activity is going to be utilized for the private emolument of a broadcasting company. Not a Member here could be utilized on the air just to fill in. Everyone who knows about broadcasting in the morning knows that this is the time when the housewives are listening to the radio and when the broadcasting companies are commercializing the air.

Undoubtedly, these broadcasting companies want to use for their own private aggrandizement a utility of the Government for which the Government is paying.

I am personally acquainted with the Secretary of the Navy. He is an outstanding business man. I am amazed at the gentleman from Illinois rising on the floor to criticize an order, to which unquestionably he has given very good thought, without conferring with the Secretary as to the reasons, unless, perhaps, it is just merely an effervescent explosion or ebullition of the gentleman from Illinois and simply a temporary reaction.

Mr. BRITTEN. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STAFFORD. Yes.

Mr. BRITTEN. I thought when the gentleman started to talk he was going to indorse what the gentleman from Illinois had said.

Mr. STAFFORD. No; I think there is some merit in the position of the Secretary of the Navy, and before I would criticize it, I would like to have the viewpoint of the Secretary of the Navy, because he is an outstanding business

For one, I do not wish any utility of the National Government utilized for the private advantage of these broadcasting companies that are making millions and millions of dollars. We are paying the bill, and if they are going to utilize these activities which we maintain at tremendous expense, let them pay for the service and let the funds go into the Treasury of the United States.

There is another side to this question, and I believe the Secretary of the Navy has good reason for promulgating this order. I can see one side. If the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting Co. were eleemosynary institutions, which they are not, because they are holding up the American people, it would be a different thing. The abuse of the radio system is its commercialization. We are not getting any music, and, naturally, the National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting Co. want to use everything for nothing that they can get at the expense of the Government.

Let them pay, and then they will be on the same level as other large private orchestras and bands throughout the country-like the former Sousa Band, the Conway Band, and all the others.

Why should the Government give these two monopolies free service, when we are maintaining these bands, to the disadvantage of the private organizations? [Applause.]

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I yield two minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Schafer].

Mr. SCHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I wonder what some of my colleagues intend to do with the Army Band, the Navy Band, and the Marine Band. If we are not to allow them to go through the country to play, if we do not allow them to play over the radio, are we going to continue to spend a million dollars of the taxpayers' money each year for their support and put them on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution? [Laughter.]

I suggest to the Members of the next Congress that if these bands are to be prevented from playing that you have an opportunity to help the overburdened taxpayers to the extent of about $1,000,000 each year by abolishing the bands.

When this is done, the members of these bands will then join the ranks of the unemployed, who will be competing with civilian musicians seven days in the week.

It is ridiculous not to allow these bands to play over the radio or to play outside of the District of Columbia without compensation if the taxpayers of the Nation are to contribute almost a million dollars each year for their maintenance. Certainly this burden should not be placed upon the taxpayers if the bands are to be silenced forever and the members do nothing but wear their uniforms and draw their pay checks. [Applause.]

[Here the gavel fell.]

Mr. AYRES. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The conference report was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. Ayres, a motion to reconsider the vote whereby the conference report was agreed to was laid on the table.

Mr. MAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 405

Resolved, That the Senate be requested to return to the House of Representatives the bill H. R. 11035, entitled "A bill for the relief of Price Huff."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

THE BANKRUPTCY BILL

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 45.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate Concurrent Resolution 45

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives con-curring), That in the enrollment of the bill (H. R. 14359) to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, the Clerk of the House is authorized to make the following necessary changes in the Senate engrossed amendment:

On page 1, line 6, beginning with "by," strike out through the word "and" in line 7.

word "and" in line 7.

On page 1, line 14, strike out "74 and 75," and insert in lieu thereof "74, 75, and 77."

On page 19, line 16, strike out "or compositions"; and in lines 21 and 24, strike out the words "or composition."

On page 39, line 12, strike out the figure "76."

On page 41, line 9, beginning with the word "Railroad," strike out through the period in line 11.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, as I understand, these are simply typographical corrections.

Mr. SUMNERS of Texas. The gentleman is correct.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes to make a statement. The Chair is going to take the privilege of recognizing gentlemen to call up bills for unanimous consent. He has been informed that a Member who objected to a bill last night desires to withdraw his objection. The Chair, therefore, will recognize the gentleman from South Dakota to call up that bill.

VICTORIA ARCONGE

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (S. 4024) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Interior to cancel patent in fee issued to Victoria Arconge and pass the

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has been informed that this bill was objected to by the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. HOPE, and the gentleman from South Dakota has advised the Chair that the gentleman from Kansas desires to withdraw his objection. Is there objection?

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, until I can get my private bills over here from the office, I ask the gentleman from South Dakota to temporarily withdraw this.

Mr. CHRISTOPHERSON. Very well; I shall withhold the matter at present.

BONDS IN CRIMINAL CASES IN DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Mr. GILBERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (S. 4082) to regulate the business of executing bonds for compensation in criminal cases and to improve the administration of justice in the District of Columbia and pass the same.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the words "bonding business" as used in this act mean the business of becoming surety for compensation upon bonds in criminal cases in the District of Columbia, and the word "bondsman" means any person or corporation engaged either as principal or as agent, clerk, or representative of another in such business.

in such business.

SEC. 2. That the business of becoming surety for compensation upon bonds in criminal cases in the District of Columbia is impressed with a public interest.

SEC. 3. It shall be unlawful for any person engaged, either as principal or as the clerk, agent, or representative of a corporation, or another person in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in the District of Columbia, either directly or indirectly, to give, donate, lend, contribute, or to promise to give, donate, loan, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to any attorney at law, police officer, deputy United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk, or other attaché of a criminal court, or public official of any character, for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ said bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation of the procuring case in the District of Columbia: and it shall be acter, for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ said bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia; and it shall be unlawful for any attorney at law, police officer, deputy United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk, bailiff, or other attaché of a criminal court, or public official of any character, to accept or receive from any such person engaged in the bonding business any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ any bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia.

compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia.

SEC. 4. It shall be unlawful for any attorney at law, either directly or indirectly, to give, loan, donate, contribute, or to promise to give, loan, donate, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to, or to split or divide any fee or commission with, any bondsman, the agent, clerk, or representative of any bondsman, police officer, deputy United States marshal, probation officer, assistant probation officer, balliff, clerk, or other attaché of any criminal court for causing or procuring or assisting in causing or procuring any person to employ such attorney to represent him in any criminal case in the District of Columbia.

SEC. 5. It shall be lawful to charge for executing any bond in SEC 5. It shall be lawful to charge for executing any bond in a criminal case in the District of Columbia, and it shall be unlawful for any person or corporation engaged in the bonding busilawful for any person or corporation engaged in the bonding business, either as principal, or clerk, agent, or representative of another, either directly or indirectly, to charge, accept, or receive any sum of money, or other thing of value, other than the regular fee for bonding, from any person for whom he has executed bond, for any other service whatever performed in connection with any indictment, information, or charge upon which said person is bailed or held in the District of Columbia. It also shall be unlawful for any person or corporation engaged either as principal or as agent, clerk, or representative of another in the bonding business, to settle, or attempt to settle, or to procure or bonding business, to settle, or attempt to settle, or to procure or attempt to procure the dismissal of any indictment, information, or charge against any person in custody or held upon bond in the District of Columbia, with any court, or with the prosecuting attorney in any court in the District of Columbia.

Sec. 6. A typewritten or printed list alphabetically arranged of all persons engaged under the authority of any of the courts of criminal jurisdiction in the District of Columbia in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in criminal cases shall be posted in a conspicuous place in each police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, and every other cinct, jall, prisoner's dock, house of detention, and every other place in the District of Columbia in which persons in custody of the law are detained, and one or more copies thereof kept on hand; and when any person who is detained in custody in any such place of detention shall request any person in charge thereof to furnish him the name of a bondsman, or to put him in communication with a bondsman, said list shall be furnished to the person so requesting, and it shall be the duty of the person in charge of said place of detention within a reasonable time to put the person so detained in communication with the bondsman so selected, and the person in charge of said place of detention shall contemporaneously with said transaction make in the blotter or book of record kept in any such place of detention, a record showing the name of the person requesting the bondsman, the offense ing the name of the person requesting the bondsman, the offense with which the said person is charged, the time at which the request was made, the bondsman requested, and the person by whom the said bondsman was called, and preserve the same as a permanent record in the book or blotter in which entered.

SEC. 7. It shall be unlawful for any bondsman, agent, clerk, or representative of any bondsman to enter a police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, or other place where persons in the custody of the law are detained in the District of Columbia for the purpose of obtaining employment as a bondsman, without having been previously called by a person so detained, or by some relative or other authorized person acting for or on behalf of the person so detained, and whenever any person engaged in the bonding business as principal, or as clerk, agent, or representative of another, shall enter a police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, or other place where persons in the custody of the law are detained in the District of Columbia, he shall forthwith give to the person in charge thereof his mission there, with give to the person in charge thereof his mission there, the name of the person calling him, and requesting him to come to such place, and the same shall be recorded by the person in charge of the said place of detention and preserved as a public record, and the failure to give such information, or the failure of the person in charge of said place of detention to make and preserve such a record, shall constitute a violation of this act.

SEC. 8. It shall be the duty of the police court, juvenile court, and the criminal divisions of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia each to provide, under reasonable rules and regula-and the criminal divisions of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia each to provide, under reasonable rules and regulations, the qualifications of persons and corporations applying for authority to engage in the bonding business in criminal cases in the District of Columbia, and the terms and conditions upon which such business shall be carried on, and no person or corporation shall, either as principal or as agent, clerk, or representative of another, engage in the bonding business in any such court until he shall by order of the court be authorized to do so. Such courts, in making such rules and regulations and in granting authority to persons to engage in the bonding business, shall take into consideration both the financial responsibility and the take into consideration both the financial responsibility and the moral qualities of the person so applying, and no person shall be permitted to engage, either as principal or agent, in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in criminal cases who has ever been convicted of any offense involving moral turpitude or who is not known to be a person of good moral the principal better the court of configurations. turpitude or who is not known to be a person of good moral character. It shall be the duty of each of said courts to require every person qualifying to engage in the bonding business as principal to file with said court a list showing the name, age, and residence of each person employed by said bondsman as agent, clerk, or representative in the bonding business, and require an affidavit from each of said persons stating that said person will abide by the terms and provisions of this act. Each of said courts shall require the authority of each of said persons to be renewed from time to time at such periods as the court may by rule provide, and before said authority shall be renewed the court shall require from each of said persons an affidavit that since his previous qualification to engage in the bonding business he has vious qualification to engage in the bonding business he has abided by the provisions of this act, and any person swearing falsely in any of said affidavits shall be guilty of perjury.

falsely in any of said affidavits shall be guilty of perjury.

Sec. 9. It shall be unlawful for any police officer or other public official, in advance of any raid by police or other peace officers or public officials or the execution of any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to give or furnish, either directly or indirectly, any information concerning such proposed raid or arrest to any person engaged in any manner in the bonding business, or to any attorney at law: Provided, however, That it shall not be unlawful for any police or other peace officer, in conducting any raid or in executing any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to communicate to any attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business, any fact necessary to enable such officer to obtain from such attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business information necessary to enable such officer to carry out said raid or execute such process.

or execute such process.

SEC. 10. The judges of the police court of the District of Columbia shall have the authority to appoint some official of the Metropolitan police force of the District of Columbia to act as a clerk of the police court with authority to take bail or collateral from persons charged with offenses triable in the police court in primingle cases in the District of Columbia at all times when the criminal cases in the District of Columbia at all times when the police court is not open and its clerks accessible. The official so appointed shall have the same authority at said times with reference to taking bonds or collateral as the clerk of the police court now has; shall receive no compensation for said services other than his regular salary; shall be subject to the orders and rules of the police court in discharge of his said duties, and may be removed as such clerk at any time by the judges of the police court. The Supreme Court and the Juvenile Court of the District court. The Supreme Court and the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia each shall have power by order to authorize the official appointed by the police court to take bond of persons arrested upon writs and processes from those courts in criminal cases between 4 o'clock p. m. and 9 o'clock a. m. and upon Sundays and holidays, and each of such courts shall have power at any time by order to revoke such authority granted by it.

SEC. 11. Any person violating any provision of this act other than in the commission of perjury shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment of not less than 10 or more than 60 days in jall, or both, where no not less than 10 or more than 60 days in jall, or both, where no other penalty is provided by this act; and if the person so convicted be a police officer or other public official, he shall upon recommendation of the trial judge also be forthwith dismissed from office; if a bondsman, or the agent, clerk, or representative of a bondsman, he shall be disqualified from thereafter engaging in any manner in the bonding business for such a period of time as the trial judge shall order; and, if an attorney at law, shall be subject to suspension or disbarment as attorney at law.

SEC. 12. It shall be the duty of the police court, juvenile court, and of the criminal divisions of the Supreme Court of the Disand of the Columbia to see that this act is enforced, and upon the impaneling of each grand jury in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia it shall be the duty of the judge impaneling said jury to give it in charge to the jury to investigate the manner in which this act is enforced and all violations thereof.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Kentucky is recognized for one hour.

Mr. STAFFORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. GILBERT. Yes.

Mr. STAFFORD. In going over this bill yesterday afternoon and again this morning my attention was called to section 9, particularly that part contained in the proviso which reads:

That it shall not be unlawful for any police or other peace officer, in conducting any raid or in executing any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to communicate to any attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business any fact necessary to enable such officer to obtain from such attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business information necessary to enable such officer to carry out said raid or execute such process.

In reading that paragraph it seemed to connote an idea that that would be in favor of the bonding official when a raid was to take place.

Mr. GILBERT. It sometimes happens that an offender has a known attorney, and it is not unlawful to consult with him to find out where his client is, to arrest him in making a raid, or just to arrest. There is sometimes no objection on the part of the accused. He may want to give himself up. The first part of section 9 is for the purpose of preventing the offender from being tipped off before the raid, and the second part of the proviso is to exclude those few instances where it is known and it may be desirable to consult his attorney in order to make the arrest.

Mr. STAFFORD. It was my thought that the proviso controverted the intendment of the first part of the section.

Mr. GILBERT. No.

Mr. STAFFORD. It was difficult for me to conceive how an attorney, dutiful to his client, knowing a raid was going to take place, would not communicate that fact to him.

Mr. GILBERT. He can only communicate with the peace officer. I agree with the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Stafford] as a general proposition; but there are certain known instances in which such communication would not violate the confidence of the client and would enable them to expedite justice.

Mr. STAFFORD. It is the gentleman's firm opinion that this proviso will not do anything to deter a raid being made, even though the peace officer should communicate with the attorney of the culprit?

Mr. GILBERT. That meets the approval of the corporation counsel. The gentleman handling this bill has not had a great deal of experience in city criminal practice.

Mr. STAFFORD. I am not surprised at the gentleman not having experience with crooks or in criminal practice, but I am rather surprised that a corporation counsel would insist on this proviso which seems to me to work to the advantage of the criminal rather than for the enforcement of law.

Mr. GILBERT. It was said that in many instances that information could be had without violating any confidences and expedite the arrest.

Mr. STAFFORD. Have laws of similar import to this been adopted by any of our States?

Mr. GILBERT. Oh, a great many of them. In every large city the bonding business, unless regulated, becomes quite an obstruction to the execution of justice, and a great many cities have these laws. It was shown that the bondsman gets there before the officer, and he proceeds immediately to sell out the officer and the court. He claims great powers and charges large fees and promises to get the fellow off, and among the ignorant and the superstitious this works much harm.

Mr. STAFFORD. In many of the large cities, especially those cities controlled by political organizations, there have been abuses of criminal procedure in that there are practical bondsmen always on the alert, who never sleep, who are using the arrested as a means of mulcting them out of money for getting them protection in the way of furnishing bonds.

Mr. GILBERT. The gentleman is correct about that.

Mr. STAFFORD. In the Seabury investigation that was one of the abuses called to the attention of the country, as to practices prevailing in New York City. In Philadelphia and Chicago there exist these abuses. I was wondering how generally this law had been adopted to prevent just such practices, which are the outgrowth oftentimes of corrupt party organization politics.

Mr. GILBERT. It is recognized that in big cities in modern times there is quite a miscarriage of justice through the execution of criminal bonds and the mulcting of the poor and ignorant, the selling of so-called influence, and quite embarrassing to the administration of justice.

Mr. STAFFORD. Some years back it was my privilege to serve on a lobby-investigating committee presided over by that distinguished Democratic leader, Judge Finis Garrett, where we investigated the practices of pawnbrokers in the District of Columbia holding up the poor unfortunates for extravagant rates. I assume in the District of Columbia there have been professional bondsmen who have been plying their trade on the unfortunates who have been arrested from time to time.

Mr. GILBERT. Undoubtedly that is true.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table. A similar House bill was laid on the table.

INDEPENDENT OFFICES APPROPRIATION RULL

Mr. WOODRUM, from the Committee on Appropriations, submitted a conference report on the bill (H. R. 14458, Rept. No. 2193) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, for printing under the rule.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. SUMMERS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for five minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

Mr. SUMMERS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, after 14 busy, congenial years in the House of Representatives I am leaving temporarily on March 4.

Not an hour, not a minute of your time has been wasted by me in playing politics. "More business and less politics" and "Country above party" have been my working slogans.

I hold my colleagues of all parties in high esteem. It has been a pleasure to work with all of you for the best interests of our country. I wish you all Godspeed in the continuance of such service as private citizens and especially as public officials. Before leaving, may I express my views briefly on two or three important questions?

As we look to the future nothing in my judgment is more important than a profitable price for farm products. This is fundamental if we would solve the unemployment problem and start the wheels of industry and commerce.

There has to be a starting point. In this country prosperity springs from the soil. If the farm problem were attacked by those who control Congress with the zeal it merits, we might soon be on the road to a real economic recovery. Why not instill hope and confidence in 30,000,000 farm people by aggressive, sympathetic action immediately?

We can not borrow nor drink ourselves out of this depression. Only by increasing the buying power of 40,000,000 people who depend on agriculture can we instill life into the commercial fabric of America. The major problem affecting the pocketbooks of all the people now is the agriculture problem. Till this is solved all other problems sink to insignificance. The price of wheat, cotton, corn, wool, alfalfa, fruits, poultry, and dairy products touch the spending power of every farmer, the buying power of every laboring man, and the money till of every merchant and banker of this country.

Of two things I am convinced: First, a rational, workable plan that will not lay a draft on the Treasury nor disturb cooperative nor independent buying and selling should be the first and major program of Congress; second, all other economic programs will fail till agriculture again assumes its rightful place in our Nation.

SHALL AMERICA SELL HER BIRTHRIGHT?

There are on the horizon alarming symptoms that America may sell her birthright of freedom for a mess of Russian Soviet pottage. To me this is unthinkable. It may appeal to our international bankers, but it does not appeal to our laboring men and farmers, who would be put in full competition with slave labor of Russia. What has Russia to sell to us? Chiefly farm products of which we already have a surplus.

American labor would suffer from increased importation of Russian goods.

Communist propaganda for world revolution and the destruction of our Government by bloodshed and force would menace our institutions. Every effort would be made to destroy here the sanctity of marriage and home as in Soviet Russia and make ours also a Godless nation. I regret that I can not remain to fight against the barter of American ideals and American living standards.

I warn Americans, in Congress and out, against the "5-year plan of atheism" soon to be launched by the Soviet Government of Russia, when "the very concept of God will be expelled from the union" and "all who give religious instruction shall be expelled from soviet territory." This is their latest "5-year plan."

Theirs is a world-wide plan. They have definitely announced that they will by force bring all nations to their standards. Until their standards are lifted, America should never recognize Russia. She may set up for herself whatever government she will, but we do not want her ambassadors within our gates boring from within and undermining our Government, as they have attempted in all other countries.

AGAINST CANCELLATION OF EUROPEAN DEBTS

Shall Europe, who borrowed and used the money, repay, or shall the overburdened American taxpayer pay European debts?

This is a pressing question. The bonds are unpaid. They can not be obliterated by "canceling the European debt." That only shifts the burden to American taxpayers. I am now and always have been opposed to cancellation. I voted against the moratorium. I have already pointed out that European nations are spending annually for armaments about seven times the yearly amounts due this Nation.

Once more I want to go on record as opposed to cancellation of European debts. And, as world-war clouds gather, I urge my colleagues to remember Washington's sound admonition and avoid entangling alliances with foreign nations. [Applause.]

SENATE BILL REFERRED

A bill of the following title was taken from the Speaker's table and, under the rule, referred as follows:

S. 5639. An act providing for loans or advances by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of securing the postponement of the foreclosure of certain mortgages for a period of two years, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

Mr. PARSONS, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that that committee had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the House of the following titles, which were thereupon signed by the Speaker:

H. R. 4910. An act for the relief of Gust J. Schweitzer; and H. R. 12047. An act to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes.

The SPEAKER announced his signature to an enrolled joint resolution of the Senate of the following title:

S. J. Res. 228. A joint resolution authorizing the American National Red Cross and certain other organizations to exchange Government-owned cotton for articles containing wool

THE LATE HON. THOMAS J. WALSH

Mr. RAINEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

House Resolution 406

Resolved, That the House has heard with profound sorrow of the death of the Hon. Thomas J. Walsh, a Senator of the United States from the State of Montana.

Resolved, That the Clerk communicate these resolutions to the Senate and transmit a copy thereof to the family of the deceased Senator deceased Senator.

Resolved, That a committee of two Members be appointed on the part of the House to join with the committee appointed on the part of the Senate to attend the funeral.

The resolution was agreed to.

The Chair appointed the following committee: Messrs. Evans of Montana and Leavitt.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That, as a further mark of respect, this House do now adjourn.

The resolution was agreed to; accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 50 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, March 3, 1933, at 11 o'clock a. m.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII,

Mr. RAYBURN: Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. House Resolution 59. A resolution to investigate the ownership and control of stock, securities, or capital interests in any public-utility corporation engaged in the transportation of persons or sale of property, energy, or intelligence in interstate or foreign commerce by holding companies, etc.; with amendment (Rept. No. 2192). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. LOZIER: Committee on Election of President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress. House Joint Resolution 60. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing for the election of President and Vice President and the filling of vacancies in the office of President; with amendment (Rept. No. 2194). Referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. WILLIAMSON: Committee on Indian Affairs. S. 5623. An act referring the claims of the Turtle Mountain Band or Bands of Chippewa Indians of North Dakota to the Court of Claims for adjudication and settlement; with amendment (Rept. No. 2195). Referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII,

Mr. McLEOD introduced a resolution (H. Res. 407) requesting the President to pardon certain persons confined in Federal penal institutions, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MEMORIALS

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, memorials were presented and referred as follows:

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania, memorializing Congress to refrain from taking any action for the purpose of economy or other purpose that will further decrease the strength of the armed forces of the United States; to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, memorializing Congress to continue in force the 50 per cent reduction in national forest grazing fees as granted in 1932; to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Memorial of the Legislature of the State of Michigan, memorializing Congress to enact House Joint Resolution 191; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

10775. By Mr. BOHN: Petition of the Council of the City of Dearborn, Mich., favoring the issuance of United States postage stamps as a memorial to Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko: to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

10776. By Mr. CHRISTGAU: Resolution of the Village Council of Lanesboro, Minn., expressing opposition to the application of the Federal tax to municipally owned electric, water, and power plants; to the Committee on Ways 10777. Also, petition signed by citizens of Red Wing, Minn., urging support of Senate bill 1079 and Senate Resolution 170; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10778. Also, resolution adopted by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of St. Charles, Minn., urging support of Senate bill 1079 and Senate Resolution 170; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10779. By Mr. CONDON: Petition of Harry Wilde, Robert J. Fox, George A. Foss, John Miley, Frederick C. Manns, Samuel S. Hunter, Helen Sunner, and 371 other citizens of Rhode Island, protesting against any repeal or modification of existing legislation beneficial to Spanish War veterans, their widows, or dependents; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10780. Also, petition of John J. Mauss, Walter M. Thompson, Annie E. Doherty, Amelia E. Butler, George L. Rousseau, Evelina Waterman, and 168 other citizens of Rhode Island, protesting against any repeal or modification of existing legislation beneficial to Spanish War veterans, their widows, or dependents; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10781. Also, petition of Susie L. Doty, Eugene Verrier, Eugene J. Murphy, Florence McKenna, Bert N. Greene, Richard Powers, and 212 other citizens of Rhode Island, protesting against any repeal or modification of existing legislation beneficial to Spanish War veterans, their widows, or dependents: to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legislation.

10782. By Mr. GIBSON: Petition of Hartford Post. No. 26, Department of Vermont, American Legion, opposing reductions in benefits now paid, opposing any revision in privileges now accorded by law to veterans of all wars; to the Committee on World War Veterans' Legis-10783. By Mr. HAINES: Resolution of the Farmers Protective Association of Adams County, Pa., signed by George William Moul and others, urging immediate relief for farmers; to the Committee on Agriculture.

10784. By Mr. HALL of North Dakota: Petition of North Dakota State Senate (the House concurring), favoring the ratification of a treaty between this Nation and Canada. providing the terms under which may be constructed the long-sought and much-needed seaway uniting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean; to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

10785. By Mr. PERSON: Petition of members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Lansing, Mich., and vicinity, protesting against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

10786. Also, joint resolution of the House and Senate of the State of Michigan in re House Joint Resolution 191, to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, by issuing a special series of postage stamps in his honor; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

10787. By the SPEAKER: Petition of Dayton Unit, No. 10, of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces, protesting against the appointment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as grand marshal of the inaugural parade; to the Committee on Military Affairs.

SENATE

FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1933

The Senate met at 9 o'clock and 30 minutes a. m. The Chaplain, Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, D. D., offered the following prayer:

O merciful God and Heavenly Father, who spakest in the olden time and saidst, "When Thou passest through the waters I will be with Thee, and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee. When thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee, for I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One Israel, thy Savior," speak peace and comfort to these hearts of ours as once again we bow before the solemn mystery of death.

Thou hast called unto Thyself, dear Lord, the soul of one who loved this sanctuary of the Nation, who with his stainless character, the ripeness of his intellect, his unremitting service to his country was sorely needed in our midst. To him a grateful people pays unstinted tribute of devotion. Help us to say, "Thy will be done." Lord, vouchsafe him light and rest, joy and consolation in Thy presence, in the ample folds of Thy great love. Grant to his loved ones in their poignancy of grief the abundance of Thy mercy, for they sorrow not as those without hope for him who sleeps in Thee.

O seeking Savior of our souls, shed light upon the problems that perplex; dispel the night of doubt and fear; and for the eyes that wait, may morning dawn, disclosing to our anxious gaze Thy heart that cares, Thy face which beckons with its smile. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Chief Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the proceedings of the calendar days of Wednesday, March 1, and Thursday, March 2, when, upon request of Mr. FESS, and by unanimous consent, the reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved for those days.

RESIGNATION OF SENATOR SWANSON, OF VIRGINIA

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the senior Senator from Virginia [Mr. Swanson], which was ordered to lie on the table, and it was read, as follows:

> UNITED STATES SENATE, Washington, March 1, 1933.

Hon. CHARLES CURTIS.

President of the Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: To-day I have mailed my resignation as a United States Senator from the State of Virginia to the governor of that State, to be effective upon the close of the legislative day of March 3, 1933.

I am deeply grateful for your many courtesies. Yours very respectfully,

CLAUDE A. SWANSON.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The communication will lie on the table.

SENATOR FROM PENNSYLVANIA

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the credentials of James J. Davis, chosen a Senator from the State of Pennsylvania for the term commencing on the 4th day of March, 1933, which were ordered to lie on the table, and they were read, as follows:

IN THE NAME AND BY AUTHORITY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.

To the President of the Senate of the United States.

Washington, D. C.

Sir: This is to certify that on the 8th day of November, 1932, James J. Davis was duly chosen by the qualified electors of the State of Pennsylvania a Senator from said State to represent said
State in the Senate of the United States for the term of six years, beginning on the 4th day of March, 1933.

Witness: His excellency our governor, Gifford Pinchot, and our seal hereto affixed at Harrisburg, Pa., this 2d day of March,
A D 1933.

A. D. 1933.

By the governor: [SEAL.]

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

RICHARD J. BEAMISH, Secretary of the Commonwealth.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate a letter from the Governor of Pennsylvania, which was ordered to lie on the table, and it was read, as follows:

> COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA GOVERNOR'S OFFICE,

Harrisburg, March 2, 1933.
To the President of the Senate of the United States,
Washington, D. C.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith the returns of the election of United States Senator held on November 8, 1932, as the law of this Commonwealth directs.

I have the honor also to inform you that I have to-day signed and by registered mail delivered to Hon. James J. Davis, in conformity with the statute in such case made and provided, a certificate which is as follows:

"TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

"This is to certify that on the 8th day of November, 1932, James J. Davis was duly chosen by the qualified electors of the State of Pennsylvania a Senator from said State to represent said State in the Senate of the United States for the term of six years, beginning on the 4th day of March, 1933.

"Witness: His excellency our governor, Gifford Pinchot, and our seal hereto affixed at Harrisburg, Pa., this 2d day of March,

A. D. 1933.

" GIFFORD PINCHOT, Governor.

"By the governor:

"Richard J. Beamish,
"Secretary of the Commonwealth."

I am inclosing herewith a separate communication addressed to you, and through you to the Senate of the United States. I request that the contents of this separate communication shall not be made public until after a verdict shall have been reached in the case now pending against the said James J. Davis in the District Court of New York, or until such time as the Senate of the United States shall deem fit and proper for its publication.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully yours.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the separate communication referred to, not to be opened until order of the Senate.

Mr. REED subsequently said: Mr. President, this morning I asked leave to place in the RECORD, immediately after the credentials of my colleague, an extract from Pennsylvania law regarding the duty of the governor to issue a certificate of election. My colleague [Mr. Davis] now asks me to substitute for that a memorandum giving other statutory provisions and a brief by a Pennsylvania lawyer with regard to it. I ask that the paper which I now send to the desk may be printed immediately after the credentials of my colleague instead of the matter which I sent up this morning.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, that order will be entered.

The matter referred to is as follows:

IN RE: POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA CONCERNING CERTIFICATION OF THE ELECTION OF A UNITED STATES SENATOR

1. Article I, section 4, clause (1), of the Constitution of the United States reads as follows:

The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the legis-lature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators.

2. Article I, section 5, clause (1), of the Constitution of the

2. Article I, section 5, clause (1), of the Constitution of the United States reads as follows:

"Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own Members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent Members in such manner and under such penalties as each House may provide."

3. Act 454, section 2, of Laws of Pennsylvania of the 1913 session of the general assembly (P. L. 995), reads as follows:

"The vote for candidates for the office of United States Senator shall be counted, certified, computed, and returned as is now or may hereafter be provided by law with respect to other offices filled by a vote of the electors of the State at large: Provided, however, That the returns of the election of United States Senator shall by a vote of the electors of the State at large: Provided, however, That the returns of the election of United States Senator shall be made to the secretary of the Commonwealth, who shall immediately tabulate and compute the same, and, upon the conclusion of said count, certify the result thereof to the governor, who shall immediately issue a certificate of election, under the seal of the Commonwealth, duly signed by himself and attested by the secretary of the Commonwealth, and deliver the same to the candidate receiving the highest number of votes. He shall also transmit the returns of said election to the President of the United mit the returns of said election to the President of the United .States Senate."

In regard to this particular matter, the Legislature of Pennsylvania had authority to prescribe the manner of certification as an incident part of the "manner of holding elections for Senators" under the power delegated to it in Article I, section 4, clause (1), of the Constitution of the United States quoted supra.

Section 2 of the act of July 24, 1913, P. L. 995, Laws of Pennsylvania, quoted above, defines the only duties that the Governor sylvania, quoted above, defines the only duties that the Governor of Pennsylvania has in regard to the certificate of election of a United States Senator. It will be seen that these duties are purely perfunctory and have to do only with the certification of the information given to him by the secretary of the Commonwealth, whose duties are likewise confined to mere tabulation and computation of the vote (which tabulation and computation must necessarily be based only upon the returns submitted to him).

It will be noted that the governor's duty is to immediately issue a certificate of election.

certificate of election.

No power is given to the Governor of Pennsylvania to pass upon the qualifications of a citizen of Pennsylvania duly elected to the United States Senate, nor is any power given to him to judge the election and returns. These powers are specifically reserved in the Constitution of the United States to the United States Senate under the provisions of Article I, section 5, clause (1), hereinabove quoted.

If the governor refuses to "immediately issue a certificate of election" under the provisions of section 2 of the act of 1913 hereinabove quoted, then he is plainly violating his legal duty.

Respectfully submitted.

WALTER J. KRESS.

SENATOR FROM TENNESSEE

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communications, which were read and ordered to be placed on file:

> UNITED STATES SENATE, March 2, 1933.

PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,

Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: I herewith inclose copy of my letter addressed and mailed to Hon. Hill McAlister, Governor of Tennessee, on February 25, 1933, resigning from the United States Senate. Very respectfully,

CORDELL HULL.

[Copy] UNITED STATES SENATE, February 25, 1933.

Hon. Hill McAlister, Governor of Tennessee, Nashville, Tenn.

DEAR GOVERNOR MCALISTER: I hereby tender my resignation as United States Senator from the State of Tennessee for the term ending March 4, 1937, to take effect at noon on the 4th day of March, 1933. Very sincerely,

CORDELL HULL.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had passed without amendment bills and joint resolutions of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 207. An act for the relief of James L. Pate;

S. 251. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the estate of Thomas Bird, deceased;

S. 256. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of Madrigal & Co., Manila, P. I.;

S. 257. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the Baltimore branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond;

S. 361. An act for the relief of Mary E. Stebbins;

S. 402. An act for the relief of Nelson King;

S. 610. An act for the relief of the Anderson-Tully Co.;

S. 855. An act for the relief of William Ray Taplin;

S. 1463. An act for the relief of William Powell;

S. 1738. An act for the relief of Catterina Pollino;

S. 2203. An act for the relief of John Pearce Cann;

S. 2374. An act to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Navy to convey by gift to the city of Savannah, Ga., the naval radio station, the buildings and apparatus, located upon land owned by said city;

S. 2393. An act to provide for the addition of the names of certain persons to the final roll of the Indians of the Flathead Indian Reservation, Mont., and for other purposes;

S. 2508. An act for the relief of Maj. O. S. McCleary, United States Army, retired;

S. 2680. An act for the relief of Harry E. Blomgren;

S. 3334. An act for the relief of William M. Sherman;

S. 3344. An act for the relief of Maggie Kirkland;

S. 3830. An act to remove a cloud on the title of certain land in the city of Corpus Christi, Tex.;

S. 3831. An act for the relief of William A. Lester;

S. 3832. An act for the relief of Zetta Lester;

S. 3972. An act for the relief of Alva D. McGuire, jr.;

S. 4230. An act for the relief of Betty McBride;

S. 4390. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to cancel patent in fee issued to Henry J. Kirn and Louise H. Kirn:

S. 4440. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of George H. Hansen;

S. 4441. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the National Surety Co.;

S. 4510. An act to authorize exchange of small tribal acreage on the Fort Hall Indian School reserve in Idaho for adjoining land;

S. 4557. An act to authorize the addition of certain names to the final roll of the Sac and Fox Indians of Oklahoma;

S. 4738. An act for the relief of Newport Contracting & Engineering Co.;

S. 4782. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of Arthur R. Saffran;

S. 4818. An act to authorize the transfer of certain lands in Bernalillo County, N. Mex., to the city of Albuquerque, N. Mex.;

S. 4930. An act for the relief of Avery G. Constant;

S. 5085. An act for the relief of Leslie Jensen;

S. 5203. An act for the relief of the Harvey Canal Ship Yard and Machine Shop;

S. 5204. An act for the relief of the Texas Power & Light $\mathbf{Co.:}$

S. 5205. An act for the relief of the Great Falls Meat Co., of Great Falls, Mont.;

S. 5207. An act for the relief of Rose Gillesple, Joseph Anton Dietz, and Manuel M. Wiseman, as trustee of the estate of Louis Wiseman, deceased:

S. 5208. An act for the relief of Mary Byrkett Sinks;

S. 5325. An act for the relief of Sadie L. Kirby;

S. 5413. An act for the relief of the Booth Fisheries Co.;

S. 5660. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell certain Government property in St. Louis, Mo.;

S. J. Res. 134. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Manob Suriya, a citizen of Siam:

S. J. Res. 178. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Julio Rodriguez Arrea, a citizen of Costa Rica;

S. J. Res. 179. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Tisheng Yen, a citizen of China: and

S. J. Res. 228. Joint resolution authorizing the American National Red Cross and certain other organizations to exchange Government-owned cotton for articles containing wool.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4910) for the relief of Gust J. Schweitzer.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills and joint resolution of the Senate, severally with amendments, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

S. 660. An act for the relief of Hamilton Grounds;

S. 4909. An act for the relief of A. Y. Martin;

S. 5382. An act providing for an exchange of lands between the Colonial Realty Co. and the United States, and for other purposes; and

S. J. Res. 197. Joint resolution conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to render findings of fact in the claim of P. F. Gormley Co.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills of the Senate, severally with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

S. 465. An act for the relief of William H. Holmes;

S. 1067. An act for the relief of Agnes M. Angle;

S. 1978. An act for the relief of Daisy Anderson;

S. 2862. An act for the relief of W. H. Hendrickson;

S. 2941. An act for the relief of the Holy Family Hospital, St. Ignatius, Mont.;

S. 3443. An act to authorize the Secretary of War to grant a right of way to the Alameda Belt Line across the Benton Field Military Reservation, Alameda, Calif.;

S. 3592. An act confirming the claim of Francis R. Sanchez, and for other purposes;

S. 5537. An act to convey certain land in the county of Los Angeles, State of California; and

S. 5612. An act to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of California for the use of the California State park system.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to each of the following bills of the House:

H. R. 11270. An act to amend section 2 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes"; and

H. R. 12651. An act for the relief of the Uintah, White River, and Uncompangre Bands of Ute Indians of Utah, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 9 to the bill (H. R. 6684) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to modify the terms of existing contracts for the sale of timber on Indian land when it is in the interest of the Indians so to do, and that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate No. 8 to the said bill, with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bill and joint resolution, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 14579. An act to provide for the free importation of certain articles exported temporarily for scientific or educational purposes; and

H. J. Res. 612. Joint resolution to provide for further investigation of expenditures of the Post Office Department.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolutions, and they were signed by the Vice President:

S. 4491. An act amending the shipping act, 1916, as amended, for the purpose of further regulating common carriers by water in interstate commerce of the United States engaged in transportation by way of the Panama Canal:

H. R. 4910. An act for the relief of Gust J. Schweitzer;

H.R. 6409. An act for the relief of William Joseph La-Carte;

H.R. 12047. An act to provide for the transfer of powder and other explosive materials from deteriorated and unserviceable ammunition under the control of the War Department to the Department of Agriculture for use in land clearing, drainage, road building, and other agricultural purposes;

S. J. Res. 228. Joint resolution authorizing the American National Red Cross and certain other organizations to exchange Government-owned cotton for articles containing wool; and

S. J. Res. 235. Joint resolution amending provisions in river and harbor laws relating to local cooperation in the prosecution of waterway improvements.

CALL OF THE ROLL

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst Austin Bailey Bankhead Barbour Barkley Bingham Black Blaine Borah Bratton Brookhart

McKellar McNary Metcalf Broussard Glenn Goldsborough Smoot Gore Grammer Steiwer Stephens Bulow Hale Harrison Hastings Swanson Thomas, Idaho Thomas, Okla. Capper Neelv Caraway Carey Clark Norbeck Norris Hatfield Nye Oddie Townsend Coolidge Trammell Copeland Costigan Tydings Vandenberg Hebert Patterson Johnson Pittman Reed Kean Wagner Reynolds Robinson, Ark Kendrick Walcott Walsh Davis Keyes King
La Follette
Lewis
Logan
Long Dill Robinson, Ind. Watson Russell Schall Wheeler White Fess Fletcher Frazier Schuyler George Glass Sheppard Shortridge McGill

Mr. SHEPPARD. My colleague the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. Connally] is unavoidably detained by illness. This announcement may stand for the day.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Eighty-nine Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, as everyone knows, there are only a few hours left of this Congress, and the District of Columbia appropriation bill is almost upon its final passage. It will be necessary to send it to conference within a very short time, and therefore I ask unanimous consent that we may take up the District of Columbia appropriation bill at the present time. I am sure it will not be very long before it will be on its final passage.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will state the pending amendment.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 6, after line 23, it is proposed to strike out-

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs: Provided, That this prohibition shall not be construed to affect any order or part of an order of such Public Utilities Commission other than with respect to the requirement of the installation of such

And in lieu thereof to insert:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be no part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used for or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publica-tion, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Util-ities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs if the initial rate exceeds 25 cents for the first 2 miles, or portion thereof, and 10 cents a mile thereafter: Provided, That this pro-hibition shall not be construed to affect any order or part of an order of such Public Utilities Commission other than with respect to the requirement of the installation of such meters

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I understand that the Senator from New York [Mr. COPELAND] is preparing to offer an amendment touching the subject which we were discussing Saturday night.

Mr. COPELAND. That is correct.

Mr. BORAH. When that is offered I will be glad to consider it.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I am sure that everybody in the Senate is in such a frame of mind that he is quite unwilling to enter into any controversial matter if it can be avoided. I know that is my feeling. Furthermore, in view of the death of our friend, the late Senator from Montana, Mr. Walsh, we adjourned yesterday, and we have just this one legislative day in which to complete our work.

In view of these circumstances, so far as I am concerned, I am quite unwilling to go into a rough and tumble battle. which would be necessary in order to present the cause, and certainly to win it. Therefore I am going to suggest an amendment. This amendment, as will be seen when it is read, would bring back to the Congress for its consideration any regulation of the taxicab meter question. Therefore I take it that all parties, on both sides of the controversy, if there is a controversy, would have an opportunity, when the matter was presented, to have the Congress decide then exactly what was right to be done.

Mr. BLACK. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. COPELAND. I vield.

Mr. BLACK. The Senator said the question would come back to us for consideration. As I understand, it would come back for consideration and could not take effect unless approved by the Congress.

Mr. COPELAND. That is correct.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. COPELAND. I yield.

Mr. KING. Would it leave the matter in status quo until after there should have been affirmative act by the commission and by Congress?

Mr. COPELAND. Yes. If the Senators will listen, I will read it. I propose to amend, on page 7, line 11, by striking out everything in the paragraph after the word "taxicabs" and to insert the words "until such regulation or order has been approved by Congress."

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, if the Senator will permit me, I do not think the Senator intends to strike out the proviso after the word "thereafter," on line 13.

Mr. COPELAND. That is correct. Let me state the amendment again. I propose to strike out, after the word "taxicabs," on line 11, the balance of that line, all of line 12, and the thirteenth line down to the word "provided," so that it would read:

No part of the appropriations contained in this act shall be used or in connection with the preparation, issuance, publication, or enforcement of any regulation or order of the Public Utilities Commission requiring the installation of meters in taxicabs until such regulation or order has been approved by Congress.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, would that permit the Public Utilities Commission to promulgate rules as to the charges which shall be imposed upon those who ride in taxicabs and enforce those rules and regulations and charges?

Mr. COPELAND. They have not that authority now, under court decision. That is the reason why this matter is here. They can do nothing more, certainly so far as taxicab meters are concerned, without the approval of Congress.

Mr. KING. That does not answer the question, if I understand the Senator. What I am inquiring about is whether or not under the amendment offered by the Senator from New York the Public Utilities Commission might promulgate rules and fix rates which would go into effect, the amendment only restricting the requirement for meters. I am not sure that the amendment of the Senator excludes or limits the power of the commissioners to fix rates, no matter how high or how low.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will suspend a moment. The Senate will be in order. It is impossible for Senators to be heard, and Senators want to hear what is

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I understood that the amendment which the Senator intended to offer was to leave the matter in status quo, and to give the commissioners no authority to promulgate rules and regulations respecting meters, or to fix fares, which might not go into effect until Congress should subsequently deal with the matter. I am not sure whether the amendment of the Senator means that.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, it means exactly that, because, as I understand the matter as it was presented to the committee, it has been determined by court order that the commission has no right to fix fares, and the fares now in effect are the competitive fares established by the companies themselves.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I am not sure yet that I understand this matter. Is it correct to state that if this amendment of the Senator from New York is adopted the matter will remain as it now is until Congress shall affirmatively act?

Mr. COPELAND. That is my understanding.

Mr. BORAH. That there can be no change of rates or installation of meters until Congress acts?

Mr. COPELAND. That is right.

Mr. BORAH. Is that the understanding of the Senator from Connecticut, may I ask?

Mr. BINGHAM. So far as change of rates is concerned, the commission has never been denied that power. The only matter which the House put in last year and this year is a provision that no part of the appropriation shall be used for the enforcement of any regulation or order requiring the installation of meters. There has never been any regulation as to their fixing rates and charges. What the Senator from New York really is proposing to do is to amend the House language by inserting the words "until Congress shall act," or some equivalent expression.

Mr. COPELAND. May I ask the Senator whether he does not understand that there was a court order, which was brought before us by Mr. Keech, the people's counsel, pointing out that, as the situation now is, the commission is precluded from making rates? Am I right? Does the Senator from Kansas agree to that?

Mr. CAPPER. That is as I understand it.

Mr. COPELAND. I think that is the situation. So we are not touching that question. I suppose really that would require legislation. This amendment is proposed simply to take the question of the taxicab meters out of controversy until it comes back to us with a recommendation from the commission.

Mr. BINGHAM. That is my understanding.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I have one more small amendment, which I will send to the desk and ask to have

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be reported.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 13, line 11, after the word "except," insert the words "as to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and."

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to. The bill is still open to amendment. there be no further amendments the question is, Shall the amendments be engrossed and the bill be read a third time?

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments to the bill, ask for a conference with the House, and that the Chair appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Vice President appointed Mr. BINGHAM, Mr. CAPPER, Mr. NYE, Mr. STEIWER, Mr. GLASS, Mr. KENDRICK, and Mr. COPELAND conferees on the part of the Senate.

PRESCRIBING OF MEDICINAL LIQUORS

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that after the disposition of the unfinished business Calendar 1427, the bill (H. R. 14395) relating to the prescribing of medicinal liquors, may be made the order of business.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SMOOT. I object.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

PROPOSED CONSOLIDATION OF THE INTERIOR AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENTS

Mr. NYE. Mr. President, Senate bill 5538 is a bill providing consolidation of the Interior and Agricultural Departments. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior have submitted reports upon the bill, and request is made for the printing of the reports in the RECORD. I ask unanimous consent, therefore, that the reports may be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

The reports are as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR, Washington, February 16, 1933.

Hon. GERALD P. NYE,

Chairman Committee on Public Lands and Surveys,

United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Chairman: In response to your request of January 28, 1933, for a report on S. 5538, entitled "A bill to establish a department of development and conservation, to abolish the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior, and to transfer the functions thereof to the department of development and conservation, and for other purposes," I submit the following: following

This bill proposes the establishment of a new executive department of the Government, to be known as the department of development and conservation. It is to be headed by a secretary of development and conservation, with whom are to be an assistant secretary for agriculture and an assistant secretary for interior, ant secretary for agriculture and an assistant secretary for interior, and to it are to be transferred the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior, with all that pertain to them. All the functions, powers, and duties vested in and imposed upon the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of the Interior, the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and the Assistant Secretary of the Interior are vested in and imposed upon the new secretary. Only such personnel of the present departments as in the judgment of the President are indispensable to the efficient operation of the new department are to be transferred.

The establishment of the new department is effective immediately. The Departments of Agriculture and the Interior cease to exist, and the transfer of their functions and powers is effective to exist, and the transfer of their functions and powers is effective when the secretary of development and conservation has taken office. The secretary of development and conservation has taken office. The secretary of development and conservation thereafter has extensive powers in the reorganization of the new department. With the passage of time and the changing needs of the people, new responsibilities are placed upon the executive branch of the Government by the Congress, and from time to time reorganization of the executive departments becomes essential in order to secure efficiency and economy in greater degree. This matter now naturally engages the attention of both executive and legis-lative branches to an unusual extent because of present economic conditions. While I sympathize heartily with the manifest de-sire to accomplish a maximum of economy with a minimum of interference with efficiency. I can not recommend the enactment of this bill into law for the following reasons:

1. These two departments should not be segregated from the general problem: Contemplating a radical reorganization of the two departments about the central ideas of "conservation and development," the bill ignores the rest of the executive establishdevelopment," the bill ignores the rest of the executive establishment now administered in eight other executive departments and in numerous independent bureaus, commissions, and other agencies. If there are in either of these departments activities which would belong more logically in some other department than in the department of development and conservation, there is no provision for their transfer. Agencies elsewhere in the Government that would logically belong in the new department also are not considered.

The reorganization of the Government to meet the needs of the times should consider the whole executive establishment. The best results can not be secured by consideration of each department separately, or, as this bill proposes, by treatment of two departments without reference to any others.

2. The proposed consolidation would produce an unwieldy unit in executive administration: It is proposed to bring into a single department about 30 bureaus and services and 3 institutions together with a number of offices and other minor units. These agencies perform a very wide range of functions, most of them of technical character, many of them quite unrelated except as they all refer, more or less exactly, to the broad and indefinite fields of development and conservation. These bureaus, even when dealing with similar subject matter, exercise distinctly different functions and the consolidation of such bureaus would not of itself lessen the variety of functions. These functions have been prescribed and established under law and the elimination of such functions is a matter of legislation rather than of executive reorganization. Congress can eliminate or discontinue any functions it desires, without such consolidation of departments.

To bring all these existing functions and activities under the administration of one secretary and two assistant secretaries would 2. The proposed consolidation would produce an unwieldy unit administration of one secretary and two assistant secretaries would administration of one secretary and two assistant secretaries would place upon them burdens so heavy as to materially interfere with efficient administration. It would largely handicap the effort to secure that degree of correlation which is essential to the greatest economy and efficiency.

From the beginnings of our Government it has been considered wise to have the various activities of the executive establishment supervised by Secretaries who are members of the Cabinet.

supervised by Secretaries who are members of the Cabinet.

Because it was manifest that the President could not personally supervise so broad a field of activities, the First Congress under the Constitution, in 1789, upon resolution of Representative James Madison, set up the departmental plan. Congress was warned by James Monroe, as early as 1812, when he was Secretary of State, that there were serious objections to the establishment of independent bureaus not supervised by a Cabinet officer. That view has been expressed by many others of our most thoughtful statesmen in the past and to-day.

But whether activities are carried on in bureaus independent of any department, or by bureaus in a department so overloaded by any department, or by bureaus in a department so overloaded by diversity of functions as to make actual supervision by the Secretary only casual or fragmentary, the result is much the same—actual supervision and correlation are lacking. Overlapping and duplicating of effort breed more freely in such circumstances. When Thomas Jefferson was offered an appointment as Secretary of State in Washington's first Cabinet, he hesitated long before or state in washington's list Cabinet, he hestated long before accepting, because he felt that our foreign affairs were sufficient burden for one Secretary, but the department had numerous other unrelated activities, and he did not care to be held responsible for the administration of activities he could not give attention to.

for the administration of activities he could not give attention to. Henry Clay, as Secretary of State, wrote the House Select Committee on Reorganization in 1826, of which Representative Daniel Webster was chairman, that the necessary consequence of undue variety and extent of business in a department was "that it lessens responsibility or renders the enforcement of it unjust." And further, "If there be assigned to one more than he can possibly do, the effect must be either to punish him for what he can not avoid, or to hold him less responsible. * * In the effort to perform all, where the ability exists only to execute a part, the probability is that all will suffer a little, and no part will be as well done as if a measure of duty was in the fair scope of reasonable exertion of power." able exertion of power."

The establishment of the Department of the Interior in 1849 The establishment of the Department of the Interior in 1849 resulted from the appeal of the Secretary of the Treasury, Robert J. Walker, that his office be relieved of the administration of the General Land Office which encroached heavily upon the time required for the more pertinent responsibilities of his department.

Leading the debate for the establishment of the Interior Depart—

Leading the debate for the establishment of the Interior Department, March 3, 1849, Senator Jefferson Davis appealed for real accountability in administration and warned that when "the duties of an officer increase beyond his ability, such division should be made as will afford responsible agents, instead of having functions delegated to clerks for which an officer is held responsible without the power to know how the duty is discharged."

To place in one department so vast a field of activities as are now carried on by the Departments of Agriculture and of the Interior under direction of laws heretofore enacted by the Congress, would make the new Secretary responsible over a field broader than time and energy can cover. He would become responsible for the multitude of acts of subordinates "without the power to know how the duty is performed."

The Congress and the people hold the Secretary of a department to a heavy accountability for the proper administration of the affairs of that department. Any failure, any maladministration reflects upon him.

the affairs of that department. Any failure, any maladministration reflects upon him.

But more than proper performance of routine is expected. The people of the Nation have a right to expect the Secretary of a department to plan policies for the future, to bring to Congress from time to time a program for progress. The Secretary of a department covering too broad a field of functions and activities can not do this. His time and energy will be consumed in matters of routine administration and as to many of these his action would necessarily be perfunctory rather than responsible.

The weight of such routine functions upon the Secretary and the Assistant Secretary in the present Department of the Interior alone is vastly greater than generally is realized. I have no doubt similar burdens in the present Department of Agriculture are as great, if not greater.

great, if not greater.

So far as the law is concerned, the Secretary can delegate either to the first Assistant Secretary or to the Assistant Secretary every power and function conferred by law upon the Secretary. Enough to the first Assistant Secretary or to the Assistant Secretary every power and function conferred by law upon the Secretary. Enough are now delegated to consume all their time. As a matter of policy, however, there are many matters that the Secretary must reserve to himself. There are matters of national importance, constantly before the public, that good administration and discretion dictate should be handled by him, in order that he may be informed of their status at all times. Included in the great volume of routine that goes over the desk of the Secretary are reports on proposed legislation, which are very numerous; requests on the Attorney General for opinions and upon the Comptroller General for decisions; correspondence which must be signed by him, including all communications to the President, all congressional correspondence where the inquiry is addressed to the Secretary, all communications to other departments, and to the independent establishments, all personnel matters, if there is to be a consistent policy on this subject, any correspondence of unusual importance or involving questions of unusual character, which depart from precedent or where doubt exists as to the proper construction of law or regulations.

A system of reviews and appeals has been in practice in the Interior Department for many years, including appeals to the Secretary from decisions or actions of the various bureaus. The work is divided at present between the Secretary of the Interior and two Assistant Secretaries, and is of such volume and intricacy as to occupy much of the time of these three officials. It could not be performed by one because of its volume and intricacy. Moreover, it frequently happens that where decisions have been rendered by one of the Assistant Secretaries, the claimants are still not satisfied and insist on having reconsideration by the head of the department. Such reviews, including oral hearings, occupy much time. The large number of land appeals, Indian matters, of the department. Such reviews, including oral hearings, occupy much time. The large number of land appeals, Indian matters, and miscellaneous affairs (reclamation, geological survey, national parks, Bureau of Education), involve a wide range of complicated cases presenting questions of law and fact. The Secretary's decisions on questions of fact are final. His decisions on questions of law are generally final, though certain ones may be reviewed in the courts.

The proposed new department of development and conservation, performing such a multitude of functions which bulk large in the public eye, would be magnified in importance and increased in prestige by its size, but its capacity to perform the responsibilities placed upon it would be less than in the departments now existing.

3. Powers of reorganization unlimited in time or extent: The secretary of the department of development and conservation is authorized by the proposed bill, subject to the approval of the President—

President

In order to effect economies and for the purpose of perfecting the organization and coordinating the activities of the department of national development (1) to consolidate, eliminate, or redistribute the functions of offices, bureaus, or agencies, to create new ones, and fix the powers, duties, and functions of their executive heads; and (2) to take such other action, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, as he may deem necessary

Therein the secretary is given power, subject only to approval of the President, unlimited in time and extent as to agencies and functions of the new department. One month after he takes office, or 10 years thereafter, the secretary of the department of development and conservation may eliminate functions or may create new agencies. The language under (1) seems all inclusive, but (2) authorizes any other action not inconsistent with the act. The above language gives to the new secretary of development and conservation, at any time hereafter, the power of life and death over agencies established by the Congress and with no review by the Congress.

the Congress.

4. Definite economy very limited: The only certain economy upon the face of the bill is the saving of the salaries of one Secretary and Assistant Secretary. This saving is certain to be offset by the addition of officials of lesser rank that will be absolutely essential in order to keep up with the pressure of duties. It is possible that the bill is based upon an assumption that there is such a duplication of bureaus in the two departments there is such a duplication of bureaus in the two departments that consolidation of the departments, followed by the consolidation of such bureaus, will, without disturbance of functions or cessation of activities, result directly in a great reduction in personnel and expenditures. This is distinctly not the case. Bureaus and offices in the Interior Department do not carry organizations devoted to the performance of functions belonging to bureaus in the Department of Agriculture. the Department of Agriculture.

the Department of Agriculture.

As a matter of fact the Department of the Interior has for a number of years followed the policy of cooperating with other departments in a notable degree. Real economy and the best results can frequently be secured when one bureau performs a certain definite service for another bureau. Under some circumstances this can be very successfully accomplished even when the bureaus are in different departments. A notable example of this is the handling of the road-building program in the national parks by the Bureau of Public Roads. These roads frequently present particularly difficult engineering problems and quite different considerations often must obtain in their construction than in those ordinarily planned by the Bureau of Public Roads. Years of experience have developed completely satisfactory cooperation in this work for the National Park Service in the Department of Agriculture. Agriculture.

Agriculture.

One other type of successful cooperation is that between the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Public Health Service. It is not feasible to turn over the health problems among the Indians to the Public Health Service; to do so would greatly increase the expense and weaken the administrative efficiency in the Indian reservations and schools. All the benefits of such consolidation of activity with none of the disadvantages, are secured by detail of a few officers from the Public Health Service to administer the Indian health service in the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

In another instance, the Bureau of Reclamation has prepared the plans and is rendering consulting service during the erection of the Madden Dam, construction of which is carried on by the Panama Canal office.

Panama Canal office.

This department has been vigilant in attempting to secure such cooperation from bureaus in other departments wherever possible, and prompt in rendering any cooperative service requested of it by others.

of it by others.

When it is recalled that the Department of the Interior has experienced a greater decrease in appropriations in the last two years than has any other department, it will be realized that personnel in this department has very generally been reduced the maximum possible without elimination of activities or functions. For instance, the appropriation for the General Land Office for 1934 is 27 per cent lower than 1932, Bureau of Indian Affairs 26 per cent lower, Geological Survey 35 per cent lower, National Park Service 38 per cent lower, and the Bureau of Education 47 per cent lower. These figures do not include the further cut of 5 per cent under the Bratton amendment to the economy bill now pending in Congress. Consolidation of departments and of bureaus therein can not reduce personnel further, unless ac-now pending in Congress. Consolidation of departments and of bureaus therein can not reduce personnel further, unless accompanied by elimination of responsibilities imposed by law.

An important function of the Department of the Interior has always been the administration of the public domain. There remains of this domain approximately 770,000,000 acres, aside from the national forests now administered in the Department of Agriculture. Of this, over 700,000,000 acres present no agricultural problem; its greatest value lies in its mineral resources and water resources. As to this domain the General Land Office has in general charge its administration, its surveying, its disposal, its protection from unauthorized appropriation; the Geological Survey is responsible for its classification, the administration of mineral leasing, the investigation of its geology and mineral resources, the investigation of its surface and underground water, and the study of its power resources; the Bureau of Reclamation plans and constructs engineering works for the conservation and disposition of water for the reclamation of lands.

disposition of water for the reclamation of lands.

These agencies of the Interior Department, dealing with such undeveloped and unpopulated lands, do not duplicate the functions or duties of the bureaus in the Department of Agriculture dealing so largely not with lands but with service to those living on and using developed agricultural lands—the Bureaus of Animal Industry, of Dairy Industry, of Plant Industry, the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, the Bureau of Home Economics, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Sometimes it is suggested that the national parks and national forests should be joined in Federal administration. Such a suggestion is but a hasty conclusion based upon lack of understand-forests should be joined in Federal administration. Such a suggestion is but a hasty conclusion based upon lack of understanding of the basic differences between national park areas and national forests in nature and purpose, and of the resulting basic differences in methods of administration. A national forest is primarily economic and commercial. National parks are essentionally noncommercial. The one proposes to develop and conserve for orderly and economic disposition at maturity, the other to preserve unimpaired for future generations, while permitting beneficial enjoyment thereof by the present generation. The hasty assumption is that both parks and forests have to do principally with trees, and hence should be joined in administration. It is true that in some parks, as in Sequola, trees are the outstanding value of the area, but here the above-stated difference in fundamental purpose makes essential entirely different methods. outstanding value of the area, but here the above-stated difference in fundamental purpose makes essential entirely different methods. In the forests trees of commercial value are to be cut down and sold at maturity. In the national parks trees are appreciated because of their scenic value and may or may not possess commercial value, the aspen, for example, being an appreciated tree in a national park, but not valued in a national forest; and in a national park maturity does not mean removal. There are also to be noted parks where trees are absent and the outstanding value is a scientific marvel, as Carished; or of historical interest, as is a scientific marvel, as Carlsbad; or of historical interest, as Colonial. National parks present many problems foreign to national forest administration. Consolidation is not feasible here.

tional forest administration. Consolidation is not feasible here. The real fact is consolidation of the two departments, to be followed by any amount of consolidation of the existing bureaus and offices therein, does not in itself signify pronounced economies. The functions would remain, and even a radical regrouping would not materially lessen cost of administration. Discontinuance of activities or functions would certainly reduce the cost, but these functions very generally have been ordered by the Congress in response to the needs of the Nation. If they are to be abandoned or discontinued, it should be through deliberate action of the Congress, expressly enacted in legislation rather than through starvation resulting from insufficient appropriations. priations.

5. The interests of Interior and of Agriculture are not kindred. 5. The interests of Interior and of Agriculture are not kindred. The undeveloped areas of the Nation are, of course, the least populated areas. The extent to which this is true is apparent when it is realized that the principal public-land States, 10 in number, have in the House of Representatives under the new apportionment only 37 Members out of 435. If California is excluded, the remaining will have only 17 Members in the next Congress. Not only are the public-land States weak legislatively in their numerical representation in Congress, but the great majority of Members coming from States that are not directly concerned about the decoming from States that are not directly concerned about the development of our public domain have not, by contact and experience, had an opportunity to fully understand its problems. A potent argument in the Senate debate in 1849 for the establishment of the Department of the Interior was the desirability of having the problems of the public domain administered by a Secretary familiar with them by residence and experience rather than by a Secretary of the Treasury uniformly chosen from the comby a Secretary of the Treasury uniformly chosen from the commercial centers and himself possibly lacking in experience, understanding, or sympathy. For over 80 years the Secretary of the Interior has been the special guardian and spokesman in the executive councils of the Nation for these important special problems of development. The problems of the developed and populated agricultural areas of the Nation and those of the undeveloped lands, largely arid, frequently mountainous, but with great possibilities in mineral and water resources, do not lend themselves logically to consolidation. They are, in fact, interests so diverse as to make it possible for one, if consolidated, to suffer through domination by the other.

through domination by the other.
6. Logical grouping should be undertaken. The wise policy to obtain in the needed reorganization of the Government establishment was put forward by the President in his message to the Congress, December 9, 1932, transmitting certain reorganization

Congress, December 9, 1932, transmitting certain reorganization Executive orders:

"They undertake to group certain executive agencies and activities in logical and orderly relation to each other as determined by their major functions and purposes, and to vest in the head of each department, subject to Executive approval, the authority and responsibility to develop and put into effect the ultimate details of better organization, elimination of overlap, duplication, and unnecessary expenditure. These results can only be worked out progressively by the executive officers placed in charge of the different divisions" different divisions."

These Executive orders did not disturb the existence of any department. If supervision of subordinate agencies is to be effective, there are none too many departments now. Those orders did, however, after survey of the whole field, propose numerous transfers and consolidations. Even if the Congress does not care to adopt the program thus submitted, it will be best that the principle of grouping "executive agencies and activities in logical and orderly relation to each other as determined by their major functions and purposes" be adhered to. It is my view that in the orderly relation to each other as determined by their major functions and purposes" be adhered to. It is my view that in the pending bill these principles do not obtain.

7. Mechanics of the bill: Under section 2 (a) the present departments cease to exist when the new secretary of the department of development and conservation takes his office. The new department can not function until requisite personnel is transferred from the former departments. None of the personnel of the Departments of Agriculture and of the Interior is transferable until the President certifies which and how many are "indispensable to the efficient operation of the new department." Such responsibility can not well be performed in advance of the later reorganization by the new Secretary under section 3. It is hardly to be believed that such reorganization by the new Secretary, complete in all its details, would be immediately available tary, complete in all its details, would be immediately available upon taking office.

For these reasons, I recommend that this legislation be not given favorable consideration by the Congress.

Very truly yours,

RAY LYMAN WILBUR.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, Washington, February 17, 1933.

Hon. GERALD P. NYE.

Chairman Committee on Public Lands and Surveys

DEAR SENATOR NYE: Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of January 28 transmitting a copy of the bill (S. 5538) "to establish a department of development and conservation, to abolish the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior, and to transfer the functions thereof to the department of development and conservation, and for other purposes," and requesting the views of this department thereon. ing the views of this department thereon.

The bill, in effect, would make the Department of Agriculture a subordinate unit in the executive organization of the Federal Government, under the direction of an Assistant Secretary. The privilege which agriculture now enjoys of a direct and exclusive representation in the Cabinet would be lost to it. Since agriculrepresentation in the Cabinet would be lost to it. Since agriculture is not only a major but a dominant element in the economic and social life of the Nation, the proposed change in the status of the Department of Agriculture would be unfair, not only to agriculture but to the Chief Executive, who necessarily must number among his immediate advisors a man able to speak authoritatively with reference to the problems and requirements of agriculture, and should not be denied the opportunity to make such a man a member of his official family.

A charge such as proposed by the bill would in my eminion such a man a member of his official family.

A change such as proposed by the bill would, in my opinion, be of doubtful wisdom at any time. Under existing conditions it would still further complicate an agricultural situation that already demands the most careful and constructive action of which the Federal Government is capable. The Department of Agriculture is the main agency through which the Federal Government deals with the farmer and his problems. The disorganization of that agency at this critical time would react against the best interests of the farmers, and any step that reacts against their interests reacts also against all other interests, personal or public.

The program of reorganization which the President submitted to the Congress in its relation to the Department of Agriculture to the Congress in its relation to the Department of Agriculture whereby determination of policies and administration of land use would be more largely concentrated in the Department of Agriculture, which is so vitally concerned with the fundamental economic factors involved, would, in my judgment, be a more logical, efficient, and economical adjustment of Federal functions relating to agriculture and conservation than that proposed by the bill

No facts known to this department would warrant the belief that the bill S. 5538, if enacted into law, would result in greater benefits to agriculture, greater efficiency, or greater economy of Federal expenditures; consequently I recommend against enactment of the bill.

Sincerely yours,

ARTHUR M. HYDE. Secretary.

STOCK-MARKET INQUIRY

Mr. COSTIGAN. Mr. President, the value of the authorized continuation of the present stock-market inquiry by the Committee on Banking and Currency has been widely testified to by the public press. I ask to have printed in the RECORD a representative editorial on the subject appearing in yesterday's Washington Herald, with the request that it be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency and ordered to be printed in the RECORD as follows:

> [From the Washington Herald, March 2, 1933] SENATE BANK INQUIRY

The testimony being given before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency is startling. It confirms in a measure suspicions that have been widely current—perhaps too widely—and vague reports that have long been in circulation, as to the | enlargements of banking function and the innovations in banking practice which came with the "new era."

The effect of the disclosures, however, should not be disturbing to the country, but on the contrary reassuring. The substitution of a proved and limited fact for an unproved and allembracing rumor is a gain for confidence.

It is better to know what is than to be fearful of what may be.

There is no such thing as confidence if the justification for it is absent.

And one element, and a very vital one, in public confidence in our financial institutions is that irregularity shall always be subject to pitiless exposure. Correction can not proceed without that as a preliminary.

For this reason it must be clear to everyone that the Senate's action extending the life of its committee now investigating the New York Stock Exchange and banking practice in general is enlightened and patriotic.

Any suggestion of abridging the investigation would have been Any suggestion of abridging the investigation would have been intolerable. It would have implied that men who might be unworthy of confidence must nevertheless be protected in the enjoyment of that confidence, even if wholly misplaced. Nothing could have been more unsettling to confidence.

The Senate did well to reject the unsound persuasions with which it was plied to relax the energy of its investigation and to confine its scope. These were not the counsels of wisdom nor which it was plied to relax the energy of its investigation and to confine its scope. These were not the counsels of wisdom nor of true concern for the public interest.

Mr. Mitchell's bank is not alone in the interweaving of its transactions with those of an affiliated investment company.

Nor perhaps are the institutional banks the gravest offenders in the matter of irregular or high-handed practices.

Wherever banking power is centered, with its far-reaching ability to affect for good or ill the fate of individual undertakings and the interests of the people as a whole—there the investigation should point.

The work of the Senate subcommittee and its capable counsel has already borne fruit for righteousness.

has already borne fruit for righteousness.

The assurance that it will be permitted to continue its useful labors is welcome. The investigation must be as broad as the indicated conditions demand or suggest.

TAX ON CLEARING-HOUSE CERTIFICATES

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I have a telegram about which I desire to get some information. There seems to be some doubt about the matter. I read the telegram, as follows:

NASHVILLE, TENN., March 2, 1933.

Senator Ellison D. Smith,

Washington, D. C .:

Washington, D. C.:

Nashville clearing house contemplates issuing certificates during this emergency, which has hearty approval of local business men. Will appreciate your active support in getting resolution through Congress suspending and abrogating act imposing prohibitive tax on clearing-house certificates in order that same may be issued when desired and approved by local banking authorities and by comptroller under Couzens resolution. Our banks have situation presently well in hand through restriction of withdrawals. However, issuance of certificates would immediately relieve pressure, assist in restoration of confidence, and amelioration of business. Kindest personal regards. Kindest personal regards.

R. B. BEAL, Manager Nashville Chamber of Commerce.

I desire to know from those who are better informed than I am whether or not clearing-house certificates are subject to the tax.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I received a similar telegram yesterday from Nashville and several other cities in Tennessee. I consulted with the Senator from Virginia [Mr. Glass], a member of the Banking and Currency Committee. He is perfectly confident that the provisions of the code do not apply in any way to clearing-house associations. They do include banking associations, but it has been held, so far as I am informed, that banking associations are different from clearing-house associations and that the enumerations contained in the statute do not include clearing-house associations, and therefore there is no tax. I know that at least twice within my memory we have had clearing-house certificates issued and there was no tax imposed on them.

Mr. SMITH. I ask that the telegram may be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, I am quite clear in my own mind that it is perfectly in order to issue clearinghouse certificates without any tax being imposed thereon.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr.

resolutions of the House adopted as a tribute to the memory of Hon. Thomas J. Walsh, late a Senator from the State of Montana.

The message requested the Senate to return to the House of Representatives the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff

The message announced that the House had concurred in the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 45) authorizing the enrollment of H. R. 14359 with certain changes.

The message also announced that the House had passed without amendment the bill (S. 4082) to regulate the business of executing bonds for compensation in criminal cases and to improve the administration of justice in the District of Columbia

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14724) making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

POCONO PINES ASSEMBLY HOTELS CO. (S. DOC. NO. 213)

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the United States, transmitting, pursuant to law, a judgment rendered by the Court of Claims in the case of the Pocono Pines Assembly Hotels Co. v. the United States (under the United States Veterans' Administration), amounting to $227,239.53, which, with the accompanying papers, were referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

SUPPLEMENTAL ESTIMATE: LEGISLATIVE ESTABLISHMENT

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the United States, transmitting, without revision, a supplemental estimate of appropriation pertaining to the legislative establishment, under the Architect of the Capitol, fiscal year, 1933, for maintenance of the Senate Office Building, amounting to $13,500. which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

SUPPLEMENTAL ESTIMATE: INDIAN BOARDING SCHOOLS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the United States, transmitting a supplemental estimate of appropriation for the Department of the Interior, fiscal year 1933, for Indian boarding schools, amounting to $40,000, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

SUPPLEMENTAL ESTIMATE: CLAIM UNDER THE WAR DEPARTMENT

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the United States, transmitting, pursuant to law, record of a claim amounting to $180, allowed by the General Accounting Office, as covered by certificate of settlement, etc., which with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

CANCELLATIONS AND ADJUSTMENTS OF CHARGES AGAINST INDI-VIDUAL INDIANS OR TRIBES

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, for the approval of Congress, a report on cancellations and adjustments made on certain irrigation charges on Indian reservations, etc., which with the accompanying papers, was ordered to lie on the table.

REPORT OF BOARD OF ACTUARIES OF CIVIL SERVICE RETIREMENT AND DISABILITY FUND (S. DOC. NO. 217)

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, transmitting pursuant to law the twelfth annual report of the board of actuaries of the civil service retirement and disability fund, which, with the accompanying report, was referred to the Committee on Civil Service and ordered to be printed.

WORK OF UNITED STATES TARIFF COMMISSION

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the chairman of the United States Tariff Chaffee, one of its clerks, communicated to the Senate the | Commission, reporting that the Tariff Commission since the close of the Seventy-second Congress in July, 1932, has completed 14 investigations for adjustment in rates of duty, under the provisions of section 336 of the tariff act of 1930. and also stating that the major effort of the commission in that period was given to other large and special tasks for Congress under the commission's general powers, etc., which, with the accompanying list of investigations and papers, was referred to the Committee on Finance.

REPORT OF THE FEDERAL FARM LOAN BOARD

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Sixteenth Annual Report of the Federal Farm Loan Board, covering its operations during the calendar year 1932, which, with the accompanying report, was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

THE LATE SENATOR WALSH OF MONTANA

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a cablegram from the president of the Senate of Santo Domingo, which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SANTO DOMINGO, March 3, 1933.

PRESIDENT DEL SENADO,

Washington, D. C .:

El Senado Dominicano expresa su más sentida condolencia al Senado y al pueblo norteamericanos por la sensible perdida que ha experimentado con la muerte del ilustre Senador Walsh, prominente ciudadano y estadista.

MARIO FERMIN CABRAL, Presidente del Senado.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following joint memorial of the Legislature of the State of Idaho, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys:

> STATE OF IDAHO, DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

I, Franklin Girard, secretary of state of the State of Idaho, and legal custodian of the original enrolled copies of all acts passed at the various sessions of the Legislature of the State of Idaho, do hereby certify that the annexed constitutes a full, true, and complete transcript of the original enrolled copy of Senate Joint Memorial No. 7, enacted by the twenty-second session of the Legislature of the State of Idaho, and filed in this office the 27th day of February, 1933.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State. Done at Boise, the capital of Idaho, this 27th day of February, A. D. 1933.

[SEAL.]

FRANKLIN GIRARD, Secretary of State.

IN THE SENATE.

Senate Joint Memorial 7 (by mines and mining committee) A joint memorial to the honorable Senate and House of Repentatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. Received and filed February 27, 1933.

FRANKLIN GIRARD Secretary of State. IN THE SENATE.

Senate Joint Memorial 7 (by mines and mining committee)

A joint memorial to the honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled

We, your memorialists, the Legislature of the State of Idaho, we, your memorialists, the Legislature of the State of Idaho, respectfully represent that:

Whereas, under the provisions of title 43, chapter 20, section 870, of the United States Code, Annotated, it is provided among other things as to grants of school lands to the State of Idaho "that all sales, grants, deeds, or patents for any of the lands so granted shall hereafter be subject to and contain a reservation to the State of all the coal and other minerals in the lands so sold, the state of all the coal and other minerals in the lands so sold, the state of the state of granted, deeded, or patented, together with the right to prospect for, mine, and remove the same"; and

Whereas it is desired that appropriate legislation be enacted by Congress which would promote the prospecting, mining, removal, and development of such mineral lands now so acquired: Now,

therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of Idaho (the House of Rep resentatives concurring), That we most respectfully urge upon the Congress of the United States of America that section 5 of the Idaho admission act, and any act supplemental or amendatory thereof, be amended as follows, in giving and granting to the Legislature of the State of Idaho full power and authority to authorize the prospecting, mining, and removal of mineral from and the issuance of patent for such mineral lands as now provided by Congress, for the location, sale, and disposal of mineral lands belonging to the United States, subject to the right of such legislature to retain or impose a tax, royalty, or assessment as against the mineral production of any such mineral lands; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Idaho be authorized, and he is hereby directed, to immediately forward certified copies of this memorial to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States of America, and to the Senators and the Representatives in Congress from this State.

This senate joint memorial passed the senate on the 17th day of February, 1933.

GEO. E. HILL President of the Senate.

This senate joint memorial passed the house of representatives on the 23d day of February, 1933.

ROBERT COULTER Speaker of the House of Representatives.

I hereby certify that the within Senate Joint Memorial No. originated in the senate during the twenty-second session of the Legislature of the State of Idaho.

M. J. HAMMOND. Secretary of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate the following joint resolutions of the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin, which were ordered to lie on the table:

STATE OF WISCONSIN

Joint resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to enact the House Joint Resolution No. 199 to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen in 1783 of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, a hero of the Revolutionary War, by issuing special series of postage stamps in honor of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko

Whereas on October 13, 1933, will occur the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen of Brig. Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko, a hero of the Revolutionary War; and

Whereas the service rendered by him was of great value and assistance to the cause of American independence and of such high importance that on October 13, 1783, he was appointed brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army and there was brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army and there was granted him naturalization as an American citizen; and

Whereas it is but fitting that proper recognition should be given to the memory of the brigadier general whose illustrious service in the war for American independence is well known to all who are familiar with our history; Therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Legislature of Wisconsin respectfully memorializes the Congress of the United States to enact legislation whereby the Postmaster General would be authorized and directed to issue a special series of postage stamps of the denomination of 3 cents, of such design and for such period as he may determine, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization. design and for such period as he may determine, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen and appointment of Thaddeus Kosciusko as brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army on October 17, 1783; and be it further

Resolved, That properly attested copies of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, to both Houses of the Congress of the United States, and to each Wisconsin Member thereof thereof.

President of the Senate. R. A. COBBAN, Chief Clerk of the Senate. C. T. Young, Speaker of the Assembly. John J. Slocum, Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

Joint Resolution relating to the reported contemplated abandonment of the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital as a hospital for the care and treatment of veterans suffering from mental diseases Whereas it is reported that the United States Veterans' Bureau is contemplating the abandonment of the Wisconsin Memorial is contemplating the abandonment of the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital and the removal to other hospitals of the veterans now receiving care and treatment in this hospital; and

Whereas the patients in this hospital are mainly from Wisconsin and immediately surrounding States and their removal to remote places would make it very difficult for their relatives to visit them regularly and thus deny these unfortunate veterans the comfort of such visits; and

Whereas the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital was erected by this State for the express purpose of providing an institution for the State for the express purpose of providing an institution for the care and treatment of veterans suffering from mental diseases, and this hospital is recognized as one of the most up-to-date and ideally located institutions of this kind in the entire country; and ideally located institutions of this kind in the entire country; and Whereas while there is need for economy in Federal expenditures, economy should not be practiced at the expense of the unfortunate men and women who contracted mental diseases in service for their country; therefore be it Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring). That the Legislature of Wisconsin respectfully memorializes the President of the United States, the Congress of the United States, and the United States Veterans' Bureau not to abandon the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital or to remove to other hospitals the veterans now receiving care and treatment in this hospital; be it further Resolved, That this legislature expresses its readiness to consider other arrangements than now prevail with regard to payments other arrangements than now prevail with regard to payments from Federal funds to the State for the care and treatment of patients in the Wisconsin Memorial Hospital so that consideration of the necessity for effecting economies in Federal expenditures will not be involved; be it further

Resolved, That properly attested copies of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, to both Houses of the Congress of the United States, to the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and to each Wisconsin Member of the two Houses of Congress.

THOS. J. O'MALLEY,
President of the Senate.
R. A. COBBAN,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
C. T. YOUNG,
Speaker of the Assembly.
JOHN J. SLOCUM,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

Joint resolution relating to passage of an unemployment insurance act by Congress

Whereas it is generally agreed that unemployment insurance is very necessary and would save the taxpayers large sums which must now be raised for the relief and support of the unemployed and their families; and

Whereas unemployment insurance can most satisfactorily be operated on a national basis, inasmuch as the enactment of unemployment insurance by a few States places a very heavy additional burden upon the industries of these States in competition with those of the States which have not enacted such laws: Therefore be it

Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), That the Legislature of the State of Wisconsin respectfully memorializes the Congress of the United States to enact legislation for the establishment of an unemployment insurance system on a nation-wide basis; be it further

Resolved, That properly attested copies of this resolution be sent to both Houses of the Congress of the United States and to each Wisconsin Member thereof.

THOS. J. O'MALLEY,
President of the Senate.
R. A. COBBAN,
Chief Clerk of the Senate.
C. T. YOUNG,
Speaker of the Assembly.
JOHN J. SLOCUM,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

The VICE PRESIDENT also laid before the Senate resolutions adopted at a mass meeting of citizens at Champaign, Ill., favoring the passage of legislation providing for crop control, etc., which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FRAZIER presented the following concurrent resolution of the Legislature of the State of North Dakota, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Senate Concurrent Resolution B (introduced by Senator Whelan)

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of North Dakota (the House concurring) That—

Whereas there is now before the Senate of the United States a treaty between this Nation and Canada providing the terms under which may be constructed the long-sought and muchneeded seaway uniting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean;

Whereas such maritime benefits extended to the near-by ports on the Great Lakes would be of inestimable value both to the agricultural and industrial life of North Dakota:

agricultural and industrial life of North Dakota:

Now, therefore, we urgently request of our Senators in the Congress of the United States that they not merely support immediate and unconditional ratification of said treaty, but that they use every legitimate effort to impress upon the Senate the dire need of this State for relief from an overwhelming burden of transportation costs—a relief obtainable in very large measure through the ratification of this treaty and through the immediate construction thereafter of the navigation works required to extend the Atlantic Ocean westward to within less than 300 miles of the boundaries of this State.

Ordered that copies of this resolution he sent to each Member.

Ordered that copies of this resolution be sent to each Member of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States.

O. H. OLSON,
President of the Senate.
SIDNEY A. PAPKE,
Secretary of the Senate.
MINNIE D. CRAIG,
Speaker of the House.
JAMES P. CURRAN,
Chief Clerk of the House.

Mr. WHEELER presented a resolution adopted by the Colorado Mining Association and the American Mining Congress at Denver, Colo., favoring the passage of the so-called Wheeler silver bill, providing for the remonetization of silver, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. TYDINGS presented a resolution adopted by Talbot Post, No. 70, the American Legion, Department of Maryland, Easton, Md., favoring the passage of legislation requiring that the names of all persons to whom payments are made through the Veterans' Administration, together with the amounts of such payments, be made available to the public, which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BLAINE presented a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Milwaukee, Wis., favoring the passage of House bill 12145, to permit municipalities to control canvassers and other transient merchants in interstate commerce, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Milwaukee, Wis., favoring the passage of legislation providing for the issuance of a special series of postage stamps, of the denomination of 3 cents, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen and appointment as brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army, on October 13, 1783, of Thaddeus Kosciusko, which was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

Mr. COPELAND presented resolutions adopted by the Suffern division of the National Economy League at a meeting held in the high school at Suffern, N. Y., opposing the payment of disability allowances to veterans whose disabilities are not connected with their war services, which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the Westbury quarterly meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, New York City, N. Y., favoring the passage of legislation to prevent the exportation of arms and munitions of war under certain circumstances, which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Schenectady, N. Y., favoring the passage of legislation providing for the issuance of a special series of postage stamps, of the denomination of 3 cents, commemorative of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the naturalization as an American citizen and appointment as brevet brigadier general of the Continental Army, on October 13, 1783, of Thaddeus Kosciusko, which was referred to the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads.

RECOMMENDATION FOR INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONER

Mr. ODDIE submitted the following resolution of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Senate joint resolution recommending the appointment of John F. Shaughnessy, chairman of the Nevada Public Service Commission, to the position of interstate commerce commissioner

Whereas in recent years it has been the tendency of various administrations at Washington to select the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission from Eastern States, whose citizens have the viewpoint of the stockholder and bondholder in corporations engaged in interstate commerce, such stockholders and bondholders being in the identical position of the management of the corporations themselves, and while we concede that such interests have a right to be represented upon such commission we believe as citizens of the State of Nevada, whose relation to the subject matter is identical with that of its neighboring States, that the viewpoint of the shipper and consumer is not adequately represented as it should be on a well-balanced interstate commerce commission; and

Whereas we have in the State of Nevada, in the person of the Hon. John F. Shaughnessy, an official, an expert upon all topics in any way related to the subject of interstate commerce, who for 25 years has faithfully served the people of this State; first, as a member of its original railroad commission, and subsequently its chairman, and who has been chairman of our public-service commission since its organization some 15 years ago. Mr. Shaughnessy's decisions and attitude in general have been fair and just to all interests, he having been reappointed by each succeeding State executive, both Democrat and Republican. He has an intimate knowledge of railroading and its regulation and of the laws relating to transportation, in which the people are so vitally interested. Many times he has appeared with signal success to argue important issues before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the decisions rendered by him as chairman of our State commission are masterpieces of their kind. His wide experience and service to the people in railroading and public-utility regulation fit him for the well-deserved promotion, which we recommend: Now, him for the well-deserved promotion, which we recommend therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and Assembly of the State of Nevada,
That we cordially recommend to President-elect Franklin D. Rooseveit that he seriously and favorably consider the appointment of Mr. Shaughnessy to the position hereinabove named.

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted at once by the secretary of state to President-elect Roosevelt and to the members of our delegation at Washington and to our Senator elect and to our Congressmen elect.

Morley Griswold,

Morley Griswold,
President of the Senate.
V. R. Merialdo, Secretary of the Senate.
FRED S. ALWARD,
Speaker of the Assembly.
GEORGE BRODIGAN,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly. STATE OF NEVADA. EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Approved February 24, 1933, 1.30 p. m.

F. B. BALZAR, Governor.

GRAZING FEES ON NATIONAL FORESTS

Mr. ODDIE submitted the following resolution of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, as follows:

Assembly joint resolution memorializing Congress and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States for relief in the matter of grazing fees for livestock upon the national forests of grazing fees for livestock upon the national forests

Whereas the existing schedule of grazing-fee charges exacted for use by Nevada stock-raising settlers of those public ranges upon which their properties necessarily were and still are established, and which have, from time to time, been surrounded by the so-called national-forest withdrawals, are based upon range appraisals covering periods of abnormally high livestock prices; and

Whereas the continuance of such charge schedules in the face of existing livestock values, far below any known for many years past, can only most seriously impede and retard any reasonable opportunity for recovery and rehabilitation of Nevada's stock-raising and ranching settlements, a most important factor in the social and economic structure of our State: Now, therefore, be it Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate of the State of Nevada, That we most earnestly urge upon all Federal officials concerned the extreme need for continuance, for the grazing season of 1933, of the 50 per cent reduction in national-forest grazing-fee charges as granted for 1932, based upon the charges in effect for 1931; and be it further and be it further

Resolved, That we urge our Nevada congressional delegation to use every effort toward securing an early and complete range reappraisal looking to the fixing of forest grazing-fee schedules in keeping with the heavy decline in livestock values that has occurred since the present schedules were determined; and be it

Resolved, That the secretary of state of the State of Nevada be, and he is hereby, directed to immediately forward copies of this resolution to the President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to each of our Senators, and to our Representative in Congress.

Speaker of the Assembly. George Brodigan, Chief Clerk of the Assembly.

Morley Griswold,

President of the Senate.

V. R. Merialdo,

Secretary of the Senate.

STATE OF NEVADA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Approved February 24, 1933, 1.35 p. m.

F. B. BALZAR, Governor.

DEATH VALLEY NATIONAL MONUMENT

Mr. ODDIE submitted copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Interior, together with a memorandum for the Secretary by the Director of the National Park Service, relative to the Death Valley National Monument, in California, which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR, Washington, March 2, 1933.

Hon. Gerald P. Nye,
Chairman Committee on Public Lands and Surveys,
United States Senate.

My Dear Mr. Chairman: In response to your request of March 2, 1933, for a report on S. 5700, entitled "A bill to extend the mining laws of the United States to the Death Valley National Monument, in California, and for other purposes," I transmit herewith a memorandum on the subject that has been submitted by the Director of the National Park Service in which full details regarding the purpose of this legislation are given. purpose of this legislation are given.

I consider it very important that mining under appropriate regulation be not disturbed within the area of this national monument. Under the equities shown by the record, I further think it very desirable to authorize the patenting of the land in the monument necessary for the continuance of the development known as Death Valley Scotty's Castle.

I heartily concur in the memorandum report of the Director of the National Park Service, and recommend that this legislation be given favorable consideration by the Congress.

be given favorable consideration by the Congress. Very truly yours,

RAY LYMAN WILBUR, Secretary.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, National Park Service, Washington, March 2, 1933.

Washington, March 2, 1933.

Memorandum for the Secretary:
Reference is made to letter dated March 2, 1933, from the chairman Committee on Public Lands and Surveys, United States Senate, inclosing copy of S. 5700, entitled "A bill to extend the mining laws of the United States to the Death Valley National Monument, in California, and for other purposes," with request for report thereon.

The Death Valley National Monument and States are supposed in the Death Valley National Monument.

for report thereon.

The Death Valley National Monument, containing approximately 1,601,800 acres of land, was established by presidential proclamation under date of February 11, 1933, pursuant to the authority contained in the act of June 8, 1906 (34 Stat. 225), the purpose being to preserve for all time the scientific, historical, and other features thereof for the benefit of future generations. This action removes the area from the operation of the mining laws of the United States. In recommending the establishment of this area as a national monument, however, it was not the desire to prevent prospecting and mining within the area, as such activities would in no way interfere with the preservation of the characteristics of the area sought to be preserved. In fact, the picturesque miner is one of the characteristics which give the area the color of the early pioneer days, and his continuance there would be a very early pioneer days, and his continuance there would be a very desirable feature of the area under national-monument status. It desirable feature of the area under national-monument status. It is desirable, however, that mining locations be subject to regulation as to the surface use of claims established and this is provided in the provisions of section 1 of this legislation.

Section 2 would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to patent to Albert M. Johnson and/or Walter Scott (Death Valley Scotty) certain lands included in the monument, either under applicable public-land laws or upon payment therefor at the rate of $1.25 per acre. The lands proposed to be made the subject of this authorization are those which have been located upon for some time by the well-known "Death Valley Scotty." Improvements in the way of fencing and the construction of a Moorish castle variously estimated to be valued at from $250,000 to over $2,000,000 between built on the land by Death Valley Scotty and Market Payer heads to the state of the state variously estimated to be valued at from $250,000 to over $2,000,000 have been built on the land by Death Valley Scotty and Mr. Albert M. Johnson, of Chicago, Ill. This castle is nationally known and has been featured in the pictorial section of various news periodicals from time to time. It is indicated by the record that this development was undertaken by these parties in the utmost good faith with the hope of eventually securing title to the land either through the filing of public-land script or under other applicable land laws. The proposed authorization of section 2 provides for the reservation of rights of way as may be necessary or advisable for use by the Government in the administration of the monument.

I have to recommend that S. 5700 be given favorable considera-tion by the department and the Congress.

HORACE M. ALBRIGHT. Director.

REMONETIZATION OF SILVER

Mr. BROOKHART submitted a letter in the nature of a petition from J. C. Lewis, president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, which was referred to the Committee on Finance and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. Senator Smith W. Brookhart,
Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.
Dear Senator: We are advised that Senator Wheeler has introduced S. 2487, a bill that has for its purpose the restoration of an honest and stable dollar.
We believe that if this bill becomes a law that it will be in the interest of the masses who are struggling under such heavy burdens at this postfour.

the interest of the masses who are struggling under such heavy burdens at this particular time.

I have read Senator Wheeler's speech as printed in the Congressional Record of Wednesday, January 25, 1933. To my mind, it is a masterly address coming from one who is a student of our economic, political, and social affairs in addition to his being a great outstanding humanitarian.

We would therefore suggest to you that you give this matter your serious consideration and we would appreciate it very much if you would lend your support to the passage of this bill if you would lend your support to the passage of this bill.

Yours very truly,

J. C. LEWIS, President Iowa State Federation of Labor.

"RIGHT TO MAINTAIN RESALE PRICES A THROWBACK TO THE FIFTH AMENDMENT

Mr. BROOKHART presented a bulletin by the United States Trade Mark Association entitled "Right to Maintain Resale Prices a Throwback to the Fifth Amendment," etc., which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows: RIGHT TO MAINTAIN RESALE PRICES A THROWBACK TO THE FIFTH

AMENDMENT By Paul Findlay

(Note .- To those of our readers who favor the passage of price-(Note.—To those of our readers who favor the passage of price-maintenance legislation for trade-marked goods, much debated in Congress for several years past, this article, which views the ques-tion from a new angle, will be of interest, especially so for its bearing on the so-called Capper-Kelly bill which is now on the Senate Calendar and, it is expected, will be up for consideration during the first week of the coming session.—Ed.)

A minimum resale price law will be, when enacted, simply the reassertion of a fundamental of our Constitution—not, technically, a law at all. Perhaps I can indicate why I so regard this long-proposed legislation.

reassertion of a fundamental of our Constitution—not, technically, a law at all. Perhaps I can indicate why I so regard this long-proposed legislation.

The first 10 amendments to our Constitution were proposed and ratified in our First Congress. Together, these have been called our Bill of Rights, because they embrace features so anciently accepted in English common law as to have the force of postulates among freemen. The fifth amendment provides that no man shall be "deprived of property without due process of law"; and the ownership of the producer of a branded or otherwise identified product in his name or brand seems to me propwise identified product in his name or brand seems to me property more indubitably, unquestionably, undebatably than even in the case of a patented article. It is more inescapably property for one reason inherent, unique, and peculiar to it—that until its identity is obliterated in final consumption, it carries an element identity is obliterated in final consumption, it carries an element with which the producer can not part, which he can not sell, in which the most any purchaser of the goods can buy is a limited right of use. That is the name or trade-mark of the producer. Illustrations are legion. Quaker Oats is Quaker Oats wherever found until lost in the morning porridge. Kraft cheese is Kraft cheese until it is eaten. Regardless of location of the commercial and temporary ownership of its physical entity, Chase & Sanborn coffee remains Chase & Sanborn coffee, so recognized and referred to by everybody, merchant and consumer alike, even after it is to by everybody, merchant and consumer alike, even after it is drunk. A Cutler-Hammer switch derives much of its value from drunk. A Cutier-Hammer switch derives much of its value from the name behind it and remains identified by that name until it is junked, regardless of where or by whom purchased or used.

When Mr. Macy offers Whittall rugs in his advertising, does he call them Macy's rugs? Not so anybody ever noticed it. They are and remain Whittall's rugs in everybody's mind and reference until they are consigned to the rag bag. Not even a gift of a well-worn specimen thereof to the Salvation Army will serve to destroy its identity with Whittall.

its identity with Whittall.

Where, then, do we go from here? I quote from Ralph Starr Butler's recent talk before the New York Times class in newspaper advertising, as reported in Groceries. Mr. Butler shows how packaging and the consequent ability to identify food products has stimulated improvement in the quality and standards thereof:

stimulated improvement in the quality and standards thereof:

"If the great change in food merchandising represented by the substitution of a package for a barrel," he said, "had been accompanied by nothing else of a fundamental nature, we should still have had to regard it as an important and valuable contribution to the distribution of food. The change, however, was accompanied by something else which in its results has been even more influential than the development of packaged articles. When the manufacturer put his product in a package to which he could attach his name as well as a brand name for the product, for the first time he was in a position to use the sharp tool of advertising. There was little to be gained by advertising bulk merchandise. There was little to be gained by advertising bulk merchandise, the source of which the consumer was unable to identify. There was everything to be gained after the products were put into packages by giving them an identity which could be promoted by the aid of advertising."

"Everything?" That depends.

Assume that I am a cheese expert and that I utilize my knowled.

"Everything?" That depends.

Assume that I am a cheese expert and that I utilize my knowledge, skill, experience, and merchandising ability to make and market blends distinctive in character and uniform in quality. Because of my profound intimacy with cheese, I am able to hit the public fancy more perfectly than most others have done, so my goods become established in public favor.

My price scale is equitable, the public is well served and I forge ahead on intrinsic merit. Because my merchandising is so planned that my distributors, wholesale and retail, regard my goods with favor, they are active in their cooperation in widening my distribution. On such general basis, I become a conspicuous advertiser. I follow the plan of William Wrigley, jr., investing a fixed percentage of my sales in attaining wider, stabler distribution. My business arrives where everything indicates that it is on a logical foundation, its economics unimpeachable. At this point perhaps we might say that my distributors, my customers, and I enjoy the "everything" Mr. Butler had in mind.

For let it be noted that in all this process of development and

For let it be noted that in all this process of development and For let it be noted that in all this process of development and growth my product has been known now with daily progressive increase by and to all distributors and consumers as Findlay's Cheese, or by the brand I have adopted for its identification, or by both such brand and my name. It therefore seems quite clear that the element of identity is and must ever remain a property which nobody can entirely purchase simply by buying my goods; that this element is indeed what I hold it to be—something with which I can not part any more than I could sever myself from my personal identity.

my personal identity. Do I hear objections? Probably. Then let us test the question thus: Assume that a package of Findlay's Cheese is found to be imperfect—returned, likely enough, to a retailer by one of his pet customers as being "unfit to eat." Whose goods is this cheese now? Does it belong to the retailer who bought it in the regular course of trade and who, perhaps only yesterday, was vociferous in his assertion of his "right" to "do what he liked with his own goods"? We all know it immediately harks back to Findlay, regardless of the various channels through which it may have reached the retailer, and this for just one reason—because it bears Findlay's name, the element with which I never can part and reached the retailer, and this for just one reason—because it bears Findlay's name, the element with which I never can part and which never can be dissociated from me.

The question, Whose goods is this? requires no more definite answer. This being so—universally so—how can anyone contend that any purchaser can claim to own every element in any branded or otherwise identified merchandise so completely that the producer thereof has no further right or interest therein? Under what I regard as an erroneously unjust, inequitable conception of this question, we now arrive at a familiar condition.

this question, we now arrive at a familiar condition.

For just as my business attains the production of a fair return in profits such as it is in every way entitled to enjoy, up bobs somebody who, for any purpose of his own, makes a raid on my goods by cutting my established prices. He disturbs all my trade goods by cutting my established prices. He disturbs all my trade relations. If continued for even a moderate time, keen dissatisfaction results among my distributors against which my explanations and disclaimers of responsibility make little impression. My goods progressively lose favor with my wholesale and retail outlets. Soon this condition becomes so aggravated that my trade is badly curtailed and my profits approach—or reach—the vanishing point. What has this disturber done to me? Has he not taken my property without due process of law? The fundamental we have here to consider is that he most certainly has done just that. He has done worse than that; for not only has he taken my property without any process whatever of law, without compensation of any kind, but he is now using my property against me.

We must have such elementary facts and conditions in mind if we are to accomplish the recognition of this fundamental right in intangible but exceedingly valuable property. To attempt to we are to accomplish the recognition of this fundamental right in intangible but exceedingly valuable property. To attempt to forestall every development by writing every possible exception and contingency into the law will be to jeopardize its enactment for still longer years, as experience shows.

We shall have to get back to the homely simplicity of the Constitution, regarding this right as in fact integral in the fifth amendment. We must also remember its intrinsic kinship with the rest of that noble instrument in that it is permissive, not mandatory. Nobody is ever to be forced to name or maintain minimum resale prices. Our business is to cleave to fundamentals, to leave the issue clear and unencumbered.

One point, however, must be kept to the fore. That is that the privilege we seek to attain be backed by the power to enforce it through all channels of distribution; for inasmuch as my responsibility for the character and soundness of my goods remains, regardless of how said goods get to the retailer, control of my goods, including the price for which it is sold, should be likewise complete. Less than this will tend to leave matters in statu quo, where already the maker or producer—or simply an intermediate where already the maker or producer—or simply an intermediate seller—can enforce any provision, including resale price, insofar as enforcement can be accomplished through denial of supplies.

Further: Under our complex system of distribution it will be almost equally impracticable to enact any law under which a formal contract to maintain a resale price may be legal. This because such regulation would be cumbrous and costly in operation.

we must try to find some other way.

The California plan of 1906, devised by certain distributors, was in effect an automatic contract and filled the need precisely and adequately. This plan was to affix to every original container a notice which clearly set forth the price-restricted terms of sale, with the proviso that acceptance of merchandise with such notice attached was tree feets aridance that the notice was observed. attached was ipso facto evidence that the notice was observed, understood, and agreed to by the purchaser. On packages of Grogan's olive oil, for example, the notice was substantially as follows:

"The goods contained in this case are sold under the condition, which is part of the consideration of their sale, that the purchaser, if he retails them, will sell them for not less than the following prices: 90 cents for the large-size bottle, 45 cents for the medium-size bottle, 25 cents for the small-size bottle; and if he wholesales them, he will sell them subject to the same con-

"Acceptance of these goods by the purchaser, with this notice affixed, is sufficient acknowledgment that he understands and agrees to comply with this condition."

The crux of that notice was obviously in its last paragraph. It was, perhaps, a new departure, legally, to make a contract binding on one who did not sign it, but it was made to stick by a decision of the California supreme court. I forget the reasoning behind the decision. It may have been on a theory similar to that which holds that ignorance of the law is no excuse for its violation. Any receiver of merchandise bearing the notice quoted could know Any receiver of merchandise bearing the notice quoted could know the restrictions on its resale. Hence, he automatically agreed to the terms by his acceptance of the goods.

This test was strikingly valuable because it established the right of control on a plane with the maker's responsibility, regardless of the avenues through which the goods traveled on their way to wholesalers and retailers. Further, there was no mere denial of further supplies as penalty. Injunction could be had against continued violation and damages could be collected for past offenses; and that is what, one way or another, should be accomplished to make minimum resale price legislation of real value and effectiveness.

tiveness.

Oregon and Washington promptly enacted laws in conformity with the California decision and minimum resale prices were firmly intrenched throughout the Pacific Coast States, though later decisions have rendered the laws somewhat nugatory.

The original California plan might be rounded out by notice attached to producers' and wholesalers' invoices similar to those commonly printed now in relation to the national pure food law as well as similar laws in various States. This, in connection with the notice affixed to original packages, would seem to be such complete and practicable notification and warning as to satisfy all reasonable legal and equitable requirements.

But whatever the final plan, it should be made effective throughout our highly complicated system of distribution. To leave it

But whatever the final plan, it should be made effective throughout our highly complicated system of distribution. To leave it where it stands now, to hark back to the equivalent of barter, of simple dealings directly between producer and final distributor, would largely nullify its effectiveness.

The desideratum is definite acceptance of the principle that a name or trade-mark is property so intimately personal that it must be and remain under the absolute control of the owner wherever it may go and however it may reach any destination; and that this acceptance may be effective, teeth must be put into the machinery of control.

If, for any reason, the California plan contravenes our insti-the machinery of control.

If, for any reason, the California plan contravenes our institutions insurmountably, we have a model of procedure, long practiced in England, that nation of shopkeepers, whose commercial experience not only antedates our own by centuries but is the final basis of our commercial practices; and England does not find that agreements among and between trade-mark or brand owners contrary to sound public policy.

The marketer of trade-marked merchandise in England, whether he be a "Britisher" or otherwise, finds the resale price right so firmly established that it is not questioned. He tells his customer that the retail price is thus and so. The customer, wholesale and firmly established that it is not questioned. He tells his customer that the retail price is thus and so. The customer, wholesale and retail, simply notes the restriction and acts accordingly. But whether only in England or in some continental countries—perhaps in all of them—the commercial machinery for the enforcement of producers' rights is complete, its operation inexorable. When the American advertising convention was held in London in 1924, the association of drug proprietaries, the name of which is not at hand as I write, controlled some 1,460 items commonly retailed throughout the United Kingdom, Ireland, and the colonies.

retailed throughout the United Kingdom, Ireland, and the colonies. The resale price was strictly enjoined on each of those products. If any retailer cut any price, not only could he get no further supplies of that item, but simultaneously he would be denied supplies of all the 1,460 items. To persist in cutting would be to commit commercial suicide.

to commit commercial suicide.

Did such regulation work hardship on the consumer? Was there danger of a shortage of tooth paste when any cutter was denied any special brands thereof? Was anybody's halitosis left without the means of correction in such event? Not at all. In every market there is, and always will be, plenty of merchandise available on an open-price unlimited basis because, as I have indicated, nobody is ever compelled to set a limited resale price on his goods and plenty of makers elect not to do so.

There is an excellent English exemplar of how such price limitations make for improved business. That is the chain, the "multiple shop," organization of Boots, great English chemist, whose business parallels our Liggett or Whelan drug chain. Boots handles nearly, if not quite, all of the 1,460 items aforesaid. He could not operate successfully without most of them. He must could not operate successfully without most of them. He must price each at precisely the same figure demanded by his smallest competitor. Boots must, therefore, compete on a basis other than that of cut prices on advertised, trade-marked goods; and he does. Boots's competition takes the form of lavishly diversified stocks; that of cut prices on advertised, trade-marked goods; and he does. Boots's competition takes the form of lavishly diversified stocks; of splendid appointments; rest rooms, stationery, telephones, and other conveniences and adornments attractive to the best class of patrons. It also includes complete assortments of proprietaries under his own name and brand, the sale of which, naturally, he pushes as our chains push theirs. There is probably nothing any consumer of drugs, medicines, toilet or sick-room supplies may need that can not be had under Boots's brand, backed by a full guaranty of rectitude and quality; and the standing of the house is so high that its competition assumes the phase of distinctly trading up instead of, as inevitably happens under any cut-price plan, trading down. In fact, purchasers of Boots's goods are supremely well served.

Further: It is legal in England and Germany—it may be equally legal elsewhere in Europe—for merchants to combine and agree on prices; but in neither country is there even slight indication that the individual merchant is thereby so handicapped that he can not compete and flourish. In fact, there is no sign in those lands that the individual is in any way worse off under the indicated customs and trade practices than under our own; and the owner of a trade-mark and brand is certainly vastly better off. There is likewise nothing that suggests that the consuming public suffers in any way through extortion because of this capacity among sellers to make agreements which, from our present legal and legislative standpoints, are "in restraint of trade" and "against sound public policy."

Quite apparently it is safe to leave protection of consumers' interest to the outworkings of free competition, supply, and demand and such enlightened self-interest as always automatically obtains in distribution under unrestricted trading—except only in the case of natural monopolies.

One element of opposition to resale-price regulation is our fear of "monopoly"; and against that fear, th the case of natural monopoles.

One element of opposition to resale-price regulation is our fear of "monopoly"; and against that fear, the plea for freedom from "predatory price cutting" is peculiarly ineffective, for the average consumer—likewise the average legislator, who should be more enlightened, but is not—feels that the merchant gets an exorbitant profit and that cut prices are a public safeguard.

We have an exaggerated fear of monopoly—a real monomania on it. But, except in the cases of natural monopolies, such as gas works, electric-power plants, water works and railroads, there is no practical danger. Even the Standard Oil, feared above all others 35 to 40 years ago, never has been able to corral more than a working majority of the oil business. It is easy to provide against extortion through monopoly in writing such a law no practical danger. Even the Standard Oil, feared above all others 35 to 40 years ago, never has been able to corral more than a working majority of the oil business. It is easy to provide against extortion through monopoly in writing such a law now new seek.

This monomaia was undoubtedly behind one amendment tacked onto the Capper-Kelly bill in our last Congress, which excluded "the necessaries of life "from its operations. Necessaries of life include foods, and to exclude foods from limited price regulation would be to pass a law of benefit virtually to nobody, But the fear of monopoly in the case of foods—assuming the opposition to have been genuine and honest and not a smoke screen—is fantastic, for if there be any imaginable class of commodities utterly immune to any danger of monopolistic control, in whole or in any substantial part, that class is foods. Unrestricted competition under the impulses of normal self-interest in trade where the outlook is always various would prevent monopoly in any event; but aside from such considerations and factors, there is the utter impossibility of monopolistic control not merely of foods as a whole but of any subdivision thereof. Nobody could do it 50 years ago, when there was no law against combinations, and nobody can do it now—and for the same reason; that the world groans under a plethora of supply.

A score of years since, the Quaker people told me Quaker Oats went through some thirty operations to insure freedom from bits of chaff and other possibly harmful elements, none of which processes entered the preparation of bulk oats. Being of Scotch antecedents, virtually "raised" on oat porridge long before anything "purer" than Fred Schumacher's "Avena" was known, I quote the "possibly" because I can not take such trifles seriously; my own youth having been nourished on stone-ground cats in which I feel sure the minimum of "purification" inhered.

But regardless of that and conceding every claim of the Quaker folks, we can be sure of one thing; that not even they w any plan for the control of resale prices. Regardless of details, it is a homely fact that anyone who asks too much for his goods will fail to sell them—in spite, or without the restraint, of any legislation. This contention can be specifically established by many examples. I shall quote one, that we may realize exactly who stands any chance for lasting success under resale price restrictions. restrictions.

who stands any chance for lasting success direct restrictions.

About 10 years ago a San Francisco food distributor began to advertise. Minimum resale price restrictions are popular in our Far West, and it seemed distinctly to the interest of this company that its goods should be protected from piracy; and because it was—and is—direct distributor to its retail customers, it could insist on the maintenance of minimum resale prices. Hence such restrictions were announced in its trade advertising and sales literature.

But when the advertising agency's merchandising man reached this phase of the sales plan he found that entire definiteness on this head had not been attained; and because he could not work intelligently without such definite knowledge, he asked: "What is your minimum margin limit?"

After some discussion the answer was: "At least 20 per cent."

"On his cost or selling prices?" insisted the questioner.

"Well,"—hesitantly—"on his coat."

Obviously that was 16% per cent on sales; and such margin, even as a minimum, on high-grade food products where quality, grade, and uniformity are maintained, is so soundly economic that no consumer's interest could possibly be jeopardized thereby. But also, a restriction so moderate will always avoid the other horn of the merchandising dilemma: the holding of an umbrella for competition.

On that basis the progress of this house has been consistent, logical, and most gratifying. The house slogan is "Consistently the Best," referring, of course, to quality. The merchandising plan certainly is consistently the best as I see it—equitable, fair to all parties, with restrictions so moderate as to be immune to the inroads of competition; without a chemical trace of extortion; and that, experience shows, is the only basis on which minimum resale prices can be maintained concurrently with expansion in resale prices can be maintained concurrently with expansion in volume and an economic ratio of profit.

In fact, only by the avoidance of the least shadow, or appearance, or suggestion of extortion—or any intent in the direction of extortion—can any marketer of branded articles successfully utilize extortion—can any marketer of branded articles successfully utilize the right to insist on the maintenance of minimum resale prices. He must lean over backwards to avoid the slightest ground for the imputation of greed. He must be not only pure but absolutely, indubitably, above suspicion.

It appears, then, that nobody will suffer under the exercise of this fundamental mercantile right; and when it is accorded, business can advance with confidence. Then truly "the sharp tool of advertising," the most economical promotional force ever discovered, will come fully into its own.

Note.—On the matter of price maintenance, see the following Bulletin articles:

Vol. 3, p. 326, General Discussion, "Peruna." Vol. 4, p. 360, Belgium.

Vol. 6, p. 209, Belgium, Germany, and France. Vol. 7, p. 117, Miles Medical Co. case.

Vol. 1, p. 117, Miles Medical Co. case. Vol. 8, pp. 77, 357, Kellogg Toasted Corn Flakes. Vol. 11, pp. 217, 309, "Cream of Wheat" case. Vol. 12, p. 90, Chamber of Commerce Referendum (1916). Vol. 12, p. 273, Ingersoll Watch case.

Vol. 13, p. 233, France. Vol. 13, p. 264, Stephens Bill.

Vol. 13, p. 341, Stephens Bill, in Opposition. Vol. 14, p. 43, Federal Trade Commission. Vol. 14, p. 112, Kelly Bill.

Vol. 14, p. 112, Kelly Bill.
Vol. 14, p. 118, Federal Trade Commission.
Vol. 14, p. 179, Federal Trade Commission.
Vol. 14, p. 202, "Old Dutch Cleanser" case.
Vol. 14, p. 306, Kelly Bill.
Vol. 14, p. 323, Federal Trade Commission, German speech.
Vol. 14, p. 350, Schrader case.
Vol. 15, p. 8, Kelly Bill.
Vol. 15, p. 274, Discussion.
Vol. 17, p. 15, "Beech-Nut" case.
Vol. 18, p. 22, Merritt Bill.
Vol. 21, p. 95, New Day Price Maintenance.
Vol. 21, p. 165, Spread of Movement.
Vol. 22, p. 233, Price Maintenance Investigation by the Federal rade Commission. Trade Commission.

Vol. 22, p. 245, Prospects for Price Maintenance Legislation in the Next Congress

Vol. 23, p. 19, Question of Price Maintenance.

Vol. 23, p. 147, Some Legal and Commercial Aspects of Price Maintenance.

Maintenance.

Vol. 23, p. 279, Price Maintenance and the Capper-Kelly Bill.

Vol. 24, p. 69, Resale Price Maintenance Legislation.

Vol. 24, p. 200, Trade-Marking and Price Cutting as Reported by the Federal Trade Commission.

Vol. 24, p. 237, Pros and Cons of Resale Price Maintenance.

Vol. 25, p. 37, Capper-Kelly Bill Again Before Congress.

Vol. 25, p. 51, Capper-Kelly Bill Favorably Reported.

Vol. 26, p. 157, Price Maintenance and the Capper-Kelly Bill.

Vol. 27, p. 112, Prospects for Price Maintenance on Trade-marked Goods.

TEN ANSWERS TO SUBSTITUTE BRANDS By Herschel Deutsch

The carefully compiled figures and excellent charts in the report on private brands just issued by the Federal Trade Commisport on private brands just issued by the Federal Trade Commission merely confirm what every manufacturer of nationally advertised products has known for some time; the sale of unadvertised, store-controlled brands has increased greatly. At that, the private brand is only one of the many forms of the substitute—that ogre to which he has been losing more and more of the sales created by his advertising. When the retailer has not his own especially labeled product to offer in place of the advertised article, he usually has plenty of other unadvertised brands on hand. hand.

There is no question regarding his use of them either. John W. Dargavel, retiring president of the National Association of Retail Druggists, states that in his own drug store he sells a substitute product in 9 out of 10 cases.

In reply to a direct question by their national association, 992 out of 1,000 Canadian druggists recently admitted that they sell substitutes regularly.

Incidentally, if you doubt the effectiveness of the druggist's efforts in this direction, you will be interested in learning that the annual sale of substitutes for Listerine is now estimated to be between three and four million dollars.

The situation is by no means limited to the drug or food fields. Localized studies by advertising agencies and general surveys by trade associations, the Federal Trade Commission, and large national publications reveal that the menace is growing in the house furnishings, haberdashery, and hardware fields. As more and more manufacturers begin to wonder audibly how much longer they will find their advertising profitable, advertising men are growing increasingly cognizant of a serious threat to their industry.

An executive of one of our largest advertising agencies recently

"Much of the effectiveness of advertising is lost to-day at the point of sale. Advertisers are coming to realize this, especially now when every dollar must count. It may come to the point where many of them will give up advertising in disgust, tired of holding the bag for the manufacturer of substitute products."

Naturally, the advertiser is seeking methods for stemming the tide. Here are 10 possible courses which he can follow:

1. INSURING THE RETAILER'S PROFIT

These days, when the retailer tries to sell you something other than the advertised product you requested, the reason is usually obvious enough. In most cases he is featuring the standard article at a cut price and is clearly making more money—or at least not losing any—on the substitute. The great wave of price cutting of the past year or so has affected most extensively those merchandising fields in which advertised brands predominate. In many instances the slashing has reached a truly desperate stage. A recent count in a middle western store showed 114 well-known items being sold below wholesale cost. With his profit on the advertised article thus squeezed out by competitive price cuts, the retailer turns to substitutes in self-defense.

The manufacturer who seeks to improve the retailer's profit and thereby eliminate this cause for substitution has a choice of several methods.

One, selective distribution—restricting the number of outlets and their selection for quality—permits closer supervision by the manufacturer of his consumer contacts and tends to keep the product out of disorganizing retailer competition.

Most advertised makes of shoes, tires, men's hats, electrical appliances, and silverware are distributed through "exclusive agencies" at comparatively stabilized prices. Sherwin Williams paints and Elizabeth Arden beauty preparations have found the plan particularly successful, and in the drug and toiletries field an increasing number of large companies such as Armand, Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Dorothy Gray, and E. R. Squibb & Son have adopted modified versions of the system.

Under normal conditions, the manufacturer enjoying widespread distribution is disinclined to eliminate some of his retailers or wholesalers and change to the controlled, selective method, be-cause he knows that an accompanying sharp drop in his sales is inevitable. The fact that many large drug advertisers are nevertheless doing so indicates the growing seriousness of the situation in this industry.

In any field where the chain or large buyer is granted an "advertising allowance" or a special quantity discount, the independent merchant's profit will naturally be smaller or even nonexistent if he offers the product at the same price. Perhaps in response if he offers the product at the same price. Perhaps in response to the resentment against these preferential arrangements (a resentment which forecasts costly retaliatory substitution) many manufacturers have adopted new "one price to all "and "inflexible discount" policies. Still another good-will and sales incentive, the volume bonus plan, used for years by tire companies, electric-lamp companies, and others, whereby the dealer receives an extra discount or commission if his total sales for a period exceed a specific amount, is now incorporated in several of these new profit plans as a measure for increasing the total turnover.

2. CONSIGNMENT SELLING

2. CONSIGNMENT SELLING

Of course, the ideal method for eliminating price cutting would be to establish uniform prices by enforceable agreements. However, while the Clayton Act retains its teeth, such price fixing is illegal. If the manufacturer wishes to control the price or other conditions under which his product is offered to the consumer, he must retain title to it by placing it in the retailer's stock on a consignment basis. Once the merchandise passes out of his possession, the manufacturer's legal interest in it ends. He can not dictate the resale price or order the retailer whose methods do not please him to cease selling.

As a means for eliminating the price cutting which threatened their industry several years ago, most major oil companies adopted

As a means for eliminating the price cutting which threatened their industry several years ago, most major oil companies adopted a controlled agency plan by which the retailer—the gas station—receives his stock on a consignment basis. In the drug field the Coty Co., about a year ago, placed its products on a wholesale consignment for the same reason.

Retailers practicing substitution usually keep the advertised product out of sight, producing it only on express demand. Not only do the profit-protecting provisions of the consignment contract encourage the dealer into more active sales promotion but its terms can actually specify the exact extent of this cooperation. its terms can actually specify the exact extent of this cooperation. Thus the new arrangement by which the American Cigar Co. is placing Corona cigars on consignment insures the continued prominent display of the product by means of a sliding scale of discounts, dependent on the amount of showcase space given by the Tung-Sol radio tubes recently went on a consignment basis primarily for the familiar price-control reason, but found in the plan accompanying protection against substitution. When the retailer is out of stock on an item he will, perforce, try to sell the substitute he has on hand. Where, because of the investment required, the retailer might be disinclined to put in all the 25 required, the retailer might be disinclined to put in all the 25 numbers in the line, he has been welcoming the convenience of the expanded stock afforded by the consignment plan. Again, where the credit standing makes it necessary to curtail shipments on outright sale, by retaining title to the goods through the consignment contract the manufacturer can load up the outlet completely without fear of loss. While basically the famous GE lamp consignment plan was designed to control the resale practices of the 20,000 dealers, it is freely admitted that the credit protection feature is almost as important.

Since this problem of a shortage of stock caused by curtailed

Since this problem of a shortage of stock caused by curtailed credit is universal, where the manufacturer is not prepared to go into consignment selling, he can take some action against this cause of lost sales through-

3. LIBERALIZED CREDIT

Many retailers in the drug field are now so deeply in debt to their wholesalers that they can not order suitable quantities of demand merchandise and so must sell whatever substitute goods they can obtain. Certain wholesale distributors of substitute lines have taken advantage of this situation by issuing special merchandise deals featuring extended-credit terms. Rexal's 6-month dating proposition and McKesson's offer of long credit on a $100 combination are examples of this tendency. Similar develop-combination are examples of this tendency. Similar developments have taken place in other fields.

If the manufacturer is to reduce the number of occasions on which the retailer is forced to say "Sorry; just out of stock," and to combat such specific opposition from wholesale suppliers, more liberal credit extensions would appear to be necessary, and many companies selling direct to the retailer have recently announced such special arrangements. The Columbia Phonograph Co.'s excellent installment finance plan on their new radio sets and the Western (Toothbrush) Co.'s 6-month credit deal are current variations on this theme.

Manufacturers in wholesaler-served fields are finding the need

Manufacturers in wholesaler-served fields are finding the need for some corrective especially serious since, in addition to the credit advantages with which the wholesaler often surrounds his credit advantages with which the wholesaler often surrounds his controlled, private-label line of products, he is in a position to and usually does put behind it sufficient direct sales pressure to keep the dealer well stocked with these substitutes. In fact, he is frequently accused by the manufacturer of actually "sharpshooting" orders for standard products—that is, urging the retailer to accept controlled-brand substitutes when advertised items are ordered.

4. FORCING HEAVIER STOCKS

There are several liquid complexion cleansers, but one does not suffer much from substitution. The most important explana-tion for this is the fact that the druggist has been tempted through a series of irresistible special offers to stock up so heavily on the product that he has neither space nor inclination for the

on the product that he has neither space nor inclination for the substitute. Accordingly, instead of aggressive switching, he is impelled to persistent efforts to keep the stock moving.

There are some drawbacks to the idea, of course. The drug and grocery fields have been especially "overdealed" lately, and retailers have been resenting the confusion into which they have been thrown regarding the actual base costs of their goods. When a grocer in Boise, Idaho, writes in bitter complaint that "Certain manufacturers work these deals all the time," and a druggist in Corona, N. Y., blames on the pyramided deals the fact that he has "more of a certain trade-marked toothbrush in stock than there are teeth in the heads of all my customers," they are speaking for the great army of their brothers-in-trade who have begun to resent what they consider the unfair activities of the deal-weilding manufacturers.

5. INCREASED ADVERTISING

There is no question that many unadvertised (substitute) products have grown in power lately, requiring greater resistance by standard, established brands. For one thing, well-known products have been conspicuously slower than unadvertised ones in reducing their prices to conform with the general drop in commodities. A second consideration has been the growing prestige of the names attached to many of the private-brand lines. The sponsorship of such organizations as Atlantic & Pacific or United Cigar Co. makes the customer easier to convince regarding the quality and dependability of the product offered in place of the one requested.

From the advertiser's standpoint it would be logical to meet such growing force with equally increased force. As the substitute expands in power, the standard item would be called on to match it at every step by amplification of its one big weapon-A recent study of private brands in the grocery field proves that the products which withstand substitution efforts best are those most extensively advertised.

most extensively advertised.

The average manufacturer recognizes this fact readily enough. In his study on Price Cutting and Price Maintenance, Professor Seligman points out that "a part of the manufacturer's outlay has hitherto been made for the express purpose of offsetting the dealer's opposition." There is another view, however. Assuming that a piece of advertising will bring a certain number of people to the store, some of whom will be induced to walk out with substitute products, a doubling of the advertising would not only decrease the resistance in the individual customer but would bring to the store if not actually double the number, certainly enough. to the store, if not actually double the number, certainly enough new ones to replace those lost to the substitutes.

There is a point, of course, at which the charted curve of this new business, rising more or less parallel with the advertising appropriation, will begin to flatten out, but, with the possible exception of the large cigarette companies, no manufacturer has ever attempted to determine the exact scale of the diminishing returns to be expected from the expanded advertising, and the so-to-speak extra dividends to be found in the upper levels of the towering expenditure. towering expenditure.

6. THE "BEWARE-OF-SUBSTITUTES" CAMPAIGN

In the last few months a number of the large advertisers have turned from their customary attempts at sales increases through widened markets or uses to defense of their existing sales. The current Absorbine Jr. campaign concentrates on warning the consumer against "substitute remedies for athlete's foot. GE Lamp advertising warns that "poor lamps use more current." Bayer warns against "ordinary aspirin." Pennzoll Motor Oil's new series warns against "ordinary aspirin." Pennzoll Motor Oil's new series warns against the "widespread frauds" practiced by the "oil bootlegger." Listerine warns against "questionable mouthwashes." Vapex warns against "cheap imitations."

In some cases outsiders have taken up the cudgels for the advertiser. The Los Angeles Times promotional advertisements bearing such headlines as "Get what you ask for" and "Don't be talked into buying something you don't want," and the similar appeals by Photoplay and other magazines are similar to the activities of organizations like the American Petroleum Institute & Drug (Inc.) in behalf of the standard (advertised) products.

7. APPEALS TO THE DEALER

7. APPEALS TO THE DEALER

With their advertising creating the demand and the wholesaler's salesmen collecting the retailer's orders, many manufacturers have been able to do without salesmen for a long time. To-day, however, more and more of these advertising manufacturers are sending trained crews into the field, not so much to sell their products to the retailer as to counteract the inroads of the substitutes by winning his good will and teaching him the methods and the advantages of pushing (instead of retarding) the sale of the adveradvantages of pushing (instead of retairing) the sale of the dised product.

In trade publication advertising and direct mail promotion pieces the "do not substitute" appeal is receiving an especially heavy play these days and carefully staged and publicized trade demonstrations, such as the Cannon Mills towel sales test, in which the branded towel was proved capable of outselling the unbranded one by 3 or 4 to 1, are frankly aimed at the substituting retailer. stituting retailer.

8. SPECIALTY CHARACTERISTICS

Staples lend themselves more readily and are more often sub-

Staples lend themselves more readily and are more often subject to switching than are specialties. A customer who asks for an advertised brand of coffee or aspirin or canned peaches will much more frequently be sold something "just as good" than the one who has asked for Crackles or Feenamint or Patapar. Obviously, then, the closer the manufacturer can come to turning his product into a specialty, the greater will be its resistance to substitutes. Sometimes, through its ability to create new uses, advertising can help make staples into specialties. As a liniment, Absorbine, Jr. is a staple; as a cure for athlete's foot, it is (or was) a specialty. As a laundry starch, Linit is clearly enough a household staple; as Linit Beauty Bath it is a toilet specialty. specialty.

However, the built-in sales appeal is better. The touch of perfume on Beau Monde hosiery, the medication on Doctor Scholl's Zino pads, the menthol in Spud cigarettes are all measures to lift staples into specialties.

9. PRODUCTION OF SUBSTITUTES

A growing number of manufacturers have made up their minds A growing number of manufacturers have made up their minds that substitution and switching on their products can not be stopped, and that they may as well make what they can out of the situation. Since the substitute or private brand product will be manufactured some place, they reason, why not make it in their own plants along with the original, advertised brand?

Many independent grocers have barred a certain brand of canned goods from their shelves in resentment at the price-cutting activities of their chain-store competition, but the manufacturer makes up for this loss by producing a good part of the facturer makes up for this loss by producing a good part of the substitutes.

Both Goodyear and Goodrich make tires under private brand names. Segal Razor Co., Quaker Oats Co., American Bosch Radio Corporation, Cannon Mills, and many other well-known companies make products for outsiders. While not all of these carry on the practice merely as a means of salvaging a part of the loss through substitution, the tendency in this direction is clearly growing.

10. OUTLETS IN NEW FIELDS

Finally, when the advertiser has tried all the other methods suited to his specific problem and found no relief from his losses through retailer substitution, he comes to the idea new outlets, away from his normal, conventional field.

On the face of it, the idea presents some tempting advantages.

With his advertising appropriation based on a definite number of outlets, each reduction in the value and number of his dealers has meant a proportionate distortion of his figures. By simply going into another field, however, he can enlarge the number of

The drug manufacturer, contemplating the 100,000 or so additional outlets available for him in the grocery field, is encouraged by the examples of the many successful shifts which have been taking place in other industries. He has seen the syndicate store become the accepted outlet for electrical supplies and glassware, the grocery store turn over great quantities of cigarettes, the 5-and-10 become the place to buy low-priced towels, and so he gathers himself for the leap.

The fact that he has not as yet done so is due in part to his disinclination to undertake the complexities which approach to such enlarged new distribution must entail. But to a greater extent it is due to his fear of the resentment of his original dealers and the effect of their inevitable retaliatory measures on

However, if matters continue as they have been going, with the power and the sales of the private brand and other substitutes growing ever larger and more injurious, eventually the advertising manufacturer will reach the point where this threat of retailer resentment will be overshadowed. And then he will go afield.

Or else he will finally see himself as merely paying out his big appropriations to help build the sales of the substitute, and he will just stop advertising altogether.

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE, SEVENTY-THIRD CONGRESS

Mr. HARRISON submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 378), which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Finance or any subcommittee thereof be, and hereby is, authorized to sit during the sessions or recesses of the Seventy-third Congress at such times and places as they may deem advisable; to make investigations into internal revenue, customs, currency, and coinage matters, and other matters within its jurisdiction, and to compile and prepare statistics and documents relating thereto as directed from time to time by the Senate and as may be necessary; and to report from time to time to the Senate the result thereof; to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ such expert, stenographic, clerical, and other assistance as may be necessary; and all of the expenses of such committee shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate; and the committee is authorized to order such printing and binding as may be necessary for its

Mr. TOWNSEND, subsequently, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to which the above resolution was referred, reported it favorably without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

FUNERAL EXPENSES OF THE LATE SENATOR WALSH OF MONTANA

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. President, I send to the desk a resolution, which I ask to have read and referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the

The VICE PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The resolution (S. Res. 379) was read and referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate hereby is authorized and directed to pay from the contingent fund of the Senate the actual and necessary expenses incurred by the committee appointed by the Vice President in arranging for and attending the funeral of Hon. Thomas J. Walsh, late a Senator from the State of Montana, upon vouchers to be approved by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. TOWNSEND, subsequently, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to which the above resolution was referred, reported it favorably without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

CONTINUANCE OF INVESTIGATION BY COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. TOWNSEND, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, reported back favorably with an amendment the Senate Resolution No. 223, submitted by Mr. Frazier on June 9, 1932, and it was considered by unanimous consent.

The amendment was, in line 1, after the name "Committee on Indian Affairs," to strike out "hereby is authorized to employ a special assistant to be paid from the appropriation for miscellaneous items, contingent fund of the Senate. at the rate of $400 per month until otherwise provided by law" and insert "is hereby authorized to complete the investigation heretofore authorized, and all expenses incurred in pursuance hereof, including the pay of an assistant, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and shall not exceed the sum of $1,500," so as to make the resolution read:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Affairs is hereby authorized to complete the investigation heretofore authorized, and all expenses incurred in pursuance hereof, including the pay of an assistant, shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate, and shall not exceed the sum of $1,500.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, does not the Senator desire the words "heretofore and hereafter"?-because we passed a resolution authorizing an investigation and the committee has not quite completed its labors and full report. It seems to me the resolution ought to be broad enough to embrace the continuation under that resolution as well as under this

Mr. FRAZIER. I think the resolution is broad enough and I have no objection.

Mr. KING. If the chairman is satisfied I have no objection.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

CONTINUANCE OF INVESTIGATION OF FEDERAL FARM BOARD

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, I call up from the table Senate Resolution 364, submitted by me on February 20, 1933, and ask for its immediate consideration.

There being no objection, the resolution (S. Res. 364) submitted by Mr. McNary on February 20, 1933, was read, considered, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That Senate Resolution No. 42, Seventy-second Congress, agreed to April 11, 1932, directing the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to make an investigation of the activities and operations of the Federal Farm Board, is hereby continued in full force and effect until the expiration of the Seventy-third Congress.

GLADYCE W. SIMMONS

Mr. TOWNSEND, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, reported back favorably without amendment Senate Resolution No. 372, submitted by Mr. Norris (for Mr. Howell) on February 25, 1933, which was read, considered, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate hereby is authorized and directed to pay from the appropriation for miscellaneous items, contingent fund of the Senate, fiscal year 1932, to Gladyce W. Simmons, daughter of Samuel B. Weil, late a messenger of the Senate, under supervision of the Sergeant at Arms, a sum equal to six months' compensation at the rate he was receiving by law at the time of his death, said sum to be considered inclusive of funeral expenses and all other allowances

HEARINGS BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND CURRENCY, SEVENTY-THIRD CONGRESS

Mr. TOWNSEND, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, reported back favorably without amendment the resolution (S. Res. 373) submitted by Mr. Fletcher on February 25, 1933, which was read, considered, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Banking and Currency, or any subcommittee thereof, hereby is authorized to sit during the sessions, recesses, and adjourned periods of the Seventy-third Congress at such times and places as it may deem advisable, to make investigations into all matters within its jurisdiction, and to cominvestigations into all matters within its jurisdiction, and to compile and prepare statistics and documents relating thereto as directed from time to time by the Senate and as may be necessary, and to report in due course to the Senate the result thereof, to send for persons, books, and papers, to administer oaths, and to employ such expert, stenographic, clerical, and other assistance as may be necessary; and all of the expenses incurred in pursuance hereof shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate; and the committee is authorized to order such printing and binding as may be necessary for its use. as may be necessary for its use.

FREE IMPORTATION OF CERTAIN ARTICLES

Mr. BINGHAM. Mr. President, from the Committee on Finance I report back favorably House bill 14579, to provide for the free importation of certain articles exported temporarily for scientific or educational purposes, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That Title II of the tariff act of 1930 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

¹ Nation's Business, January, 1933, by permission.

"PAR. 1815. Articles, when returned after having been loaned and exported for use temporarily abroad solely for exhibition, examination, or experimentation, for scientific or educational purposes, if imported by or for the account of the person who exported them from the United States, and not for sale, subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe."

CONSTRUCTION OF BRIDGES

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, from the Committee on Commerce I report back favorably without amendment Senate bill 5701, to authorize the construction of certain bridges and to extend the times for commencing and/or completing the construction of other bridges over the navigable waters of the United States, and I ask for the immediate consideration of the bill.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc.-

DELAWARE RIVER AT BUSHKILL, PA.

SECTION 1. (a) That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, section 1. (a) That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes the Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Delaware River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Bushkill, Pa., in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved Morch 22, 1006, and subject to the constructions and limits proved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

(b) There is hereby conferred upon the Bushkill Bridge Co., its (b) There is hereby conferred upon the Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

(c) The said Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, is hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

(d) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Pennsylvania, the State of New Jersey, any public agency or political subdivision of either the Secretary of War, either the State of Pennsylvania, the State of New Jersey, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States, within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States erty necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of five years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

(e) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

(f) The Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Departments of the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the sonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

or gross mistake.

(g) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the Bushkill Bridge Co., its successors and assigns; and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and employered to exercise the same as fully is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or

COLUMBIA RIVER NEAR THE DALLES, OREG.

SEC. 2. (a) That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, be and is poses The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, be and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Columbia River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, the bridge to be located at approximately in either section 20, 29, or 30, township 2 north, range 14 east, Willamette meridian, in the State of Oregon, and from the point of beginning on the Oregon shore of said river, thence running in a northerly direction to a suitable landing in the State of Washington and on the Washington side of said Columbia River, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

(b) There is hereby conferred upon The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State.

(c) The said The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, is hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

(d) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Washington, the State of Oregon, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States, within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interest in real property: (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interest in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

(e) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof, or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 15 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount ! necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

interested.

(f) The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Departments of the States of Washington and Oregon, a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

(g) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage forclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

Ohio River Near Shawneetown, ILL. The Dalles Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall within OHIO RIVER NEAR SHAWNEETOWN, ILL.

SEC. 3. That the times for commencing and completing the con-SEC. 3. That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Ohio River at or near Shawnee-town, Gallatin County, Ill., and a point opposite thereto in Union County, Ky., authorized to be built by J. L. Rowan, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, by an act of Congress approved May 1, 1928, heretofore extended by acts of Congress approved June 20, 1929, and March 3, 1931, are hereby futher extended one and three years, respectively, from March 3, 1933.

MISSOURI RIVER AT BROWNVILLE, NEBR.

SEC. 4. That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Brownville, Nebr., authorized to be built by the Brownville Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, by an act of Congress approved February 26, 1929, heretofore extended by an act of Congress approved June 10, 1930, are hereby further extended one and three years, respectively, from February 26, 1933.

MISSOURI RIVER AT RULO, NEBR.

SEC. 5. (a) That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the Postal Service, and provide for military and other purposes, John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns be, and are hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Missouri River at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Rulo, Nebr., in accordance with the provision of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

tained in this act

tained in this act.

(b) There is hereby conferred upon John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge corporations for bridge purposes in the State in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and pald according to the laws of such State, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation or expropriation of property for public purposes in such State. poses in such State.
(c) The said John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William

(c) The said John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, are hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

(d) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Nebraska, the State of Missouri, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion costs, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interest in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

(e) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof, or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolis are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing costs, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

(f) The said John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Departments of the States of Nebraska and Missouri a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, shall make available all of the records in connection with the construction, available all of the records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

(g) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to John C. Mullen, John H. Hutchings, and William Shepherd, their heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER NEAR BATON ROUGE, LA.

Sec. 6. That the times for commencing and completing the construction of the bridge across the Mississippi River at or near Baton Rouge, La., authorized to be built by the Baton Rouge-Mississippi River Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, by an act of Congress approved February 20, 1928, heretofore extended by acts of Congress approved January 25, 1929, June 10, 1930, and February 10, 1932, are hereby further extended two and four years, respectively, from February 20, 1933.

OHIO RIVER AT SISTERSVILLE, W. VA.

SEC. 7. That the times for commencing and completing the con-SEC. 7. That the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge authorized by an act of Congress approved February 20, 1928, to be built by the Sistersville Ohio River Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, across the Ohio River at or near Sistersville, Tyler County, W. Va., heretofore extended by acts of Congress approved March 2, 1929, and February 7, 1931, are hereby further extended one and three years, respectively, from February 20, 1933.

POTOMAC RIVER NEAR DAHLGREN, VA.

SEC. 8. (a) That in order to facilitate interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, the George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a highway or combined highway and railroad bridge and approaches thereto across the Potomac River at a point suitable to the interests of navigation from a point in the righties of Poblemen in the pathesist of New York (New York). the vicinity of Dahlgren in the northeastern end of King George County, in the State of Virginia, to a point south of Popes Creek, in the county of Charles, in the State of Maryland, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained | in this act.

(b) There is hereby conferred upon the said George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, all such rights and powers to enter upon lands and to acquire, condemn, occupy, possess, and use real estate and other property needed for the location, construction, operation, and maintenance of such bridge and its approaches and terminals as are possessed by railroad corporations for railroad purposes or by bridge cor-porations for bridge purposes in the State or States in which such real estate or other property is situated, upon making just compensation therefor, to be ascertained and paid according to the laws of such State or States, and the proceedings therefor shall be the same as in the condemnation and expropriation of property for public purposes in such State or States.

(c) The said George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, is hereby authorized to fix and charge tolls for transit over such bridge, and the rates of toll so fixed shall be the legal rates until changed by the Secretary of War under the authority contained in the act of March 23, 1906.

(d) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Virginia, the State of Mary-Secretary of War, either the State of Virginia, the State of Maryland, any public agency or political subdivision of either of such States, within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interests in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of either of such States governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 20 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or comyears after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or com-pensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its ap-proaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interest in real prop-erty; (3) actual financing and promotion costs (not to exceed 10 per cept of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property); and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

(e) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the States or public agencies or political subdivisions thereof, or by either of them, as provided in section 4 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches, under economical management; to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, within a period of not to exceed 30 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for operation, repairing, and maintaining the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

(f) The said George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, shall within 90 days after the completion of such bridge file with the Secretary of War and with the Highway Departments of the States of Virginia and Maryland a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches the actual cost. Maryland a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor and actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and upon request of the highway department of either of such States shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing financing, and promoting such bridge: able costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing ing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review oses mentioned in section 4 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

(g) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the said George Washington-Wakefield Memorial Bridge (Inc.), its successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any persons to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

MERRIMACK RIVER NEAR PLUM ISLAND POINT, MASS.

SEC. 9. (a) That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, Essex Shore Way (Inc.), its successors and assigns, be, and is hereby, authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Merrimack River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Plum Island Point, Mass., in accordance with the provisions of the act en-titled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navi-titled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this act.

(b) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interest in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or by condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such Commonwealth governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 10 years after the completion of such bridge the expiration of 10 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real presents (2) actual cost of acquiring such indepreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interests in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

(c) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonsufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 20 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of toll shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An acquirate record of proaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

(d) The Essex Shore Way (Inc.), its successors and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the Public Works Department of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion costs. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the Public Works Department of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing financing, and promoting such bridge: able costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said Essex Shore Way (Inc.), its successors and assigns, shall make available all of its records in connection with the construction, financing, and promotion thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable costs of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in sec-tion 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

(e) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to Essex Shore Way (Inc.), its successors and assigns; and any corporation to which, or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

CHESAPEAKE BAY BETWEEN BALTIMORE AND KENT COUNTIES, MD.

SEC. 11. (a) That in order to promote interstate commerce, improve the postal service, and provide for military and other purposes, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Co., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland, its succesand existing under the laws of the State of Maryland, its successors and assigns, is hereby authorized to construct, maintain, and operate a bridge and approaches thereto across the Chesapeake Bay, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, from a point in Baltimore County, Md., south of Back River, to Hart Island, to Miller Island, and thence to some point in Kent County, Md., between 39° 12′ and 39° 13′ 30″ north latitude, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable water." approved March 23, 1906, and subject to the conditions and limitations contained in this set. Provided That in the interests of national defense and for act: Provided, That in the interests of national defense, and for the protection of life and property, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and empowered, when, in his judgment, military necessity shall require it, to close said bridge to traffic at such time and during such periods as he may determine.

(b) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the

(b) After the completion of such bridge, as determined by the Secretary of War, either the State of Maryland, any political subdivision thereof within or adjoining which any part of such bridge is located, or any two or more of them jointly, may at any time acquire and take over all right, title, and interest in such bridge and its approaches, and any interests in real property necessary therefor, by purchase or condemnation or expropriation, in accordance with the laws of such State governing the acquisition of private property for public purposes by condemnation or expropriation. If at any time after the expiration of 30 years after the completion of such bridge the same is acquired by condemnation or expropriation, the amount of damages or compensation to be allowed shall not include good will, going value, or prospective revenues or profits, but shall be limited to the sum of (1) the actual cost of constructing such bridge and its approaches, less a reasonable deduction for actual depreciation in value; (2) the actual cost of acquiring such interests in real property; (3) actual financing and promotion cost, not to exceed 10 per cent of the sum of the cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches and acquiring such interest in real property; and (4) actual expenditures for necessary improvements.

tures for necessary improvements.

(c) If such bridge shall at any time be taken over or acquired by the State of Maryland, or by any municipality or other political subdivision or public agency thereof, under the provisions of section 2 of this act, and if tolls are thereafter charged for the use thereof, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, sufficient to pay for the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating the bridge and its approaches under economical management and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the amount paid therefor, including reasonable interest and financing cost, as soon as possible under reasonable charges, but within a period of not to exceed 30 years from the date of acquiring the same. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization shall have been so provided, such bridge shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper repair, maintenance, and operation of the bridge and its approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the amount paid for acquiring the bridge and its approaches, the actual expenditures for operating, repairing, and maintaining the same, and of the daily tolls collected shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

all persons interested.

(d) The said Chesapeake Bay Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, shall, within 90 days after the completion of such bridge, file with the Secretary of War and with the highway department of the State of Maryland a sworn itemized statement showing the file with the Secretary of War and with the highway department of the State of Maryland a sworn itemized statement showing the actual original cost of constructing the bridge and its approaches, the actual cost of acquiring any interest in real property necessary therefor, and the actual financing and promotion cost. The Secretary of War may, and at the request of the highway department of the State of Maryland shall, at any time within three years after the completion of such bridge, investigate such costs and determine the accuracy and the reasonableness of the costs alleged in the statement of costs so filed, and shall make a finding of the actual and reasonable costs of constructing, financing, and promoting such bridge; for the purpose of such investigation the said Chesapeake Bay Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, thall make available all of its records in connection with the financing and the construction thereof. The findings of the Secretary of War as to the reasonable cost of the construction, financing, and promotion of the bridge shall be conclusive for the purposes mentioned in section 2 of this act, subject only to review in a court of equity for fraud or gross mistake.

(e) The right to sell, assign, transfer, and mortgage all the rights, powers, and privileges conferred by this act is hereby granted to the said Chesapeake Bay Bridge Co., its successors and assigns, and any corporation to which or any person to whom such rights, powers, and privileges may be sold, assigned, or transferred, or who shall acquire the same by mortgage foreclosure or otherwise, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise the same as fully as though conferred herein directly upon such corporation or person.

poration or person.

MISSOURI RIVER NEAR NIOBRARA, NEBR.

SEC. 12. That the times for the commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River at or near Niobrara, Nebr., authorized to be built by H. A. Rinder, his heirs, legal representatives, and assigns, by act of Congress approved May 22, 1928, and extended by act of Congress approved March 4, 1929, and further extended by act of Congress approved March 3, 1930, are hereby further extended one and three years, respectively, from May 22, 1933.

EAST BRANCH OF THE NIAGARA RIVER NEAR NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., AND TONAWANDA, N. Y.

SEC. 13. (a) That the consent of Congress is hereby granted to the Niagara Frontier Bridge Commission, a State commission, created by an act of the Legislature of the State of New York created by an act of the Legislature of the State of New York (ch. 594 of the Laws of 1929), as amended, its successors and assigns, to construct, maintain, and operate two toll bridges and approaches thereto across the east branch of the Niagara River, in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters," approved March 23, 1906, one such bridge to be located at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, from the city of Niagara Falls, in the county of Niagara and State of New York, at a point east of Evershed Avenue in said city of Niagara Falls, to Grand Island, in the county of Erie and State of New York, and the Island, in the county of Erie and State of New York, and the other such bridge to be located at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, from the town of Tonawanda about midway between the southerly city limits of the city of Tonawanda and the northerly city limits of the city of Buffalo to Grand Island, in the county of Erie and State of New York.

(b) That this act shall be null and void unless construction of each of such bridges is commenced within two years and completed within five years from the date of approval hereof.

(c) If tolls are charged for the use of such bridges, the rates of toll shall be so adjusted as to provide a fund sufficient to pay the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating such bridges and their approaches under economical management, and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to amortize the cost of such bridges and their approaches, including reasonable interest and bridges and their approaches, including reasonable interest and financing costs, as soon as possible under reasonable charges: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the payment of the reasonable cost of maintaining, repairing, and operating such bridges and their approaches from funds derived other than from such tolls. After a sinking fund sufficient for such amortization of the total cost of such bridges and their approaches shall have been so provided, such bridges shall thereafter be maintained and operated free of tolls, or the rates of tolls shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not tolis shall thereafter be so adjusted as to provide a fund of not to exceed the amount necessary for the proper maintenance, repair, and operation of such bridges and their approaches under economical management. An accurate record of the cost of such bridges and their approaches, the expenditures for maintaining, repairing, and operating the same, and of the daily tolls collected, shall be kept and shall be available for the information of all persons interested.

(d) That Public Acts Nos. 363 and 364 of the Seventy-first Congress and Public Acts Nos. 195 and 221 of the Seventy-second Congress be, and they are hereby, repealed.

HUDSON RIVER NEAR CATSKILL, N. Y.

SEC. 14. That the act entitled "An act granting the consent of Congress to the State of New York to construct, maintain, and operate a highway bridge across the Hudson River at or near Catskill, Greene County, N. Y.," approved June 5, 1930, as sup-plemented by the act of April 15, 1932, be, and the same is hereby, amended to read as follows:
"The consent of Congress is hereby granted to the State of

New York to construct, maintain, and operate, pursuant to chapter 548 of the Laws of the State of New York of 1932, as heretofore or hereafter amended, a highway bridge and approaches thereto across the Hudson River, at a point suitable to the interests of navigation, at or near Catskill, Greene County, New York, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled 'An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters,' approved March 23, 1906.

"SEC. 2. The consent hereby granted shall inure to the benefit of all successors in the ownership of said highway bridge and of all successors in the ownership of said highway bridge and approaches, or any part thereof.

"Szc. 3. The actual work of construction of said bridge shall be begun, in accordance with the plans therefor approved or to be approved by or under authority of the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War, within one year from the approval of this act, as amended, and such work shall be completed within three years from the date of such approval."

MISSISSIPPI RIVER AT ST. LOUIS, MO.

SEC. 15. That the time for completing the construction of approaches and also extensions or additions thereto of the municipal bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis, Mo., authorized to be built by the city of St. Louis, Mo., by an act of Congress approved June 25, 1906, and heretofore extended by acts of Congress approved February 11, 1918, June 14, 1920, February 13, 1924, January 26, 1927, and February 7, 1930, is hereby extended three years from June 25, 1933.

SEC. 16. The right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, I want the RECORD to show that the action of the Commerce Committee on this bill is based largely upon the inquiries and conclusions reported by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I refer to House Report No. 2181 of the present Congress, with the exception of section 10 as covered by that report, inasmuch as section 10 as originally written into the House bill is eliminated from the Senate bill. This omnibus bridge bill covers 12 or 13 bridge projects, of which at least 6 already have been passed by the Senate. All of the projects as covered in the bill are in due form and have the unanimous approval of the House committee and of the War Department. I was asked to introduce this omnibus measure by Representatives from the House, who have pointed out that it is the only parliamentary process by which this Congress can complete these various bridge permits prior to adjournment on this final day. I repeat that House Report No. 2181, with the exception of section 10. is made the basis of the recommendation by the Senate committee.

EMBARGO ON ARMS

Mr. SCHALL. Mr. President, I have here opinions in newspaper reports of some of the leaders of this body upon the question of embargo of arms which I have not noticed in the RECORD. I think they should be there, and therefore ask consent that they may be printed; and before this Congress comes to an end I wish to add my humble objections to the embargo question.

I quote from an interview published in the Washington Herald of February 28:

Senator Borah. To put an arms embargo on China and Japan is to take sides with Japan under conditions and circumstances

Senator Pittman. I do not mean to say I favor an embargo in this situation. That is for the President and not Congress to Senator Reed. The policy of neutrality, which this country has followed since its birth, is just as wise and necessary now as it was when first promulgated by Washington. We should not, under any circumstances, be drawn into this situation.

Senator George. It seems anomalous that the league should condemn Japan's action and then one of its own members levy an embargo against both Japan and China.

Mr. President, Great Britain has announced an embargo on war supplies against both China and Japan. France wants the United States to join Great Britain and France in closing the "open door" of China.

What is our duty in this Asiatic crisis? It is a crisis in the affairs of Asia, with four marching armies of Japan headed for Jehol and the great wall of China. It may turn out to be a crisis in world peace on the lines of the World War, the battlefield being from the Marne to Manchuria and Jehol.

This action of Great Britain and proposed action of France shows the same line of cleavage as in 1914-1918-Great Britain and France allied with Japan, the victim being China instead of Germany.

Of course, an embargo against the Orient at this time means only one thing from the viewpoint of the allied powers. Japan is prepared and China is unprepared. Japan has all the war munitions she requires, having bought over $100,000,000 worth, as revealed by our foreign commerce data, during the past 13 months.

In 1931 Japan bought 80 per cent of American export lead, and in 1932 something like 90 per cent of our export lead. That lead was intended for China.

In January, 1933, Japan buys 95 per cent of America's export lead, and the lead of the United States is now flying over Jehol.

Along with that lead shipped to Japan in the recent month of January, we shipped 4,000,000 pounds of copper for the

That, again, is not all. We shipped the cotton for making gun cotton and dynamite until Japan has become the world's largest buyer of American cotton.

That is not all. We shipped to Japan crude oil for her Diesel-engine battleships and motor trucks, fuel oil for armored cars, and gasoline for the bombing planes-until Japan during the past 13 months has become a larger buyer of American petroleum products than all the countries of Europe combined.

We have even shipped to Japan the tin plate, terne plate, and steel scrap for the helmets of Japan's marching troops, and the chemicals for the T. N. T.

Thus we have furnished Japan with everything Japan requires for turning out arms and ammunition at Japan's gun and munition factories. Not satisfied with that, our tariffprotected industrials have established branch factories in Japan and are turning out, with Japanese labor, motor Japanese battalions and bombing planes seem likely to require in perfecting the conquest of Manchuria and Jehol, if not the Republic of China itself.

For the United States at this juncture to declare an embargo against both China and Japan means plainly just one promulgated by the Comptroller of the Currency. Nothing herein shall be construed to impair any power otherwise possessed by the Comptroller of the Currency. Nothing herein shall be construed to impair any power otherwise possessed by the Comptroller of the Currency.

Nothing herein shall be construed to impair any power otherwise possessed by the Comptroller of the Currency. Nothing herein shall be construed to impair any power otherwise possessed by the Comptroller of the Currency.

That all powers herein conferred shall terminate six months from the approval of this joint resolution by the President of the United States, but he may extend the force of the provisions hereof by proclamation for an additional six months. trucks and all the war munitions and engines that the thing, and that is that this embargo applied now is an embargo against China.

We are asked by Great Britain and France to join them in closing China's "open door." What does that mean? It means that we are to lock up China behind closed doors until Japan has conquered an unprepared country and seized her best provinces.

Should we fall for the British-French demands we would become an ally of Japan, against all American tradition for neutrality, and against the plea of Washington and Jefferson to avoid foreign entanglements.

There is an economic phase of this crisis that can not be ignored in a time of world-wide depression, with 12,000,000 American unemployed and half the farmers of America going into bankruptcy.

We are trying to stabilize our two great agricultural staples-wheat and cotton. Well, while Japan during recent months has become the world's largest buyer of American cotton, China during the past two years has become the largest world buyer of American wheat and flour. China in 1931, pending the Shanghai campaign, multiplied her imports of American wheat and flour "eightfold," as the Commerce Department tells us, and led even the United Kingdom as a consumer of American breadstuffs.

Shall we now join Europe in closing China's "open door" and destroy the only market of promise that has shown itself abroad for the aid of bankrupt American wheat farms? The cause of the American farmer and the cause of world peace both tell this Congress to keep hands off the oriental issue. The cause of the "open door" of China is the cause likewise of American agriculture.

Let us inform Great Britain and France: We are not throwing out of the window the best present market of the American farmer simply because Great Britain and France hold their hundreds of millions of Japanese and Manchurian bonds.

REGULATION OF BANKING BUSINESS IN THE DISTRICT

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, from the Committee on the District of Columbia I report back favorably without amendment Senate Joint Resolution 261, authorizing the Comptroller of the Currency to prescribe regulations respecting the conduct of banking business in the District of Columbia, and I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I understand the joint resolution is reported unanimously by the committee.

Mr. COPELAND. All members of the committee who were present voted for it.

Mr. HALE. Will the Senator tell me whether this will take up much time?

Mr. COPELAND. Oh, no; I do not want it to take any

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the joint resolution?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 261), which was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency, whenever he is of the opinion that such action is necessary for the protection of the interests of the depositors and other creditors of any incorporated bank and/or trust company doing business in the District of Columbia, and that such action is in the public interest, is hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe such rules and regulations as he deems advisable governing the receipt and withdrawal of deposits by and from any such bank and trust company, which rules and regulations shall be binding upon said banks and trust

That it shall be lawful for any incorporated bank and trust company in said District to comply with such rules and regulations promulgated by the Comptroller of the Currency.

This resolution is hereby declared to be an emergency law, neces-ary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. BORAH. When are we going to have a morning

The VICE PRESIDENT. The morning hour is in order at this time unless unanimous consent is given otherwise.

Mr. ASHURST. Mr. President, I call for the regular

The VICE PRESIDENT. The regular order is demanded. The regular order is presentation of petitions and memorials. MAIL-CARRYING CONTRACT-LETTER FROM THE POSTMASTER GENERAL

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter from the Postmaster General to Senator Hugo L. BLACK with regard to the proposed mail-subsidy contract with the Philadelphia Mail Steamship Line.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MARCH 2, 1933.

Hon. Hugo L. Black, United States Senate.

MY DEAR SENATOR BLACK: Acknowledgment is made of the re-

My Dear Senator Black: Acknowledgment is made of the receipt of the following telegram, dated March 1, 1933, bearing your signature among that of other Senators:

"In the judgment of the undersigned Senators the proposed mail-subsidy contract with the Philadelphia Ship Building Co. should not be signed at this time. There is no emergency requiring such a signing. The public welfare would not be sacrificed by a reasonable postponement of the signing as there is no demand for its approval, save by those who desire the contract. We urge you to postpone the signing of this contract until it can be further looked into."

It is assumed that you have in mind the action to be taken be further looked into."

It is assumed that you have in mind the action to be taken by the Post Office Department with respect to proposals from the Southgate-Nelson Corporation and the Philadelphia Mail Line, respectively, under an advertisement issued by the department on February 7 last, pursuant to the provisions of the merchant marine act of 1928, inviting bids for ocean mail service (a) from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore to British and German ports and (b) from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Hampton Roads to Liverpool and Manchester. Since the record of the Senate proceedings indicates that many Senators have been under a misapprehension with respect to this matter. I take advantage of senate proceedings indicates that many senators have been under a misapprehension with respect to this matter, I take advantage of this opportunity to give you the facts upon which the department's course of action has been predicated.

The Government's policy of disposing as rapidly as possible of the few shipping services which are still operated by the Shipping

Board, and at the same time maintaining service on all essential trade routes, is well established. Congress has consistently approved this policy by authorizing the award of ocean mail contracts. Moreover, as recently as April 18, 1932, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries adopted a resolution which tracts. Moreover, as recently as April 18, 1932, the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries adopted a resolution which reads in part as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that the said existing trade routes and services are essential trade routes and services and should be maintained either by the Government or sold with award of mail contracts for private operation in accordance with the merchant marine act of 1920, as amended, and other laws governing such sale and awards."

In this connection, your attention is invited to the fact that the independent offices bill for the fiscal year 1934 carries an appropriation, which has had the approval of the Senate, for the express purpose of permitting the sale of Shipping Board lines with the award of mail contracts, reading as follows:

"Not to exceed $4,000,000 of the funds hereinbefore made available may be transferred to the Post Office Department and, when so transferred, shall be available only for meeting the cost in the fiscal year 1934 of foreign mail contracts entered into by that department under the provisions of the merchant marine act, 1928, approved May 22, 1928, for service upon steamship lines which may be sold by the United States Shipping Board subsequent to December 1, 1932." December 1, 1932.'

This provision clearly contemplates that the vendees of Shipping Board lines shall be awarded ocean mail contracts under the merchant marine act. The services which were in mind when this particular provision was under consideration were the lines operated from Gulf ports by the Lykes Bros.-Ripley Co. and the lines operated from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other Atlantic ports by the Southgate-Nelson Corporation. Accordingly, the Shipping Board, acting in anticipation of the approval of this legislation, has now negotiated the sale of these lines, subject to the award of appropriate mail contracts. The proposed contract with the Philadelphia Mail Line, to which you have made objection, covers a part of the service furnished by the line now operated by the Southgate-Nelson Corporation for the Shipping Board. The proposed contract, however, will provide 16-knot passenger and cargo This provision clearly contemplates that the vendees of Ship-service from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Hampton Roads, a service which the Southgate Co. is not in a position to undertake and which, in the judgment of the Interdepartmental Merchant Marine Committee and in the opinion of the business interests of Philadelphia, is indispensable to the ultimate success of this operation under private ownership.

The department has no disposition to act with undue haste in operation under private ownership.

The department has no disposition to act with undue haste in this matter, as you and your colleagues have apparently been informed. It has merely proceeded promptly after the necessary funds had been set up in the independent offices bill to take the various steps which are prerequisite to placing the lines in question in private hands, as is clearly contemplated by law.

A consummation of the contracts in accordance with the advertisements issued by the department covering the Gulf and Atlantic coast services herein described will not only permit the disposal of these services by the Shipping Board and their operation within the limits of the appropriations now available, including the $4,000,000 to be transferred to the Post Office Department from the Shipping Board for the fiscal year 1934, but will result in an annual saving to the Government of from half to three-quarters of a million dollars. So far as the Atlantic coast service as a whole is concerned, it will result also in substantially improved facilities by comparison with those now operated by the Shipping Board, including new or reconditioned vessels to be supplied by the operators at a cost of approximately $3,500,000.

However, notwithstanding it has been my desire to leave to my successor no major problem the responsibility for which should in fairness be accepted by myself, in view of the obvious desirability of a clear understanding of this matter in its entirety by the Senate prior to its consummation, and also in view of the possibility that the independent offices bill carrying the necessary funds for the next fiscal year may fail of passage at the present session of Congress, I have concluded to leave in abeyance for such action as the next administration may deem to be in the public interest both of the pending proposals for ocean mail service from Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other Atlantic ports.

Very truly yours,

Very truly yours,

WALTER F. BROWN.

GOVERNMENT GUARANTY OF BANK DEPOSITS

Mr. NEELY. Mr. President, I desire to read a telegram which I have just received from Charleston, W. Va., as follows:

CHARLESTON, W. VA., March 2, 1933.

Senator M. M. NEELY.

Senate Office Building: Our banks on morstorium will mean closing our mines, leaving 600 families destitute. Passing of bank-deposit guaranty by the Government urgently needed quick.

KELLYS CREEK COLLIERY Co., LESTER RIDENOUR.

I have similar telegrams from numerous other institutions in West Virginia, which I ask may be noted in the RECORD.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered

The telegrams were of a similar nature and signed as

W. A. Richards, Cleveland, Ohio; Conrad Brevick, Bluefield, W. Va.; D. T. Lowman, post commander Bluefield Post, No. 9, American Legion, Bluefield, W. Va.; Lester Ridenour, of Kellys Creek Colliery Co., of Charlestown, W. Va.; Coyle & Richardson (Inc.), Charleston, W. Va.; Peoples Store (Inc.), Charleston, W. Va.; W. B. Geary, president the Diamond Department Store, Charleston, W. Va.; Henry J. Stark, of the First National Bank of Ceredo, W. Va.; C. E. Furbeem, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Bruce T. Amos, Clarksburg, W. Va.; J. L. Stifel & Sons, Wheeling, W. Va.; George E. Bevans, Fairmont, W. Va.; Hetz Pownall, Moorefield, W. Va.; and Laurence E. Tierney, jr., Bluefield, W. Va.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Mr. DICKINSON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 7986) for the relief of William N. Fishburn, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1356) thereon.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill (S. 5667) authorizing the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to grant a permit for the construction of an oil and gasoline pipe line, reported it with amendments and submitted a report (No. 1357) thereon.

Mr. THOMAS of Oklahoma, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to which was referred the bill (S. 5507) providing for per capita payments to the Seminole Indians in Oklahoma from funds standing to their credit in the Treasury, reported it with an amendment and submitted a report (No. 1358) thereon.

Mr. CAPPER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the joint resolution (S. J.

Res. 258) to change the name of B Street SW., in the | District of Columbia, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1359) thereon,

Mr. NORRIS, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the bill (S. 5699) to amend the act of July 1, 1898, entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," as amended, reported it with amendments and submitted a report (No. 1360) thereon.

Mr. COPELAND, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill (S. 101) to provide for the discontinuance of the use as dwellings of buildings situated in alleys in the District of Columbia, and for the replatting and development of squares containing inhabited alleys, in the interest of public health, comfort, morals, safety, and welfare, and for other purposes, reported it with amendments and submitted a report (No. 1361) thereon.

Mr. CAREY, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred the bill (H. R. 2157) for the relief of Arthur I. Neville, reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1362) thereon.

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (S. 1703) for the relief of the Fred G. Clark Co., reported it without amendment and submitted a report (No. 1363) thereon.

Mr. LOGAN, from the Committee on Claims, to which was referred the bill (S. 2425) for the relief of Elizabeth Bolger, reported it with amendments and submitted a report (No. 1364) thereon.

TAX-EXEMPT INDIAN LANDS

Mr. STEIWER, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, submitted a report, pursuant to Senate Resolution 282, Seventy-first Congress, relative to an investigation of the relationship between the Federal Government and the governments of the several States and political subdivisions thereof in which there are located Indian reservations or unallotted Indian tribal lands, and other lands which are not subject to taxation by such States or political subdivisions, which was ordered to be printed as Report No. 1365.

BILLS AND A JOINT RESOLUTION INTRODUCED

Bills and a joint resolution were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. VANDENBERG:

A bill (S. 5701) to authorize the construction of certain bridges and to extend the times for commencing and/or completing the construction of other bridges over the navigable waters of the United States; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. NORBECK:

A bill (S. 5702) to prohibit the transportation in the mails, or in interstate commerce of machine guns or submachine guns; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. COPELAND:

A joint resolution (S. J. Res. 261) authorizing the Comptroller of the Currency to prescribe regulations respecting the conduct of banking business in the District of Columbia; to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON VETERANS' BENEFITS

Mr. WALSH. Mr. President, I introduce a joint resolution, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be read.

The joint resolution (S. J. Res. 262) to continue the Joint Committee on Veterans' Benefits, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That for the purpose of continuing the investigation with respect to the operation of laws and regulations relating to the relief of veterans authorized under section 701, part 2 of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal rear 1933, and to report the results of such investigation, those members of the joint committee to investigate the operation of the laws and regula-tions relating to the relief of veterans who are Members elect to the Seventy-third Congress, or a majority of them, after March 4, 1933, and until 60 days after the first meeting day of the Seventy-third Congress, are authorized and directed as a committee, by subcommittee or otherwise, to continue the investigation begun under authority of such section 701. Such committee shall have the same powers and duties as the committee provided for under such section 701.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. President, the present law fixes the time for filing the report as March 3. This joint resolution proposes to extend that time until 60 days after the beginning of the extra session of Congress.

I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the joint resolution.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution? The Chair hears none.

The joint resolution was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

STRENGTHENING OF THE BANKING SYSTEM

Mr. GORE. Mr. President, at the request of a prominent banker of my State, who is connected with the Federal reserve system, and others, I have prepared and I now introduce a joint resolution in relation to our banking system. It is designed to reassure depositors and to reinspire or restore confidence. In part it embodies my own views. I ask to have the joint resolution read.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the clerk will read.

The joint resolution (S. J. Res. 264) to strengthen the security of deposits in certain banks, and for other purposes, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved, etc., (A) That this act shall apply to all banks which are members of the Federal reserve system which for the purposes of this act shall be designated as active member banks.

(B) This act shall apply to State banks and banking associations which are eligible under existing law to become members of the Federal reserve system subject to the conditions herein prescribed, which banks, for the purposes of this act, shall be designated as associate member banks.

(C) Any bank described in the preceding paragraph which is otherwise qualified may, with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, become an associate member bank for a period of two years unless sooner terminated by the Comptroller without subscribing to the capital stock of the Federal reserve bank out subscribing to the capital stock of the rederal reserve bank in the district in which it is located upon agreeing to comply with all applicable provisions of the Federal reserve act, as amended: Provided, That the Comptroller of the Currency with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury may relieve such bank from compliance with the provisions of said act which are inapplicable or which are unnecessary for the purposes of this act. this act.

this act.

SEC. 2. The Comptroller of the Currency shall have power until the adjournment of the first session of the Seventy-third Congress to prescribe and enforce suitable rules and regulations, with the approval or upon the order of the President, to maintain or the congress to prescribe and enforce suitable rules and regulations.

strengthen the security of deposits in both active and associate member banks or any of them.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and any other agency or officer of the Government to aid in carrying out the rules and regulations made in pursuance of in carrying out the rules and regulations made in pursuance of this act and such executive orders and proclamations of the President as may be issued prior to the adjournment of the first session of the Seventy-third Congress to carry into effect the provisions and purposes of this act.

SEC. 4. The Government undertakes to indemnify the depositors of any bank complying with the provisions of this act against any losses which may be directly caused by or due to such compliance alone, and the Comptroller General is empowered to ascer-tain and determine finally the amount of such losses, if any, in

The VICE PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

BUST OF JOHANN WOLFGANG VON GOETHE

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I send to the desk a joint resolution, for which I ask immediate consideration. It involves the expenditure of no money.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Let it be reported.

The joint resolution (S. J. Res. 265) authorizing the acceptance by the United States of a bust of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe was read the first time by its title and the second time, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the President of the United States is hereby authorized to accept as a gift of the Goethe Society of America (Inc.) a bust of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe for erection on the public grounds of the United States in the city of Washington, D. C., on a site selected by the Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks of the National Capital with the approval of the National Commission of Fine Arts: Provided, That if no such site suitable for the purpose shall be found, the bust shall be accepted for display in the National Museum or such other appropriate location as may indicate an appreciation of the intellectual achievements and services of Goethe to mankind.

Mr. McNARY. Mr. President, has it been reported by a committee?

Mr. COPELAND. The Library Committee has read the resolution and has no objection to it. It costs no money. It is a presentation to the Government.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from New York if the members of the District Committee have approved of the site?

Mr. COPELAND. The site has not been selected.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED

The bill (H. R. 14579) to provide for the free importation of certain articles exported temporarily for scientific or educational purposes was read twice by its title and referred to the Committee on Finance.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14453) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes; that the House had receded from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 6 and 31 to the said bill, and concurred therein; that the House had receded from its disagreement to amendments of the Senate Nos. 29 and 30 to the said bill, and concurred therein, each with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills and joint resolutions, and they were signed by the Vice President:

S. 207. An act for the relief of James L. Pate;

S. 251. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the estate of Thomas Bird, deceased;

S. 256. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of Madrigal & Co., Manila, P. I.;

S. 257. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the Baltimore branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond:

S. 361. An act for the relief of Mary E. Stebbins;

S. 402. An act for the relief of Nelson King;

S. 610. An act for the relief of the Anderson-Tully Co.;

S. 855. An act for the relief of William Ray Taplin;

S. 1463. An act for the relief of William Powell;

S. 1738. An act for the relief of Catterina Pollino;

S. 2203. An act for the relief of John Pearce Cann;

S. 2374. An act to authorize and direct the Secretary of the Navy to convey by gift to the city of Savannah, Ga., the naval radio station, the buildings, and apparatus located upon land owned by said city;

S. 2393. An act to provide for the addition of the names of certain persons to the final roll of the Indians of the Flathead Indian Reservation, Mont., and for other purposes;

S. 2508. An act for the relief of Maj. O. S. McCleary, United States Army, retired;

S. 2680. An act for the relief of Harry E. Blomgren;

S. 3334. An act for the relief of William M. Sherman;

S. 3344. An act for the relief of Maggie Kirkland;

S. 3830. An act to remove a cloud on the title of certain land in the city of Corpus Christi, Tex.;

S. 3831. An act for the relief of William A. Lester;

S. 3832. An act for the relief of Zetta Lester:

S. 3972. An act for the relief of Alva D. McGuire, jr.;

S. 4082. An act to regulate the business of executing bonds for compensation in criminal cases and to improve the administration of justice in the District of Columbia;

S. 4230. An act for the relief of Betty McBride;

S. 4390. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to cancel patent in fee issued to Henry J. Kirn and Louise H. Kirn;

S. 4440. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of George H. Hansen;

S. 4441. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of the National Surety Co.;

S. 4510. An act to authorize exchange of small tribal acreage on the Fort Hall Indian School reserve in Idaho for adjoining land:

S. 4557. An act to authorize the addition of certain names to the final roll of the Sac and Fox Indians of Oklahoma:

S. 4738. An act for the relief of Newport Contracting & Engineering Co.:

S. 4782. An act authorizing adjustment of the claim of Arthur R. Saffran;

S. 4818. An act to authorize the transfer of certain lands in Bernalillo County, N. Mex., to the city of Albuquerque, N. Mex.

S. 4930. An act for the relief of Avery G. Constant;

S. 5085. An act for the relief of Leslie Jensen;

S. 5122. An act to provide for the purchase and sale of cotton under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture:

S. 5203. An act for the relief of the Harvey Canal Ship Yard & Machine Shop;

S. 5204. An act for the relief of the Texas Power & Light Co.;

S. 5205. An act for the relief of the Great Falls Meat Co., of Great Falls, Mont.;

S. 5207. An act for the relief of Rose Gillespie, Joseph Anton Dietz, and Manuel M. Wiseman, as trustee of the estate of Louis Wiseman, deceased:

S. 5208. An act for the relief of Mary Byrkett Sinks;

S. 5325. An act for the relief of Sadie L. Kirby;

S. 5413. An act for the relief of the Booth Fisheries Co.;

S. 5660. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell certain Government property in St. Louis, Mo.;

H. R. 11242. An act to relinquish the title of the United States in and to lands in Rapides Parish, State of Louisiana;

H. R. 11270. An act to amend section 2 of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, and for other purposes";

H. R. 12328. An act to authorize the assignment of awards entered by the Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany, the tripartite Claims Commission, and the War Claims Arbiter:

H. R. 12651. An act for the relief of the Uintah, White River, and Uncompandere Bands of Ute Indians of Utah, and for other purposes;

H. R. 14359. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto;

H. R. 14724. An act making appropriations for the Navy Department and the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes;

S. J. Res. 134. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Manob Suriya, a citizen of Siam;

S. J. Res. 178. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Julio Rodriguez Arrea, a citizen of Costa Rica; and

S. J. Res. 179. Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to receive for instruction at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, Tisheng Yen, a citizen of China

INDEPENDENT OFFICES APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. SMOOT. I send to the desk the report of the committee of conference on House bill 14458, the Independent Offices appropriation bill. It is a complete agreement and will not lead to any debate.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. It will not lead to any debate if my understanding is correct that the House has agreed to all the amendments of the Senate.

Mr. SMOOT. That is the case.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on certain amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14458) making appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 7, 8, 9, and 11, and agree to the same.

REED SMOOT,
HENRY W. KEYES,
FREDERICK HALE,
ROYAL S. COPELAND,
CARTER GLASS,
Managers on the part of the Senate.

C. A. Woodrum,
JNO. J. BOYLAN,
JOHN W. SUMMERS,
Managers on the part of the House.

The report was agreed to.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT—APPROVAL OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTION

Messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Latta, one of his secretaries, who announced that the President had approved and signed the following acts and joint resolution:

On March 1, 1933:

S. 4286. An act to authorize credit in the disbursing account of Donna M. Davis;

S. 4287. An act for the relief of Harold W. Merrin; and

S. 4008. An act to amend article 5 of the act of Congress approved June 7, 1897, relating to the approval of regulations for preventing collisions upon certain harbors, rivers, and inland waters of the United States.

On March 2, 1933:

S. 1752. An act to authorize an appropriation for the purchase of land in South Dakota for use as camp sites or rifle ranges for the National Guard of said State;

S. 5233. An act to provide for the protection of national military parks, national parks, battlefield sites, national monuments, and miscellaneous memorials under the control of the War Department;

S. 5445. An act to extend the times for commencing and completing the construction of a bridge across the Rio

Grande at or near Rio Grande City, Tex.;

S. 5469. An act to provide for the creation of the Morristown National Historical Park in the State of New Jersey, and for other purposes;

S. 5622. An act providing for an alternate budget for the Indian Service, fiscal year 1935;

S. 5675. An act to effect needed changes in the Navy

S. J. Res. 259. Joint resolution to amend the act entitled "An act to remove existing discriminations incident to certain land grants and to subject them to the same conditions that govern other land grants of their class," approved February 14, 1933.

On March 3, 1933:

S. 2654. An act to allow credit in connection with homestead entries to widows of persons who served in certain Indian wars;

S. 5417. An act to extend the operation of the act entitled, "An act for the temporary relief of water users on irrigation projects constructed and operated under the reclamation law," approved April 1, 1932; and

S. 5525. An act to extend temporary relief to water users on irrigation projects on Indian reservations, and for other purposes.

CONDITIONS OF INDIANS IN THE UNITED STATES (S. DOC. 214)

Mr. FRAZIER. Mr. President, the junior Senator from Utah [Mr. King] on February 8 presented a summary of the condition of the Indians, and an analyses of the problems of the Indians and of the Government's Indian Service, which has impressed me as being possibly more fundamental and comprehensive than any statement heretofore made on this subject. As chairman of the subcommittee of the Senate Indian Committee charged with the investigation of Indian matters, I am able to appreciate the accuracy of the statements of fact, and the soundness and helpfulness of the criticisms and generalizations of the Senator's speech. A new administration of the Interior Department will shortly begin, and the speech of the junior Senator from Utah is an impressive challenge to this new administration. In my judgment, the success or failure of the new administration in its Indian work will determine the future of many tribes for all time to come.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the speech of the junior Senator from Utah, together with certain supplementary data which he has brought together, be printed as a public document.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

INVESTIGATION OF PUBLIC-UTILITY CORPORATIONS

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, from the Committee on Interstate Commerce, I report back favorably without amendment the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 572) to provide for further investigation of certain public-utility corporations engaged in interstate commerce. The expenses of the investigation are to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the joint resolution.

There being no objection, the joint resolution was considered by unanimous consent, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That for the purpose of obtaining information necessary as a basis for legislation, those members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the Seventy-second Congress who are Members elect to the Seventy-third Congress, or a majority of them, after March 4, 1933, and until the organization of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the House of the Seventy-third Congress, are authorized, as a committee, by subcommittee or otherwise, to continue the investigation begun under authority of H. Res. 59 of the Seventy-second Congress.

Congress.

SEC. 2. For such purposes the committee is authorized to select a chairman, and the committee, or any subcommittee thereof, is authorized to sit and act at such times and places in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, to hold such hearings, to employ such experts and such clerical, stenographic, and other assistants, to require the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, and documents, to take such testimony, to have such printing and binding done, and to make such expenditures as it deems necessary, and oaths or affirmations may be administered by any member of the committee.

SEC. 3. Subpœnas shall be issued under the signature of the chairman and shall be served by any person designated by him. The provisions of sections 102, 103, and 104 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 2, secs. 192, 193, and 194) shall be applicable with respect to any person summoned as a witness under the authority of this resolution in the same manner as such provisions are applicable with respect to any person summoned as a witness in the case of an inquiry before a committee of the House of Representatives

SEC. 4. The expenses of the committee, not to exceed $50,000, shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House upon vouchers signed by the chairman and approved by the Committee on Accounts.

WILLIAM H. HOLMES

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 465) for the relief of William H. Holmes, which was, on page 1, line 10, after the word "Bureau," to insert a colon and the following proviso:

Provided, That as to any part thereof the payment of which has been secured by surety bond, credit is not to be granted.

Mr. REED. I move that the Senate disagree to the amendment of the House, ask a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The motion was agreed to; and the Vice President appointed Mr. Capper, Mr. Steiwer, and Mr. Trammell conferees on the part of the Senate.

SELECTION OF LANDS IN CALIFORNIA

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 5612) to provide for the selection of certain lands in the State of California for the use of the California State park system, which was, on page 2, line 21, to strike out all after the word "purposes," down to and including the word "out," on page 3, line 5.

Mr. JOHNSON. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

EXCHANGE OF LANDS WITH COLONIAL REALTY CO.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 5382) providing for an exchange of lands between the Colonial Realty Co. and the United States, and for other purposes. which were, on pages 2 and 3, to strike out all of sections 2 and 3; on page 3, line 22, to strike out "4" and insert "2"; and on page 4, line 2, after "manner," to strike out all down to and including "division," in line 4.

Mr. McNARY. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

RIGHT OF WAY AT ALAMEDA, CALIF.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 3443) to authorize the Secretary of War to grant a right of way to the Alameda Belt Line across the Benton Field Military Reservation, Alameda, Calif., which was, on page 2, line 6, after "States," to insert ": Provided further, That the right to compel the removal of said railroad tracks and appurtenances is hereby reserved in the Secretary of War, whenever he may determine the interests of the Government require, and which said removal is to be without expense to the Government, as a condition of this grant."

Mr. JOHNSON. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

LAND IN THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 5537) to convey certain land in the county of Los Angeles, State of California, which was, on page 3, line 12, to strike out all after "Treasury" down to and including "Congress," in line 16, and insert "of the United States as miscellaneous receipts."

Mr. JOHNSON. I move the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

HAMILTON GROUNDS

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 660) for the relief of Hamilton Grounds, which were, on page 1, line 5, after "to," to insert "be held by the Bureau of Indian Affairs as a trust fund to be administered for the benefit and support of "; page 1, lines 7 and 8, to strike out "$40 per month for the remainder of his life" and insert "$2,500"; and on page 1, line 10, after "the," where it occurs the first time, to insert "reservation adjoining the"

Mr. ASHURST. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

FRANCIS R. SANCHEZ

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 3592) confirming the claim of Francis R. Sanchez, and for other purposes, which was, on page 2, lines 5 and 6, to strike out "or is supposed to have had."

Mr. FLETCHER. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

PRICE HUFF

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the request of the House of Representatives for the return of the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff. Without objection, the Committee on Military Affairs will be discharged from the further consideration of the bill and it will be returned to the House of Representatives in compliance with its request.

W. H. HENDRICKSON

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2862) for the relief of W. H. Hendrickson, which was, on page 1, line 6, to strike out "$250" and insert "$175.

Mr. SMOOT. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

CONTRACTS FOR SALE OF TIMBER ON INDIAN LAND

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on House bill 6684, which was read, as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, UNITED STATES. March 1, 1933.

Resolved, That the House agree to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 9 to the bill (H. R. 6684) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to modify the terms of existing contracts for the sale of timber on Indian land when it is in the interest of the Indians so to do.

That the House agree to the amendment of the Senate numbered 8 to said bill, with an amendment, as follows:

In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment insert:

": And provided further, That hereafter no contract of sale of Indian timber on the Klamath Indian Reservation in Oregon shall be entered into without the consent of the said general council."

Mr. FRAZIER. I move that the Senate agree to the House amendment to Senate amendment numbered 8.

The motion was agreed to.

A. Y. MARTIN

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 4909) for the relief of A. Y. Martin, which were, to strike out the preamble; and to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert "That the Comptroller General of the United States is authorized and directed to settle and certify for payment to A. Y. Martin, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $980, as in full for services rendered as a de facto United States commissioner at Paducah, Ky., from December 8, 1930, to August 5, 1931."

Mr. BARKLEY. I move that the Senate agree to the House amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

HOLY FAMILY HOSPITAL, ST. IGNATIUS, MONT.

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2941) for the relief of the Holy Family Hospital, St. Ignatius, Mont., which was, on page 1, line 10, after "1931," to insert:

Provided, That no part of the amount appropriated in this act in excess of 10 per cent thereof shall be paid or delivered to or received by any agent or agents, attorney or attorneys, on account of services rendered in connection with said claim. It shall be unlawful for any agent or agents, attorney or attorneys, to exact, collect, withhold, or receive any sum of the amount appropriated in this act in excess of 10 per cent thereof on account of services rendered in connection with said claim, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $1,000.

Mr. WHEELER. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Montana.

The motion was agreed to.

AGNES M. ANGLE

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1067) for the relief of Agnes M. Angle, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the United States Employees' Compensation Commission is hereby authorized to consider and determine, in the same manner and to the same extent as if application for the benefits of the employees' compensation act had been made within the 1-year period required by sections 17 and 20 thereof, the claim of Agnes M. Angle on account of disability due to tuberculosis if contracted at Wichita, Kans., while employed in the service of the United States as a stenographer in the office of the United States Veterans' Bureau in 1921: Provided, That no benefit shall accrue prior to the enactment of this act.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Arkansas.

The motion was agreed to.

DAISY ANDERSON

The VICE PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1978) for the relief of Daisy Anderson, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause and to insert:

That the United States Employees' Compensation Commission is hereby authorized to consider and determine, in the same manner and to the same extent as if application for the benefits of the employees' compensation act had been made within the 1-year period required by sections 17 and 20 thereof, the claim of Daisy Anderson on account of disability due to tuberculosis if contracted while employed in the service of the United States as a nurse in the United States marine hospitals: Provided, That no benefit shall accrue prior to the enactment of this act.

Mr. SHEPPARD. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Texas.

The motion was agreed to.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE SENATOR WALSH OF MONTANA

Mr. WHEELER submitted the following resolution (S. Res. 380), which was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to:

Resolved, That the Secretary invite the Members elect of the House of Representatives to attend the funeral of Hon. Thomas J. Walsh in the Senate Chamber on Monday, March 6, at 10 a.m., and to appoint a committee to act with the committee of the Senate.

Resolved, That invitations be extended to the President of the United States and the members of the Cabinet, the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, the diplomatic corps (through the Secretary of State), the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy, the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps, and the Commandant of the Coast Guard to attend the funeral in the Senate Chamber.

SECOND DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of H. R. 14769, the second deficiency appropriation bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 14769) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and prior fiscal years, to provide supplemental appropriations for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1933, and June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I ask that the formal reading of the bill be dispensed with, that the bill be read for amendments, and that committee amendments be first considered.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered. The clerk will state the first amendment.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, under the heading "Title I—Legislative Branch," on page 2, after line 2, to insert:

SENATE

To pay William A. Folger for extra and expert services rendered the Committee on Pensions as assistant clerk to said committee by detail from the Bureau of Pensions, fiscal year 1933, $600.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 7, to insert:

For miscellaneous items, exclusive of labor, fiscal year 1933, $40,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 9, to insert:

For repairs, improvements, equipment, and supplies for Senate kitchens and restaurants, Capitol Building and Senate Office Building, including personal and other services, to be expended from the contingent fund of the Senate, under supervision of the Committee on Rules, United States Senate, fiscal year 1933, $13,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 15, to insert:

For expenses of inquiries and investigations ordered by the Senate, including compensation to stenographers of committees, at such rate as may be fixed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, but not exceeding 25 cents per hundred words, fiscal year 1933, $15,000: Provided, That except in the case of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation no part of this appropriation shall be expended for services, personal, professional, or otherwise, in excess of the rate of $3,600 per annum: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be expended for per diem and subsistence expenses except in accordance with the provisions of the subsistence expense act of 1926, approved June 3, 1926, as amended.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Architect of the Capitol," on page 5, after line 3, to insert:

Capitol Building: To enable the Architect of the Capitol to remove any of the statues from Statuary Hall and relocate same elsewhere in the Capitol in accordance with H. Con. Res. 47, including all personal and other expenses in connection therewith, to be expended under the Architect of the Capitol and to remain available until expended, fiscal year 1933, to remain available during the fiscal year 1934, $4,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 6, to insert:

Senate Office Building: To enable the Architect of the Capitol to provide furnishings and equipment for the First Street wing, Senate Office Building, $75,000, fiscal year 1933, to remain available until June 30, 1934; and the Architect of the Capitol is hereby authorized to enter into contracts in the open market, to make expenditures for material, supplies, equipment, technical and reference books, and instruments, accessories, advertising, travel expenses and subsistence therefor, and, without regard to section 35 of the public buildings act approved June 25, 1910, as amended, or the classification act of 1923, as amended, to employ all necessary personnel, including professional, architectural, and engineering, and other assistants. This appropriation shall be expended by the Architect of the Capitol under the direction of the Senate Office Building Commission and disbursed by the disbursing officer of the Interior Department;

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 6, after line 16, to insert:

For necessary labor, material, and equipment in making structural changes in offices and committee rooms in the old portion of the Senate Office Building, including cutting of doorways, installing of lavatories, enlarging space facilities of committee rooms, and overhauling, repairing, and reconditioning the electrical circuits of the legislative buzzer and signal system, fiscal year 1933, to remain available during the fiscal year 1934, $13,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Independent Establishments," on page 7, after line 1, to insert:

NATIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR AERONAUTICS

Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, 1929 and 1930: For an Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, 1929 and 1930: For an additional amount for a seaplane channel and equipment for the conduct of scientific research in aeronautics at the laboratories of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, including the same objects specified under this head in the second deficiency act, approved March 4, 1929 (U. S. C. p. 1698, sec. 151; act March 4, 1929, 45 Stat. p. 1627), $605.12.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Public Welfare," on page 11, after line 4, to insert:

Emergency relief: For an additional amount for the purpose of affording relief to residents of the District of Columbia who are unemployed or otherwise in distress because of the existing emergency, to be expended by the Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia, by loan, employment, and/or direct relief, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Board of Commissioners, and without regard to the provisions of any other law, payable from the revenues of the District of Columbia, $300,000, fiscal year 1933, to remain available until June 30, 1934: Provided, That not to exceed 8 per cent of such amount shall be available for administrative expenses including necessary personal services.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee whether there was any evidence before the committee showing the necessity for this fund?

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I have a letter from the commissioners which I will read. This is a memorandum addressed to me by Mr. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners and reading as follows:

WASHINGTON, February 28, 1933.

Washington, February 28, 1933.

Memorandum to Senator Hale:

This memorandum has to do with the request of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia submitted through the Budget Bureau to Congress for an additional deficiency appropriation of $300,000 for emergency relief in the District of Columbia covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933.

The District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, contained an appropriation of $350,000 for emergency relief. This appropriation was entirely expended by the early part of December, 1932. To tide over the period between this time and when the deficiency appropriation could be obtained from Congress, the commissioners asked for and received the sum of $100,000 from the community chest. That amount was expended by the middle of January, 1933. An appropriation of $625,000 in the urgent deficiency bill was not approved until January 30, 1933, and between the middle of January and that date the Commissioners of the District of Columbia found it necessary, in order to provide for relief in the District of Columbia, to use $25,000 of private funds and to postpone the payment of about $40,000 in grocery bills.

Having in mind that the appropriation of $350,000 and the community chest payment of $100,000 and the urgent deficiency item of $625,000 was available for emergency relief, making a total of $1,075,000, there remained unexpended of this total on February 11, 1933, $504,000. Between February 11, 1933, and June 30, 1933, there are 20 weeks. The estimated weekly expenditure required during the period is $40,000, or a total expenditure to be made between February 11, 1933, and June 30, 1933, of $800,000. Deducting the unexpended balance remaining on February 11, 1933, of $504,000 from the total sum required until June 30, 1933; namely, $800,000, leaves an additional amount of $296,000 yet to be appropriated if relief is to be provided in the District of Columbia at the weekly rate of $40,000 to and including June 30, 1933. It is on th the Budget Bureau approved, an additional appropriation of $300,000, which is now pending before your committee.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I will not ask the Senator to continue the reading.

Mr. HALE. Very well. I ask to insert the entire memorandum in the RECORD.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The remainder of the memorandum is as follows:

After a careful review of reports covering relief work in the District of Columbia to this date, and after careful consideration of conditions now obtaining in the District of Columbia, the Director of Public Welfare believes that the additional deficiency estimate of $300,000 is the lowest figure that could safely be appropriated to meet relief needs until the end of June, next, if extreme suffering in this city is to be relieved. The appropriation, of course, will be conserved as far as possible, and if it is at all possible to limit the expenditures to an amount less than that indicated, it is proposed by the language of the deficiency act that any unexpended balance shall be made available to supplement funds to be provided in the regular appropriation for the District of Columbia for the fiscal year 1934.

Relief is now being extended by the Board of Public Welfare

Relief is now being extended by the Board of Public Welfare to more than 8,000 families, and new applications are still being made at the rate of more than 300 per week. Present allowances for relief are inadequate, and no relief whatever is being extended to resident single men of the District of Columbia.

Transmitted herewith is a report dated February 11, 1933, submitted to the Director of Public Welfare by the Supervisor in Charge of Emergency Relief, a bureau of that board. The first sheet of that statement shows the total expenditures made during the period between August 1, 1932, when relief commenced, to February 11, 1933, and the purposes for which such expenditures were made, broken down into a number of items.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Board of Public Welfare for the District are firmly convinced that on the basis of existing conditions there is compelling and absolute necessity for the additional appropriation of $300,000, and they therefore most urgently request you to use every proper effort to have this item carried in the second deficiency bill for the fiscal year 1933 now pending before your committee.

L. H. REICHELDERFER,

President Board of Commissioners, District of Columbia.

Mr. George S. Wilson,

Director of Public Welfare, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: We submit herewith a financial report for the period August 1, 1932, to February 11, 1933, inclusive:

Direct relief expenditures:

On work pay roll	a $411, 246.39
Cash relief pay roll	5, 176. 11
Petty cash	1,647.54
Groceries, milk, rent, etc	106, 291, 16
Reserve for fuel	4, 764, 16
Compensation insurance
Reserve for compensation insurance.	3, 154, 08
		8 vices and expenses.

Pay roll Petty cash Furniture, stationery, and supplies	29, 830. 49 248. 17 6, 092. 30
Paper allotment	310.00

36, 480, 96

534, 125, 36

Total _

Expenditures for period February 5, 1933, to February 11, 1933, inclusive are made up as follows: Direct relief $31, 156.47 Services and expenses 534.76 Services and expenses_____

31, 691, 23

- The attached itemized report is made up as follows:

 1. Analysis of pay roll for direct relief.

 2. Analysis of cash advanced for direct-relief expenditures.

 3. Analysis of cash advanced for "services and expenditures." and expenses"
- 4. Analysis of cash advanced for "services and expenses."
 5. Analysis of purchases chargeable to "direct relief."
 6. Analysis of purchases chargeable to "services and expenses"
- account.

7. Statistical report.

	Previous reports	Week ending Feb. 11, 1933	Total
1. Pay rolls:		4.9100
Work under District of Columbia Com-		- X 311	1000
mittee	1$355,986.81	1 $26,227, 95	1$382,214.76
Work at headquarters	32, 364, 03	1, 667. 60	34, 031. 63
Cash relief	4, 890. 61	285. 50	5, 176. 11
	393, 241. 45	28, 181. 05	421, 422, 50
2. Cash advance:	100
Clothing.	.16
Heat and light Household equipment	2.00 11.95
Labor	50.96		1 22122
Loans	148, 25
Meal tickets			48.00
Moving.	90. 50		90. 50
Relief		105.66	1, 228. 17
Rent			67.00
Transportation	, 55		. 55
	1, 541. 88	105. 66	1, 647. 54
SERVICES AND EXPENSES	TO WATER		BUILDE
3. Pay rolls:	100 100 100	100000	MANTE
Administrative	29, 131, 74		29, 131, 74
Social-service exchange			698. 75
	29, 830, 49		29, 830, 49

* Includes $97,380.16 community chest funds divided as follows: _____ $92, 380. 16 Pay roll_____Compensation insurance____

	Previous reports	Week ending Feb. 11, 1933	Total
SERVICES AND EXPENSES—Continued	N. C.		in the second
4. Cash advance: Equipment. Freight. Gas and oil Ice. Stamps. Street-car tokens. Supplies. Telegrams. Telegrams. Trucking.	28. 82 1. 20 54. 43 3. 90 34. 73 , 76	$26.03	$5.0 26.0 28.8 1.2 144.4 3.9 34.7 .7 2.3 1.0
	132.14	116. 03	248. 1
WE HAVE OBLIGATED OURSELVES FOR THE FOL- LOWING 5. Direct relief:
Clothing Coal Electric lights Furniture Gas Groceries Meals Medicine Moving Rents Reserve for coal Water	1, 771. 18 2, 836. 40 1, 57 52. 28 112. 21 86, 252. 92 35. 35 88. 39 292. 55 11, 978. 55 4, 764. 16	12.18 7.14 2,838.73 8.42 3.29	1, 783. 3 2, 836. 4 8. 7 52. 2 112. 2 89, 091. 6 35. 3. 96. 8 292. 5 11, 978. 5 4, 764. 1 3. 2
	108, 185. 56	2, 869. 76	111, 055. 3
6. Services and expenses: Electric lights. Furniture and equipment Ice. Paper allotment Rent, typewriters and stands. Repairs (equipment) Repairs (equipment) Repairs (warehouse) Stamps. Stationery and supplies. Street-car tokens. Telephones.	87. 72 1, 508. 96 15. 30 310. 00 44. 00 27. 90 23. 00 672. 00 1, 984. 88 360. 00 889. 81	270. 00 148. 73	87. 7: 1, 568. 9: 15. 33 310. 0: 44. 0: 27. 9: 23. 0: 942. 0: 942. 0: 2, 133. 6: 360. 0: 889. 8:
	5, 983. 57	418.73	6, 402, 30
			570, 606. 32

	Open cases	Rejected	Total
On hand Feb. 4.	8, 092	7, 928	16, 020
Feb. 6 to 11: New applications Transfers	402 26	21 2	423 28
Total	8, 520	7, 951	16, 471
Reopened: Old	+75 +11	-75 -11
TotalClosed by caseworker	8, 606 -239	7, 865 +239	16, 471
On hand Feb. 11 Number of families under care. Number of families not visited.	8, 367	8, 104	16, 471 8, 022 345

Dod	CTAGO	clothing

	Received	Previous- ly issued	Week ending Feb. 11, 1933	On hand
Dresses	3, 719	3, 405	235	75
Rompers		12	0	(
Bath robes		10	0	(
Muslin gowns	96	96	0	(
Shirts.		2,062	37	38
Girls' bloomers		166	0	18
Pajamas	230	216	7	7
Heavy gowns		281	0	E
Boys' coats		28	0	0
Boys' and girls' underwear	4, 389	2, 322	530	1, 537
Girls' coats	1	1	0	(
Boys' suits		491	2	23
Men's sweaters		2, 265	830	275
Boys' stockings		3, 818	510	3, 957
Boys' hats	15	15	0	0
Boys' sweaters.	936	492	250	194
Boys' suits (washable)		154	0	0
Baby sweaters		166	0	28
Children's pajamas		4, 058	711	1, 511
Men's socks	15	15	0	1,011
Girls' slipsBoys' overalls	488	325	23	140
Men's jumpers	465	465	0	140
Men's overalls	2, 557	2, 374	183	0

Red Cross clothing-Continued

	Received	Previous- ly issued	Week ending Feb. 11, 1933	On band
Infants' hose	1,992	397	0	1, 595
Men's union suits	2, 510	2, 510	0	(
Women's hose	4, 534	3, 453	520	2, 933
Children's sleeping garments	659	241	170	248
Women's union suits	632	632	340	011
Women's bloomers	2,744	2, 093	040	311
Infants' shirtsBoys' knickers	548	548	0	0
Knitted scarfs	4	3	0	1
Mittens	58	56	2	i d
Knitted helmets	15	15	ō
Children's union suits	288	288	Ö	0
Boys' blouses	10	10	Ö	0
Boys' long trousers	274	236	38	0
Wool stockings	49	2	0	47
Play suits	36	36	0	0
Men's pajamas	65	63	0	2
Child's coat	1	1	0	0
Men's trousers	616	616	0	0 2 0 0 0 2
Child's knit cap	5	0	3	2
Nightgowns	10	10	0
Boys' shirts Clothes received from naval supply depot:	40	0	0	40
Drawers.	60	0	0	60
Gloves	52	0	ő	52
Jerseys	300	0	0	300
Jumpers	152	0	Ö	152
Overcoats.	338	o l	0	338
Shirts	36	0	0	36
Shoes (high)	188	0	Ö	188
Shoes (low)	40	0	0	40
Trousers	120	0	0	120
Undersuits	28	0	0	28
Clothes donated by District:	THE			3)110
Men's trousers	728	728	0	0
Men's coats	553	553	0	0
Men's overcoats	492	492	0	0
Clothes donated by Red Cross and reforma-		-		1 1 1 E
tory:	106	94	6	6
Men's shoespairs_	600	4	283	313
Donation by Army:	000	2	200	010
Blankets	25	25	0	0
Army cots	25	1	0	24
Distribution of coal purchased through	2000	15	3 40 7
Bureau of Mines:	H 1 (4 1)	BO E THE	00.000
White ash, chestnutpounds	168,000	20,720	20, 720	126, 560
White ash, stovedo	168,000	5, 600	3, 360	159,040
Bituminous, Pennsylvania eggdo	112,000	17, 920	33, 040	61, 64
Bituminous, Pocahontas stovedo	168,000	29, 680	48, 160	90, 160
Distribution of flour, turnips, and apples:	14-22-12-2	20070000	-	-
24½-pound bags Government flour	30, 545	17, 608	1,005	11,932
Turnips	2, 135	2,058	77	0
Apples	200	200	0	0

Respectfully submitted.

L. A. HALBERT, Supervisor Emergency Relief Division.

Table showing the number of families accepted for care and amount of relief given weekly, per family, from August 1, 1932, to February 4, 1933, by the emergency-relief division, Board of Public Welfare

	Open Amount spent		Weekly per family
Aug. 1, 1932, to Aug. 12, 1932	1. 330	$4, 867, 00	$3.66
Aug. 12, 1932, to Aug. 22, 1932	2, 765	6, 887. 21	2.49
Aug. 22, 1932, to Aug. 27, 1932	3, 530	24, 867, 95	7.04
Aug. 27, 1932, to Sept. 3, 1932	4, 075	22, 736, 32	5. 58
Sept. 3, 1932, to Sept. 10, 1932	3, 828	15, 458, 40	4.04
Sept. 10, 1932, to Sept. 17, 1932	3, 923	19, 885, 37	5, 07
Sept. 17, 1932, to Sept. 24, 1932	3, 740	18, 109, 60	4.84
Sept. 24, 1932, to Sept. 30, 1932	4, 178	12, 161. 99	2.91
Sept. 30, 1932, to Oct. 8, 1932	4, 181	12, 757. 97	3.05
Oct. 8, 1932, to Oct. 15, 1932	4, 517	15, 428. 28	3.41
Oct. 15, 1932, to Oct. 22, 1932	4, 692	11, 927, 68	2. 54
Oct. 22, 1932, to Oct. 29, 1932	5, 085	13, 074, 05	2. 57
Oct. 29, 1932, to Nov. 5, 1932	4,830	12, 385. 74	2.56
Nov. 5, 1932, to Nov. 12, 1932.	5, 079	15, 603. 91	3.07
Nov. 12, 1932, to Nov. 19, 1932	5, 409	22, 240, 21	4.07
Nov. 19, 1932, to Nov. 26, 1932	5, 655	21, 660. 30	3.83
Nov. 26, 1932, to Dec. 3, 1932.	5, 672	23, 267. 26	4.10
Dec. 3, 1932, to Dec. 10, 1932	5, 947	25, 115, 56	4. 22
Dec. 10, 1932, to Dec. 17, 1932	6, 016	26, 464, 35	4, 40
Dec. 17, 1932, to Dec. 24, 1932	6,038	29, 155. 89	4, 83
Dec. 24, 1932, to Dec. 31, 1932	5. 915	27,769.22	4.69
Dec. 31, 1932, to Jan. 7, 1933	6,036	23, 154, 61	3.84
Jan. 7, 1933, to Jan. 14, 1933.	6, 157	9, 317. 09	1.51
Jan. 14, 1933, to Jan. 21, 1933	6, 837	24, 936, 58	3, 65
Jan. 21, 1933, to Jan. 28, 1933	7, 214	31, 358, 49	4, 35
Jan. 28, 1933, to Feb. 4, 1933	7,746	27, 214, 02	3. 51
Total	130, 455	497, 805.06

The general average per family is approximately $3.81.

Note.—A study of the cases for January shows that about two-thirds of the open cases were actual relief cases. If we consider that two-thirds of the open cases indicated above were actual relief cases, then the average amount of relief per family that was received during the above period was $5.73 per week.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator when the $625,000 becomes available?

Mr. HALE. It will become available on the 1st of July.

Mr. KING. And this is to cover the interim?

Mr. HALE. It is.

Mr. KING. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was resumed. The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, under the subhead "Settlement of claims," on page 11, line 25, after the word "in," to insert "Senate Document No. 197 and," and, on page 12, line 2, after the word "Congress," to strike out "$113,139.89" and insert "$113,555.15," so as to read:

For the payment of claims approved by the commissioners under and in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled "An act authorizing the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to settle claims and suits against the District of Columbia," approved February 11, 1929 (45 Stat. 1160), as amended by the act approved June 5, 1930 (46 Stat. 500), and reported in Senate Document No. 197 and House Document No. 553, Seventy-second Congress, $113,555.15.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Judgments," on page 12, line 17, after the word "in," to insert "Senate Document No. 204 and," and, in line 18, after the word "Congress," to strike out "$77,983.73" and insert "$80.915.73," so as to read:

For the payment of final judgments, including costs, rendered against the District of Columbia, as set forth in Senate Document No. 204 and House Document No. 551, Seventy-second Congress, $80,915.73, together with the further sum to pay the interest at not exceeding 4 per cent per annum on such judgments, as provided by law, from the date the same became due until the date of payment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Department of the Interior, Bureau of Indian Affairs," on page 16, after line 21, to insert:

Sacaton, Ariz., Indian school building: For school building, including equipment, Sacaton, Ariz., fiscal years 1933 and 1934 (U. S. C., title 25, sec. 13), $65,000.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I should like to ask the chairman of the committee whether the appropriation found on page 16, lines 21 to 24, is authorized by any prior legislation?

Mr. HALE. It is authorized by a general act.

Mr. KING. Does the Senator think the situation now calls for entering upon this construction?

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, the building was burned down, and there ought to be some facilities with which to carry on. The committee considered the matter; they did not have any question about the merits of the appropriation.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 17, after line 20, to insert:

Claims of individual Sioux Indians: For payment to individual enrolled Indians or their heirs under the Pine Ridge, Standing Rock, Cheyenne River, and Rosebud Sioux Agencies in full settlement of their claims against the Government, as found due by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the act of May 3, 1928 (45 Stat., p. 484), and for payment of attorney fees in connection with the adjudication of such claims, as authorized by the act of February 16, 1933 (Public, No. 359, 72d Cong.), fiscal years 1933 and 1934 (act May 3, 1928, 45 Stat., p. 484), $19,357.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Bureau of Reclamation," on page 18, line 21, before the word "to." to strike out "$25,000" and insert "$40,000," so as to read:

Cooperative and general investigations: For an additional amount for cooperative and general investigations, $40,000, to be payable from the reclamation fund and to remain available until June 30, 1934.

Mr. SCHUYLER. Mr. President, yesterday had this item was prevented by a very sad event, I should have taken occasion to have made some rather extended remarks, not particularly germane to the amendment but to say some things which I thought would be appropriate, and very especially to pay a tribute to the memory of my late departed friend, the Hon. Charles W. Waterman, who was my predecessor here, and to discuss subjects of current interest in which he was interested. To-day, however, realizing that this is the last working day, I do not think it would be seemly for me to consume the time of the Senate with those remarks which I had contemplated making yesterday.

I mention the fact that I would have made and would make such remarks but for my consideration for the Senate's time to emphasize the importance which I attach to what appears to be a most innocuous item found in lines 19 to 21, on page 18, of the pending bill, and which I rise to challenge. Certainly if I would forego the opportunity to address the Senate on general subjects of interest, I would not rise here and consume the time of the Senate to discuss an item of $40,000, already approved by the Committee on Appropriations, if that were all that were involved. To do so when millions and hundreds of millions are the subject of consideration by the Senate, and at an hour such as this, would tend to convict one almost of lunacy. But there is much more to this item than appears upon the surface. It is described as being for "cooperative and general investigations," and provides:

For an additional amount for cooperative and general investigations, $40,000, to be payable from the reclamation fund and to remain available until June 30, 1934.

I understand at the moment, Mr. President, only the committee amendment is before us, but when it becomes in order I shall move to strike out lines 19 to 21, page 18.

Mr. President, this expenditure should challenge the attention of the Senate, not because of the $40,000 which is involved but because it is the opening wedge for the expenditure of $38,500,000 for the so-called all-American canal. Unless it is proposed to build the all-American canal at an expenditure of $38,000,000 it is idle to expend the $40,-000 proposed to be appropriated by this item. I take it that no man is going to excavate for the foundations for a house unless he proposes to build the house, and the question is, do we intend to go ahead, under the present economic and agricultural conditions of this country, with the construction of the all-American canal in Southern California?

This item as presented by the Budget, although so inadequately described as being intended for "cooperative and general investigations," is specifically defined as to its purpose, as follows:

Before final designs of the diversion dam, desilting works, and that portion of the all-American canal between the headworks and the Imperial Valley, can be prepared, certain fundamental data regarding the action of silt must be secured.

We are now asked to spend $40,000 to determine "the action of silt" as preparatory to the building of dams and diversion works for the so-called all-American canal.

What is the object of that canal? It was designed, of course, to supplement the great Boulder Dam construction and was planned at a time when the country was prosperous, and it was designed to add to the irrigable area of the Imperial Valley 500,000 acres of land. That valley already has under water a little over 600,000 acres of land, of which 200,000 acres are not being cultivated at all at the present time. Land there, I am advised, can now be bought fully equipped with water rights for less per acre than the cost of bringing the land under water by means of this all-American canal.

The situation when that canal was authorized was this: The Imperial Valley Irrigation District was a sound and going concern; its bonds were selling for 100 cents on the dollar; and the important feature was that the Government of the United States was to build only the all-American canal and the irrigation district was to build and equip that canal with laterals. The Imperial Valley Irrigation Disbeen reached and had the Senate been in the session which | trict to-day is bankrupt. It has $14,000,000 of bonds, principal and interest, in default. It has not a dollar with which to build a lateral, even though this canal were built. It is true that a contract has been entered into between the Government through its Reclamation Service and the Imperial Valley district, but that contract requires a year's time before it can be ratified by the Legislature of the State of California and before it can become effective, if in fact it is ratified.

Mr. President, what is the situation under which we are asked to spend $40,000 to determine the "action of silt" as preparatory to the construction of dams and diversion works? When the country is glutted with agricultural products, when we are talking of leasing some 30,000,000 acres of land for the purpose of removing that acreage from productive purposes, how can we justify even an approach to an expenditure leading to the construction of this great canal, which will make 500,000 additional acres susceptible of cultivation when the present acreage under water in the Imperial Valley is not being put to productive purposes, 200,000 acres of it fully equipped with water lying idle?

Moreover, what is the haste about spending this $40,000? It will be a year before the contract for the irrigation district can be made valid, and even if it then be authorized why in this day and age we should be spending $40,000 to investigate "the action of silt" as preparatory to a great irrigation project is inconceivable to me.

Mr. President, I seriously challenge the attention of the Senate to this item, because, as designed, it is nothing more nor less than the opening wedge under which it will be asked that the construction proceed because the Government is committed to it. I challenge attention to it because it is an absurd expenditure to make when there can be no solid reason for thinking that in any reasonable number of years we will be proceeding with the authorized expenditure of $38,000,000 for that canal. I challenge the attention of the Senate to it, because conditions have changed from the time when the plan was first designed. Then the Government was dealing with a solvent concern; now it is dealing in that irrigation district with a bankrupt concern. It was then designed that the irrigation district should build all the laterals: it is now impossible for the irrigation district to build a foot of laterals. When this plan was devised their bonds were selling at par; they are now selling, if at all, for 25 cents on the dollar; and they are in default, as I have said, both in principal and interest. Why should we enter upon the expenditure when that is the real status?

It is suggested to me that it is a small item. It is small on its face, comparatively inconsequential under the description "cooperative investigation," but important when one realizes the true object which lies back of the request, which is the starting of this work under the guise of de-termining "the action of silt," for which purpose $40,000 is proposed to be appropriated, and we will be led only to a doorway which I confidently predict will not be open for years to come, because there is no need for further irrigated land, and we should be trying to reduce and not increase reclamation. So, while it has seemed a small item, I have addressed the Senate earnestly upon the subject.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from Utah?

Mr. SCHUYLER. I yield.

Mr. KING. I suggest to the Senator that while it is inferred from the heading of the appropriation that this is to come from the reclamation fund, as a matter of fact the reclamation fund has a deficit. At the last session of Congress we had to borrow money for that fund, and we have a bill pending now to appropriate $5,000,000 in order to carry on the activities of the reclamation fund. This would mean that $40,000, if available, would have to come out of the Treasury. We would have to appropriate the money in order to add to the reclamation fund, and, if it is taken out, it would take that much from the prosecution and completion of enterprises which the Government now has entered upon, and which need considerable money for their completion.

I agree with the Senator. I think the whole item ought to be stricken out.

Mr. SCHUYLER. I thank the Senator for the suggestion. Mr. HALE. Mr. President, other Senators in the Chamber know far more than I do about the merits or demerits of the all-American canal project; but, as a matter of fact, the project has been approved by Congress, and the question simply remains of when it is to be taken up.

Before taking it up the committee considered that certain investigations would have to be made, and representatives of the department appeared before us and asked for $100,000 for that purpose. The House cut this down to $25,000 and the Senate added $15,000.

The evidence before the committee showed that the appropriation of $40,000 is to be used as follows:

Seven thousand five hundred dollars to determine the per cent of bed load carried by the river.

Fifteen thousand dollars to determine the quantity of material that would be brought down.

Two thousand five hundred dollars to determine the rates of settlement for different silt gradations carried by the river for the design of a desilting basin.

The $15,000 that appears in the Senate bill is for the purpose of determining the most efficient plan for disposal of desilted material. All of this information will have to be gone into before the canal is started; and it seemed to the committee that it would be a good plan to get this information beforehand, to enable Congress later to decide what it wanted to do about going ahead with the project.

Mr. SCHUYLER. Mr. President, I understand, of course, that Congress authorized this all-American canal. I mentioned that because I wanted to point out that at the time it was authorized conditions were such that we thought in this country there could be no overproduction of anything; and so, in the heyday of that thought, this, as an incident to the great Boulder Dam construction, was authorized. Conditions, however, have wholly changed. There has been no construction started upon this canal. This is the opening wedge to that construction, as witness this statement in the Budget estimate:

With this investigation-

That is, the investigation of siltall of the necessary investigations preliminary to the preparation of designs and the initiation of construction will have been

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from Arizona?

Mr. SCHUYLER. I yield.

Mr. HAYDEN. The Senator is aware that Congress now is appropriating money for the construction of a great dam at Boulder Canyon to impound the waters of the Colorado

Mr. SCHUYLER. Oh, yes.

Mr. HAYDEN. The Senator is aware that under the action taken by Congress-which I think all will agree I heartily opposed—a great power plant will be erected at that dam, and that the only way in which power can be generated is to release water from the dam. It means that the flow of the Colorado River will be equated and will come down the stream from the dam to be used somewhere. Then, since the dam is to be built, since the power is to be generated by the use of the water, since there will be a regular and continuous flow of water, the sole question remaining is, Where will that water be used? If it is not used in the United States, it will be used in Mexico. There should be and there must be, to make use of the water, canals constructed in California and in Arizona to use the water from the Boulder Canyon Dam. Otherwise, there is a million acres of land in old Mexico that will be placed in cultivation, and will grow crops to compete with the crops grown by American farmers.

Personally, I objected, at the time the Boulder Canyon act was passed, to the authorization of the construction of a canal in California to use part of the water from the reservoir to be created by the Hoover Dam and to make no provision for the use of the remainder of the water which would go to Mexico; but I am satisfied that Congress in due time will be made thoroughly to understand that all of the water impounded in the Colorado River should be used in the United States, except such quantities as are necessary to irrigate the lands now in cultivation in Mexico.

We can prevent increase in the irrigated and cultivated area in Mexico by using the water in the United States. If we expect to take the water out of the river, we will be met with the problem of the great burden of silt that it carries, whether the water is used in Arizona or in California. This experiment, therefore, is essential to know what kind of diversion works to construct in order to take the water out either in California or in Arizona.

The Colorado River carries more silt than almost any other stream where records have been made. As high as 27 per cent of mud is found in the water. The normal rate is over 20 per cent of silt. If that silt is not taken out by desilting works of some kind, it adds immense expense to the farmers who use the water below, because their canals will fill up with the silt. I think one of the heaviest burdens now in the Imperial irrigation district is the desilting of their laterals. I, therefore, could see no harm in having an experiment made to determine what to do.

The last $15,000 is to determine this particular problem. I think anyone will agree that it will be entirely proper to construct basins below a diversion dam into which the water could flow, and by checking the flow the silt will be deposited. When one basin is filled, the water could be taken into another basin and the unused basin sluiced out. It means a very heavy load of silt dumped back into the original stream bed, the flow of which has been diminished by the amount of water diverted into the canal. How to handle that silt is the particular problem for which this $150,000 is to be expended.

Mr. SCHUYLER. Mr. President, I appreciate the remarks of the able Senator; but it seems to me they depart far from the real point that is at issue at the present time with reference to the authorization of this expenditure.

I apprehend no danger whatever as a matter of priority of use between the United States and Mexico, because we have already done those things which tend to constitute the initiation of appropriation, which, if in reasonable times succeeded with effort, will fasten our rights superior to anything yet undertaken in Mexico; but that is all immaterial, if I may say so.

Mr. HAYDEN. No; it is not immaterial. It is a very material point. I should like to have the Senator state just what we have done to initiate those rights.

Mr. SCHUYLER. I find the record full of evidence that the surveys have been made, and the plans for dams have been prepared, according to this very statement:

With this investigation, all of the necessary investigations preliminary to the preparation of designs and the initiation of construction will have been completed.

There have been a great many things done with reference to it.

Mr. HAYDEN. The Senator is aware, though, that Mexico has exactly the same law with respect to the beneficial use of water that we have. In fact, the law that now applies in Arizona and New Mexico and Colorado came from the fact that our States once were a part of Mexico, and we followed the Spanish law. That law, as I understand, not only requires due notice to be given of an appropriation, but that there shall be a continuous effort to carry it out.

If what the Senator is to-day advocating takes place, and the Senate strikes out of this bill any reference at all to the matter, and if conditions do not change, as he suggests they will not, and nothing further is done, will it not lay the foundation, and a sound foundation, for a Mexican claim that we have abandoned our intention to use this water?

Mr. SCHUYLER. If the Senator will permit me, I do not think so; but if the Senator gets the point of view which I think is involved here, we are discussing the question of the determination of the action of silt leading up to the construction of irrigation works, which there is no assurance we will ever build, because at this moment no contract has been ratified by the State of California, and it will be a year before that can be done. They may not ratify it at all. This all-American canal was contemplated on the basis of a contract under which the Imperial irrigation district would build the laterals. They are a bankrupt concern. They may never be able to build the laterals. If so, and the Government builds the canal, who is going to build the laterals? Who is going to make the canal useful?

But, beyond that, upon the point of the technicality of priority of rights, in which I differ with the Senator, I say from a large experience with irrigation problems in Colorado that what I understand has been done on the Colorado would tide us well over until we get to a point where this irrigation contract is confirmed, if it is, by the California Legislature, and until we get to a point to see if the Imperial Valley Irrigation District can carry out its good-faith contract with the Government of the United States and build the laterals. Why investigate silt during the coming year?

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, will the Senator agree with me, though, that inevitably there must be a complete use of the impounded waters behind the Hoover Dam within the United States if we are to obtain the full benefit of that construction? Can there be any other way of our making the highest use of that development? If not, is it not equally certain that water will flow down the stream and that it will be put to use in Mexico?

Mr. SCHUYLER. Possibly so; but the Boulder Dam has a great advantage, quite apart from whether or not the water below is fully utilized and from what the Senator refers to as the highest advantage, which I conceive to be a very valuable thing. It regulates that stream and prevents the terrible floods which heretofore have characterized the Imperial Valley. That much is accomplished anyhow. What I wish to suggest to the Senator is the inadvisability of the expenditure of this money before there is any assurance that there ever will be an all-American canal.

The Senator says that he thinks that we want to conserve those waters for the United States. That is an economic problem. There are in the Imperial Valley, under water, 605,000 acres, 200,000 acres of which are not being irrigated. These 200,000 acres can be bought to-day per acre for less than the cost per acre of the construction of this canal, which is designed to bring in another half-million acres to add to the overproduction.

Mr. HAYDEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. SCHUYLER. I yield.

Mr. HAYDEN. If the Senator is of the opinion that economic conditions in the United States are to be no better than they are now, he should go the full length and oppose any appropriation for the continuation of construction on the Hoover Dam itself.

Mr. SCHUYLER. Oh, no! The Hoover Dam has many valuable features besides irrigation projects.

Mr. HAYDEN. It has one supreme value, and that is for the generation of power. Power can not be generated without the release of the water. When the water is released it is going to be used either in the United States or in Mexico.

Mr. SCHUYLER. And will flow down under a controlled basis, and not be wasted in floods.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SCHUYLER. I yield.

Mr. KING. I suggest to the Senator from Arizona that the Hoover Dam is expected not only to furnish power but to furnish water for the metropolitan district of Los Angeles, which will require an enormous amount for the irrigation of that magnificent domain, and at the same time to furnish water for culinary purposes. At any rate, it will take the place of water which is now being used for culinary purposes and for irrigation purposes, and will be used for irrigation purposes in that magnificent valley. So that it will serve two important purposes.

Mr. HAYDEN. Nevertheless, the quantity of water flowing in the Colorado River is sufficient to irrigate a very large area of land in the Imperial Valley, to irrigate another considerable area in the State of Arizona, and to furnish this domestic water supply to which the Senator refers.

If applied in those three ways, all the impounded water can be used, and none of it may go into Mexico and serve as the basis for acquisition of a prior right for its use in that Republic. Therefore I am concerned in seeing that the necessary preliminary steps are taken. What we hope, speaking from the Arizona point of view, is this, for a supplemental agreement with the State of California at an early date whereby there will be an equitable division of the waters of the Colorado River allotted to the lower basin between Arizona and California. When that is done the State of Arizona will stand here, as it always has, insisting that the water be placed to beneficial use within the States, rather than allowing it to go to Mexico to increase cultivation there

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the Imperial Valley has a claim which may not be successfully challenged by Mexico, or by any State or organization higher up on the river. It has appropriated water sufficient for the irrigation of approximately 600,000 acres-that is to say, it has initiated a right for at least that amount—although only about 400,000 acres have been irrigated, as stated by the Senator from Colorado.

Having that right probably fully established in our domestic courts, as well as any international tribunal to which it might be referred, it seems to me that we are not so much concerned in regard to the claim of Mexico. Moreover, the State of Colorado, the State of Utah, and the State of Wyoming have initiated rights in and to the waters of the Colorado River, and the Republic of Mexico may not, by any attempted appropriation upon its part, deprive those sovereign States of the rights which they have initiated. Those rights will be perfected; so that a large part of the waters of the Colorado River, the Grand River, and the Green River, consolidated into the Colorado River, and other tributaries lower down, will be used in the upper States, and a large part of the water will be withheld and not flow down to the Boulder Dam, and of course will not flow down to Mexico.

I think that the rights of the sovereign States referred to, and of California, and of the Imperial Valley, have been sufficiently legalized, if I may use that expression, that Mexico will have no greater right in and to the waters of the Colorado River, other than those which are now used across the line, largely on land owned by some Americans living in the southern part of California.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "National Park Service," on page 19, line 17, after the words "in all," to strike out "$70,000" and insert "$80,000," so as to read:

Proposed Shenandoah National Park, Va.: For administration, Proposed Shenandoan National Park, Va.: For administration, protection, and maintenance, including fire prevention, and including not exceeding $2,500 for the purchase (not to exceed $750 for any vehicle), maintenance, operation, and repair of motor-driven passenger-carrying vehicles for the use of the superintendent and employees in connection with general park work; construction of physical improvements, including the construction of buildings and the alteration and improvement of old buildings; in all, $80,000, to remain available until June 30, 1934.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Department of Justice, United States courts," on page 21, line 10, after the figures "1932," to strike out "$21,980.59" and insert "$23,901.37," so as to read:

Fees of commissioners: For additional amounts for fees of commissioners, United States courts, including the same objects specified under this head in the acts making appropriations for the Department of Justice for the following fiscal years:

For 1930, $3.45; For 1931, $1,236.90; For 1932, $23,901.37.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 21, line 16, after the word "For," to strike out "an additional amount" and insert "additional amounts"; and in line 20, after the figures "1931," to strike out "$153.68" and insert "$176.52, fiscal year 1932, $3.93," so as to read:

Supplies: For additional amounts for supplies for United States courts, including the same objects specified under this head in the act making appropriations for the Department of Justice for the fiscal year 1931, $176.52, fiscal year 1932, $3.93.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Department of State," on page 23, after line 18, to insert:

Convention relating to liquor traffic in Africa: To meet the share of the United States in the expenses for the calendar year 1933 of the Central International Office, created under article 7 of the convention of September 10, 1919, relating to the liquor traffic in Africa (convention of September 10, 1919, 46 Stat. pt. 2, p. 2199; act February 23, 1931, 46 Stat., p. 1320), $55.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 24, to insert:

Payment to Government of Mexico: For payment to the Government of Mexico as authorized by Public Act No. 374, approved February 25, 1933, the sum of $15,000 for the account of the family of Emilio Cortez Rubio and the sum of $15,000 for the account of the family of Manuel Gomez, for the killing in or near Ardmore, Okla., on June 7, 1931, of Emilio Cortez Rubio and Manuel Gomez by two deputy sheriffs of the State of Oklahoma (act February 25, 1933, Public, No. 374); in all, $30,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 24, after line 9, to insert:

International monetary and economic conference: For the expenses of participation by the United States in an international monetary and economic conference to be held in London, and for each and every purpose connected therewith, including traveling expenses; personal services in the District of Columbia and elsewhere, without reference to the classification act of 1923, as amended; stenographic and other services by contract is deemed necessary, without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 5); rent; purchase of necessary books and documents; printing and binding; official cards; entertainment; hire, maintenance, and operation of motor-propelled passenger-carrying vehicles; and such other expenses as may be authorized by the Secretary of State, fiscal year 1933, to remain available during the fiscal year 1934, $150,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Treasury Department, Bureau of Internal Revenue," on page 25, line 13, after the word "each," to insert a colon and the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That no refund in excess of $20,000 shall be paid until the determination by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of the overpayment has been transmitted to and approved by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, under such rules as it may prescribe; and the commissioner shall disallow the part thereof not so approved.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "War Department-Military activities: Quartermaster Corps," at the top of page 32, to insert:

Acquisition of land, Camp Bullis, Tex.: For an additional amount Acquisition of land, Camp Bullis, Tex.: For an additional amount for completing the acquisition of land at Camp Bullis, Tex., under condemnation proceedings as authorized by the acts approved January 12, 1929 (45 Stat. 1073), and February 28, 1933 (H. R. 12769, 72d Cong.), fiscal year 1933, $6,400, together with such additional sum as may be necessary to pay interest at the rate stipulated and in accordance with the judgments rendered in condemnations to date of payment, to remain available until expended, $8,400.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 32, after line 10, to insert:

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT

Ordnance service and supplies, Army: The amount of the appropriation "Ordnance service and supplies, Army," for the fiscal year 1933, available for necessary traveling expenses, is hereby increased from $26,981 to $41,981.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "War Department-Nonmilitary activities: Quartermaster Corps," on page 33, line 6, after the name "California," to strike out "$20,000" and insert "$30,000," so as to read:

Cemeterial expenses: For an additional amount for the development of areas D and E to provide for extension of the National Cemetery, San Francisco, Calif., $30,000, to remain available until June 30, 1934.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the heading "Title II-Judgments and authorized claims; damage claims," on page 33, line 19, after the name "Senate," to strike out "Document Numbered 168" and insert "Documents Numbered 168, 199, and 205"; on page 34, line 2, after the name "Department of Justice," to strike out "$866.30" and insert "$1,449.31"; on the same page, line 4, after the name "Navy Department," to strike out "$846.26" and insert "$996.26"; on the same page, line 6, to strike out "$4,285.33" and insert "$5,196.31"; on the same page, line 7, after the name "Treasury Department," to strike out "$952.81" and insert "$1,061.66"; and on the same page, line 9, after the words "in all," to strike out "$9,325.30" and insert "$11,078.14," so as to read:

SECTION 1. For the payment of claims for damages to or losses of privately owned property adjusted and determined by the following respective departments and independent establishments under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to provide for a method for the settlement of claims arising against the Government of the United States in sums not exceeding $1,000 in any one case," approved December 28, 1922 (U. S. C., title 31, secs. 215–217), as fully set forth in Senate Documents Nos. 168, 199, and 205, and House Documents Nos. 502, 547, and 554, Seventy-second Congress, as follows:

Department of Agriculture, $1,590.03; Department of Commerce, $283.90; Department of the Interior, $67.85; Department of Justice, $1,449.31; Department of Labor, $208.17; Navy Department, $996.26; Navy Department, $995.26; Post Office Department (out of the postal revenues), $5,196.31; Treasury Department, $1,061.66; War Department, $204.65; In all, $11,078.14.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead, "Judgments, United States Courts," on page 34, line 18, after the word "in," to insert "Senate Document No. 200, and"; in line 19, after the word "following," to strike out "department" and insert "departments"; and after line 20, to insert "Department of Commerce, $60,738," so as to read:

SEC. 2. For payment of the final judgments and decrees, including costs of suits, which have been rendered under the provisions of the act of March 3, 1887, entitled "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," as amended by the Judicial Code, approved March 3, 1911 (U. S. C., title 28, sec. 41, par. 20; sec. 258; secs. 761-765), certified to the Seventy-second Congress in Senate Document No. 200, and House Document No. 544, under the following departments, namely: namely

Department of Commerce, $60,738:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 34, line 22, after the figures "$10,383.16," to insert a semicolon and "in all $71,121.16," so as to read:

War Department, $10,383.16; in all, $71,121.16, together with such additional sum as may be necessary to pay interest on the respective judgments at the rate of 4 per cent per annum from the date thereof until the time this appropriation is made.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 35, after line 2, to insert:

For the payment of judgments, including costs of suits, rendered against the Government of the United States by United States district courts under the provisions of an act entitled "An act authorizing suits against the United States in admiralty for damages caused by and salvage services rendered to public vessels belonging to the United States, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1925 (U. S. C., title 46, secs. 781-789), certified to the Seventy-second Congress in Senate Document No. 200, under the following departments, namely:

Navy Department, $1,918.06;
War Department, $52,107.97; in all, $54,026.03, together with such additional sum as may be necessary to pay interest on any such judgment where specified therein and at the rate provided by law by law.

For the payment of a judgment rendered against the Government by the United States District Court, Middle District of Alabama, northern division, under the provisions of the act of Congress, approved February 26, 1931 (46 Stat. 1421), and certified to the Seventy-second Congress in Senate Document No. 202, under the War Department, $4,000, together with such additional sum as may be necessary to pay interest in accordance with the terms of said judgment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Judgments, Court of Claims," on page 36, line 13, after the word "in," to insert "Senate Document Numbered 201 and"; on the same page, line 16, after the name "Department of Agriculture," to strike out "$464.10" and insert "$26,171.25"; on the same page, line 17, after the name "Navy Department," to strike out "$21,259.59" and insert "$27,420.79"; on the same page, line 19, after the name "War Department," to strike out "$253,877.53; in all, $277,908.12" and insert "$260,514.03; in all, $316,412.97," so as to read:

SEC. 3. For payment of the judgments rendered by the Court of Claims and reported to the Seventy-second Congress, in Senate Document No. 201 and House Document No. 546, under the following departments, namely:

Department of Agriculture, $26,171.25;

Navy Department, $27,420.79; Treasury Department, $2,306.90; War Department, $260,514.03; in all, $316,412.97, together with such additional sum as may be necessary to pay interest on certain of the judgments as and where specified in such judgments.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 40, after line 13, to insert:

AUDITED CLAIMS

AUDITED CLAIMS

SEC. 5. For the payment of the following claims, certified to be due by the General Accounting Office under appropriations the balances of which have been carried to the surplus fund under the provisions of section 5 of the act of June 20, 1874 (U. S. C., title 31, sec. 713), and under appropriations heretofore treated as permanent, being for the service of the fiscal year 1930 and prior years, unless otherwise stated, and which have been certified to Congress under section 2 of the act of July 7, 1884 (U. S. C., title 5, sec. 266), as fully set forth in Senate Document No. 203, Seventy-second Congress, there is appropriated as follows:

LEGISLATIVE ESTABLISHMENT

For public printing and binding, Government Printing Office,

INDEPENDENT OFFICES

For salaries and expenses, Federal Board for Vocational Education, 50 cents.

For medical and hospital services, Veterans' Bureau, $17,226.40. For salaries and expenses, Veterans' Bureau, $25.96. For Army pensions, $120.71.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

For general expenses, public parks, District of Columbia, $460.25. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

For salaries and expenses, Weather Bureau, $101.64. For salaries and expenses, Bureau of Animal Industry, $34.33. For general expenses, Forest Service, $15.70.

For salaries and expenses, Forest Service, $12.57.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

For export industries, Department of Commerce, $7.20.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

For relieving distress and prevention, etc., of disease among Indians, $1,079.43.

For conservation of health among Indians, $919.57.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

For books for judicial officers, $436.95.

For salaries, fees, and expenses of marshals, United States courts, $959.39.

For salaries and expenses of district attorneys, United States courts, $1.25.

For salaries and expenses of clerks, United States courts, 65

For fees of jurors and witnesses, United States courts, $36.70. For support of United States prisoners, $5.50.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR For salaries and expenses, commissioners of conciliation, $2.

NAVY DEPARTMENT

For pay, miscellaneous, $90.95. For transportation, Bureau of Navigation, $57.75.

For organizing the Naval Reserve, $7.76.
For engineering, Bureau of Steam Engineering, $9.44.
For pay, subsistence, and transportation, Navy, $705.13.
For pay of the Navy, $2.052.77.
For aviation, Navy, $5,000.
For pay, Marine Corps, $206.25.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT-POSTAL SERVICE

(Out of the postal revenues)

For balances due foreign countries, $905.20. For indemnities, domestic mail, $2. For rent, light, and fuel, $2.070.84. For separating mails, $72.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

For allowance for clerks at consulates, $86.58.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

For increase of compensation, Treasury Department, $10.
For enforcement of narcotic and national prohibition acts, internal revenue, $100.98.

For collecting the internal revenue, $23.45

For Coast Guard, $534.42.
For contingent expenses, Coast Guard, 72 cents.
For pay and allowances, Coast Guard, $5.52.
For operating force for public buildings, $42.
For marine hospital, Carville, La., $193.84.

WAR DEPARTMENT

For Organized Reserves, $34.99.
For Reserve Officers' Training Corps, $100.80.
For increase of compensation, Military Establishment, $1,323.69.
For pay and traveling and general expenses of the Army, $10.48.
For pay of the Army, $6,826.44.
For Army transportation, $596.92.

For clothing and equipage, $62.77. For pay, and so forth, of the Army, war with Spain, $11.68. For general appropriations, Quartermaster Corps, $1,588.42.

For subsistence of the Army, $30. For supplies, services, and transportation, Quartermaster Corps, $4,429.79.

For armament of fortifications, $15,252.23.
For replacing ordnance and ordnance stores, $74.56.
For arming, equipping, and training the National Guard For ar $1,547.59.

For pay of National Guard for armory drills, $48.43. For disposition of remains of officers, soldiers, and civil employees, $10.

For monument, Kill Devil Hill, Kitty Hawk, N. C., $1,500.

Total, audited claims, section 5, $90,323.01, together with such additional sum due to increases in rates of exchange as may be necessary to pay claims in the foreign currency as specified in certain of the settlements of the General Accounting Office.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 45, to insert:

Sec. 6. For payment of interest on amounts withheld from claimants by the Comptroller General of the United States, act of March 3, 1875, as allowed by the General Accounting Office, and certified to the Seventy-second Congress, second session, in Senate Document No. 198, under the Treasury Department, $22,943.61 and under the War Department $736.21, together with such additional amount as may be necessary to pay interest on one of the claims set forth in that document.

Payment of judgments against collectors of customs: For the payment of a claim allowed by the General Accounting Office covering a judgment rendered by a United States district court against a collector of customs, where certificate of probable cause has been issued as provided for under section 989, Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 28, sec. 842), and certified to the Seventy-second Congress, second session, in Senate Document No. 193, under the Department of Labor, $978.50.

Total, audited claims, section 6, $30,658.32.

The amendment was agreed to.

EXTENSION OF POSTAL SAVINGS SYSTEM

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, I understand that it is the purpose of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. McNary] to ask that the calendar be taken up when the consideration of the pending bill shall have been concluded. I desire to speak briefly on another subject before that is done.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, will not the Senator allow us to complete consideration of the deficiency bill?

Mr. DILL. No; I want to speak now.

My reason for addressing the Senate at this time is that the conditions in this country are such that I desire to lay before the Senate and the country a plan for consideration during the next few days, before the special session, looking to improvement of the financial and banking situation in the United States. I shall not review the events which have brough about the present emergency, but I will speak as to the necessity for doing something constructive in the immediate future.

Mr. President, 28 States have practically closed their banks. Every bank on the Pacific coast closed this morning. At the rate we are going now, within a few days there will not be any banks in this country open for business. What will happen when there is no exchange currency for doing business nobody can predict.

This Government owes a duty to the American people. which must be met, and it can only be met by having some system whereby they can have an exchange currency to assist in carrying on trade in this country. The masses of the people have little or no money. If they secure any, they are afraid to place it in any bank still open. They are fast losing faith in all financial organizations. Something must be done and done quickly.

I know that there are many proposals which are unsound. The most unsound of them, I think, is that we shall guarantee existing bank deposits and attempt to perpetuate the present system, which has wrecked the country's financial and industrial organization. I am not going to discuss that other than to point out that it would probably take $40 .-000,000,000 and break the Treasury. It would bond future generations to pay for that bank guarantee of the reckless, profiteering loans and investments made during the past few years.

It becomes encumbent upon the Government of this country to provide some system whereby the people will have an exchange currency with which to do business, and because of that requirement I believe that the thing we should do is to superimpose upon the postal banking system of this country an arrangement by which there could be checking accounts in that system.

There are to-day in the postal savings system over 8,000 offices where the people's money is being received on deposit. Those deposits are guaranteed. It would be a comparatively simple matter in this emergency to enlarge that system so that a checking account plan could be used in those banks. Any other system would require an entirely new set of machinery. These 6,840 depositaries scattered in every nook and hamlet of the country, with their 809 branches, afford a skeleton, a foundation, if you please, upon which to build a system where millions of the American people could deposit their small amounts of money and have checking accounts with which to do business.

I want at this time to offer a joint resolution and ask that it be read at the desk, and that it be printed.

Mr. BROOKHART. Would not the Senator also ask for immediate consideration?

The joint resolution (S. J. Res. 263) to provide for checking accounts in postal savings banks, and for other purposes, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Whereas owing to the failure of large numbers of banks throughout the United States and the inability of many other banks to furnish adequate banking facilities to the people, an emergency need for exchange currency exists in this country:

Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to carry deposit and checking-fund accounts, not to exceed $5,000 for any one person, association, or corporation; and any person authorized to make deposits in postal savings banks under existing laws shall be authorized to make deposits in the deposit and checking-fund accounts, but no interest shall be paid on any moneys deposited in such accounts.

The Postmaster General shall furnish depositors all necessary forms of blank checks, deposit slips, and other business forms for use of depositors, and make monthly statements of accounts to depositors, and may provide for clearance of checks and make a charge of not to exceed 2 cents per check as a service charge for handling checking accounts, said service charge to be covered into the receipts of the Post Office Department.

The Postmaster General shall appoint and fix the compensation The Postmaster General shall appoint and fix the compensation of such additional clerks as may be necessary to handle said deposit and checking accounts under bonds, the amount of said bonds to be fixed by the Postmaster General; and in those postal savings banks where more than one clerk is necessary to handle said accounts, the Postmaster General shall designate one clerk as manager. In the selection of additional clerks for the handling of the deposit and checking accounts as herein provided for, the Postmaster General shall choose clerks whom he finds to be particularly qualified for this work, without regard to the requirements of the civil service laws relating to selection of Post Office Department clerks. Department clerks.

Any depositor shall be entitled to draw funds on demand, and the Postmaster General shall keep an adequate part of all deposits as reserve available to pay depositors on demand, but may require as reserve available to pay depositors on demand, but may require 10 days' notice for payment of any excess over 50 per cent of deposit. The Postmaster General is authorized to rent additional space for offices or select and provide safes, vaults, or places of safe-keeping for the cash funds of the deposit and checking accounts of postal savings banks as he may deem necessary, and he may deposit funds of this account in the Federal reserve banks or insure moneys kent on hand against fire theft, or other loss as he insure moneys kept on hand against fire, theft, or other loss as he may decide.

The Federal Reserve Board is hereby authorized to issue Federal reserve notes to the Postmaster General based on direct obligations of the United States as collateral on the same terms as provided local member banks of the Federal Reserve Board.

for local member banks of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Postmaster General is hereby authorized to make application to any local agent of the Federal Reserve Board for such amount of Federal reserve notes as he may require to maintain in said fund necessary cash reserves or funds to meet withdrawal demands from the deposit and checking account of any postal savings bank. Such application shall be accompanied by the tender of direct obligations of the United States as collateral in amount equal to the sum of the Federal reserve notes thus applied for for.

There is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of the Treasury of the United States such amounts as may be necessary for the use of the Postmaster General for the purposes hereinbefore stated, and the Postmaster General is directed to make estimates to the Bureau of the Budget as to the amount necessary to be appropriated for the period until July 1, 1933, and for the fiscal year July 1, 1933, to July 1, 1934.

Mr. DILL. Mr. President, I would like, of course, to have the joint resolution considered and acted upon, but I recognize that it is somewhat elaborate, that it is such a big proposal that in the short period of time remaining I would not be justified in asking the Senate to take action. I have introduced it because I want it printed and referred to the Banking and Currency Committee as a plan to be considered by that committee.

I remind Senators that this is not any wild or revolutionary proposal. It might be considered unwise in ordinary times, but I come back to the point I made in the beginning that if the banks of the country continue to close, the Government owes it to the American people to supply some method of exchange currency in the form of checks. is a guarantee system to begin with. The people will have faith in it. The foundations are already laid in the form of more than 8,000 offices. The men in charge of the system are not unfamiliar with the handling of deposits.

I have the figures here as to the postal savings deposits and they are simply amazing. On June 30, 1931, $347 .-000,000 was on deposit. On June 30, 1932, $784,000,000 was on deposit. On January 1, 1933, $942,000,000 was on deposit. It is safe to say there is at least $1,000,000,000 on deposit in the postal savings banks to-day, so that we have a skeleton organization now upon which to build a system of Government checking accounts to carry us through an emergency that may be far more serious than any one contemplates and the outcome of which no man can foretell unless it is met in some way. Nobody knows exactly what initial appropriations will be necessary. It might take $50,-000,000 or $100,000,000, but that is not even worthy of consideration in comparison to what will happen in the country if some checking system is not provided.

I believe that this proposal justifies the early and earnest consideration of the Committee on Banking and Currency. I have presented the resolution for the purpose of submitting a plan which has the basis of experience back of it, which has a skeleton system upon which to build a checking account plan that will meet the demands of the common men and women of the country who to-day are afraid to leave in the banks what little money they have, in the fear that they will not be able to get any of it out if the situation continues and grows, as it seems certain it will. Let us give the people a system in which they will have faith and which they can and will use.

I realize the bankers of the country will be opposed to the plan. There was a time when I was willing to consider their arguments and objections, but since they have brought the country to its present status it is high time that we think of the needs and in the interest of the American people. The Government must do something to assure the people of the country that they shall not be left without new paragraph the following:

some kind of an exchange currency in this dangerous emergency which now confronts us.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution will be referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

SECOND DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 14769) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, and prior fiscal years, to provide supplemental appropriations for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1933, and June 30, 1934, and for other purposes.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I have been authorized by the committee to offer the following amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be reported for the information of the Senate.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 4, after line 14, to insert:

That sections 4 and 5 of the act (Pub. Res. No. 101, 70th Cong.) approved March 2, 1929, be, and is hereby, amended to read as approved March 2, 1929, be, and is hereby, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 4. That the publications provided for in such act of May 29, 1928, as amended by this resolution, and with such ancillaries, shall be printed and bound in such style, form, and manner as may be directed by the Joint Committee on Printing.

"SEC. 5. That in order to avoid waste in the appropriations for printing and binding for Congress, the Joint Committee on Printing is hereby empowered to authorize the printing of any bill or resolution before Congress in such style and form as the said committee may deem to be most suitable in the interest of economy and efficiency and to so continue until final enactment thereof in both Houses of the Congress of the United States; and such committee may also curtail the number of copies of such bills to be printed in the various parliamentary stages in the Congress, including the slip form of each public act."

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I did not understand the publications contemplated by the amendment.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Moses] will explain the purpose.

Mr. MOSES. Mr. President, as the Senator from Utah will remember, the joint Committee on Revision of the Statutes a few years ago codified the general statutes of the United States, being the committee of which former Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, was chairman. Various other codifications are now in process. They will number well up to 20 all told. It is a matter of printing to save expense. If the Senator has on his desk a bill in the printed form in which bills come to us, he will find it is printed in what is known by the printers as 14-point type. If this amendment is not agreed to so that in the codifications we may use the ordinary printed form of bill, it will be necessary to make new plates and set the type again, whereas if the amendment is adopted the Joint Committee on Printing will issue instructions that the bill as it comes here shall be printed in the exact form in which it will be in the codified statute. Under the codes now in readiness $14,000 will be saved and probably something like $50,000 before the codification is completed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE, Mr. President, I offer the following amendment in response to a message which has just come from the White House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 16, after line 24, to insert:

Chilocco (Okla.) Indian Boarding School Building: For remodeling and repairing girls' dormitory damaged by fire at Chilocco, Okla., including replacement of equipment, fiscal year 1933, to remain available during the fiscal year 1934, $40,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, that completes the committee amendments.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, I offer the following amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be reported.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 7, after line 10, insert as a

UNITED STATES ROANOKE COLONY COMMISSION

To enable the United States Roanoke Colony Commission to carry out and give effect to certain plans for the comprehensive observance of the three hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of English-speaking civilization in America in accordance with the provisions of the Senate Joint Resolution 241 of the Seventy-second Congress, as passed by the Senate, $50,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I send to the desk an amendment which I ask to have read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Let it be reported for the information of the Senate.

The CHIEF CLERK. The Senator from Pennsylvania offers the following amendment: On page 37, after line 8, to insert:

For payment of the judgment of the Court of Claims, No. J-543, in favor of the Pocono Pines Assembly Hotels Co., as certified to the Congress in the report embodied in Senate Document No. 244. Seventy-first Congress, third session, and Senate Document No. 213, Seventy-second Congress, second session, $227,239.53.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I think a word of explanation ought to be made. About three years ago there came to us an estimate under the Budget law for the payment of a judgment in the Court of Claims in favor of the hotel company. The Comptroller General came before the Appropriations Committee and called attention to the fact that the case had been badly tried in behalf of the Government. The committee and the Senate refused the amendment which I then offered to pay the judgment, and in place of my amendment adopted an amendment to the appropriation bill directing that the matter should go back again to the Court of Claims—in effect ordered a new trial.

The Court of Claims had some doubt as to its jurisdiction, but after argument, consideration, and, as I recall, an appeal, it was decided they did have jurisdiction to try the case on its merits, as requested by the Senate. That has now been done. The case has been tried de novo and judgment has been rendered in favor of the hotel company.

To explain to those Senators who are not familiar with the case when it was here before—

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield before he proceeds to that explanation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Utah?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. KING. A number of persons who claim to be familiar with the facts, and one of whom is in the Government employ, came to me and stated that the second trial was, to use their expression, as much of a farce as the first trial, and that the interests of the Government had not been fully protected; that the building was an old one; that the judgment awarded is wholly unfair to the Government. They wanted me to interpose further objections, but I have not felt so disposed. If the Senator is familiar with the facts I shall be glad to have a further explanation.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator from Pennsylvania yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. REED. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Of course, the Congress can not go on forever ordering new trials on the theory that a court has failed to perform its duty. The case has been tried twice by the Court of Claims. It will be recalled that when the amendment was first presented by the Senator from Pennsylvania there were serious charges made as to the inefficient manner in which the Government's case was presented. We believed then that the Government had not had a fair deal and in effect required a new trial. A retrial having been had, it does not seem to me that upon a mere statement by some person that the trial was not fair we ought to refuse to take action.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, may I ask who represented the Government in the matter?

Mr. REED. Some one from the Attorney General's office or the Solicitor General's office. I do not know his name.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WATSON. Mr. President, I offer the following amendment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Let it be reported.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 7, after line 10, to insert:

GEORGE ROGERS CLARK SESQUICENTENNIAL COMMISSION

For the completion of the memorial authorized by section 2 of the joint resolution approved May 23, 1928, to be erected at or near the site of Fort Sackville in the city of Vincennes, Ind., in commemoration of the winning of the old Northwest and the achievements of George Rogers Clark and his associates in the War of the American Revolution, to be expended by the George Rogers Clark Sesquicentennial Commission in the manner provided in section 4 of such joint resolution, as amended by section 2 of the act approved February 28, 1931, $250,000.

Mr. WATSON. It has been authorized, but the authorization was left out of the bill in the House.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator if there is any Budget estimate for it.

Mr. WATSON. The Senate passed it unanimously.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Was the item passed at this session of the Congress?

Mr. WATSON. Yes; it was.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Indiana.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The CHIEF CLERK. On Page 4, after line 14, insert:

For expenses of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, under the terms of House Joint Resolution 572, second session, Seventy-Second Congress, $50,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SCHUYLER. Mr. President, in order to complete the record, I move, on page 18, to strike out lines 19, 20, 21, and 22, being the item upon which I addressed the Senate with reference to the appropriation of $40,000 in connection with certain investigations.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated for the information of the Senate.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 18, strike out lines 19 to 22, as follows:

Cooperative and general investigations: For an additional amount for cooperative and general investigations, $40,000, to be payable from the reclamation fund and to remain available until June 30, 1934.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, that has already been acted on. The VICE PRESIDENT. Only the amendment relating to the amount was agreed to. The amendment of the Senator from Colorado is in order to strike out the entire provision. The previous action was merely on increasing the amount involved. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Colorado.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill is before the Senate and open to further amendment.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I challenge the attention of the chairman of the committee to the item on page 22, from lines 3 to 8, inclusive, being a deficiency appropriation of $450,000 for the Bureau of Immigration. If I thought any favorable result would attend a motion to eliminate that item, I would make it, and I want to make the statement now, Mr. President, that, in my opinion, the Bureau of Immigration has acted in many ways in a most arbitrary manner. It had no right to bring about this enormous deficit, and if the Senate, in my judgment, acted as it should, it would eliminate the whole item.

As an illustration, we have heard of raids by the immigration authorities involving 300, 400, and 500 people, under the theory that the people thus raided were enemies to our country, bolsheviks, or whatnot, and yet the immigration authorities have had to discharge them from custody because the raids were wholly unjustifiable and they were arresting and taking into custody and incarcerating, in many instances, American citizens against whom there was no legitimate ground for charges.

I think that the Immigration Service has been extravagant; it has acted arbitrarily, and I protest against this allowance of $450,000 additional. We made a very large appropriation in the last regular appropriation bill for this service; this additional deficiency appropriation is wholly unjustifiable; and I think that 'he immigration officials transcended their authority if this deficit has been created. I ask the Senator from Maine whether the amount is to cover past deficits or is it for prospective deficits that are to be incurred between now and the 1st of next July?

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, the proposed appropriation is to take care of the situation between now and the 1st of July. The evidence shows that unless this amount shall be appropriated there will be a deficit of about $450,000 if the rate of deportations keeps up according to what it has been during the past year. I think the department has done splendid work in the manner in which it has dealt with these aliens.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I think it is absolutely wrong to encourage a deficit as this item will do. It invites the immigration authorities to continue their illegal raids. They took into custody a few weeks ago 400 people in Detroit, upon the theory that they were anarchists or bolshevists, and threw many of them into jail; but, after a sifting process, they confessed their error and released substantially all of them. Because of such illegal arrests and other arbitrary, capricious, and unwarranted acts upon the part of the employees of the Immigration Service they are incurring deficits notwithstanding the very large annual appropriations which have been made for this service. I protest against it. I think if we provide this $450,000 it will be expended. Of course, this much may be said, that there will be a change in the administration, but if the present administration were to continue in power every cent of the appropriation would be expended, and much of it in the same illegal manner that expenditures have been made in the past. I repeat, I protest against it, and I move to strike out the entire item.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Utah to strike out lines 1 to 8, inclusive, on page 22.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, as we have to vote on this matter, perhaps we had better know something more about it, and I ask that the provision be read.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will read the provision proposed to be stricken out.

The Chief Clerk read as follows:

BUREAU OF IMMIGRATION

Salaries and expenses: For an additional amount for salaries and expenses, Bureau of Immigration, Department of Labor, including the same objects specified under this head in the act making appropriations for the Department of Labor for the fiscal year 1933, $450,000, for use only for or in connection with the deportation of aliens.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment offered by the Senator from Utah.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, the amount of money made available in the appropriation for the present fiscal year to take care of the deportation of aliens was $1,664,700. In the first six months of the year $1,028,000 were expended, and during that time 12,106 aliens were deported. Mr. Hull states:

If we succeed in finding as many aliens in the next six months as we did in the last six months, we will be short about $450,000.

Whatever the Senate may think about the question of deporting aliens, we certainly do not want to impede the department in carrying out the law of the land.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I understand from the Senator from Utah that a vast amount of this money has been expended through mistake upon the part of the department in arresting hundreds of people who have proved in the end not to be deportable.

Mr. HALE. I am not familiar with that matter, and I dare say some mistakes have been made, but more than 12,000 aliens have actually been deported.

Mr. ASHURST. Mr. President, it would be unpardonable for me or any other Senator now to take the Senate's time, and even if I were disposed to do so I have not the strength, as I am suffering from a mild attack of influenza. However, I say that it is our duty to recur to fundamental principles. Too long have some minions of departments, not only under this administration but under others, invaded the rights, privileges, and immunities of citizens, thrown them into jail, sometimes without a warrant, and then such officials have been obliged to confess their error. It is within the memory of Senators here that one official at Detroit, I believe, caused some 600 or 700 men, many, if not most, of them citizens of the United States, to be herded as so many cattle into an inclosure for many hours.

Mr. President, some of these officials, in their zeal to make a "record" for arrests and thus to hold their positions, have too frequently invaded the rights of citizens. In carrying out the eighteenth amendment or in attempting to enforce it and in attempting to enforce other laws, some officials evidently have forgotten some other provisions of the Federal Constitution.

Mr. President, each and every part of the Constitution to me stands the same. All of its provisions are of equal force, dignity, and effect. Some persons have been inclined at times to overlook the fourth and fifth amendments to the Constitution.

In our Constitution there is probably no feature around which clusters more radiant romance or the memorials of which give us more fascinating glimpses of bygone days than the fourth and fifth amendments. In all our jurisprudence there is no other principle that has been more definitely put into position or more joyously accepted by Americans than the principle of the fourth and fifth amendments. They are intimately related; each lends strength to the other and, notwithstanding their apparent nonchalance, they sustain and protect the very essence of constitutional liberty and security. They guarantee repose and the privacies of life.

These noble amendments are as follows:

ARTICLE IV

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

ARTICLE V

No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

A gentleman calling upon me once asked, "Did you ever read Lord Coke's famous maxim in Semayne's case? " to wit, "The house of everyone is to him as his castle and fortress, as well for his defense against injury and violence as for his repose." I said, "I am familiar with Coke, but that was the law of England 1,000 years before my Lord Coke adorned the bench." This is law in every State and was brought to the Colonies when our ancestors migrated hither. I have voted for millions of dollars to enforce the law, but I shall not wittingly vote for any appropriation which authorizes any agency of the Federal Government to induce citizens to commit crime, cruelly entrap citizens; and I am opposed to the purchase of evidence. I say further that those who love liberty should take for their motto "principiis obsta"—resist from the first; in other words, do not permit the tyranny of government, do not permit the tyranny of the state ever to get a start.

atmosphere, to find that another body of Congress, the body which holds the purse strings and sends to us the appropriation bills, has set its seal of condemnation upon the use of Federal funds to induce men to violate the law, has condemned wire tapping and purchase of evidence.

The Senator from Utah [Mr. King] is correct in his conclusion. All Senators desire that aliens unlawfully in the United States should be deported. I am sure I wish the law enforced and crime punished; but, forsooth, because we demand that the law be enforced and crime punished, we do not expect that the official, without warrant, without proper papers, shall seize the persons of citizens and incarcerate them.

Mr. President, there has grown up of late in the United States a fierce resentment against the Federal Government. Once the citizens looked upon their Federal Government as a wise, helpful instrument or agency of fairness and justice, watching to guard their liberties. Ask the ordinary citizen to-day what he thinks of the Federal Government; ask the man who drives your taxicab; ask your cook, ask the man who tills the soil, who pays the taxes, who sells merchandise, what he thinks of the Federal Government, and he will say it seems at times a cruel monster seeking to entrap him; it has an instrument or a law that tells him to make out his "outcome" tax, and yet when he makes it out and pays the tax, he does not know until years later, perhaps, whether he has really paid it according to the views of the Government officials. The citizens look upon the Government as an instrument whose minions of power at any time without warrant may force themselves into his residence or carry away his papers. I repeat, that acts of oppression upon the part of some officials of the Government of the United States have taken place during the last few years which I much doubt if the Ogpu of Russia could duplicate.

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Arizona yield to the Senator from New York?

Mr. ASHURST. I yield. Mr. WAGNER. I ask the Senator to yield to me in order that I may call to his attention a protest which I made two years ago against the practices of which the Senator in his usual able manner is now complaining. At that time I referred to an effort made to prevent an entertainment held by a number of American citizens of alien birth. It was suspected by agents of the Government that among those in that gathering were some who had entered the country illegally. Those agents went into the hall where this function was being held by American citizens; they stopped the music, put everybody in line, and required each one to come before them and prove his American citizenship. Of course, in very few instances were they able to do it, because people do not ordinarily carry their naturalization certificates with them.

The result, however, was that those men and women were kept during the entire night and part of the next day until by some means they were able to secure evidence to convince and to persuade these Government agents that they were in this country legally. The whole proceeding and investigation resulted in not a single disclosure that any one of the number was not a respectable American citizen of foreign birth and had not legally entered the country. I think that was a very disgraceful exhibition.

Mr. ASHURST. Mr. President, I am obliged to the learned Senator from New York for his contribution. No longer ago than the 16th of last month the Senate, by an amendment, prohibited the purchase of evidence hereafter. The thirteenth and the fourth and fifth amendments are equally as important as the eighteenth or the sixteenth.

Mr. SHORTRIDGE. Or as the first.

Mr. ASHURST. Or as the first. I thank the Senator. All parts of the Constitution have equal strength. Let there be an end to wire tapping. Let there be an end to the use of Government funds for the purchase of evidence. Let

It is refreshing, it is like a breath of pure air in a fetid | there be an end to contrivances and schemes which would compel the citizen to be a witness against himself. Let there be an end to the practice of men and women, many of whom are citizens, being herded, as it were, like dumb brutes. Let all aliens unlawfully in the United States be apprehended and deported according to law. I desire appropriations to do so in the lawful constitutional manner.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (H. R. 8681) to develop American air transport services overseas, to encourage the construction in the United States by American capital of American airships for use in foreign commerce, and to make certain provisions of the maritime law applicable to foreign commerce by airship.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside in order that the Senate may complete the consideration of the appropriation bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSON obtained the floor.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President-

Mr. JOHNSON. I yield to the Senator from Maine.

Mr. HALE. I think an error has occurred in the matter of the consideration of the cooperative and general investigations clause on page 18 of the bill. The Senator from Colorado [Mr. Schuyler] moved to strike out the Senate amendment to this proposition.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. President, a parliamentary in-

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator will state it.

Mr. HALE. Will the Senator allow me to finish?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin has risen to a parliamentary inquiry, which he may do at any time.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I desire to ask whether there is not an amendment pending, offered by the Senator from Utah [Mr. KING]?

The VICE PRESIDENT. There is.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, will the Senator permit me to make a statement about something that has just transpired, that was an inadvertence on the part, I think, of those who participated in it.

Mr. HALE. That is what I was about to explain.

The VICE PRESIDENT. This amendment is debatable. Mr. JOHNSON. I am asking unanimous consent for a certain purpose, and I ask the Senate to permit me to proceed for just one minute in that regard.

The amendment for the construction of the all-American Canal was before the Senate. It was voted upon, and the amendment was adopted. I left the Senate Chamber for just a moment in order to answer some wires in the anteroom. There was made then a motion to strike out the entire appropriation. The nature of the motion was not understood by the chairman of the committee in charge of the bill, nor do I think it was understood by the assistant Republican leader, who sits on my right. Certainly I knew nothing about it, and the Senate apparently did not understand the situation; and, after we had adopted the appropriation in the bill, the entire appropriation was stricken out on the motion of the Senator from Colorado. I ask simply unanimous consent that we may reconsider that particular matter.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. SCHUYLER. Mr. President, rising not to object, but just for the purpose of an explanation for the RECORD, I know that in the Senator's reference to the fact that he was out of the Chamber at the time this motion was made he will not impute to me the taking-up of the matter at that time because of his absence.

Mr. JOHNSON. Oh, no; no, no!
Mr. SCHUYLER. It was the regular time for me to present the amendment to which I have referred. I took up the matter in the discussion first in reference to the committee amendments, but could not make the motion to strike out all of the appropriation until the committee amendments were acted upon.

Mr. FESS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? I hope the unanimous-consent agreement will be made, Mr. President: but-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. FESS. Just a moment. I desire to confirm what the Senator from Colorado has done. It might be inferred, from reading the RECORD, that he waited until the Senator from California was out before making the motion.

Mr. JOHNSON. No: permit me to say that no such implication was intended in my remarks, and no reflection whatsoever upon the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. FESS. The facts were that we had finished the amendments, and it was the only opportunity the Senator from Colorado had.

Mr. SCHUYLER. I thank the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. FESS. I hope the unanimous consent will be granted. The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the request of the Senator from California [Mr. Johnson] that unanimous consent be given for reconsideration of the vote whereby the amendment of the Senator from Colorado was adopted. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

The question now is upon the amendment of the Senator from Utah [Mr. King], which will again be stated.

Mr. DALE. Mr. President, I desire to say just a word on this amendment.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? I was going to modify the amendment; and I shall do so, with the permission of the Senator.

Mr. DALE. Very well.
Mr. KING. I do not abate or modify any of the statements which I made heretofore; but in order to get the bill through as speedily as possible, I shall modify my amendment, and move to strike out "$450,000" and insert "$225,-000." so as to cut the amount in two.

May I say to the Senator from Vermont in his time, if he will permit me, that this is an anticipated deficit. There is no actual deficit.

Mr. DALE. I know what it is, but it is very peculiar to me that a proposition of this kind should happen to come before the Senate just at this time. It is rather amazing to me that a proposal should be made to the United States Senate at this time to cut down the appropriation in the Department of Labor that is used for the purpose of finding out who in this country have the anarchistic spirit and of deporting them.

Mr. President, at the time the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. Davis] was Secretary of Labor, a proposal was made which, if it had been carried out and the money had been furnished for its operation, would have deported the very man who recently attempted to take the life of President-elect Roosevelt and almost took the life of the mayor of Chicago.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Vermont yield to the Senator from Idaho?

Mr. DALE. Yes; I yield.

Mr. BORAH. I can not understand the basis upon which the Senator makes that statement. I have read very carefully the history of this insane wretch who undertook to kill the President elect, and he was not an anarchist. He never has been an anarchist.

Mr. DALE. I did not say he was an anarchist.

Mr. BORAH. He was professing American ideas and American ideals. He was subjected to examination, and passed the examination for citizenship. I do not see how any law that we could have passed would have ever given any protection against him.

Mr. DALE. The matter to which I refer, Mr. President, was a proposal made by the Secretary of Labor at the time the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. Davis] was Secretary of Labor, under which all applicants for American citizenship would have been required to report once in five years during the period before final action was taken on their applications; and during these five years this man's history and his record would have all come before the board and he would never have been made an American citizen, and would have been deported.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I have no desire to argue about the matter; but just such incidents as that sometimes cause us to pass extraordinary laws. This man's record, so far as it is now presented, was a perfectly good record. He never was in jail. He never was charged with any misconduct. He never was charged with any crime; and I do not see how any law could have reached him.

Mr. DALE. He said he wanted to kill men in authority. At least the presumption might be very naturally taken that if he had been examined once a year for five years, the spirit and intent of the man toward our American institutions would have become very plain, to the extent that the board would never have accepted him as a citizen.

Mr. BORAH. That ought to be applied to some American citizens also.

Mr. DALE. That is very true. Nevertheless, Mr. President, it does seem to me that at this stage of the history of our Government it is a peculiar thing that we, here in the Senate, should cut down the appropriation for the Department of Labor that is expended to investigate the character of the men who apply here for American citizenship.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the modified amendment of the Senator from Utah.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, just a word.

The Senate and the House have been in the past exceedingly generous in making appropriations to the Department of Labor. I have been in entire sympathy with the action of Congress in so doing. At the last session of Congress we appropriated millions of dollars for the Labor Department, a considerable portion of which was to be used in guarding our borders and in securing the deportation of aliens who were ineligible to citizenship, and who ought not to be in the United States.

Unfortunately, the present Secretary and some of his subordinates have misconceived their duty, have not understood the provisions of the Constitution of the United States which were so eloquently referred to a moment ago by the able Senator from Arizona [Mr. ASHURST] and have gone out with dragnets and arrested and herded into corrals and into jails and into places of confinement hundreds of American citizens. The appropriation which we made has not been exhausted. It was a liberal one; and now we are asked to anticipate that there will be a deficit, and they want $450,000 in anticipation of a deficit. Let them continue in a proper way in the discharge of their duties; and if a deficit is created, there will be a Congress in session in a short time, and ample appropriations will be made.

I call for a vote.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the modified amendment of the Senator from Utah [Mr. King].

The amendment, as modified, was rejected.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. Schuyler], which was reconsidered. The amendment will be stated.

The CHIEF CLERK. The Senator from Colorado proposes, on page 18, to strike out lines 19 to 22, both inclusive.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, we are really asked to vote here without knowing what we are to vote on. I wish the Senator from California would state what the issue is.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, when the Boulder Dam bill was passed, it provided for the creation of what is termed "an all-American canal," it being desired that that canal should be all on American soil. It happens that the Colorado River to-day in its meanderings goes over the line and waters the lands of Mr. Harry Chandler over in Mexico, and then comes back onto American soil. Unfortunately in the past the Imperial Valley has been dependent for the intake of its waters upon Mexican soil.

The all-American canal is provided for already by lawby the Boulder Dam act. The Department of the Interior asks an appropriation to enable it, within the reclamation law, to make certain investigations as to silt and the like in contemplation of the construction of the all-American canal. There is an appropriation in this bill of $40,000 for that purpose, as a preliminary toward carrying on this investigation, the construction of the canal being paid for in an entirely different fashion, not dependent upon this kind of appropriation. It would be a most unfortunate thing if this appropriation were denied.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was rejected.

Mr. BYRNES. Mr. President, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated. The CHIEF CLERK. On page 24, line 25, the Senator from South Carolina moves to insert:

That the sum of $48,500, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated annually, for the expenses of participation by the United States in the International Institute of ticipation by the United States in the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, Italy, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of State in the following manner:

(1) Not to exceed the equivalent in United States currency of 192,000 gold francs for the payment of the annual quota of the United States for the support of the institute, including the shares of the Territory of Hawaii, and of the dependencies of the Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

(2) Not to exceed $5,000 for the salary of a United States member of the permanent committee of the International Institute of Agriculture.

Agriculture

(3) Not to exceed $5,500 for rent of living quarters, including heat, fuel, and light, as authorized by the act approved June 26, 1930 (46 Stat. 818); compensation of subordinate employees without regard to the classification act of 1923, as amended; actual and necessary traveling expenses; and other contingent expenses incident to the maintenance of an office at Rome, Italy, for a United States member of the permanent committee of the International Institute of Agriculture.

The amendment was agreed to.

A memorandum of verbal corrections to the second deficiency bill (H. R. 14769) was submitted and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

On page 5, line 7, after "personal," insert "service."
On page 6, lines 16 and 24, make the semicolons into periods.
On page 7, strike out line 9 down to the closing parenthesis in

On page 12, line 4, after "such," insert "House."

On page 12, line 4, after "such," insert "House."
On page 18, lines 6 and 7, strike out the matter in parentheses.
On page 21, lines 19 and 20, strike out "fiscal year" and all of line 20 and insert "following fiscal years."
Make paragraphs out of the inserts:
"For 1931, $176.52;
"For 1932, $3.3."
On page 24, line 17, change "is" to "if."
On page 32, line 6, strike out "$6,400." and all of

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time and passed.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments, ask for a conference with the House, and that the Chair appoint the conferees.

The motion was agreed to; and the Chair appointed Mr. HALE, Mr. SMOOT, Mr. KEYES, Mr. GLASS, and Mr. McKellar conferees on the part of the Senate.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Chaffee, one of its clerks, announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. Cannon, Mr. Gran-FIELD, Mr. BLANTON, Mr. HOLADAY, and Mr. SIMMONS Were appointed managers on the part of the House at the con-

The message also announced that the proceedings whereby the House disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 11035) for the relief of Price Huff, were vacated, and that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill.

ENROLLED JOINT RESOLUTION SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the enrolled joint resolution (H. J. Res. 572) to provide for further investigation of certain public-utility corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and it was signed by the Vice President.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA APPROPRIATIONS

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Fess in the chair) laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14643) making appropriations for the government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of such District for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. BINGHAM. I ask unanimous consent that the previous action of the Senate may be vacated, that the Senate insist on its amendments, agree to the request of the House for a conference, and that the Chair appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Connecticut? The Chair hears none, and the Chair appoints Mr. BINGHAM, Mr. CAPPER, Mr. NYE, Mr. STEIWER, Mr. GLASS, Mr. KENDRICK, and Mr. COPE-LAND conferees on the part of the Senate.

AIR TRANSPORT SERVICES

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, the bill H. R. 8681, an act to develop American air transport services overseas, to encourage the construction in the United States by American capital of American airships for use in foreign commerce, and to make certain provisions of the maritime law applicable to foreign commerce by airship.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, what is the parliamentary situation?

The VICE PRESIDENT. The unfinished business, House bill 8681, is before the Senate, but the Chair is advised that the Senator from Nevada [Mr. ODDIE] desires to present a conference report.

TREASURY AND POST OFFICE APPROPRIATIONS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. ODDIE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the conference report on the Treasury and Post Office appropriation bill.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the Chair lays before the Senate the following conference report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on amendments numbered 1 to 16 inclusive, of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 13520), making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 3, 4, 7, 8, and 9,

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 2, 5, 6, 10, 11, and 13, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 1: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 1, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 12: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 12, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by such amendment, amended to insert in lieu of the sum "$19,000,000" named in such amendment, the sum "$15,000,000," and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following:

"SEC. 4 (a) The provisions of the following sections of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, are hereby continued in full force and effect during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, namely, sections 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107 (except paragraph (5) of subsection (a) thereof), 108, 109, 112, 201, 203, 205, 206 (except subsection (a) thereof), 211, 214, 216, 304, 315, 317, 318, and 323, and, for the purpose of continuing such sections, in the application of such sections with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, the figures '1933' shall be read as '1934'; the figures '1934' as '1935'; and the figures '1935' as '1936'; and, in the case of sections 102 and 203, the figures '1932' shall be read as '1933'; except that in the application of such sections with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934 (but not with respect to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933), the following amendments shall

"(1) Section 104 (a) is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting a semicolon and the following: 'and (12) special delivery messengers in the Postal Service.'; and section 105 (d) (2) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: 'special delivery messengers in the Postal Service, but in the case of such messengers, the sum of $400 shall not be included in the calculation of the rate of their compensation for the purposes of this title;'.

"(2) Section 106 is amended by striking out 'except judges whose compensation may not, under the Constitution, be diminished during their continuance in office' and inserting in lieu thereof 'except judges, whose compensation, prior to retirement or resignation, could not, under the Constitution, have been diminished'.

"(3) Section 216 is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a colon and the following: 'Provided further, That no employee under the classified civil service shall be furloughed under the provisions of this section for a total of more than 90 days during the fiscal year 1934, except after full and complete compliance with all the provisions of the civil service laws and regulations relating to reductions in personnel.'

"(4) Section 317 is amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof a colon and the following: 'Provided further, That no part of any appropriation for "public works," nor any part of any allotment or portion available for "public works" under any appropriation, shall be transferred pursuant to the authority of this section to any appropriation for expenditure for personnel unless such personnel is required upon or in connection with "public works." "Public works" as used in this section shall comprise all projects falling in the general classes enumerated in Budget Statement No. 9, pages A177 to A182, inclusive, of the Budget for the fiscal year 1934, and shall also include the procurement of new airplanes and the construction of vessels under appropriations for "Increase of the Navy." The interpretation by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, or by the President in the cases of the War Department and the Navy Department, of "public works," as defined and designated herein, shall be conclusive.'

"(5) Section 104 (b) and section 106 are amended by striking out '(except enlisted)'; section 104 (b) is amended by striking out 'does not include the active or retired pay of the enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard; and'; and section 105 (d) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"'(8) The enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.'

"(b) All acts or parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions of such sections, as amended, are hereby suspended during the period in which such sections, as amended, are in effect.

"(c) No court of the United States shall have jurisdiction of any suit against the United States or (unless brought by the United States) against any officer, agency, or instrumentality of the United States arising out of the application, as provided in this section, of such sections 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, or 112, as amended, unless such suit involves the Constitution of the United States.

"(d) The appropriations or portions of appropriations unexpended by reason of the operation of the amendments made in subsection (a) of this section shall not be used for any purpose, but shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury.

"(e) Each permanent specific annual appropriation available during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, is hereby reduced for that fiscal year by such estimated amount as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget may determine will be equivalent to the savings that will be effected in such appropriation by reason of the application of this section and section 7.

"Sec. 5. Effective the 1st day of the month next following the passage of this act, in the application of Title I of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, and section 4 of this act, in any case where the annual rate of compensation of any position is in excess of $1,000, the provisions reducing compensation shall not operate to reduce the total amount paid for any month to any incumbent of any such position unless the total amount earned by such incumbent in such month exceeds $83.33: Provided, That any such reduction made in any case where the total amount earned by any such incumbent in any month exceeds $83.33 shall not operate to reduce the total amount to be paid to such incumbent for such month to less than $83.33.

"Sec. 6. (a) Sections 103 and 215 of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, shall be held applicable to the officers and employees of the Panama Canal and Panama Railroad Co. on the Isthmus of Panama, and to officers and employees of the United States (including enlisted personnel) holding official station outside the continental United States, only to the extent of depriving each of them of one month's leave of absence with pay during each of the fiscal years ending June 30, 1933, and June 30, 1934

"(b) During the fiscal year 1934, deductions on account of legislative furlough shall be made each month from the compensation of each officer or employee subject to the furlough provisions of Title I of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, as continued by section 4 (a) of this act, at the rate of $8\frac{1}{2}$ per cent per month regardless of the number of days of such furlough actually taken by any such officer or employee in any month.

"SEC. 7. No administrative promotions in the civil branch of the United States Government or the government of the District of Columbia shall be made during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934: Provided, That the filling of a vacancy, when authorized by the President, by the appointment of an employee of a lower grade, shall not be construed as an administrative promotion, but no such appointment shall increase the compensation of such employee to a rate in excess of the minimum rate of the grade to which such employee is appointed, unless such minimum rate would require an actual reduction in compensation: Provided further, That the restoration of employees to their former grades or their advancement to intermediate grades following reductions of compensation for disciplinary reasons shall not be construed to be administrative promotions for the purposes of this section. The provisions of this section shall not apply to commissioned, commissioned warrant, warrant, and enlisted personnel, and cadets, of the Coast Guard.

"Sec. 8. All officers and employees of the United States Government or of the government of the District of Columbit who had reached the retirement age prescribed for automatic separation from the service on or before July 1, 1932, and who were continued in active service for a period of less than 30 days after June 30, 1932, pursuant to an Executive order issued under authority of section 204 of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, shall be regarded as having been retired and entitled to annuity beginning with the day following the date of separation from active service, instead of from August 1, 1932, and the administrator of veterans' affairs is hereby authorized and directed to make payments accordingly from the civil-service retirement and disability fund.

"Sec. 9. The allowance provided for in the act entitled 'An act to permit payments for the operation of motor cycles and automobiles used for necessary travel on official business, on a mileage basis in lieu of actual operating expenses,' approved February 14, 1931 (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 5, sec. 73a), for travel ordered after the date of enactment of this act shall not exceed 2 cents per mile in the case of travel by motor cycle or 5 cents per mile in the case of travel by automobile.

"Sec. 10. Whenever by or under authority of law actual expenses for travel may be allowed to officers or employees of the United States, such allowances, in the case of travel ordered after the date of enactment of this act, shall not exceed the lowest first-class rate by the transportation facility used in such travel.

"SEC. 11. From and after the date of enactment of this act, the provisions of the act of March 3, 1931 (U. S. C., Supp. V, title 5, sec. 26a), shall not apply to any employees of the Veterans' Administration homes, hospitals, or combined facilities where, in the discretion of the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, the public interest requires that such employees should be excepted from the provisions thereof. As to those employees excepted from the provisions of the act of March 3, 1931, seven hours shall constitute a workday on Saturday and labor in excess of four hours on Saturdays shall not entitle such employees to an equal shortening of the workday on some other day or to additional compensation therefor.

"Sec. 12. Assignments of officers of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps to permanent duty in the Philippines, on the Asiatic Station, or in China, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Panama Canal Zone shall be for not less than three years. No such officer shall be transferred to duty in the continental United States before the expiration of such period unless the health of such officer or the public interest requires such transfer, and the reason for the transfer shall be stated in the order directing such transfer.

"Sec. 13. The act entitled 'An act to provide for deducting any debt due the United States from any judgment recovered against the United States by such debtor,' approved March 3, 1875 (U. S. C., title 31, sec. 227), is hereby amended to read as follows:

"'That when any final judgment recovered against the United States duly allowed by legal authority shall be presented to the Comptroller General of the United States for payment, and the plaintiff therein shall be indebted to the United States in any manner, whether as principal or surety, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller General of the United States to withhold payment of an amount of such judgment equal to the debt thus due to the United States; and if such plaintiff assents to such set-off, and discharges his judgment or an amount thereof equal to said debt, the Comptroller General of the United States shall execute a discharge of the debt due from the plaintiff to the United States. But if such plaintiff denies his indebtedness to the United States, or refuses to consent to the set-off, then the Comptroller General of the United States shall withhold payment of such further amount of such judgment, as in his opinion will be sufficient to cover all legal charges and costs in prosecuting the debt of the United States to final judgment. And if such debt is not already in suit, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller General of the United States to cause legal proceedings to be immediately commenced to inforce the same, and to cause the same to be prosecuted to final judgment with all reasonable dispatch. And if in such action judgment shall be rendered against the United States, or the amount recovered for debt and costs shall be less than the amount so withheld as before provided, the balance shall then be paid over to such plaintiff by such Comptroller General of the United States with 6 per cent interest thereon for the time it has been withheld from the plaintiff.'

"Sec. 14. Section 319 of Part II of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is repealed as of June 30, 1932; and the rate of interest to be allowed upon judgments against the United States and overpayments in respect of internal-revenue taxes shall be the rate applicable thereto prior to the enactment of section 319 of such act.

"Sec. 15. Section 322 of Part II, of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is amended by adding at the end of the section the following proviso: ': Provided further, That the provisions of this section as applicable to rentals, shall apply only where the rental to be paid shall exceed $2,000 per annum.'

"SEC. 16. Title IV of Part II, of the legislative appropriation act, fiscal year 1933, is amended to read as follows:

"'TITLE IV—REORGANIZATION OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS
"'DECLARATION OF STANDARD

"'Sec. 401. The Congress hereby declares that a serious emergency exists by reason of the general economic depression; that it is imperative to reduce drastically governmental expenditures; and that such reduction may be accomplished in great measure by proceeding immediately under the provisions of this title.

"'Accordingly, the President shall investigate the present organization of all executive and administrative agencies of the Government and shall determine what changes therein are necessary to accomplish the following purposes:

"'(a) To reduce expenditures to the fullest extent consistent with the efficient operation of the Government;

"'(b) To increase the efficiency of the operations of the Government to the fullest extent practicable within the revenues;

"'(c) To group, coordinate, and consolidate executive and administrative agencies of the Government, as nearly as may be, according to major purposes;

"'(d) To reduce the number of such agencies by consolidating those having similar functions under a single head, and by abolishing such agencies and/or such functions thereof as may not be necessary for the efficient conduct of the Government;

"'(e) To eliminate overlapping and duplication of effort;

"'(f) To segregate regulatory agencies and functions from those of an administrative and executive character.

" 'DEFINITION OF EXECUTIVE AGENCY

"'SEC. 402. When used in this title, the term "executive agency" means any commission, independent establishment, board, bureau, division, service, or office in the executive branch of the Government and, except as provided in section 403, includes the executive departments.

" POWER OF PRESIDENT

"'SEC. 403. Whenever the President, after investigation, shall find and declare that any regrouping, consolidation, transfer, or abolition of any executive agency or agencies and/or the functions thereof is necessary to accompish any of the purposes set forth in section 401 of this title, he may by Executive order—

"'(a) Transfer the whole or any part of any executive agency and/or the functions thereof to the jurisdiction and control of any other executive agency;

"'(b) Consolidate the functions vested in any executive agency; or

"'(c) Abolish the whole or any part of any executive agency and/or the functions thereof; and

"'(d) Designate and fix the name and functions of any consolidated activity or executive agency and the title, powers, and duties of its executive head; except that the President shall not have authority under this title to abolish or transfer an executive department and/or all the functions thereof.

"'SEC. 404. The President's order directing any transfer, consolidation, or elimination under the provisions of this title shall also make provision for the transfer or other disposition of the records, property (including office equipment), and personnel affected by such transfer, consolidation, or elimination. In any case of a transfer or consolidation under the provisions of this title the President's order shall also make provision for the transfer of such unexpended balances of appropriations available for use in connection with the function or agency transferred or consolidated, as he deems necessary by reason of the transfer or consolidation, for use in connection with the transferred or consolidated function or for the use of the agency to which the transfer is made or of the agency resulting from such consolidation.

" 'SAVING PROVISIONS

"'Sec. 405. (a) All orders, rules, regulations, permits, or other privileges made, issued, or granted by or in respect of any executive agency or function transferred or consolidated with any other executive agency or function under the provisions of this title, and in effect at the time of the transfer or consolidation, shall continue in effect to the same extent as if such transfer or consolidation had not occurred, until modified, superseded, or repealed.

"'(b) No suit, action, or other proceeding lawfully commenced by or against the head of any executive agency or other officer of the United States, in his official capacity or in relation to the discharge of his official duties, shall abate by reason of any transfer of authority, power, and duties from one officer or executive agency of the Government to another under the provisions of this title, but the court, on motion or supplemental petition filed at any time within 12 months after such transfer takes effect, showing a necessity for a survival of such suit, action, or other proceeding to obtain a settlement of the questions involved, may allow the same to be maintained by or against the head of the executive agency or other officer of the United States to whom the authority, powers, and duties are transferred.

"'(c) All laws relating to any executive agency or function transferred or consolidated with any other executive agency or function under the provisions of this title, shall, in so far as such laws are not inapplicable, remain in full force and effect, and shall be administered by the head of the executive agency to which the transfer is made or with which the consolidation is effected.

"' WINDING UP AFFAIRS OF AGENCIES

"'Sec. 406. In the case of the elimination of any executive agency or function, the President's order providing for such elimination shall make provision for winding up the affairs of the executive agency eliminated or the affairs of the executive agency with respect to the functions eliminated, as the case may be.

" ' EFFECTIVE DATE OF EXECUTIVE ORDER

"'Sec. 407. Whenever the President makes an Executive order under the provisions of this title, such Executive order shall be submitted to the Congress while in session and shall not become effective until after the expiration of 60 calendar days after such transmission, unless Congress shall by law provide for an earlier effective date of such Executive order or orders: Provided, That if Congress shall adjourn before the expiration of 60 calendar days from the date of such transmission such Executive order shall not become effective until after the expiration of 60 calendar days from the opening day of the next succeeding regular or special session.

" 'APPROPRIATIONS IMPOUNDED

"'SEC. 408. The appropriations or portions of appropriations unexpended by reason of the operation of this title shall not be used for any purpose but shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury.

" 'TERMINATION OF POWER

"'SEC. 409. The authority granted to the President under section 403 shall terminate upon the expiration of two years after the date of enactment of this act unless otherwise provided by Congress.'

"Sec. 17. The Bureau of Efficiency and the office of chief of such bureau are hereby abolished; and the President is authorized to designate another officer to serve in place of the Chief of the Bureau of Efficiency on any board, commission, or other agency of which the Chief of the Bureau of Efficiency is now a member. All records and property, including office furniture and equipment of the bureau, shall be transferred to the Bureau of the Budget. Appropriations and unexpended balances of appropriations available for expenditure by the Bureau of Efficiency shall be impounded and returned to the Treasury. This section shall take effect at the beginning of the third calendar month after the passage of this act."

And the House agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 15:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the amendment of the State numbered 15, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert "18"; and the House agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 16:

- That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the House to the amendment of the Senate numbered 16, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the first of the House amendments insert "19"; and the House agree to the same.

TASKER L. ODDIE,
REED SMOOT,
HIRAM BINGHAM,
L. J. DICKINSON,
HENRY W. KEYES,
GEO. H. MOSES,
CARTER GLASS,
KENNETH MCKELLAR,
SAM G. BRATTON,
JOSEPH W. BYRNS,
ELMER THOMAS,

Managers on the part of the Senate.

JOSEPH W. BYRNS,

WILLIAM W. ARNOLD,

LOUIS LUDLOW,

WILL R. WOOD

(Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

M. H. THATCHER (Excepting air mail appropriation and abolishing Bureau of Efficiency),

Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. ODDIE. Mr. President, I move the adoption of the conference report.

Mr. BORAH. I wish the Senator from Nevada would explain the conference report.

Mr. ODDIE. Mr. President, the Senate conferees receded on certain items and the House conferees receded on certain items in the bill. One of the items in disagreement was the $19,000,000 appropriation for domestic air mail. There has been a great deal of discussion in regard to that item. The agreement was finally made to reduce the amount to $15,000,000. So the appropriation is $4,000,000 less than the House carried in the bill which we have long been considering.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, I would like to say a word, if the Senator will yield. The Senator from Idaho knows that the income from the air mail is something like $7,000,000 a year. Some have claimed that it is even more than that.

The Senator will recall that the Senate struck out the entire proposed appropriation of $19,000,000. Some of us tried in every way to prevent the appropriation, but as the report has come back the Senator will have noticed that we were defeated. A majority of the Senate conferees, as well as the House conferees, were opposed to cutting the appropriation at all. But after much backing and filling on all sides, we finally had to accept an appropriation of $15,000,000, which means a saving of $4,000,000 under the House provision and $5,000,000 under what the department recommended. That was the very best we could get out of it, if the bill was to go through. I think the chairman of the committee will recall that the Senate conferees stood 6 to 5 against cutting the appropriation at all, and I think the 5 of us who wanted to cut down the appropriation were quite lucky in getting it cut down $4,000,000.

Mr. BORAH. That is that item. There were some other economy items.

Mr. ODDIE. I refer to two items among numbers of others, first, an appropriation for the Bureau of Customs. The Senate cut $2,400,000 from the appropriation for this bureau and the conferees restored that amount. That was agreed to early in the conference. The Senate cut $1,000,000 from the appropriation for the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the conference committee restored that amount to the bill.

We have had a number of meetings. The conference has lasted over a week, the conferees meeting every day, and we felt that this final agreement was the best that could be secured

Mr. BORAH. I saw a statement in the press to the effect that we had lost out on about $168,000,000 of reductions.

Mr. McKELLAR. I believe that is true. One hundred and fifty million dollars of that was tied up in the Bratton proposal for a general reduction of 5 per cent. That was rejected by a majority of the conferees on the part of the Senate, six to five, the same vote that was had on the other amendment, and all the conferees on the part of the House were opposed to it. In other words, the Senate conferees yielded on that proposal.

If the Senator will permit me further, there were two other items as to which I think there should be an explanation. One was the matter of automatic promotions which constituted a saving of about $4,000,000 if put into effect for the coming year. That was finally put in the bill.

Then happened the most remarkable thing that has ever taken place, I think, in the history of the Senate. It is true that some years ago I introduced and there was passed a bill abolishing the Council of National Defense, but it did not take effect. That council still continued with us. As I remember, I got a second bill passed abolishing it. Whether it has taken effect entirely or not I do not know, but I believe it is still carried on the books at any rate. But in this bill we abolish the Bureau of Efficiency, the most remarkable thing that has ever taken place in our governmental history, in my judgment, because it is the first time that a fullfledged bureau has been actually abolished by the Congress. I think the Senate conferees are to be congratulated for abolishing one bureau out of the myriads of bureaus we have, one absolutely useless bureau. It was about as helpful as a fifth wheel on a wagon. It has actually been abolished by Congress, the first and only full-fledged bureau I ever knew to be abolished and so far as I have been able to ascertain it is the first one in the history of the Govern-

Mr. BORAH. I congratulate the Senator. That was an heroic achievement, and perhaps the last bureau that will ever be abolished. [Laughter.]

Mr. President, in so far as Senators may be permitted to do so, I would like to know what the argument was against the Bratton amendment and why it was that we surrendered upon that proposition.

Mr. McKELLAR. Mr. President, may I join the Senator in that request, because five of us tried very diligently to find out. We stood for it through thick and thin, but we did not have a majority and the Bratton amendment went out.

Mr. ODDIE. Mr. President, the House voted separately on the Bratton amendment, and it was defeated there by an overwhelming vote. The House conferees absolutely refused to recede on it. They were adamant.

Mr. BORAH. They were opposed to economy?

Mr. ODDIE. I can not say anything that would seem to criticize or reflect on Members of the House. The Senator will have to draw his own conclusion.

Mr. BORAH. That would be no reflection.

Mr. McKELLAR. The House ought not to be criticized because a number of the Senate conferees were equally opposed to economy. The majority of five of us stood by it as long as we could, but we were overruled and outvoted.

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I think action on the Bratton amendment is a fine illustration of the futility of any effort on the part of Congress to enact laws providing for economy. Just the moment that amendment was adopted by the Senate, the heads of the departments and bureaus in the Government, every one, so far as I could ascertain, rushed into the streets at once and began to announce that a reduction of 5 per cent would destroy the different departments and bureaus of the Government—that it would destroy our Navy; that it would leave practically nothing of our Army. It seems to me to prove conclusively that those who have been talking about economy in this administration did not believe at all in the principles which they were preaching.

Mr. McKELLAR. May I call to the Senator's mind that last year, when the 10 per cent reduction in the Interior Department appropriation bill first was presented, the Secretary of the Interior, and I think every one connected with his department in the various bureaus who testified before the committee, said it would ruin the department, absolutely destroy its functions, and make it useless if a 10 per cent cut was made effective. It was effected, and the very same officials from that very same department reported $2,000,000 less in the Budget than was actually expended, including the 10 per cent.

Mr. BORAH. While the Congress passes bills providing economy, it is the Executive Department which constantly defeats the acts of Congress. We are advised from day to day and week to week and month to month that it is the extravagant Congress, the irresponsible and extravagant Congress which refuses to reduce expenses. Every effort which has been made of any real substance has ultimately been defeated by the heads of bureaus and departments and by the Executive in this Government.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, will the Senator vield?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. BORAH. Certainly.

Mr. VANDENBERG. I would like to submit this inquiry for the Senator's consideration. In view of the fact that we are aproaching a régime which I assume in good faith proposes to reduce the operating expenses of the Government 25 per cent, I want to know if it would not be fairer to pass this particular bill along another week or two or three so as not even temporarily to foreclose the economy program upon which we are to embark during the next 12 months. I want to know whether that appeals to the Senator's sense of propriety?

Mr. BORAH. Yes; I think it would be a most excellent thing to do. While the incoming administration is committed to economy, pledged to economy, so is the outgoing administration and so was it when it began its existence. I repeat, that the real fight against economy in this country for the last 15 years has come from the executive departments. There is where the money is spent. There is where the extravagance is. There is where they refuse to cut expenditures under any circumstances whatever. That is precisely what has happened here. The Senate as usual has surrendered. One hundred and sixty-eight million dollars of economy has been surrendered for the reason that the pressure brought by the executive departments has seemed to bring about that result.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

On a division the conference report was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OF FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

Mr. FLETCHER submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 5337) to amend the Federal farm loan act, as amended, of Federal land banks in the making of direct loans, to authorize upon certain terms the reamortization of loans by Federal and joint-stock land banks, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following: That section 7 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U.S.C., title 12. ch. 7, secs. 711-722), is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Whenever it shall appear to the Federal Farm Loan Board that national farm-loan associations have not been formed in any locality in the continental United States, or that the farmers residing in the territory covered by the charter of a national farm-loan association are unable to apply to the Federal land bank of the district for loans on account of the inability of such association to indorse such loans, the Federal Farm Loan Board may, in its discretion, authorize said bank, at any time within five years after this paragraph takes effect, to make direct loans to borrowers secured by first mortgages on farm lands situated within any such locality or territory. Except as herein otherwise specifically provided, all provisions of this act applicable with respect to loans made through national farm-loan associations shall, in so far as practicable, apply with respect to such direct loans, and the Federal Farm Loan Board is authorized to make such rules and regulations as it may deem necessary with respect to such direct loans: Provided. That no such loan shall be made for more than $15,000. Each borrower who obtains a direct loan from a Federal land bank shall subscribe and pay for stock in such bank in the sum of $5 for each $100 or fraction thereof borrowed."

SEC. 2. Paragraph "Fourth" of section 12 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U.S.C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 771), is amended to read as follows:

"Fourth. Such loans may be made for the following purposes and for no other:

"(a) To provide for the purchase of land for agricultural

"(b) To provide for the purchase of equipment, fertilizers, and livestock necessary for the proper and reasonable operation of the mortgaged farm; the term 'equipment' to be defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

"(c) To provide buildings and for the improvement of farm lands; the term 'improvement' to be defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

"(d) To liquidate indebtedness of the owner of the land mortgaged incurred for agricultural purposes, or incurred prior to January 1, 1933.

"(e) To provide the owner of the land mortgaged with funds for general agricultural uses."

Sec. 3. Subparagraph (b) of paragraph "Fourth," of section 13 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 781), is amended by adding at the end thereof a new sentence to read as follows: "Every such bank may carry real estate as an asset, for a period of not exceeding five years, at its normal value, but not to exceed the amount of the bank's investment therein at the time of acquirement of such real estate."

SEC. 4. Section 13 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 771), is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

"Eleventh. At any time within five years after the date this paragraph takes effect, any borrower who has obtained a loan from a Federal land bank may, on application to such Federal land bank and upon approval of such application by the directors of the bank, postpone the payment of any unpaid installment or installments in the manner herein provided in this section. Such postponed payment shall be made by paying at the time each succeeding annual to permit loans for additional purposes, to extend the powers | installment is due one-tenth of the amount of the postponed payment, and, in the case of semiannual installments, by paying at the time each succeeding semiannual installment is due one-twentieth of the postponed payment, until the amount of such postponed payment has been paid. In any case in which the number of remaining installments due on the mortgage is less than 10, in the case of annual installments, or less than 20, in the case of semiannual installments, the amount of the postponed payment shall be distributed proportionately over the remaining number of installment payments.

> "Twelfth. For the period of five years after the date this paragraph takes effect, every borrower shall pay simple interest on extended payments at the same rate of interest as stipulated in the mortgage securing the loan as to payments not in default and by express covenant in his mortgage deed shall undertake to pay when due all taxes, liens, judgments, or assessments which may be lawfully assessed against the land mortgaged. Taxes, liens, judgments, or assessments not paid when due, and paid by the mortgagee, shall become a part of the mortgage debt and shall bear interest at the rate provided in the mortgage.

> "Thirteenth. When in the judgment of the directors conditions justify it, and with the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board, to reamortize, in whole or in part, the aggregate amount remaining unpaid under the terms of any mortgage, and to accept payment of such aggregate amount on an amortization plan by means of a fixed number of annual or semiannual installments sufficient to cover the interest payable on the mortgage, and in addition thereto such amounts to be applied upon the principal as will extinguish the debt within an agreed period of not more than 40 years from the date of the reamortization; to deposit such mortgages with the farm-loan registrar as collateral security for farm-loan bonds at an amount not exceeding the principal of the original loan remaining unpaid at the date of such amortization; and with the approval of the Federal Farm Loan Board to charge the borrower an amount not to exceed the actual cost incurred in connection with such reamortization."

> Sec. 5. (a) Paragraph "Second" of section 14 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U.S.C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 791), is amended to read as follows:

> "Second. To loan on first mortgage except through national farm-loan associations as provided in section 7 and section 8 of this act, or through agents as provided in section 15, or direct to borrowers as provided in section 7.'

> (b) Section 14 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended, is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

> "Sixth. To accept as additional security for any loan to any borrower under this act, or any installment on any such loan, any security other than Federal land-bank stock or mortgages on farm real estate; and the transfer to any Federal land bank of any security if it may not be accepted by the bank under this paragraph shall be void: Provided, That any bank may accept an assignment of the landlord's rent to the amount of any taxes paid on such land by the bank, or any interest due."

> SEC. 6. (a) The fourth paragraph of section 19 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 854), is amended to read as follows:

> "No mortgage shall be accepted by a farm-loan registrar from a land bank as part of an offering to securing farmloan bonds, either originally or by substitution, except first mortgages made subject to the conditions prescribed in sections 4, 7, 12, 15, and 16: Provided, That such registrar, when authorized and directed to do so by the Federal Farm Loan Board, shall accept or retain in his custody as collateral, if otherwise eligible under the provisions of such sections, any first mortgage in connection with which the land bank depositing the same has agreed to defer for a period of not more than 10 years the collection of the principal portion of maturing installments and to accept payment of the aggregate amount of such principal on an amortization plan by means of a fixed number of annual or semiannual installments sufficient to cover the interest payable thereon and in addition thereto such amounts to be applied on the principal after the expiration of the period of deferment as will extinguish the debt within an agreed period of not more than 40 years from the date of such agreement."

(b) Section 19 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, ch. 7, secs. 851-856), is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"Such farm-loan registrar shall also accept purchasemoney mortgages as collateral security in place of mortgages withdrawn. The banks shall have power to execute all necessary conveyances, transfers, and assignments to carry out this provision."

SEC. 7. The eleventh paragraph of section 21 of the Federal farm loan act, as amended (U. S. C., title 12, ch. 7, sec. 881), is amended by substituting in lieu thereof the following:

"When any Federal land bank shall desire to participate in a consolidated issue of farm-loan bonds it shall make application to the Federal Farm Loan Board for the approval on its behalf of such issue and tender to the registrar approved farm mortgages, or obligations of the United States Government, as security therefor, and no banks shall participate in such consolidated issue until such application has been approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board. Such approved farm mortgages or obligations of the United States Government shall be held by each farm-loan registrar as collateral security for consolidated bonds, separate and apart from the mortgages and/or Government bonds held by him as collective security for the bonds previously issued or assumed individually by the Federal land bank of his district. Amortization and other payments on the principal of first mortgages held by a farm-loan registrar as collateral security for the issue of consolidated farm-loan bonds shall constitute a trust fund in the hands of the Federal land bank receiving the same and shall be applied or employed in the manner provided in section 22 with respect to payments on principal of first mortgages held as collateral for farmloan bonds of individual banks.

"Every Federal land bank shall notify the farm-loan registrar of the disposition of all payments made on the principal of mortgages held as collateral security for the issue of consolidated farm-loan bonds, and said registrar is authorized, at his discretion to order any of such payments, or the proceeds thereof, wherever deposited or however invested, to be immediately transferred to his account as trustee aforesaid. Each bank shall maintain with the farm-loan registrar of its district collateral security for the issue of consolidated farm-loan bonds in an amount at least equal to the face amount of such bonds issued on its behalf.

"When any Federal land bank shall surrender to the farm-loan registrar of its district any consolidated Federal farm-loan bonds, canceled or uncanceled, said land bank shall be entitled to withdraw first mortgages and bonds previously pledged as collateral in connection with any issue of consolidated farm-loan bonds to an amount equal to the consolidated farm-loan bonds so surrendered and it shall be the duty of such registrar to permit and direct the delivery of such mortgages and bonds to such land banks.

"The Federal Farm Loan Board may at any time call upon any Federal land bank for additional security to protect the consolidated bonds issued under the provisions of this section. Each bank shall pay when due, without notice, all bonds and coupons issued on its behalf hereunder.

"Every Federal land bank shall have power to exchange consolidated farm-loan bonds for farm-loan bonds previously issued or assumed by it individually, with the approval of and under rules and regulations promulgated by the Federal Farm Loan Board."

SEC. 8. The balance of the $125,000,000 provided for the Federal land banks by the act of January 23, 1932, not heretofore used for the extension of loans or the making of new amortization plan by means of a fixed number of annual or semiannual installments sufficient to cover the interest payable thereon and in addition thereto such amounts to be larger loans shall be used by such banks for the extension of loans shall be used by such banks for the extension of loans and the making of new loans as authorized by this act and the Federal farm loan act, as amended.

And the House agree to the same.

DUNCAN U. FLETCHER, SMITH W. BROOKHART, JOHN G. TOWNSEND, Jr., Managers on the part of the Senate.

HENRY B. STEAGALL,
W. F. STEVENSON,
T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH,
L. T. McFadden,
James G. Strong,
Managers on the part of the House.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

ECONOMIES IN GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS

Mr. BRATTON. Mr. President, it is not my purpose to address myself to the particular conference report now pending before the Senate. I desire to say a word by way of supplement to what the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Borah] said a moment ago with respect to the economies effected by the Senate and later surrendered in conference.

Mr. President, the Senator from Idaho was entirely correct and spoke the exact truth when he said that immediately after the so-called 5 per cent provision was inserted in the Treasury and Post Office Departments appropriation bill, every executive department and every independent establishment joined in waging vigorous opposition to it. Their communications addressed to the chairman of the subcommittee of the economy committee were almost identical in phraseology. Each one said that the estimates had first been pared to the bone by the department or establishment itself, next scrutinized with care by the Bureau of the Budget and cut there, and again reduced by the House until an irreducible minimum had been reached and that any further cut would disrupt the machinery of Government.

It was urged, Mr. President, that the 5 per cent reduction applied to the Navy would reduce it to a third class navy. Think of a margin of $15,000,000 doing a thing of that kind. It is absurd. It simply proves once more that the executive departments—that is to say, the agencies which spend the money—are the masters of the situation rather than the Congress itself which appropriates the money.

Mr. President, the two Committees on Appropriations, first in the House and then in the Senate, must rely upon those who spend the money, for their information concerning the ways of economizing. They come before those committees. They sit across the table. We propound questions to them. We endeavor to elicit facts showing how we can reduce the amounts which they are to spend. We rely upon those who spend the money to tell us how we can appropriate less for them to spend. We effected economies totaling $168,000,000, but now we are told that we can not reduce, that we must not reduce, that it will work injury here, it will work havoc there, and it will work ruin elsewhere.

The country should know that we are to continue to appropriate approximately $5,000,000,000 and that the Congress can not cut a small 5 per cent because we have surrendered to the domination, to the control, to the dictates, to the mandates of the executive departments of the Government uniting and joining in one refrain, namely, that a 5 per cent cut will undermine the efficiency of the Government.

Mr. President, I repeat what I said, based upon a rather careful survey. I think the 5 per cent economy could have been effected without seriously impairing the efficiency of a single service in the Government unless it was the Veterans' Administration. Upon further study I entertain some doubt about it being effective in that department without affecting its efficiency. Individually I was willing to safeguard that situation by an appropriate proviso. With that possible exception, I repeat, that the 5 per cent cut could have been effected without seriously impairing a single service in the Government, and that our failure to carry it through means that we forego economies aggregating $163,000,000.

AMENDMENT OF FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the conference report on Senate bill 5337.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, may we have some explanation as to the purport of the report?

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, Senate bill 5337 passed a few days ago and went to the House. The House amended it by striking out all after the enacting clause of the Senate bill and inserting their own bill. That threw the two bills into conference. The conferees have met and considered both bills, with the result that the report shows that practically every provision of the Senate bill has been retained and that one or two provisions of the House bill have been added, so the bill is not materially changed from the form in which it passed the Senate. While some provisions of the House bill which have been incorporated are not altogether satisfactory, they are the best we can get. They may be helpful in some respects, and they do not do any serious injury to the general purpose of the proposed legislation, which is intended to take care of loans from the Federal land bank under the farm loan act to individuals where national farm-loan associations have fallen down or disappeared or are not supplied with funds.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, does this bill have anything to do with the Federal land banks?

Mr. FLETCHER. Yes.

Mr. LONG. Is it proposed to give them more money?

Mr FLETCHER No; there is no appropriation carried by this bill at all. There is a provision here that what they have they shall devote to new loans and extensions.

Mr. LONG. I have just received a telegram which shows that they are foreclosing all the old mortgages, although we gave them last year $125,000,000.

Mr. FLETCHER. This will help that situation and prevent foreclosures to a large extent.

Mr. LONG. How will it do that? If the Senator from Florida will permit me, what I want to say is that last year we gave $125,000,000 to the Federal land banks.

Mr. FLETCHER. Yes.

Mr. LONG. And they were supposed to devote a considerable amount of that money to extending mortgages. Instead of doing that, I am informed that they have been buying up their own unmatured bonds at a low rate, in order to improve their condition, and they are, to some extent, rather ruthlessly foreclosing all these mortgages. I have a telegram, which just reached me, stating that they are not hesitating a minute to shut down on every farm they can. We are not getting any service out of it.

Mr. FLETCHER. Of course, that question is one of administration. The Senator's remedy in that case is to get a new bank executive in his district or a new board. He can not do that now.

Mr. LONG. How can I do that? Will the Senator tell me how to get somebody else? The Federal land bank expects somebody to foreclose these mortgages as fast as he can. We have a man sent in there from a neighboring State; he has quite a jurisdiction; I do not know just how far from New Orleans it extends; I do not know whether it goes to Florida.

Mr. FLETCHER. No.

Mr. LONG. I have never looked up the jurisdiction, but to-day in my State, they are foreclosing all the mortgages they can and they are not extending any of them. So that $125,000,000 which we provided for them last year might as well have been thrown out the window. I am not in favor of giving the Federal land bank any additional authority at all until we can get some kind of a new deal.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, this bill does not extend any authority of that kind. It does distinctly provide that—

The Federal land banks shall use the balance of the $125,000,000 provided in the act of February 23, 1932, in carrying out the provisions of this act relative to the extension of loans and the making of new loans.

And this bill provides for extending loans and making new loans and it is expressly set out in the bill that they are required to do that.

I will not say with reference to the New Orleans bank what their operations are, whether they are foreclosing or not, but I am satisfied if the Senator will investigate he will find that they have extended a great many loans and have made new loans in that district. I think that is so. They may be inclined to foreclose here and there where they have to foreclose, but they are not disposed to do it if it can possibly be avoided; and I am sure the Senator will find, upon investigation, that many loans have been extended in that district and some new loans have been made. The bill which we are now considering requires, in express language, that the unexpended balance of the $125,000,000 shall be used for making new loans and granting extensions in accordance with the provisions of the bill. That disposes of that question.

Of course, in some districts there is complaint about fore-closures and the bad treatment of borrowers by the banks. That is a matter of administration. It is not a matter of law at all and we can not control it. We have got to have some one to execute our laws. I think 80 per cent of the efficacy of every law Congress passes depends on its administration, its interpretation, and administration by those who execute it. I do not think there can be any doubt about that. The remedy for any mistakes or errors or maladministration lies in getting new administrators, not in changing the law.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Florida yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. FLETCHER. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. It appears that the conference report embraces a provision which forbids the acceptance as additional security for any loan of anything other than real estate and Federal land-bank stock. I presume the object of that is to prevent the oppression of borrowers by demand from the banks for additional security. The provision, however, is very unusual.

IMPEACHMENT OF HAROLD LOUDERBACK (S. DOC. NO. 215)

At 12 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m. the managers on the part of the House of Representatives of the impeachment of Harold Louderback appeared below the bar of the Senate, and the secretary to the majority (C. A. Loeffler) announced their presence, as follows:

I have the honor to announce the managers on the part of the House of Representatives to conduct the proceedings in the impeachment of Harold Louderback, United States district judge in and for the northern district of California.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The managers on the part of the House will be received and assigned to their seats.

The managers, accompanied by the Sergeant at Arms of the House (Kenneth Romney), were thereupon escorted by the secretary to the majority to the seats assigned to them in the area in front and to the left of the Chair.

Mr. Manager SUMNERS. Mr. President, the managers on the part of the House are here to present articles of impeachment against Harold Louderback, a district judge of the United States for the northern district of California.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Deputy Sergeant at Arms of the Senate will make the necessary proclamation.

The Deputy Sergeant at Arms (J. Mark Trice) made proclamation as follows:

Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! All persons are commanded to keep silence, on pain of imprisonment, while the House of Representatives is exhibiting to the Senate of the United States articles of impeachment against Harold Louderback, United States district judge in and for the northern district of California.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The articles of impeachment may now be presented.

Mr. Manager SUMNERS. Mr. President, the managers on \ the part of the House of Representatives are here present and ready to present the articles of impeachment which have been preferred by the House of Representatives against Harold Louderback, a district judge of the United States for the northern district of California. The House adopted the following resolution, which I will read to the Senate:

Resolved, That Hatton W. Sumners, Gordon Browning, Malcolm C. Tarver, Fighello H. Laguardia, and Charles I. Sparks, Members of this House, be, and they are hereby, appointed managers to conduct the impeachment against Harold Louderback, United States district judge for the northern district of California; that said managers are hereby instructed to appear before the Senate of the United States and at the bar thereof in the name of the House of Representatives and of all the people of the United States to impeach the said Harold Louderback of misdemeanors in office and to exhibit to the Senate of the United States the articles of impeachment against said judge which have been agreed upon by the House; and that the said managers do demand that the Senate take order for the appearance of said Harold Louderback to answer said impeachment, and demands his Harold Louderback to answer said impeachment, and demands his impeachment, conviction, and removal from office.

JNO. N. GARNER,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

SOUTH TRIMBLE, Clerk.

Mr. President, with your permission I should like to ask one of my comanagers, Mr. Gordon Browning, to read the articles of impeachment.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The articles of impeachment will be read.

Mr. Manager BROWNING. Mr. President, the articles of impeachment which have been adopted by the House of Representatives and which the managers on the part of the House have been directed to present to the Senate are in the words and figures following:

ARTICLES OF IMPEACHMENT AGAINST HAROLD LOUDERBACK House Resolution 387, Seventy-second Congress, second session

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATE OF AMERICA, In the House of Representative, February 24, 1933.

Resolution

Resolved, That Harold Louderback, who is a United States district judge of the northern district of California, be impeached of misdemeanors in office; and that the evidence heretofore taken by the special committee of the House of Representatives under House Resolution 239, sustains five articles of impeachment, which are hereinafter set out; and that the said articles be, and they are hereby, adopted by the House of Representatives, and that the same shall be exhibited to the Senate in the following words and

Articles of impeachment of the House of Representatives of the United States of America in the name of themselves and of all of the people of the United States of America against Harold Louderback, who was appointed, duly qualified, and commissioned to serve during good behavior in office, as United States district judge for the northern district of California, on April 17,

That the said Harold Louderback, having been nominated by the President of the United States, confirmed by the Senate of the United States, duly qualified and commissioned and while acting as a district judge for the northern district of California acting as a district judge for the northern district of California did on divers and various occasions so abuse the power of his high office, that he is hereby charged with tyranny and oppression, favoritism and conspiracy, whereby he has brought the administration of justice in said district in the court of which he is a judge into disrepute, and by his conduct is guilty of misbehavior, falling under the constitutional provision as ground for impeachment and removal from office.

In that the said Harold Louderback on or about the 13th day of March, 1930, at his chambers and in his capacity as judge aforesaid, did willfully, tyrannically, and oppressively discharge one Addison G. Strong, whom he had on the 11th day of March, 1930, appointed as equity receiver in the matter of Olmsted against Russell-Colvin Co. after having attempted to force and coerce the said Strong to appoint one Douglas Short as attorney for the receiver in said case.

receiver in said case

In that the said Harold Louderback improperly did attempt to cause the said Addison G. Strong to appoint the said Douglas Short as attorney for the receiver by promises of allowance of large fees and by threats of reduced fees did he refuse to appoint said Douglas Short.

said Douglas Short.

In that the said Harold Louderback improperly did use his office and power of district judge in his own personal interest by causing the appointment of the said Douglas Short as attorney for the receiver, at the instance, suggestion, or demand of one Sam Leake, to whom the said Harold Louderback was under personal obligation, the said Sam Leake having entered into a certain arrangement and conspiracy with the said Harold Louderback to provide him, the said Harold Louderback, with a room at the Fairmont Hotel in the city of San Francisco, Calif., and made arrangements for registering said room in his, Sam Leake's, name and paying all bills therefor in cash under an arrangement with the said Harold Louderback, to be reimbursed in full or in part in order that the said Harold Louderback might continue to actually reside in the city and paying the continue to actually reside in the city and county of San Francisco after having improperly and unlawfully established a fictitious residence in Contra properly and unlawfully established a fictitious residence in Contra Costa County for the sole purpose of improperly removing for trial to said Contra Costa County a cause of action which the said Harold Louderback expected to be filed against him; and that the said Douglas Short did receive large and exorbitant fees for his services as attorney for the receiver in said action, and the said Sam Leake did receive certain fees, gratuities, and loans directly or indirectly from the said Douglas Short amounting approximately to $1.200 to $1,200.

In that the said Harold Louderback entered into a conspiracy with the said Same Leake to violate the provisions of the California Political Code in establishing a residence in the county of Contra Costa when the said Harold Louderback in fact did not reside in said county and could not have established a residence without the concealment of his actual residence in the county of San Francisco, covered and concealed by means of the said conspiracy with the said Sam Leake, all in violation of the law of the State of California State of California.

In that the said Harold Louderback, in order to give color to his fictitious residence in the county of Contra Costa, all for the purpose of preparing and falsely creating proof necessary to establish himself as a resident of Contra Costa County in anticipation of an action has a resident of the brought against him for the solution of an himself as a resident of Contra Costa County in anticipation of an action he expected to be brought against him, for the sole purpose of meeting the requirements of the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of California providing that all causes of action must be tried in the county in which the defendant resides at the commencement of the action, did in accordance with the conspiracy entered into with the said Sam Leake unlawfully register as a voter in said Contra Costa County, when in law and in fact he did not reside in said county and could not so register, and that the said acts of Harold Louderback constitute a felony defined by section 42 of the Penal Code of California.

Wherefore the said Harold Louderback was and is guilty of a course of conduct improper, oppressive, and unlawful and is guilty of misbehavior in office as such judge and was and is guilty of a misdemeanor in office.

misdemeanor in office.

ARTICLE II

That Harold Louderback, judge as aforesaid, was guilty of a course of improper and unlawful conduct as a judge, filled with partiality and favoritism in improperly granting excessive, exorbitant, and unreasonable allowances as disbursements to one Marshall Woodward and to one Samuel Shortridge, jr., as receiver and attorney, respectively, in the matter of the Lumbermen's Reciprocal Association

And in that the said Harold Louderback, judge as aforesaid. And in that the said Harold Louderback, judge as aforesaid, having improperly acquired jurisdiction of the case of the Lumbermen's Reciprocal Association contrary to the law of the United States and the rules of the court did, on or about the 29th day of July, 1930, appoint one Marshall Woodward and one Samuel Shortridge, jr., receiver and attorney, respectively, in said case, and after an appeal was taken from the order and other acts of the judge in said case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and the said order and acts of the said Harold Louderback having been reversed by said United said Harold Louderback having been reversed by said United States Circuit Court of Appeals and the mandate of said circuit court of appeals directed the court to cause the said receiver to turn over all of the assets of said association in his possession as receiver to the commissioner of insurance of the State of California, the said Harold Louderback unlawfully, improperly, and oppressively did sign and enter an order so directing the receiver to turn over said property to said State commissioner of insurance to turn over said property to said State commissioner of insurance but improperly and unlawfully made such order conditional that the said State commissioner of insurance and any other party in interest would not take an appeal from the allowance of fees and disbursements granted by the said Harold Louderback to the said Marshall Woodward and Samuel Shortridge, jr., receiver and attorney, respectively, thereby improperly using his said office as a district judge to favor and enrich his personal and political friends and associates to the detriment and loss of litigants in his, said judge's court, and forcing said State commissioner of insurance and parties in interest in said action unnecessary delay, labor, and expense in protecting the rights of all parties against such and expense in protecting the rights of all parties against such arbitrary, improper, and unlawful order of said judge; and that the said Harold Louderback did improperly and unlawfully seek to coerce said State commissioner of insurance and parties in in said action to accept and acquiesce in the excessive fees and the exorbitant and unreasonable disbursements granted by him to said Marshall Woodward and Samuel Shortridge, jr., receiver and attorney, respectively, and did improperly and unlawfully force and coerce the said parties to enter into a stipulation modifying said improper and unlawful order and did thereby make it necessary for the State commissioner of insurance to take another appeal from the said arbitrary, improper, and unlawful action of the said Hareld Louderbeek the said Harold Louderback.

In that the said Harold Louderback did not give his fair, impartial, and judicial consideration to the objections of the said State commissioner of insurance against the allowance of excessive fees and unreasonable disbursements to the said Marshall Woodward and Samuel Shortridge, jr., receiver and attorney, respectively, in the case of the Lumbermen's Reciprocal Association, in order to favor and enrich his friends at the expense of the litigants and parties in interest in said matter, and did thereby cause said State commissioner of insurance and the parties in interest additional delay, expense, and labor in taking an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in order to protect their rights and property in the matter against the partial, oppressive, and unjudicial conduct of said Harold Louderback.

Wherefore, said Harold Louderback was and is guilty of a course of conduct oppressive and unjudicial and is guilty of misbehavior in office as such judge and was and is guilty of a misde-havior in office as such judge and was and is guilty of a misdemeanor in office.

ARTICLE III

The said Harold Louderback, judge aforesaid, was guilty of misbehavior in office resulting in expense, disadvantage, annoyance, and hindrance to litigants in his court in the case of the Fageol Motor Co., for which he appointed one Guy H. Gilbert, receiver, knowing that the said Gilbert was incompetent, unqualified, and inexperienced to act as such receiver in said case.

inexperienced to act as such receiver in said case.

In that the said Harold Louderback, judge as aforesaid, oppressively and in disregard of the rights and interests of litigants in his court did appoint one Guy H. Gilbert as receiver for the Fageol Motor Co., knowing the said Guy H. Gilbert to be incompetent, unfit, and inexperienced for such duties, and did refuse to grant a hearing to the plaintiff, defendant, creditors, and parties in interest in the matter of the Fageol Motor Co. on the appointment of said receiver, and the said Harold Louderback did cause said litigants and parties in interest in said matter to be misinformed of his and parties in interest in said matter to be misinformed of his action while said Guy H. Gilbert took steps necessary to qualify as receiver, thereby depriving said litigants and parties in interest of presenting the facts, circumstances, and conditions of the said equity receivership, the nature of the business and the type of person necessary to operate said business in order to protect creditors, litigants, and all parties in interest, and thereby depriving said parties in interest of the opportunity of protesting against the appointment of an incompetent receiver.

Wherefore, the said Harold Louderback was and is guilty of a course of conduct constituting misbehavior as said judge and that said Harold Louderback was and is guilty of a misdemeanor in

ARTICLE IV

ARTICLE IV

That the said Harold Louderback, judge aforesaid, was guilty of misbehavior in office, filled with partiality and favoritism, in improperly, willfully, and unlawfully granting on insufficient and improper papers an application for the appointment of a receiver in the Prudential Holding Co. case for the sole purpose of benefiting and enriching his personal friends and associates.

In that the said Harold Louderback did on or about the 15th day of August, 1931, on insufficent and improper application, appoint one Guy H. Gilbert receiver for the Prudential Holding Co. case when as a matter of fact and law and under conditions then existing no receiver should have been appointed, but the said appoint one Guy H. Gilbert receiver for the Prudential Holding Co. case when as a matter of fact and law and under conditions then existing no receiver should have been appointed, but the said Harold Louderback did accept a petition verified on information and belief by an attorney in the case and without notice to the said Prudential Holding Co. did so appoint Guy H. Gilbert the receiver and the firm of Dinkelspiel and Dinkelspiel, attorneys for the receiver; that the said Harold Louderback in an attempt to benefit and enrich the said Guy H. Gilbert and his attorneys, Dinkelspiel and Dinkelspiel, failed to give his fair, impartial, and judicial consideration to the application of the said Prudential Holding Co. for a dismissal of the petition and a discharge of the receiver, although the said Prudential Holding Co. was in law entitled to such dismissal of the petition and discharge of the receiver; that during the pendency of the application for the dismissal of the petition and discharge of the receiver; that during the pendency of the application for the dismissal of the petition and discharge of the receiver; that during the pendency of the application for the dismissal of the petition in bankruptcy was filed against the said Prudential Holding Co., and the said Harold Louderback then and there willfully, improperly, and unlawfully, sitting in a part of the court to which he had not been assigned at the time, took jurisdiction of the case in bankruptcy and though knowing the facts in the case and of the application then pending before him for the dismissal of the petition and the discharge of the equity receiver, granted the petition in bankruptcy and did on the 2d day of October, 1930, appoint the same Guy H. Gilbert receiver in bankruptcy and the said Dinkelspiel and Dinkelspiel attorneys for the receiver, knowing all of the time that the said Prudential Holding Co. was entitled as a matter of law to have the said petition in equity dismissed; in that through the oppressive, deliberate, and willful action unnecessary delay, expense, and labor and did deprive them of a fair, impartial, and judicial consideration of their rights and the protection of their property, to which they were entitled.

Wherefore the said Harold Louderback was, and is, guilty of a course of conduct constituting misbehavior as said judge and that said Harold Louderback was, and is, guilty of a misdemeanor in

ARTICLE V

That Harold Louderback, on the 17th day of April, 1928, was duly appointed United States district judge for the northern district of California, and has held such office to the present day.

That the said Harold Louderback as judge aforesaid, during his said term of office, at divers times and places when acting as such judge, did so conduct himself in his said court and in his capacity as judge in making decisions and orders in actions pending in his said court and before him as said judge, and in the method of appointing receivers and attorneys for receivers, in appointing incompetent receivers, and in displaying a high degree of indifference to the litigants in equity receiverships, as to excite fear and distrust and to inspire a widespread belief in and beyond said northern district of California that causes were not decided in said court according to their perits but were not decided. in said court according to their merits, but were decided with partiality and with prejudice and favoritism to certain individuals. particularly to receivers and attorneys for receivers by him so appointed, all of which is prejudicial to the dignity of the judiciary.

All to the scandal and disrepute of said court and the administration of justice therein.

Wherefore the said Harold Louderback was, and is, guilty of misbehavior as such judge and of a misdemeanor in office [SEAL.]

JNO. N. GARNER, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Attest:

SOUTH TRIMBLE, Clerk.

Mr. Manager SUMNERS. Mr. President, the House of Representatives by protestation, saving to themselves the liberty of exhibiting at any time hereafter any further articles of accusation or impeachment against the said Harold Louderback, a district judge of the United States for the northern district of California, and also of replying to his answers which he shall make unto the articles preferred against him, and of offering proof to the same and every part thereof, and to all and every other article of accusation or impeachment which shall be exhibited by them as the case shall require, do demand that the said Harold Louderback may be put to answer the misdemeanors in office which have been charged against him in the articles which have been exhibited to the Senate, and that such proceedings, examinations, trials, and judgments may be thereupon had and given as may be agreeable to law and justice.

Mr. President, the managers on the part of the House of Representatives, in pursuance of the action of the House of Representatives by the adoption of the articles of impeachment which have just been read to the Senate, do now demand that the Senate take order for the appearance of said Harold Louderback to answer said impeachment, and do now demand his impeachment, conviction, and removal

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the managers on the part of the House that the Senate will take proper order on the subject of impeachment, of which due notice shall be given to the House of Representatives.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, before the managers on the part of the House leave the Senate, I move that the articles of impeachment presented by the managers on the part of the House be printed for the use of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, under the Rules of the Senate governing impeachment trials, it would be the duty of the Senate to-morrow at 1 o'clock to organize itself into a court and take the necessary oath, and then proceed with the trial. It was the understanding that the managers on the part of the House would present this impeachment yesterday, but on account of the adjournment of the Senate, that was, of course, impossible.

It is evident that we shall not be able to comply with the rules now, because this session of Congress will adjourn at 12 o'clock to-morrow, and therefore I intend to submit a unanimous consent request.

I ask unanimous consent that the further consideration of the impeachment charges presented by the managers on the part of the House of Representatives be deferred until 2 o'clock on the first day of the first session of the Seventy-third Congress. I asked the managers to remain because I wanted to submit a date that would be agreeable to them, of course.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, does the Senator's request mean that if a special session is called, we will take the matter up at that time?

Mr. NORRIS. Yes; a special session would be the first session of the Seventy-third Congress.

Mr. LONG. I wish to amend the request, and I hope the Senator from Nebraska will agree to it, by asking that we take the matter up on the first day of the first regular session of the Seventy-third Congress, because if the Congress shall be called into session for remedial legislation, for which the people all over this country are crying, we do not want to sit here and waste the whole time of the special session over the impeachment of some judge in California.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, of course, if the suggestion of the Senator were followed it would result in postponement for so long that it would be almost like having no trial. Moreover, the managers on the part of the House are directly interested in that. I do not want to fix a date that would conflict with their wishes.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nebraska yield?

Mr. NORRIS. I yield.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Compliance with the suggestion of the Senator from Louisiana would postpone action on the impeachment articles until January next.

Mr. NORRIS. Yes, that is true.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Almost a year. Mr. NORRIS. Almost a year. I will say to the Senator from Louisiana that this matter will interfere, of course, with the regular routine business of the Senate. We can not avoid that, no matter when it comes on. As I see it, we might just as well take the time during the special session. Moreover, it would hardly be right, it seems to me, unless we did it with the consent of the House of Representatives, to put it over for what seems to me to be an unreasonable length of time.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. NORRIS. I yield.

Mr. BARKLEY. The mere fact that at any given day during the next session the Senate organized itself into a court for the trial of this impeachment would not mean that the trial would proceed immediately. It would then be within the power of the Senate to control the time when it would proceed.

Mr. NORRIS. Under the Constitution of the United States, the first thing we would do would be to organize ourselves into a court. We would take no action in regard to the trial, give no notice of summons to the defendant, until after we had organized as a court. We would proceed then as a court.

I will say to the Senator from Louisiana, further, that it would not necessarily follow that we would take up all the time of the Senate with the trial. It would be under the control of the Senate sitting as a court as to how much each day should be devoted to it. Probably when we got to the trial it would last only two or three days.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from Louisiana?

Mr. NORRIS. I yield.

Mr. LONG. I do not want to interrupt the Senator. I want to speak in my own right.

Mr. NORRIS. I was submitting a request for unanimous

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. The request is not amendable. Mr. LONG. The request is not amendable?

The VICE PRESIDENT. It is not.

Mr. LONG. I do not know anything about the merits or demerits of this case, any more, I suppose, than does the Senator from Nebraska. But I know that if we come back here with the Senate fiddling its time away over a little impeachment fiasco-and that is about what 95 per cent of them are—messing around here as to whether we are going to impeach somebody, with the people starving to death in this country, the Congress of the United States will have the odium it ought to have everywhere in this country.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Nebraska?

Mr. LONG. I object to it.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, I move that this impeachment matter be made the special order for 2 o'clock on the first day of the first session of the Seventy-third Congress. Mr. ASHURST and others addressed the Chair.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Chair doubts whether the motion is debatable. It is a question of the Senate sitting as a court. However, if there is no objection, the Senator from Arizona will be recognized.

Mr. ASHURST. Mr. President, I do not at all share in the view of the Senator from Louisiana. Some reply should be made to his suggestion about the Senate "fiddling away its time" on an impeachment.

Mr. President, the grand inquest of the Nation met in the proper forum, the House of Representatives. The House brought this indictment here to this tribunal, and it is the constitutional duty and the moral obligation of the Senate to give consideration to the impeachment. I hope the motion of the Senator from Nebraska may be agreed to.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the Senator from Louisiana addressing the Senate? The Chair hears none, and the Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, of course, this is a great, deliberative, grand inquisitorial proceeding. We have had lots of them here, and, of course, it is entitled to a great deal of dignity.

In private conversation with the Senator from Nebraska he tells me he does not think that the trial would take much time. I want to be heard now. I am starting now to be heard. If we are called into extra session by the President of the United States, with the people of this country crying for something to eat and something to wear, and we having it here to give to them and they not getting it, are we to mess up with a little impeachment proceeding? I call it a little proceeding, because it affects only one judge in the State of California, and it could not be anything like such a serious thing as is suggested. However, my friend the Senator from Nebraska tells me that under the rules of the Senate it would not mean that we necessarily would have to proceed with the trial of the case when we met; and, that being the case, I withdraw my objection.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Nebraska? The Chair hears none, and the request is agreed to.

The Senate thanks the managers on the part of the House for their courtesy.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, I move that the Secretary be directed to inform the House of Representatives of the action taken to-day on the impeachment proceeding.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

On motion of Mr. Norris, it was Ordered. That the articles of impeachment presented against Harold Louderback, United States district judge for the northern district of California, be printed for the use of the Senate.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senate sitting as a court is adjourned, and the Senate will now proceed with its legislative business.

ROUTINE MILITARY NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, out of order, and as in executive session, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of sundry military nominations sent to the Senate, including those which have been received to-day. They are all routine nominations.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none. Without objection, the nominations are confirmed and, without objection, the President will be notified.

(The nominations thus confirmed appear at the close of to-day's Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. Haltigan, one of its clerks, announced that the House had passed without amendment the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 262) to continue the Joint Committee on Veterans' Benefits.

The message also announced that the House had receded from its amendment to the bill (S. 465) for the relief of William H. Holmes.

AMENDMENT OF FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT-CONFERENCE REPORT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the report of the committee of conference on Senate bill 5337.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from Arkansas was entitled to the floor, and was asking the Senator from Florida some questions.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, there has been incorporated in the conference report which is now under consideration a provision as follows:

6. To accept as an additional security for any loan to any borrower under this act, or any installment on any such loan, any security other than Federal land-bank stock or mortgages on farm real estate; and the transfer to any Federal land bank of any security if it may not be accepted by the bank under this paragraph shall be vold. Provided, That any bank may accept an assignment of the landlord's rent to the amount of any taxes paid on such land by the bank, or any interest due.

Mr. President, I have no doubt that that provision was accepted by the conferees on the theory that it would tend to prevent oppression of the borrower by the Federal land banks through demands for additional security when it was not needed. I also point out this fact, that it is an interference with the right of contract, that may impose a hard-ship on the borrower by making it impossible for him to supply additional collateral necessary to avoid or avert fore-closure.

There is another consideration which I will mention very briefly. There is in the amendment an exception to the general rule that additional collateral may not be accepted by the banks, that is, collateral security in addition to land and stock of the Federal land bank, and the exception is that landlord's rent may be accepted to the amount of taxes paid on land by the banks, or any interest due.

What is the justification for limiting the collateral which may be used, or requiring that only a limited class of security may be supplied in case the bank pays taxes on the land of the borrower? It might be very inconvenient, it might be impossible, for the borrower to assign the rent, and the effect of that limitation would be to compel a condition which would result in foreclosure when, if the right of contract were not interfered with, the farmer could supply such collateral as he might be able to afford and escape foreclosure.

I think it is very doubtful whether we would be accomplishing anything helpful to the borrower by imposing what appear to be unsound conditions through legislation. That is all I care to say about the subject.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, in answer to the Senator's remarks, I may say that he correctly states the inclusion in the conference report of section 6.

The view of the House was that they wanted to protect the borrowers from chattel mortgages. If they want additional security, the view of the House was that they should get real-estate security and not call upon the farmer or the borrower to mortgage his stock, crops, and other things of that sort. They felt that there was a species of oppression liable to occur there and they wanted to protect the borrower against giving a chattel mortgage on his security and stock and that sort of thing, and confine the additional security to the land-bank stock and real estate. That was their purpose and we finally concurred.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Fess in the chair). Does the Senator from Florida yield to the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. FLETCHER. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator from Florida says the policy was to require additional real estate or additional stock of the land bank as collateral. Assuming that the farmer has mortgaged all of his real estate, assuming further that the farmer has an abundance of personal property for collateral, which of course is a violent assumption just at this time—but there are many cases in which farmers own cattle and other personal property—the effect of the amendment will be to prevent him from enjoying the possibility of getting an extension. If the collateral is inadequate to secure the amount that is due, the probability is that, in the absence of some legal moratorium, foreclosure will result. What is the advantage to the farmer to deny him the right to hypothecate the collateral he may have and so escape foreclosure? Why should the bank be forced to do an undesirable thing and proceed with a foreclosure that might be avoided if freedom of contract were not disregarded as it seems to be in this provision?

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, there may be much in the suggestion of the Senator from Arkansas, but if the borrower has cattle and other resources, the regional agricultural corporation is available to him to secure loans on that collateral and he can then pay up his installments out of cash instead of giving another mortgage on his stock in the land bank. Let him resort to those other agencies of the Government in handling his livestock and other securities in the way of personal property that he may have. That is one view of the matter.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The Senator, in my judgment, has admitted the fallacy underlying the amendment. He denies the farmer the right to make a loan from the party to whom he is already indebted, and insists that he must go out and find a new lender and make a new loan for the purpose of paying the amount due the first lender.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I have no desire to consume the time of the Senate, but inasmuch as I was one of the conferees who found it impossible to sign the report, I wish to explain briefly why I was unable to do so.

Section 6 of the House bill undertakes to prevent the farm-loan banks, and the farmer who is a borrower from them, from making voluntary contracts in this emergency, which seems to me to be wholly unjustified. There are certain things in the original farm loan act that a farm-loan bank may do and certain things it may not do. One of the things it may not do, if this conference report is agreed to, is to enter into a voluntary contract with a farmer who owes it money on his farm, which may have been reduced anywhere from 25 to probably 75 per cent in value, and, therefore, may afford an inadequate security for a loan already existing, to make any private contract with his creditor by which he may secure an extension by giving additional security.

Let us take, for instance, a situation where a man with a 200-acre farm owes $5,000 on it. He is behind with his taxes. He is behind with his interest. He is behind with his amortization payments. But he has 100 head of cattle grazing on his farm. He goes to the farm-loan bank and says, "I want an extension of my time to pay my interest and my annual amortization payment. In order to get that extension of time I am willing to give you a mortgage on 50 head of these cattle, or on all of them." Under this section he would not be able to do it. The land bank can not accept such a mortgage as that. He can not give a mortgage on one of his cattle for that purpose.

Mr. KING. Could he give a bill of sale?

Mr. BARKLEY. I do not think so. If it is true that the situation with reference to the land banks is so desperate that they either have to obtain more adequate security or enforce their lien by foreclosure, we can imagine a situation where a farmer, unable to give security on his personal property, may lose his farm and have to drive his hundred head of cattle out on the public highway with nowhere to take them. It seems to me that presents a ridiculous situation.

This tends toward the ability of the farmer to consolidate his indebtedness. I am delighted to see in the morning paper an announcement by the incoming President that he proposes to consolidate all the agencies scattered all over the country now in different departments undertaking to loan money to the farmers. There are so many different and separate agencies now under the Government of the United States acting under laws that have been passed by Congress, loaning money to the farmer, that when he wants money he does not know to which one he should go. It seems to me to present an unjustifiable duplication to require a farmer who is behind with his payments to the land bank, who can obtain a contract with them for additional security to save his own, to go to a different governmental | institution to borrow money on his personal property in order to induce another governmental institution to extend his indebtedness and not foreclose upon his land. For that reason I was unable to sign the report.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BARKLEY. Certainly.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. Might not that prove more oppressive to the farmer than leaving him free to contract under existing law?

Mr. BARKLEY. I believe so. The Senator is correct. Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The bank would take the additional collateral if it could secure it, and grant the

Mr. BARKLEY. Yes; and having already a debt against the farmer and not desiring to foreclose, they would be certainly more apt to make the loan than the intermediatecredit bank which has no interest either in the farmer or in his land.

Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas. The only reply to the suggestion that an improvident, unwise, and avoidable foreclosure might be brought about through the enactment and enforcement of this provision is that they should be required to go to some other lending agency, but that agency might be unwilling to lend; in which event, as the Senator has well stated, the farmer would lose his farm and probably the very collateral that he was willing to contract with to satisfy his original creditor.

Mr. BARKLEY. That is true. There is no assurance under any circumstances that any individual farmer can obtain a loan from an intermediate land bank.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BARKLEY. I yield.

Mr. LONG. Apparently it is the Senator's opinion that this would be more of a hardship on the farmer if we should adopt the conference report?

Mr. BARKLEY. I have said that I am convinced of that. I am convinced that by inserting in the bill this provision, by no stretch of the imagination can it do the farmer any good. The theory upon which the House put it in the bill was that it was protecting the farmer against the land banks. I do not think the land banks under the present situation are such monstrous institutions that they would take advantage of it and compel the farmer to give additional mortgage security upon his personal property except where necessary to protect both the borrower and the lender.

In the State of Kentucky tobacco is a crop that may be preserved indefinitely. The price of our dark tobacco in western Kentucky is so low that many farmers prefer to keep it in their barns in the hope that it will eventually bring a better price. They can preserve it indefinitely year after year. In the absence of a market for that crop, the farmer being unable to sell it for enough to pay taxes and interest, he goes to the farm-loan bank from which he has borrowed money, and says, "I know I am behind with my interest. I know I am behind with my annual payments. I know you have a right to foreclose and drive me out of my home. But in order to secure you I am willing to give you a mortgage on my tobacco crop which I have in my barn." Under this section he could not do it because the land bank would be forbidden to take any such mortgage as that.

I can not conceive how that is of any benefit to the farmer, and that is why I could not sign the report.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I associate myself with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Robinson] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BARKLEY] in opposition to the conference report, and I trust it may be disagreed to and the matter sent back to conference with the hope that an improvement may be made in the bill and this objectionable feature may be modified. However, I have received so many communications, hundreds of them, protesting against the action of the Farm Board in many parts of the United States with the request that I bring some of these matters to the attention of the Congress, which I have neglected to do, that I feel constrained this morning to occupy just a moment in reading from a letter from one of the ablest men in the western part of the United States, who is more familiar with the operations of the Farm Board and its delinquences than, I think, any other man in the West. This gentleman, Mr. President, states in the conclusion of his letter to me:

I hope that the opportunity may be afforded to bring these conditions before Congress and to force a proper change in the attitude of these banks for the good of the country as well as the banks themselves. The continuation of the present demonstrated policy of these institutions can only accelerate deflation, increase the number of foreclosures both by the Federal land banks and other agencies, and increase the ultimate loss to the holders of the Federal land-bank bonds.

Mr. President, I regret that Congress has not during this session in the consideration of so many bills dealing with agriculture and with farm loans addressed itself to a correction of some of these derelictions, if not abuses, upon the part of the Federal land banks. I shall not take the time of the Senate to challenge attention to these many acts of omission and commission which have brought condemnation upon the activities of the Farm Board. I only want to read a few paragraphs from the letter of this distinguished representative of financial matters and of farmers and of agriculture from one of the Western States. I know him and vouch for his integrity, his ability, and his high character. He states:

The events of the past two years have reduced many small investors to circumstances more difficult than many borrowers have confronting them. This applies particularly to school teachers and other small investors in the industrial districts where salary payments have been suspended. The result is to bring about the necessity for the refunding of a small percentage of maturing loans held by such people. * * * The withage of maturing loans held by such people. * * * The with-drawal from the farm-mortgage field of many private agencies, including insurance companies, and current pressure on private investors, has made it more necessary than ever before to rely upon governmentally sponsored agencies for credit.

May I interpose at this point to say, Mr. President, that I believe that this bill is a mistake, and I believe that the so-called Hull-Walcott bill will prove to be ineffective if not a serious mistake. I am afraid that the policies of Congress are drying up the sources from which loans might be obtained by farmers or others from private sources, from banks, from insurance companies, from investment companies, so that, as this gentleman states, people are beginning to look to the Federal Government for loans for their protection.

The writer has never been in sympathy with the policy pursued by the Federal land banks in years past. The loans, in many in-stances, have been recklessly made, poorly supervised, and politically manipulated.

Those are serious charges, but I think the conditions, Mr. President, warrant and support the statement.

I can show from the record instances where loans made by us have been retired by new loans through the Federal land banks for as much as two times the amount per acre that others were willing to carry.

As a result of these policies in the past, the number of fore-closures by the Federal land banks mounted in a serious way, the capital of the banks is reported to have become impaired, and Congress appropriated $125,000,000 from the Federal Treasury to restore the impaired capital in these institutions, presumably for the purpose of keeping them in business so that the deserving borrower, with good security, might obtain a long-term real-estate loan on desirable farm real estate.

It is inconceivable to me that any such contribution could have

It is inconceivable to me that any such contribution could have been made with any other plan in view than to maintain the integrity of these institutions as going agencies for credit on farm real estate in a period when the operation of such an agency under Federal auspices would naturally be more needed than ever before. I believe it can be proved that exactly the reverse procedure has been followed by these banks and for the last 10 months they have proceeded pretty generally on the theory that their examiners should, if possible, find an excuse in each and every instance for not making the lose applied for not making the loan applied for.

And this, may I say, Mr. President, notwithstanding the appropriation made by Congress to enable loans to be made to farmers and also to avoid foreclosure proceedings.

I do not refer to excessive loans or loans to borrowers who are badly delinquent or have a record of delinquency, but to loans which represent as little as 40 per cent of the amount of the existing loans on adjoining acreage by the same banks, and which loans are for the justifiable purpose of refunding current obligations of the borrowers which can not be retired from income under present conditions, or for avoiding foreclosures forced upon them by the circumstances previously mentioned which bring undue pressure upon individual investors who through forces beyond pressure upon individual investors who through forces beyond their control are forced finally to liquidate their holdings. My contact with many such situations leads me to this studied conclusion; and if it would be helpful, I believe I can assemble evidence to prove the point. I have also, at the request of an Idaho banker, submitted some data with respect to cases in which he was interested through contract with his customers, and I he was interested through contract with his customers, and I believe these data have gone forward to Senator Borah and Representative Addison T. Smith.

Since I believe this situation is becoming so critical that it becomes a question of national policy, I feel justified in bringing the matter to your attention. I am in possession of certain reports which lead me also to believe that the Federal land banks have been using the contributions made to them for the restoration of their capital to buy in at a discount in the market from distressed investors the outstanding bonds of these banks floated as instrumentalities of the Federal Government which by the very policy of contraction adopted by these institutions have been depolicy of contraction adopted by these institutions have be preciated to prices all out of line with their intrinsic worth.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, does the Senator mean that the banks themselves have bought in those bonds?

Mr. KING. Yes.

Mr. COPELAND. Not the directors but the banks themselves.

Mr. KING. The banks themselves, and at a discount, thus further contracting credit and at the same time depreciating governmental securities and making it more difficult for persons to obtain loans.

Mr. COPELAND. Have those activities been on a large scale?

Mr. KING. That is my information.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, if the Senator from Utah will allow me, the reference to the purchase of bonds has to do with the joint-stock land banks.

Mr. KING. I think not. I know it has to do with the Federal land banks.

Mr. FLETCHER. The bill, according to the conference report now pending, if that report shall be agreed to, will absolutely stop that and confine the appropriation to loans and to extensions.

Mr. KING. That is one virtue in the bill that perhaps may save it from utter damnation.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from Louisiana?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, if the Senator has time, will he permit me to say that the Federal land bank itselfand the bill has virtue in that respect—is taking the money that Congress appropriated to enable it to extend farm mortgages and buying up its own unmatured obligations. They are doing that all over the country. Because of the fact that I succeeded in getting proof of this outrage that is being perpetrated in the New Orleans district, the bank which furnished me with the proof of it has been set upon rather wildly by the New Orleans district bank which is calling all the first mortgages that it holds so that the second mortgages held by the bank could be wiped out. If the Federal land bank is going to proceed like it has been proceeding, it is going to make the Federal Farm Board look like a real creditable institution. It is a nefarious institution

I have not studied it sufficiently to give all the details, perhaps, but some of its activities are outrageous. They have taken $125,000,000 of the money appropriated by Congress. These rascally scoundrels have gone out and bought in their own unmatured obligations, and they are closing out the farmers, despite the money that Congress gave them, which was intended to give the mortgagors a little time and opportunity to make a little money and pay off their mortgages. I have a telegram here, which at the proper time I am going to send to the desk and ask to have read, because it contains the proof that they are engaging in that kind of operations down in the New Orleans district.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I think the Senator from Florida is in error in his contention that the Federal land banks have not purchased their own bonds. I know that the jointstock land banks have pursued that policy for some time, purchasing some of their bonds at from 30 to 40 cents on the dollar, and my information is that the Federal land banks likewise have pursued a similar course. If the Senator will permit me, I will read just a sentence or two from this communication, and I think he will find that there is corroborative evidence of the statement which I made. The writer says:

I am in possession of certain reports, which lead me also to believe that the Federal land banks have been using the contribution made to them for the restoration of their capital-

That is, the $125,000,000 which the Congress appropriated, and that contribution was not made to the joint-stock land banks, but to the Federal land banks-to buy in at a discount in the market from distressed investors the outstanding bonds of these banks, floated as instrumentalities of the Federal Government, which by the very policy of contraction adopted by these institutions have been depreciated to prices all out of line with their intrinsic worth. The result of such an operation by the Federal land bank is obviously a loss to the investing public and a disaster to the borrowing farmer, although a book profit to the bank making such purchases. If the funds are being used in this way the intention of Congress is being disregarded being disregarded.

Mr. President, the letter which I have contains a number of reports and examples of the oppressive course of several land banks, their refusal to extend credit when they should have done so, and their utilization of the funds which Congress contributed for the restoration of their impaired capital rather than to extend credit to farmers.

I desire to say, Mr. President, that in my opinion the land banks in this distressing period have utterly failed in the discharge of their duty. They have contributed to the depression, to the discouragement, and to the bewilderment of the farmers and the debtors of the United States. I think that Congress in the near future should devise some plan by which there shall be important changes and modifications in the procedure of the Farm Board, and that there shall be unification of all of these agencies of the Government through which loans are extended to agriculture.

I am opposed to this conference report, and associate myself with the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Robinson] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BARKLEY]; and I hope the Senate will reject the report.

WAR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATIONS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. LONG obtained the floor.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, before the Senator from Louisiana begins his speech, will he permit me to send to the desk a conference report on which immediate action is desired?

Mr. LONG. I have no objection.
Mr. REED. I present a conference report which I ask to have read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be read. The Chief Clerk read the report, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on certain amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 7, 8, and 22, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 12: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 12, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$2,796,465"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 23: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In ! lieu of the sum proposed in the last line of said amendment insert "$168,827"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 27: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 27, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$1,183,723"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 41: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 41, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed insert "$837,219"; and the Senate agree to the same.

The committee of conference report in disagreement amendments numbered 6, 29, 30, and 31.

DAVID A. REED, HIRAM BINGHAM, KENNETH MCKELLAR, DUNCAN U. FLETCHER, JOHN B. KENDRICK, FREDERICK STEIWER.

Managers on the part of the Senate.

Ross A. Collins, WILLIAM C. WRIGHT, TILMAN B. PARKS. HENRY E. BARBOUR, FRANK CLAGUE, Managers on the part of the House.

Mr. REED. I move that the report be agreed to. Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, I desire to say this in respect to the conference report before it is adopted:

It is my understanding that the Senate conferees have receded in respect to the amendment submitted by my able colleague, the senior Senator from Michigan [Mr. Couzens], in respect to housing 88,000 homeless boys in citizens' military training camps. In a spectacular debate, he won the consent of his Senate colleagues to this fine, humane prospectus for the use of available Army resources in serving the existing social and economic crisis. The House rejected the amendment on a roll call, and the Senate conferees thereupon receded.

The senior Senator from Michigan is absent from the city on highly important public business. I have communicated with him to determine his feeling in respect to the adoption of the conference report, in view of the action of the House, which rejects this amendment of which he was the author. While he deeply regrets the rejection of the amendment, and while he undoubtedly will renew it at the first available opportunity when the new Congress assembles. and when the attention of the Senate again may be challenged to the merits and the realities of this plan to house 88,000 homeless boys, he does not feel justified in asking the present suspension of the conference report because of this situation. Therefore, I am not opposing the conference report at this time.

I ask unanimous consent to have inserted in the RECORD at this point an editorial from the Washington Post of March 1, dealing with this subject and sketching some of the great advantages inherent in my colleague's suggestion.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

TRAINING FOR CITIZENSHIP

The most practical and constructive relief project approved by either branch of Congress is the Couzens amendment to the War Department supply bill which would direct the Secretary of War to Department supply bill which would direct the Secretary of War to provide training for wandering boys. No opposition to the purposes of the measure has developed. It is criticized only by a few pacifists who fear that the Government is trying in a roundabout way to add 88,000 young men to the Army. When this false conception is cleared away opposition disappears.

Under the provisions of the measure sponsored by Senators Couzens and Reed, boys who are now drifting into criminal gangs or acquiring the habits of the professional vagabond would be given a year of training in citizenship. No one who understands the program of the citizens' military training camps considers this means of rescuing homeless boys as a militaristic gesture. Training in the art of war would be a minor factor in the rehabilitation of these young men. The more important consideration is a restoration in them of self-respect, moral courage, discipline, and the spirit of teamwork. In view of the deplorable conditions now prevailing among these derelicts of the road it is difficult to understand how any Member of Congress can stand in the way of their rescue.

When General MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the Army, was asked what would be the effect of the C. M. T. C. training upon the future of these lads as civilians he replied:

"It will send them back to civil life not only in excellent physical condition but prepared, as they are not now, to resist the physical condition but prepared, as they are not now, to resist the temptation to become tramps, if not criminals and gangsters, and ready, as they obviously are not now, to become hard-working, well-behaved civilians, doing their duty in their own community and the country. If Congress enacts this measure it can count upon the most earnest endeavor of the Army to carry out its desire to rescue these boys from disaster and thus strengthen the basic fabric of our country."

The bill containing this amendment is now in conference. It has overwhelming support in the Senate and is indexed by public has overwhelming support in the Senate and is indorsed by public opinion. It should be approved by the conference committee and the House without delay.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I want to say for myself-

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. President, I can not permit this interruption. The Senate has before it a conference report, and we want to have it disposed of. One conference report has come in, and that has been disposed of. Now comes in another one with the assurance that it will take only a minute. If it is going to lead to discussion, I am opposed to its consideration, and I think we ought to go on and finish the report that is before the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Florida call for the regular order?

Mr. FLETCHER. I do.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. KING. The Senator from New York, under the discussion of the conference report submitted by the Senator from Florida, may continue his observations in regard to some other matter.

Mr. LONG. I had the floor, Mr. President.

Mr. COPELAND. I do not desire to delay for one moment the adoption of the Army appropriation bill report; so, as far as I am concerned, I will seek later to say what I had in my mind.

Mr. REED. May we have a vote on the conference report on the Army bill?

Mr. LONG. If there is no further discussion on the Army bill, why not let us vote on it and get it out of the way?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report submitted by the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The report was agreed to.

amendment:

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the House of Representatives, which was read:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, UNITED STATES,

March 3, 1933.

Resolved, That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 6 and 31 to the bill (H. R. 14199) making appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes, and concur therein.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 29, and concur therein with the following

Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment amended by inserting in lieu of the amount named therein "$44,315."

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 30, and concur therein with the following amendment:

Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment amended by inserting in lieu of the amount named therein "$17,265.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House to amendments numbered 29 and 30.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The motion was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OF FARM LOAN ACT

The Senate resumed the consideration of the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill (S. 5337) to amend the Federal farm loan act, as amended, etc.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, I desire to say just a few words | Party. Unfortunately, there is not enough politics in the about the general Federal land-bank situation. Federal land bank for it to be anything like a human

These banks have been granted money by direct appropriations from the Treasury of the United States through our acts of Congress. They have been borrowing money, I understand, from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. I am not certain how much; but they have been using the Government money, and they are going on here and buying their own bonds at 85 or 90 cents on the dollar, refusing to use the money to grant extensions on these loans which they could be making in these distressed times. They have been taking the very money that Congress has given them, and which they are borrowing from the Government to-day, and buying their own bonds at 85 cents on the dollar, and putting the farmer out of his house and home because he will not pay them 100 cents on the dollar.

That is what is going on with the Federal land banks to-day. We have allowed this institution to degenerate into such piratical purposes that it has come to look upon them as being fair business. They have been given $125,-000,000 by Congress. They have been borrowing money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as I stated; and they have now proceeded down in my country, after denying that they were following this practice, to go out to the little banks that were protesting against this procedure, and ruthlessly to enforce their first mortgages to wipe out the second mortgages that the little banks held.

I want to read a telegram that I have received from my State only a few minutes ago, from a bank down in Louisiana. I will not give the town and I will not give the name, because I do not want to injure the party who is sending the telegram any more than I have to. He says:

Without prior notification to us in any form, Clark, of Federal land bank, has forwarded to attorney for foreclosure mortgage on property in which we have junior interest and which property we administered during the past year, turning over to them the entire proceeds without regard to our interest. Either they are in collusion with the borrower in wiping out the second mortgage or there is a complete disregard of our interest.

entire proceeds without regard to our interest. Either they are in collusion with the borrower in wiping out the second mortgage or there is a complete disregard of our interest.

It might be possible management at New Orleans retaliating against us on account of my report of their arbitrary and ruthless policies; but, again, they are thoroughly incompetent to handle their own affairs to the best interest of the Farm Loan Board, and immediate change is imperative.

Mr. President, this man says that they administered the property last year and turned over to the Federal land bank the entire proceeds of the administration; that they did not take a penny for their own interest; and, despite that fact, that set has gone down there and is foreclosing that mortgage to put that man out of his home, or else to do something worse with some kind of chicanery that will wipe out the second mortgage, and is now taking away all the interest that this bank has that claimed nothing and sought to do nothing except to protect the Federal land bank and the United States Government.

How long is this kind of a condition going to prevail with this outfit here? What is the use of talking about Mr. Mitchell? Mr. Mitchell was man enough not to hide his crime. At least he was not taking the money out of the United States Treasury by buying his own bonds at 85 cents on the dollar and foreclosing a mortgage at 100 cents on the dollar, when the money had been given to him by the people of the United States in order that he might accommodate the farmers and extend their mortgages until such time as they could meet some of these maturities.

I say, Mr. President, that the Federal land bank is setting Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Insull a pace that they never will be able to keep up with; and they are allowed openly and boldly to reach their hands into the Treasury of the United States Government to-day and to take money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and $125,000,000 from Congress, and go down there and foreclose these mortgages, in order that they may continue to buy in their own unmatured obligations at depreciated prices in the United States to-day.

That is what we are faced with. I do not charge this against the Democratic Party nor against the Republican they have not the money.

Federal land bank for it to be anything like a human institution [laughter in the galleries], but it has been allowed to operate. May the Lord deliver me from these so-called nonpolitical boards. When these masters of finance get their hands on them, what they do not do to the people is not in the book. [Laughter in the galleries.] I hope what the new President of the United States is going to do is to let the Democratic Party or the Republican Party be absolutely 100 per cent responsible, as a matter of party administration, for the way they are going to run these institutions. Deliver us from sending up to the highhatted masters of fame and fortune who will go down here and reach their hands openly and boldly into the Treasury of the United States and then go and buy back their own bonds at 85 cents on the dollar and put a man off his farm in the State of Louisiana, who is not getting a penny out of it, just in order that they may use the money of the people to buy in their unmatured obligations at depreciated prices instead of lending the money to the people.

I do not know the merits of the Senator's bill.

Mr. BROOKHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Louisiana yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. LONG. Yes, sir; I yield to the Senator from Iowa.
Mr. BROOKHART. The other day, in the debate on the Gore amendment, I called the Senator's attention to the fact that the joint-stock land banks are doing identically what he says.

Mr. LONG. Yes, sir; and I said at the time it was an outrage.

Mr. BROOKHART. I am glad to have the Senator on that side of the question.

Mr. LONG. I was on that side of the question the other day. I beg the pardon of the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. BROOKHART. I remember the Senator said that was an outrage, but he voted the other way on the proposition.

Mr. LONG. Oh, no; I did not vote the other way. The Senator from Iowa voted with me in that matter. The Senator from Iowa and I voted together. The Senator from Iowa has gotten himself a little bit mixed up, Mr. President. [Laughter in the galleries.]

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair must admonish the galleries that no demonstrations are permitted under the rules of the Senate.

Mr. LONG. The Senator may be thinking about the medicinal liquor bill. He has that on his mind this morning, and is keeping us from passing it. This is not a Louisiana "mix."

What I was arguing with the Senator from Iowa about was this. I did not want to go on the other side of the fence and have the Government do the same thing I was condemning private interests for doing. I am not in favor of letting one man take a 35-cent obligation and pay off a dollar debt any more than I am in favor of these rascals taking an 85-cent obligation and foreclosing on a farm.

The unfortunate thing is that if the Senator from Iowa turns the telescope around and sees the picture and it looks good, it is all right; but if it looks bad, instead of correcting the bad condition, he proposes to try to fight the devil with fire. That might be a good thing; we have to do it sometimes.

Mr. BROOKHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. LONG. I yield.

Mr. BROOKHART. I think that under the Federal landbank law, in the case of these Federal land-bank mortgages, the farmers have the right I want them to have, along with the joint-stock land banks.

Mr. LONG. They have that right?

Mr. BROOKHART. Yes.

Mr. LONG. In other words, they have the right to buy in the bonds if they have the money?

Mr. BROOKHART. Yes.

Mr. LONG. Of course, the Senator and I both know they have not the money.

Mr. BROOKHART. Sometimes they have not, but sometimes they have. Sometimes they can get it, if the reduction is great enough.

Mr. LONG. They might, but in this instance they could not get the 85 cents. If steamboats on the Hudson River were selling to-day-all there are on the Hudson-for $2.50, a farmer down in my section of the country could not buy a whistle.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LONG. I yield. Mr. KING. I hope the Senator from Iowa does not indorse as a moral, to say nothing of it as a legal, proposition the joint-stock land banks continuing, instead of lending to individuals who need credit, if they have any surplus funds, to go out and buy their bonds at 30 or 40 cents on the dollar. I think it is a perversion of their authority, and it is a highly immoral act for them, if they have credit and currency and cash, instead of lending it to needy persons, to go out and buy their own bonds at 30 or 40 cents on the dollar.

Mr. BROOKHART. The Senator did not understand my position. I certainly condemn that quite as severely as he does.

Mr. KING. I am very glad the Senator takes that position.

Mr. BROOKHART. As an antidote for that thing I ask the right for the farmers to use these depreciated bonds to pay their mortgages, and every land bank in the old country that has been operating a long time gives the farmers that permission. This is the only one ever organized in the world that denied the farmers that privilege.

Mr. LONG. Mr. President, I want to admit to the Senator from Iowa that if we continue to allow this practice it would be better to allow the farmers to follow it, too. If that is a conversion on my part, the Senator can have it.

I am baptized to that extent.

Mr. BROOKHART. The Senator is talking all right now. Mr. LONG. If we are going to allow the Federal land bank itself to buy these depreciated obligations, we ought to allow the farmer to do it, too. I admit that if that kind of an injustice is permitted on the one hand, it is better to allow it on the other hand than to allow it to be unilateral.

Mr. President, I am going to conclude my remarks, which I know will please my friend the Senator from Florida [Mr. FLETCHER] and my friend the Senator from Michigan [Mr. VANDENBERG], who is trying to get up some bill in which he has some interest on behalf of his constituents. I want to say for the Senator from Michigan that he is one of the most generous characters in stopping argument when he is trying to get over a bill for the people of Michigan.

What I am condemning, and what I am calling to the attention of the Senate and of the country, is that these men are guilty of no less a crime than is being charged against Mr. Mitchell to-day. Our committee condemned Mr. Mitchell, and we ought to have condemned him, because he sold his own stock short. But this outfit to which I have been referring has been guilty of the conduct of materially assisting in the depreciation of its own securities, taking the money of the people of the United States that is given to them in order that they might extend farm mortgages, and buying in their own securities, after depreciating them, at less than par value, freezing the farmer out, and taking his farm away from him unless he pays 100 cents on the dollar.

That is the kind of institution we have to contend with in this country to-day. It is not necessary to investigate the banks of New York to see what kind of sharp practice they are indulging in. I am referring to what the Government is doing with the money of the people of the United States to-day, and I hold the proof of it here in my hand.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

Mr. KING. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Ashurst Austin Bailey Bankhead Barbour Barkley Bingham Black Blaine Borah Bratton Brookhart Broussard Bulkley Bulow Byrnes Capper Caraway Carey Clark Coolidge

Copeland

Costigan

Dale Davis Dickinson Dill Fletcher Frazier George Glenn Goldsborough Gore Grammer Hale Harrison Hastings Hatfield Hayden Hebert Johnson Kean Kendrick Keyes

King La Follette Lewis Logan Long McGill McKellar McNary Metcalf Moses Neely Norbeck Norris Nye Oddie Patterson Pittman Reed Reynolds Robinson, Ark. Robinson, Ind. Russell Schall

Schuyler Sheppard Shortridge Smith Smoot Steiwer Stephens Swanson Thomas, Idaho Thomas, Okla. Townsend Trammell Tydings Vandenberg Wagner Walcott Walsh Watson Wheeler White

The VICE PRESIDENT. Eighty-nine Senators having answered to their names, there is a quorum present. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

MEMBER OF JOINT COMMITTEE ON PRINTING

The VICE PRESIDENT appointed the junior Senator from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN] as a member of the Joint Committee on Printing to take the place of the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Moses], whose term expires.

RELIEF OF AGRICULTURE AND THE EXISTING ECONOMIC EMERGENCY

Mr. BANKHEAD. Mr. President, out of order, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a substitute for the domestic allotment bill prepared at my request by Mr. H. R. Ronald, of Mitchell, S. Dak.

There being no objection, the substitute proposed by Mr. BANKHEAD for House bill 13991, to aid agriculture and relieve the existing national economic emergency, was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

A bill to aid agriculture and relieve the existing national economic emergency

Be it enacted, etc., That this act may be cited as the "agricultural adjustment act."

DECLARATION OF POLICY

Sec. 2. It is hereby declared—

(a) That the depression in prices for that portion of our agricultural commodities for domestic consumption, and the effect of unsettled world conditions upon foreign markets for that por-tion of our agricultural commodities for consumption abroad, and the inequalities between the prices for agricultural and other commodities, have given rise in the basic industry of agriculture to conditions that have affected transactions in agricultural commodities with a national public interest, that have burdened and obstructed the normal currents of commerce in such commodities. ties, and that render imperative the enactment of this act for aiding in the relief of the present national economic emergency in agriculture and thereby facilitating the recovery of the industry, transportation, employment, and finance.

(b) That it is the policy of Congress to encourage agricultural planning and readjustment to meet changed world conditions and to aid in restoring the parity between agriculture and other in-dustries and in correcting the inequalities between the prices for agricultural and other commodities.

(c) That the provisions of this act are made applicable solely with respect to wheat, cotton, tobacco, rice, and hogs by reason of the fact that the prices for these basic commodities are a controlling factor in establishing prices for other domestic agricontrolling factor in establishing prices for other domestic agri-cultural commodities, that exportable surpluses of these com-modities or products thereof are ordinarily produced in such quan-tities as to make prices on world markets a controlling factor in establishing domestic prices, and that substantially the entire production of these commodities is processed prior to ultimate consumption.

TITLE I-DISTRIBUTION OF ALLOTMENT BENEFITS

STATE COMMISSIONS

SEC. 3. Within 15 days after the enactment of this act the Secretary of Agriculture shall, for the administration of this act, appoint for each State a commission of five members, including, if possible, the State secretary of agriculture and a representative of the State agricultural college, and shall designate the manner in which county commissions shall be established by such State commissions.

ALLOTMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

SEC. 4. Within 15 days after the enactment of this act, and annually thereafter, at least 90 days before the end of the then current marketing year for the commodity, the Secretary of Agriculture shall(a) Allot to the several States the amount of the estimated consumption in the United States, in the next marketing year, of wheat, cotton, tobacco, and rice, respectively, in proportion to their average production for sale of such commodity in the preceding 10 years, and of hogs in proportion to their average sale for slaughter in such past period as the Secretary of Agriculture shall deem representative.

(b) Request each State commission established under section 3 to report within 30 days its recommendations, based upon the opinion, so far as ascertainable, of producers and processors of commodities named in this act, as to the following:

(1) The amount of reduction in acreage to be planted to crops in the United States in the next marketing year that would provide the largest total return to producers.

(2) The rectrictions which should be imposed as to the use of any acreage diverted from crops in the United States under this act, the purpose of such restrictions being to prevent the use of such diverted acreage from causing undesirable overproduction of other crops or increasing the production of dairy products.

(3) The amount of reduction that should be made in the marteting of hogs in the United States in the next marketing year to provide the largest total return to producers, and the amount, if any, by which hog producers in the United States should reduce their acreage of corn in order to eliminate any abnormal surplus of

COUNTY ALLOTMENTS

SEC. 5. Each State commission, after the State allotment of any commodity has been made by the Secretary of Agriculture, shall—

(a) Establish county commissions to aid in the administration of this act.

(b) Apportion the State allotment of the commodity among the several counties of the State in proportion to past average production thereof in each county for such period as the State commission deems representative.

(c) Direct each county commission to announce, to producers in the county, the records of past acreage and production of the commodity that will be required for the making of allotments to the farms in the county and the time and manner in which such the farms in the county and the time and manner in which such records shall be submitted. Such records shall be for such period as the State commission shall deem representative for the county.

(d) Direct each county commission to apportion, within 30 days after the making of such announcement, the county allotment among the farms with respect to which records have been submitted as provided under subsection (c), in proportion to past average production of the commodity upon such farms for such period as the county commission deems representative.

ISSUANCE OF CERTIFICATES

ISSUANCE OF CERTIFICATES

Sec. 6. Within 45 days after the enactment of this act, and annually thereafter, at least 60 days before the end of the then current marketing year, the Secretary of Agriculture shall—

(a) Determine and announce the amount of reduction, if any, in acreage of crops or pounds of hogs marketed for slaughter (and including reduction of acreage of corn in case of hog producers) to be required uniformly in the next marketing year of producers electing to qualify for benefits provided by this act: Provided, That in the case of small producers of cotton, in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, such reduction may be in quantity marketed, and, in case of tobacco, the Secretary of Agriculture may specify different percentages of reduction for different grades. The reductions determined and announced under this paragraph shall be in amounts which in the opinion of the Secretary will shall be in amounts which in the opinion of the Secretary will result in the largest total return being realized by the producers of the commodity.

of the commodity.

(b) Determine and announce the uses that may not be made of acreage diverted from crops as required under this act in order to prevent overproduction of other crops and particularly to prevent any resulting increase in production of dairy products.

(c) Prepare and furnish to State commissions application blanks upon which producers may apply for adjustment certificates, such application blanks to set forth the conditions prescribed in this title with which producers must comply in order to receive adjustment certificates.

(d) Authorize the State commissions to direct the county commissions to issue adjustment certificates to producers making signed application therefor, such certificates to be in the amount of 42 cents per bushel on wheat, 2 cents per pound on here of 42 cents per bushel on wheat, 2 cents per pound on hogs, 5 cents per pound on cotton, 5 cents per pound on tobacco, and 5 cents per pound on cotton, 5 cents per pound on tobacco, and one-half cent a pound on rice, on the amount of the allotment to the producer's farm, and to be issued to the owner, or in the case of leased land, jointly to the owner and tenant, upon signing of the required application blanks by both. Such certificates shall be prepared and furnished by the Secretary of Agriculture and shall be issued for the next marketing year. Such certificates may be issued during such marketing year if it is still possible for the producer to comply with the conditions named in his application. application.

(e) Announce the fact that an adjustment charge will go into effect as to each such commodity, as provided in Title II, from the beginning of the next marketing year.

LIMITATIONS ON MARKETING OF HOGS

Sec. 7. The Secretary of Agriculture may from time to time, during the hog-marketing year, announce, with 30 days' notice given in such manner as the Secretary may deem proper, changes by percentage in the number of pounds of hogs that may be marketed for slaughter by the holders of adjustment certificates issued for that marketing year, when such changes are, in his opinion, necessary in order to preserve such approximate balance between supply and demand as, in his judgment, is likely to yield the maximum return to producers of hogs, subject to the limita-tion that it is not intended that the total return to the producer tion that it is not intended that the total return to the producer shall exceed the pre-war exchange value of the commodity. In determining any such changes, the Secretary of Agriculture shall, so far as possible, act with the advice of the several State commissions. The Secretary of Agriculture shall include in the application blanks for adjustment certificates the condition that producers of hogs shall comply with such notices as may be issued under this section.

SUSPENSION OF ACT

Suc. 8. If at any time less than 50 per cent of the total domestic production of any crop commodity to which this title applies or less than 60 per cent of the production of hogs for slaughter is represented by allotment certificates issued for the then current marketing year, the Secretary of Agriculture shall by proclamation suspend the application of this act with respect thereto as of the beginning of the next marketing year; but, upon application for allotment certificates by producers of at least 60 per cent of the total domestic production of any crop commodity to which this title applies, or 75 per cent of the production of hogs for slaughter, he shall issue a proclamation to that effect at least 90 days before the termination of the then current marketing year, and thereupon this act shall be in effect as to such commodity for the next marketing year and thereafter.

Sec. 9. If the local market price for any commodity to which this title applies remains, for a 12-month period, at least equal to the pre-war exchange value of such commodity, the Secretary of Agriculture shall by proclamation suspend the application of this act to such commodity as of the beginning of the next marketing year. If subsequently the local market price of any commodity as to which the operation of this act is so suspended shall remain, for 12 months, below such pre-war exchange value, the Secretary, upon application by producers of at least 60 per cent of the total domestic production of such commodity, shall issue a proclamation to that effect, at least 90 days before the termination of the then current marketing year, and thereupon this act shall be in effect as to such commodity for the next marketing year and then current marketing year, and thereupon this act shall be in effect as to such commodity for the next marketing year and thereafter; except that in the case of hogs the application of the producers of 75 per cent of the total domestic production for slaughter shall be required.

ASSISTANCE IN ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 10. The Secretary of Agriculture shall from time to time, upon the request of the several State commissions, assign to such commissions such representatives of the Department of Agriculture as he deems necessary to aid such commissions or the county commissions in the administration of this title.

RECORDS OF ACREAGE AND SALES OF HOGS

SEC. 11. The Secretary may require of the State commissions such records of sales of hogs for slaughter, and of acreage planted to and production of any commodity as to which adjustment certificates may be issued, as he deems necessary in carrying out the provisions of this act. Such records, and statistics of the Department of Agriculture and other Federal agencies, shall be employed by the Secretary as a basis for estimates or computations made pursuant to this act.

REDEMPTION OF ADJUSTMENT CERTIFICATES

SEC. 12. (a) Each adjustment certificate shall be issued in two SEC. 12. (a) Each adjustment certificate shall be issued in two parts, each to be at one-half the face value of the certificate. Title to either part of an adjustment certificate shall be transferable by delivery. One part of an adjustment certificate may be presented by the bearer for redemption at any time after six months after the beginning of the marketing year for which such certificate has been issued, and the other part may be presented by the bearer for redemption at any time after the end of the marketing year for which it has been issued. Certificates shall be accepted for redemption at the United States Traceury, or other parts and the states are be accepted for redemption at the United States Treasury or at such fiscal agencies of the United States as the Secretary of the Treasury shall designate. Certificates shall be eligible for discount or purchase by Federal reserve banks at any time after their issuance.

(b) The action of any commission, officer, employee, or agent in issuing and fixing the value of any adjustment certificate and in redeeming such certificate shall not be subject to review by any court or by any officer of the Government other than the Secretary of Agriculture.

(c) No adjustment certificate, or part thereof, shall, while in the possession of the producer to whom it was issued, be subject to attachment, levy, or seizure under any legal or equitable

POLICY AS TO ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 13. (a) It is intended that the purposes of this title shall be carried out by means of cooperation by producers, and the Secfetary of Agriculture and State and county commissions shall administer it upon that basis. It is intended that benefits provided for producers under this title shall be made available to them only as they qualify by complying with the conditions subject to which they are to be granted such benefits. The Secretary of Agriculture shall accept records of production submitted by producers, and their acceptance of conditions named in applications for certificates, as prima facie evidence of good faith.

(b) Prior to the issuance of certificates to the producers of any State for any marketing year after the first one following the enactment of this act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall require from State commissions such evidence as he may specify to show that such commission and its county commissions and prothat such commission and its county commissions and producers have complied with the provisions of this act and regulations made thereunder, and the conditions imposed as to reduction of acreage or marketing. Upon evidence received by any county commission that any producer has not so complied, his farm shall be stricken by the county commission from the list of those as to which adjustment certificates may be issued for the ensuing year. Upon evidence that any county commission has failed in the discharge of its duties or has not removed from the list of farms as to which adjustment certificates may be issued those in respect of which, within the knowledge of the county commission, the provisions of this act or regulations or conditions imposed thereunder have not been complied with, the State commission shall strike that county from the list of counties in which imposed thereunder have not been complied with, the State commission shall strike that county from the list of counties in which adjustment certificates may be issued for the next marketing year. If the Secretary of Agriculture, on the basis of evidence received, is of the opinion that any State commission has falled to comply with provisions of this act or has failed to require county commissions to enforce the provisions of this section, the Secretary of Agriculture shall eliminate such State from the list of those in which adjustment certificates may be issued for the next marketing year. Any producer whose farm has been so stricken from the list may be reinstated by the county commission upon a showing satisfactory to the county commission. Any county commission whose county has been so stricken from the list of counties may secure the reinstatement of such county upon a showing satisfactory to the State commission. Any State which a showing satisfactory to the State commission. Any State a showing satisfactory to the State commission. Any State which has been so stricken from the list of States may be reinstated by the Secretary of Agriculture upon a showing satisfactory to him. It is intended that the burden of proof as to qualifications for any adjustment certificate provided for in this title or as to compliance by a producer with this act and regulations and conditions imposed thereunder shall at all times rest upon the producer, and it shall be so administered by the Secretary of Agriculture.

(c) State and county commissions shall execute their functions under this title under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of Agriculture may prescribe.

(d) Nothing in this act shall be construed as affecting or controlling in any way the freedom of any producer to produce and sell as much as he wishes of any commodity if such producer has not applied for benefits pursuant to this act.

TITLE II-ADJUSTMENT CHARGES PAYMENT OF ADJUSTMENT CHARGES

SEC. 14 (a) During any marketing year in which this act is in effect as to wheat, cotton, tobacco, rice, or hogs there shall be levied, assessed, and collected an adjustment charge on the first domestic processing thereof, whether of domestic production or imported, to be paid by the processor. Adjustment charges shall be at the rate of 42 cents per bushel for wheat, 2 cents per pound for hogs, 5 cents per pound for cotton, one-half cent per pound for rice, and 5 cents per pound for tobacco.

for hogs, 5 cents per pound for cotton, one-half cent per pound for rice, and 5 cents per pound for tobacco.

(b) Each processor required to pay any adjustment charge imposed by this section shall procure and keep posted a certificate of registry in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Any processor who fails to register or to keep posted any certificate of registry in accordance with such regulations shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to a fine of not more than $1,000.

(c) During any period for which an adjustment charge is in of not more than $1,000.

(c) During any period for which an adjustment charge is in effect with respect to cotton there shall be levied, assessed, and collected upon the first domestic processing of silk or rayon an adjustment charge equal to the adjustment charge then in effect as to cotton, per like unit of the commodity, to be paid by the processor. No such charge shall be collected with respect to rayon derived from processed cotton subject to an adjustment charge with respect to its processing.

FLOOR STOCKS

SEC. 15 (a) Upon the sale or other disposition of any article processed wholly or in chief value from wheat, cotton, silk, rayon, tobacco, rice, or hogs that (on the date any adjustment charge takes effect or terminates) is held for sale or other disposition (including articles in transit) by any person other than a consumer or a person engaged solely in retail trade, there shall be made a tax adjustment as follows:

(1) In case an adjustment charge takes effect there shall be levied, assessed, and collected a tax to be paid by such person equivalent to the amount of the adjustment charge which would be payable with respect to the commodity from which processed if the processing had occurred on such date.

(2) If the adjustment charge is terminated, there shall be refunded to such person a tax (or if the tax has not been paid, the tax shall be abated) in an amount equivalent to the adjustment charge with respect to the commodity from which processed.

(3) Such equivalent amounts shall be established by conversion terminated by respectively the respectively.

(3) Such equivalent amounts shall be established by conversion factors prescribed by regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury.
(b) The proceeds of all taxes collected under this section shall be covered into the Treasury, and there are authorized to be appropriated amounts necessary for the payment of refunds under this section.
(c) For the purpose of this section the term "retail trade" shall not be held to include the business of an establishment which is owned, operated, maintained, or controlled by the same individual, firm, corporation, or association that owns, operates, maintains, or controls any more than two other establishments of the same character

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a), such subsection shall apply to flour in excess of 25 barrels held for sale or other disposition by any person engaged solely in retail trade.

EXPORTATIONS

EXPORTATIONS

Sec. 16. (a) Upon the exportation to any foreign country (including the Philippine Islands, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the island of Guam) of any product with respect to which an adjustment charge or tax has been paid under this act, the exporter thereof shall be entitled at the time of exportation to a refund of the amount of such charge or tax, as established by conversion factors prescribed by regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury. The Secretary shall prepare forms for filing claims for such refunds and shall certify to the Treasurer of the United States claims which have been approved for payment.

(b) Upon the giving of satisfactory bond for the faithful observance of the provisions of this act requiring the payment of adjustment charges or taxes, and of such regulations as may be prescribed thereunder, any person shall be entitled, without payment of the adjustment charge or tax, to process for such exportation any commodity with respect to which an adjustment charge is imposed by this act, or to hold for such exportation any article processed wholly or in chief value therefrom. The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe necessary regulations for such processing or holding in bond or in such other manner as may be necessary to carry out such provisions.

PROCESSING FOR PERSONAL USE AND LIMITED SALE

PROCESSING FOR PERSONAL USE AND LIMITED SALE

SEC. 17. No adjustment charge shall be required to be paid on the processing of any commodity by the producer thereof on his own premises for consumption by his own family, employees, or household.

GOVERNMENT INSTRUMENTALITIES

SEC. 18. No processor or other person shall be exempt from any adjustment charge or tax under this act by reason of the fact that the products of the processed commodity are purchased by the United States, or any State, Territory, or insular possession thereof (except the Philippine Islands, the Virgin Islands, American Sames and the islands (Num) or the Philippine Islands. can Samoa, and the island of Guam), or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality thereof.

EXISTING CONTRACTS

Sec. 19. (a) If (1) any processor, jobber, or wholesaler has, prior to the date of approval of this act, made a bona fide contract of sale for delivery after such date of any article in respect of which an adjustment charge or tax is imposed under this act, and if (2) such contract does not permit the addition to the amount to be paid thereunder of the whole of such charge or tax, then (unless the contract prohibits such addition) the vendee shall pay so much of the charge or tax as is not permitted to be added to the contract price.

(b) Charges or taxes payable by the vendee shall be paid to the vendor at the time the sale is consummated and shall be collected and paid to the United States by the vendor in the same manner as other adjustment charges or taxes under this act. In case of failure or refusal by the vendee to pay such charges or taxes to the vendor, the vendor shall report the facts to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who shall cause collection of such charges or taxes to be made from the vendee.

COLLECTION OF ADJUSTMENT CHARGES

SEC. 20. (a) The adjustment charges and taxes provided in this act shall be collected by the Bureau of Internal Revenue under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. Such adjustment charges shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States.

(b) All provisions of law, including penalties, applicable with respect to the taxes imposed by section 600 of the revenue act of 1926, and the provisions of section 626 of the revenue act of 1932, shall, in so far as applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, be applicable in respect of adjustment charges and taxes imposed by this act: Provided. That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to permit postponement, for a period not exceeding 60 days, of the payment of adjustment charges covered by any return.

LOW-VALUE PRODUCTS

Sec. 21. If the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Agriculture jointly find that any class of products of any commodity is of such low value compared with the quantity of the commodity used for their manufacture that the imposition of the adjustment charge would prevent in whole or in large part the use of the commodity in the manufacture of such products and thereby substantially reduce consumption and increase the surplus of the commodity, then the Secretary of the Treasury may abate or refund the adjustment charge with respect to such amount of the commodity as is used in the manufacture of such products in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

TMPORTATIONS

Sec. 22. (a) During any period for which an adjustment charge under this act is in effect with respect to cotton there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon the following articles when imported from any foreign country into the United States the following duties:

posed by such act.

(d) As used in this section the term "United States" the United States and its possessions, except the Philippine Islands, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the island of

TITLE III-GENERAL PROVISIONS

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 23. (a) As used in this act-

(1) In case of wheat or rice the term "processing" means the milling or other processing (except cleaning and drying) of wheat or rice for market, including custom milling for toll as well as commercial milling, but shall not include the processing thereof for feed purposes only.

(2) In case of cotton, silk, and rayon, the term "processing" means the spinning, manufacturing, or other processing (except ginning) of cotton, silk, or rayon; and the term "cotton" shall

(3) In case of tobacco, the term "processing" means the manufacturing or other processing (except drying) of tobacco.

(4) In case of hogs, the term "processing" means the slaughter of hogs for market.

(5) The term "marketing year" means such period of 12 months commencing, so far as is practicable, when the year's production of the commodity first begins to be marketed, as the Secretary of Agriculture may prescribe.

(6) Except in section 22, the term "United States" means the

(6) Except in section 22, the term "United States" means the several States and the District of Columbia.
(b) The "pre-war exchange value" of a commodity, for the purposes of this act, shall at any time be an amount bearing to the price for all commodities bought by producers during the preceding 12 months the same ratio that the local market price for the commodity during the period from September, 1909, to August, 1914, bore to price for all commodities bought by producers during such period; and shall be determined upon the basis of the index numbers for prices as computed and published by the Department of Agriculture. by the Department of Agriculture.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

SEC. 24. (a) Amounts appropriated for the payment of administrative expenses under this act shall be expended by or under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, but the amounts to be expended for such expenses under this act shall not exceed in the aggregate a sum equal to 2½ per cent of the total amount to be collected in adjustment charges and taxes under this act.

(b) The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized (subject to the limitations provided in subsection (a) with respect to the amounts available for the payment of administrative expenses) to transfer to the Treasury Department and other agencies of the Federal Government, and to any agency of any State or any political subdivision thereof, such sums as are required to pay the additional expenses incurred by such agencies in the administration of this act: Provided, That a statement of all transfers of appropriations made hereunder shall be included in the annual Budget for the fiscal year 1936, and a statement of all transfers of appropriations made hereunder up to the time of the submission of the annual Budget for the fiscal years 1935 and 1934, shall be included in the annual Budget for the fiscal years 1935.

(c) Members of a State commission shall receive compensation of $10 per diem when actually engaged in the work of the commission, and shall be paid travel expenses, and actual subsistence expenses not in excess of $— per diem, when engaged in the work of the commission away from their places of residence. Members of a county commission shall serve without compensation, but shall be paid travel expenses, and actual subsistence expenses not in excess of $— per diem, when engaged in the work of the shall be paid travel expenses, and actual subsistence expenses not in excess of $— per diem, when engaged in the work of the commission away from their places of residence. State and county commissions shall be allowed amounts necessary for the employment of clerical assistance in the execution of their functions under this act.

SEC. 25. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Agriculture are authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to the efficient administration of the functions vested in them, respectively, by this act, including regulations by the

(1) On cotton having a staple or less than 1½ inches in length, 5 cents per pound; and
(2) On all dutiable articles wholly or in chief value of cotton having a staple of less than 1½ inches in length, an additional duty of 5 cents per pound on such cotton contained therein, as established by conversion factors prescribed by regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury.

(b) During any period for which an adjustment charge is in effect with respect to any commodity there shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon the importation, from any foreign country into the United States of goods processed or manufactured from such commodity which, if domestically processed, would be subject to an adjustment charge, a duty equal to the amount of the adjustment charge, a duty equal to the samount of the adjustment charge, a duty equal to the samount of the adjustment charge, a duty equal to the samount of the adjustment charge, a duty equal to the samount of the adjustment charge which would be payable with section shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid in the same manner as duties imposed by the tariff act of 1930, and shall be treated, for the purposes of all provisions of law relating to the customs revenue, as duties imposed by such act.

(d) As used in this section the term "United States" means missions, for transmission to producers, in such manner as the Secretary may provide, suggestions for the orderly marketing of any commodity as to which this act may be in operation for the purpose of preventing seasonal or temporary depressions of market

SEC. 27. The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Treasury may each appoint such experts and, in accordance with the classification act of 1923, and all acts amendatory thereof, and subject to the civil service laws, such officers and employees as are necessary to execute the functions vested in them, respectively, under this act: Provided, That no salary in excess of $7,500 per annum shall be paid to additional employees necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

PENALTIES

Sec. 28. (a) Any person who makes any false statement for the purpose of fraudulently procuring, or shall attempt in any manner fraudulently to procure, the issuance or redemption of any adjustment certificate, whether for the benefit of such person or any other person, shall upon conviction be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

(b) Adjustment certificates issued under authority of this act shall be obligations of the United States within the definition in section 147 of the act entitled "An act to codify, revise, and amend the penal laws of the United States," approved March 4, 1909, as amended.

AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Sec. 29. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for the purposes of this act.

APPLICATION OF ACT

Sec. 30. The provisions of this act, except section 22, shall apply in the several States and the District of Columbia, and the provisions of Title I shall be applied to the District of Columbia as though such District were a county of the State of Maryland.

P. T. GORMLEY CO.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Fess in the chair) laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 197) conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims to render findings of fact in the claim of P. F. Gormley Co., which were, on page 1, line 11, to strike out "fully" and insert "equitably"; on page 2, line 2, after "said," to strike out all down to and including "stated" in line 12 and to insert ", with the right on the part of the Government to present any legal and equitable set-offs and defenses"; on page 2, line 13, to strike out "to report" and insert "upon"; on page 2, line 14, to strike out "Congress" and insert "render judgment, but without any allowance for interest on the determined amount of damages prior to its rendition"; and to amend the title so as to read: "Joint resolution conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims in the claim of P. F. Gormley Co."

Mr. WALSH. I move that the Senate disagree to the amendments of the House, ask for a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and the conferees on the part of the Senate be appointed by the Chair.

The motion was agreed to; and the Presiding Officer appointed Mr. Sterwer, Mr. White, and Mr. Logan conferees on the part of the Senate.

PROPOSED RECOGNITION OF SOVIET RUSSIA

Mr. ROBINSON of Indiana. Mr. President, on February 25 last, Mr. Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, addressed a letter to Mr. Bainbridge Colby, 36 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City, with reference to the possible recognition of Russia by the American Government. As is of course well known, both Mr. Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. Colby are very much opposed to any such action on the part of the American Government.

The correspondence is here, Mr. President, including the letter dated February 25 from Mr. Woll to Mr. Colby and the letter in reply, dated March 1, from Mr. Colby to Mr. Woll. I ask unanimous consent that this correspondence may be incorporated in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The correspondence referred to is as follows:

FEBRUARY 20, 1933.

FEBRUARY 20, 1933.

Mr. Baineride Coley,

36 West Forty-jourth Street, New York City.

Dear Mr. Coley: You have doubtless followed closely and are fully cognizant of the attitude of the American Federation of Labor on the subject of soviet recognition by the United States.

Ever since the epochal declaration by the Wilson administration that the United States could not accord recognition to the present régime in Russia, the American Federation of Labor has consistently supported the policy then adopted.

We believed then and still believe, that the great Democratic policy, stated in the note you addressed as Secretary of State to the Italian ambassador, is the only policy which this country can pursue if the United States is to be true to its ideals, principles, and history.

ciples, and history.

We have kept steadily in mind the basic fact clearly expressed in your note, but lost sight of now in many quarters and even misrepresented, that in taking its position the United States clearly disclaimed any intention to interfere in the internal administration of Russia or to express a judgment, adverse or otherwise, upon any social or economic theory which Russia might see fit to embrace or apply in the government of the Russian people.

As you stated in your note, the policy rests upon a wholly dif-ferent set of facts, viz, the essential and still asserted hostility of Russia to the Government of the United States and the principles upon which it is founded.

We are to-day experiencing a recurrence of the paid and interested agitation for a reversal of this historic policy which, in our opinion, is one of the great contributions which the United States has made to the cause of democratic freedom and to that comity has made to the cause of democratic freedom and to that comity of nations which will prevail only if their relations are grounded in mutual respect and good faith.

To-day the propaganda for Russian recognition speaks of our policy as Republican in origin, as the policy of Hughes and Coolidge, and Hoover.

This is a transparent appeal to the partisan impulse imputed to the new Democratic administration to reverse the policies of its Republican predecessors.

Of course the Russian policy of the United States is not Republican in origin or statement. On the contrary, it is a legacy from the great Democratic administration of Woodrow Wilson. The incoming administration is now called upon by the communists and incoming administration is now called upon by the communists and the socialists among us, aided by the blind and ignorant greed of selfish trading interest and our self-styled and alleged liberals, to repudiate one of the historic achievements of the Democratic

Our purpose in writing you is to ask whether, in your opinion, there are any new facts which call for a departure from this Democratic policy.

You stood close to Woodrow Wilson at the time this policy was

It is our opinion that the country would like to hear from you, as from no one else, on this great question. MATTHEW WOLL.

Sincerely yours,

New York, March 1, 1933.

Mr. Matthew Woll,
Vice President, American Federation of Labor,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Woll: Your request for my opinion as to whether there are any new facts which call for a departure from the American policy of withholding recognition from the soviet régime in Russia deserves a candid answer.

régime in Russia deserves a candid answer.

This I will endeavor to give you, although hitherto I have abstained from discussing the question of soviet recognition. It has seemed to me that having stated officially the American attitude on the subject, it would be fitting to leave its debate to others.

You refer to the policy of the United States as a Democratic policy. Such it truly is. It was first enunciated during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, and although three succeeding Republican administrations have adopted it as their own and adhered to it without substantial deviation, it is nevertheless a Wilson policy.

wilson policy.

Any reexamination of it by a Democratic administration will certainly not proceed unmindful of this fact. The reasons which shaped it will be understood, and the misstatements and distortions of it, which latterly have gained much currency, will be perceived.

The original refusal of the United States to recognize Russia had nothing to do with the acknowledgment or repudiation of its debt to this country.

It had nothing to do with the type of government Russia saw to adopt, its communism, or other theories of economic and social relations.

Any desire to influence the internal administration of Russia or to express an opinion, either favorable or adverse, upon her form of government, was expressly disclaimed by the United States. It was on an entirely different ground that American recogni-

It was on an entirely different ground that American recognition was denied. Our refusal was predicated upon the fact that Russia was an enemy state.

Despite denials and the concealments and disguises employed by as subtle a propaganda as the world has ever seen, this enmity continues to be the foundation of soviet foreign policy.

Its government is organically linked with and controlled by the Communist Internationale, whose central purpose is the fomenting of revolution in every non-Bolshevist state.

If this is the fact—and no responsible Russian dares disaffirm it—the tests established for recognition under normal conditions have no application.

have no application.

have no application.

It is entirely beside the point that the government of Russia may be, as the propagandists for recognition maintain, a de facto government, able to impose its authority and maintain order, although by cruel repression, within its territorial confines.

To concede recognition as a friend to a nation that protests she is not a friend, but on the contrary is dedicated to the overthrow of our institutions and sworn to conspire against our peace and security, is unthinkable, "a solemn lie," to use the words of Secretary of State Elihu Root.

It is the basis of Russia's theory that our so-called capitalist civilization is incapable of solving in an evolutionary and constitutional way the problems which besiege it.

The world revolution therefore is inevitable and the Russian revolution is looked upon by the present Russian leaders as a prelude to the overthrow of the capitalist and democratic civilizations throughout the world.

prelude to the overthrow of the capitalist and democratic civilizations throughout the world.

Let a revolutionary situation develop in any country, especially in a country of strategic importance in the economic and political system of the world, and the resources of the Russian state, already pledged to its support, will be immediately placed behind the revolutionary forces.

As recently as January 10 of this year, an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow, appearing in the Times, quoted Dictator Stalin as saying:

Stalin as saying:

"Our own camp is being increased throughout the world by the successes of the 5-year plan. This means that proletarian revolutions are threatening the capitalist world and that these successes are mobilizing revolutionary forces of all countries against capitalism."

against capitalism."

The progress of communism in the United States is continually remarked with satisfaction and boasting in the government press of Russia. Credit is claimed by Moscow as the organizer and director of all movements of unrest in this country, such as the veterans' march on Washington, the disturbances among the Pennsylvania miners, the Scottsboro trial, and the agitation among our Negro population against "white chauvinism," as it is called in Pureste. in Russia.

In an issue of Pravda, a few months ago, Stalin is quoted as having said:

"The Communist Internationale has created possibilities for the

"The Communist Internationale has created possibilities for the Communist Party in the United States to reach the stage where it is able to prepare the masses for the coming revolution."

Russia's present concentration upon her internal development and particularly the sacrifices which she is calling upon her oppressed people to endure are explained by the desire to increase her power and make it more effective when this final and, from Russia's point of view, inevitable combat between capitalism and communism arrives.

The evidence on this point is inexpansible. The proof is overwhelming.

The evidence on this point is inexhaustible. The proof is overwhelming.

I am gratified to think that these vital matters will be examined fully and methodically before the incoming administration allows its mind to crystallize on this subject.

The resolution introduced in the Senate a few days ago by Senator Krsc calling upon the State Department for all the information in its possession bearing upon these matters is a step in the right direction. This information is doubtless complete and well arranged. It is indispensable to any rational approach to the question. You will observe that I have not referred to the so-called business argument for recognition. The contention that vast opportunities for profitable trade would be opened if our policy of nonrecognition were abandoned has been used effectively by the Soviet Government.

The argument has little, if any, merit. The evidence is conclu-

Soviet Government.

The argument has little, if any, merit. The evidence is conclusive that our present policy has afforded ample facility for all the trade with Russia that is economically possible.

The unhappy experience of Great Britain and Italy, both of whom have decided to cancel trade agreements with Russia, and the equally unsatisfactory experience of France should silence the clamor of selfish traders who would barter American principles for commercial profit—and a dubious profit at that.

Soviet foreign trade is a function of the Government. As such it is absolutely at the service and mercy of soviet policy. It is solvet foreign trade is a function of the Government. As such it is absolutely at the service and mercy of soviet policy. It is turned on or off like a tap to serve soviet political ends.

No nation has materially increased its trade with Russia as a result of recognition, nor has the United States suffered in the least by withholding it.

The traders' argument has no place among the considerations which should actuate or deter the United States on this question.

I thus come to the specific reply to your question. In all essential particulars the theory and practice of the soviet régime remain unchanged and as they were when this country reached the decision that "it is not possible for the Government of the United States to recognize the present rulers of Russia as a government with which the relations common to friendly governments can be

I can not conclude this letter, my dear Mr. Woll, without expressing my admiration of the sane and steadfast support given by the American Federation of Labor to our Government's policy toward the soviet regime. Your organization has made an invaluable contribution to American dignity and consistency in these unsettled times.

Sincerely yours,

BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

INVESTIGATION OF EXPENDITURES OF POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 612) to provide for further investigation of expenditures of the Post Office Department, which was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That for the purpose of obtaining information necessary as a basis for legislation, those members of the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads of the Seventy-second Congress who are Members elect to the Seventy-third Congress, or a majority of them, after March 4, 1933, and until the organization of the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads of the House of the Seventy-third Congress, are authorized, as a committee, by subcommittee or otherwise, to continue the investigation begun under authority of H. Res. 226 of the Seventy-second Congress. And the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $5,000 under H. Res. 273 of the Seventy-second Congress is hereby continued for such purposes. such purposes.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, I ask that the Senate may take immediate action upon this matter.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution, which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PRINTING OF LIST OF TREATIES

Mr. BORAH. Mr. President, I hold in my hand a list of treaties which have been ratified by the Senate since December, 1924, which I ask to have printed as a Senate document.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Without objection, that order will be made.

SOUND REPRODUCTION RECORDS FOR THE ADULT BLIND

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, I ask for the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 1346, House bill 13817, to amend section 1 of the act entitled "An act to provide books for the adult blind," approved March 3, 1931.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. Mr. President, I am very sorry to have to object to any request made by the Senator from Utah, under all the circumstances, but I have a very positive letter from the superintendent of the school for the blind in the State of Wisconsin, and I feel constrained to object. The VICE PRESIDENT. Objection is made.

ARTHUR I. NEVILLE

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, there was filed this morning, from the Committee on Military Affairs, a favorable report on House bill 2157, for the relief of Arthur I. Neville. I ask that the bill be acted on at this time.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, is there any necessity for taking up the bill out of order?

Mr. COPELAND. Yes; the bill is not on the calendar. The VICE PRESIDENT. The bill was reported this morning.

Mr. COPELAND. It was reported without amendment.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. What is the bill?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I ask for an explanation on the bill, in the absence of a report.

Mr. COPELAND. Mr. President, the bill is to correct a military record. The Military Affairs Committee reported it only this morning, and that is the reason why I ask for immediate action. It is made very clear on the face of it that it is to correct a record. The bill passed the House unanimously and was unanimously reported by the committee.

Mr. BRATTON. Mr. President, when are we to have a call of the calendar? There are many other bills on the calendar which need attention.

Mr. McNARY. I hope to have one later in the day, I may say, but it is not certain.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I shall not object to its consideration, but I give notice that as soon as I can I shall get the report, and if it is a case of desertion and does not come within the rule announced by the able Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Walsh], I shall ask the Senator now to consent in advance that it may be reconsidered.

Mr. COPELAND. That is satisfactory.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PURCHASE OF ALLOTMENTS OF DECEASED INDIANS

Mr. FRAZIER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1437, the bill (H. R. 14059) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior in behalf of Indians to purchase the allotments of deceased Indians, and for other purposes. I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BRATTON. Mr. President, I shall object to picking out bills from the calendar in this way. If we are going to have a call of the calendar let us have it and let each bill have its opportunity to pass.

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Mexico objects.

FINANCIAL RELIEF FOR IMPROVEMENT DISTRICTS

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an address by Julien N. Friant, Cape Girardeau, Mo., on the subject of financial relief for improvement districts, delivered before the National Drainage, Conservation, and Flood Control Congress at Columbus, Ohio, on February 15.

There being no objection the address was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

While the people are arguing over the cause of the depression and our leaders differ as to its solution, those of us who are inter-ested in any phase of reclamation work know we have a serious problem on our hands.

The National Drainage Association, of which for the past two years I have been secretary-treasurer, is a farmers' organization, supported by farmers for the purpose of securing financial relief for distressed dainage, levee, and irigation districts (other than Federal projects), which I shall hereafter refer to as "improvement districts."

Agriculture

ment districts."

Agriculture was man's first means of livelihood. It is the greatest of all human endeavors, and notwithstanding frequent statements made in recent years to the effect that America has become an industrial Nation agriculture is still our basic industry. For over 10 years the leaders in the fight for real farm relief have stated that this Nation could not live half rich and half poor at the present time any more than it could exist half slave and half free at the time of Abraham Lincoln. They also pointed out that agriculture, because it was basic, was in the end going to dominate, and that if steps were not taken to elevate the economic status of those engaged in this most essential industry they would pull the other economic groups down to their level. It is nomic status of those engaged in this most essential industry they would pull the other economic groups down to their level. It is too bad those who have directed our affairs during the past 12 years have seen fit to permit such a thing to occur, but nevertheless that is what is now happening.

The greatest problem now confronting that large group of farmers and landowners in our improvement districts is the excessive taxes for their reclamation work that have become so great that they are confiscating their property.

A short review of the work leading up to the present undertakthat they are confiscating their property.

A short review of the work leading up to the present undertaking of our organization might be of interest to you.

Early in 1927 a large number of engineers, lawyers, landowners, and drainage and levee district officials in the Lower Mississippi Valley met in Memphis, Tenn., to study the situation and, if possible, work out a plan to secure relief from that heavy tax burden.

At that meeting they organized the National Drainage Association. It is composed of levee and drainage districts, principally throughout the Mississippi Valley. They asked these districts to join the organization and support it by paying annual dues of onetwentieth of 1 per cent of their outstanding bonded indebtedness. They elected Mr. W. H. Dick, of Memphis, Tenn., the head of the Mississippi River Flood Control Association, as president, and employed the late Mr. W. W. Powell, of Washington, D. C., as legislative agent. Mr. Powell had been secretary of the Joint Stock Land Banks Association and knew, perhaps, as much about Federal farm financing as anyone in the country. They also elected a vice president from each State having this problem. I am glad to say in your presence that we feel honored in having the president of your organization, Mr. E. V. Willard, not only as vice president of our association for Minnesota, but also as a member of our executive committee.

Our organization grew rapidly. The first two years were spent in studying the drainage and levee conditions in the various

Our organization grew rapidly. The first two years were spent in studying the drainage and levee conditions in the various States having the problem, in studying the reclamation laws that governed Federal irrigation projects in the West, and in drafting a bill that would meet the needs of all the States.

a bill that would meet the needs of all the States.

They found, for instance, that 34 States had the drainage and levee problem in a major or minor degree, that 65,000,000 acres of land had been reclaimed by drainage, and that over 5,000,000 people lived in the drainage and levee areas of the country.

In their study of the Federal reclamation laws they found in the beginning of the irrigation activities in the West the Government did the countries work and gave the settlers in the Government did the countries.

the beginning of the irrigation activities in the West the Government did the construction work and gave the settlers in those projects 10 years without interest to pay for their lands. That time proved to be too short and was extended to 20 years, still without interest, and during President Harding's régime, after a careful investigation by a fact-finding commission composed of eminent citizens of the West, the time was again found too short and was extended to 40 years without interest.

